At St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday, a letter was read from His Lordship Bishop O'Brien to the various parishes of the diocese, relating to the order of ceremonies in connection with the Centennial Celebration to take place in two weeks' time, to commemorate the saying of the first Mass in the City of Peterborough. Rev. Father Costello also announced the saying of an extra Mass next Sunday, in order to accommodate visitors to the ordination ceremonies of the five young men who will be received on that day into the Roman Catholic priesthood. They are R v. V. Corkery, of the Cathedral parish, Rev. H. Black and Rev. C. McCarney, of the Sacred Heart parish, Rev. Leo Cleary, of Hastings and Rev. Kent Killen of Ennismore. Rev. Mr. Killen will be ordained for the Calgary diocese, the others for this diocese. The Masses at the Cathedral next Sunday will be at 6.30, 7.30, 9.00 and 10.30 a.m.

With regard to the Centennial celebration of the first Mass said in Peterboro, this mass was said a hundred years ago in January of that year, in a log house, where the Customs House now stands.

The celebration, however, was postponed until this time of year on account of better weather conditions. It is not historically recorded whether the two thousand immigrants from Cork, arriving here in August of 1825, had the celebration of Mass or not, and, although such may have been the fact, it is not on record either whether Champlain who probably visited Peterborough, on his voyage through the waters of the Trent, was accompanied by a priest who may have offered up the Holy Sacrifice at this place, but it is on record that in 1826, Rev. Father Ahearn was appointed by Bishop McDonell of Kingston, as the first priest of a parish which comprised the Counties of Peterborough, Durham, Victoria, Northumberland and Hastings.

Preparations for the Centennial celebration in two weeks' time, include an elaborate programme. The sanctuary at the Cathedral is being redecorated for the occasion, and a statue of Christ the King is being erected on the Cathedral grounds, facing down Hunter street. The only disappointment in connection with the ceremony will be the non-arrival of the gold vestments recently ordered these being still in the hands of the manufacturers.

The programme for the celebration, as outlined in the Bishop's pastoral letter, commences with the arrival of the Apostolic Delegate for Canada and Newfoundland, on Friday evening, June 4th, at 8.10, at the C. N. R. station, when the Catholic men of the city are invited to take part in a procession to the Cathedral, and the women to be present there later. His Excellency will deliver an address at the Cathedral and then solemnize the Benediction.

On Saturday, at three o'clock the school children of the city and surrounding district will attend Solemn Benediction by His Excellency at the Cathedral. On Sunday a general communion of thanksgiving will be offered up by the parishioners, and the ten-thirty Mass will be a Solemn Pontifical Mass said by His Excellency with the Cathedral choir assisted by members of the other Catholic choirs of the city and by singers from St. Augustine's Seminary Toronto. The sermon will be preached by the Vicar General of the diocese Right Rev. Monsignor McColl

In the afternoon at half past three o'clock the blessing of the statue of Christ the King will take place and a sermon preached by Rt. Rev. J. J. Fallon Bishop of London. A public reception on the church grounds will follow.

On Monday morning a Solemn Pontifical Mass will be offered up for the repose of the soul of those who have died during the past century.

Joyce Hawley Admits She Occupied Bath Tub

NEW YORK, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Joyce Hawley testified today in the perjury trial of Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, that she not only occupied a bath tub on the stage of the Earl Carroll Theatre, but that she was drunk when she got into it from liquor served her in the theatre. She also testified that she had been offered $350 by an associate of Carroll if she would appear before the grand jury and say there was no champagne or wine served at the party.

THIRTY KILLED IN RAIL CRASH

Hundred Injured When Express Strikes Standing Train.

PASSED SIGNALS.

MUNICH, May 25 (United Press) —An express train coming into the station at Berg-am-Leim, between here and Salsburg, to-day crashed into a standing train, the locomotive of the express crumpling up like a match box and the remainder of the train being wrecked. Reports placed the death list as high as 30, with as many as 100 injured.

Failure to observe signals was believed to have been the cause.

MANY VISITED CHEMONG PARK

OPENING DANCE.

Chemong Park yesterday resumed its wonted summer aspect as one of the favorite playgrounds of the Peterborough citizen. Despite a chilly wind which whipped the waters of the late into miniature breakers, there was a steady influx of visitors from the city to the park, travelling on foot, in the buses, and in private cars. Picnic parties and family groups were to be found in every portion of the park. Quite a number of cottagers took advantage of the holiday to come in from the city and put their summer residences into ship-shape for the coming season.

In the evening, the crowd received a large augmentation, the opening dance at the Pavilion being the magnet of attraction. The Pavilion was prettily decorated for the occasion. Ken Blood's Orchestra supplied the music for the dancing.

INFRINGED PATENTS.

Decision Against National

NEW York, May 25. Canadian Press. — The National Cash Register Company infringed on 44 points patents owned by the Remington Cash Register Company, and will have to pay the latter company damages for the losses sustained, it was decided on Monday by Judge Manton of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decree directed that a special master be appointed to ascertain the amount of the damages suffered by the Remington Company.

The National Company was under injunction restraining it from use of the patents and under bond of $250,000 to secure payment of loss suffered by the Remington Company.

Shortly after the decree of Judge Manton was announced, the National Cash Register Company announced that it had purchased from the Remington Cash Register for $2,000,000 all the patents in litigation.

FIRE ATTACKS REVIEW PLANT NEAR MID-DAY

Upper Floors Badly Damaged By Blaze, and Water Soaks Lower Storeys.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

Fire Department Performs Splendidly With Hundreds of Spectators.

Fire which broke out at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning swept through the upper stories of the Review Printing Company building, doing several thousand dollars damage to plant and stock, gutted the upper floor, and broke through the roof to menace the buildings on George street between Hunter and Brock. In fact, but for the fireproof roofs on these buildings, it is probable that a serious conflagration would have followed. The cause of the fire has not been uncovered.

The alarm was turned in from the box at the corner of Hunter and George at 11.17 by J. Christie, and the first platoon of firemen was quickly engaged. When Fire Chief George Gimblett recognized the serious nature of the blaze he rang in the emergency call for all firemen. The entire force of duty and non-duty platoons was fully required to cope with the flames, and the prompt action taken by the Chief prevented a much more serious loss.

The firemen performed gallantly, but it was strategy that confined the blaze. Firemen were sent with hose up forty-foot ladders to play streams of water through windows on the heart of the fire. Choking paper smoke mixed with the fumes from burning ink made breathing in close proximity to the upper part of the building almost impossible. Other lines of hose were laid up the stairs inside, and in all five streams were played on the fire. The roof was torn off by firemen in order to reach the flames, the task rendered doubly difficult by the fact that tar paper had been nailed over the shingles.

Some Stock Saved.

Tarpaulins, of which there are only a dozen in the fire department, were put into use by Fire Chief Gimblett to cover the machinery and stock on the lower floors, and the chairs in the barber shop next door. In his opinion there should be more of these protectors available.

Alderman E. Mel Turner, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee of the City Council, was an interested spectator, expressing appreciation of the splendid work done by the firemen and congratulating the Fire Chief on the speed with which the department got into action and the splendid training which enabled them to do so effective work.

A. H. Stratton, proprietor of the Review Printing Company, could not give any estimate of the loss sustained. The damage to the building will be at least $2,000, and the loss of stock and equipment is a serious blow, coming as it does in the midst of the busy summer season. In addition, valuable old records that were stored in the top storey were destroyed.

During the battle with the flames, ropes were stretched across Chambers street, and the police force kept back the hundreds that had gathered as spectators.

FINED FOR LEAVING CAMP FIRE BURNING

Canadian Banker Neglected 'Safety First' Plan.

DULUTH Minn., May 25. Canadian Press. — How a Canadian banker who abandoned his camp fire on a north shore road against his wife's advice, had his automobile number taken by the immigration patrol, who extinguished the fire he had started before it did much damage, pleaded guilty to the charge on the steps of Grand Marais court house and was fined $15 and $3 costs on Saturday night, was told the Associated Press by Arthur F. Oppal, acting state forester who was present.

The banker admitted leaving the fire without waiting for reading of the warrant, Oppal said, and pleaded that he meant no harm. He was told of the $30,000 loss caused by other fires in this vicinity last week by Judge Larson, just before the fine was imposed. The banker had entered the United States at Pigeon River. He went on to Duluth after paying his fine, Mr. Oppal said.

Vanity Leads To Capture Of Swindler Of Women Traced Across Country By Lavishness With Tips

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 25 (Canadian Press)—His vanity led to the capture yesterday of Robert Whitman, described by police as "Bogus Lord Beaverbrook" and known under a dozen aliases, on charges of having married and swindled a New York woman of jewelry valued at $200,000. The authorities said the prisoner had left a trail of broken hearts from the Atlantic to the Pacific after having swindled his victims out of jewelry worth more than $1,000,000. They asserted that he had married women in many parts of the country.

Whitman, who detectives said had been traced across the country by his vanity and lavish distribution of tips to hotel attendants, was arrested in the barber shop of a local hotel, where he was stopping with a girl companion on a "business trip."

PEACE REQUEST NOT CONSIDERED

Only Manoeuvre To Gain Time, Says Briand of Riff Letter.

MAKES NO CHANGE.

PARIS, May 25 (Canadian Press). —Abd-El-Krim' letter, brought out of the Riff by a member of the French Medical Mission, makes no change in the Moroccan situation, is the view of the French Cabinet. After the Cabinet meeting this morning Premier Briand said the letter was evidently a manoeuvre by the Riffian chief to gain time in which to fortify his position and continue his resistance against the advancing French and Spanish troops.

TWO CARS COLLIDE AT STREET CORNER

Members of Moose Team Were Riding In One Car Nobody Hurt.

Two cars, one of them containing six players of the Moose baseball club, and the other driven by a Peterborough lawyer, entered into a mix-up at the corner of Simcoe and George Street yesterday shortly after the conclusion of the morning game. The Toronto car suffered a damaged left front fender and running board and had the glass broken in the rear door, but was able to proceed from the scene under its own power. The Peterborough car was not so fortunate, as the front axle was bent, the car having to be removed by the repair men.

LOCAL CITIZEN DIES SUDDENLY

Peter Simons Collapses Just as He Starts For Church.

SEEMED QUITE WELL.

Death came with startling suddenness to Peter Simons, a well-known citizen of the city, early on Sunday morning. Mr. Simons had been to his work as usual on Saturday, and had worked, as was his custom, until 10.30 p.m. He was apparently in good health, and had been in his usual good spirits all day. He arose about six o'clock on Sunday morning, intending to go to church, but shortly afterwards complained in a casual manner about a pain in his chest. He was reaching for his stick, intending to go out, when he suddenly collapsed, and died shortly afterwards. Relatives of Mr. Simons said that he had been complaining about the pain on Friday last, and the doctor had told him to keep quiet and not go to his work, but despite the advice he was on the job as usual on Saturday.

PILSUDSKI PARTY MAY FORCE DISSOLUTION OF PARLIAMENT AND PROCLAIM DICTATORSHIP

Left Groups Also Demand Use of Force Against Posen.

TO OUST PRESIDENT.

Counter Revolutionists Are Strong Under President of Posen Province.

WARSAW, May 25 (United Press) —The new Polish Government has openly threatened to establish a dictatorship whereby Parliament will survive nominally but actually will be superseded.

It was learned that after the convening of Parliament next Monday Marshal Josef Pilsudski, victorious in his coup d'etat, intends to force the dissolution of the Sejm and proclaim a dictatorship on the basis of constitutional prerogatives.

Left wing groups demand the forcible ousting of Bniski, President of the Province of Posen, where counter-revolutionists are strong.

It was even rumored that Pilsudski contemplates a punitive expedition against Posen.

GERMAN SAYS LEAGUE MUST BE SUPREME

No One Nation Should Be Stronger Than Combined Forces.

SHARP ALLUSION.

Bernstorff Points Out Germany's Neighbors Are Not Disarmed.

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—Germany intervened sensationally at to-day's meeting of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission, when Count Von Bernstorff made a sharp allusion to the fact that Germany's neighbors were not yet disarmed.

He insisted that the measures proposed by France to strengthen the League of Nations covenant, and speed assistance to any attacked nation should be based not on the present excessive armaments of Europe but on the reduced scale of armaments which everybody hopes eventually the international conference would bring to the world.

Count Von Bernstorff emphasized that although Germany is regarded "morally as a member of the League," she cannot have a voice in the League Council to which M. Paul Boncours' project for reinforcing covenants has been referred.

Hence, the German spokesman said, he wanted to register the opinion now that future disarmament should be of such a nature as to prevent any one nation possessing a military strength greater than that at the disposal of the League of Nations.

"Each of the States," he said, "should have sufficient forces so that the League would be able at all times to impose its will."

Attacks of Bear Believed Cause of Teacher's Death.

PRINCE RUPERT, May 25 (Canadian Press). — The body of Miss Chisholm, school teacher at Port Essington, south of here, at the mouth of the Skeena River, was found yesterday morning a short distance off the trail in the woods. Miss Chisholm was last seen on Sunday morning.

The girl's skull had been fractured by a blow from behind, and the body was badly lacerated. One theory as to the cause of her death is that she was attacked by a bear.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

WHEN MAMA AND DADDY RABBIT RASIED THEIR FIRST FAMILY.

When Chatty Chipmunk saw the pretty little gentleman bunny rabbit making a nice home right near the hole under the stone fence where she lived she hurried out to ask his name.

"Just Bunny Rabbit, if you please," replied the Gentleman Rabbit very politely. "And you are Chatty Chipmunk, I believe. I hope you have no objections to my wife and me moving in here."

"Goodness, no," laughed Chatty Chipmunk. "We're always glad to have nice neighbors. Been married long, Bunny Rabbit?"

"No, we were just married," replied Bunny Rabbit. "In fact, this is our first home."

From that day on Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk and the Rabbit Family were the best of friends.

Many a happy time Mr. and Mrs. Bunny Rabbit and Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk had together. They romped every evening until they were tired, then they would go home, eat and rest.

One mornin g when Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk was on her way home from market she heard Mrs. Bunny Rabbit crying very softly, and without stopping to knock she pushed right into their little burrow.

"Oh dear, oh dear," sobbed Mrs.

"This Is Our First Home."

Bunny Rabbit," all our babies are blind and haven't a hair on them. What shall I do?"

"I guess we're punished for wasting our time this Spring," sobbed Mr. Bunny Rabbit. "Oh dear, what shall we do with them? How can I ever teach them to run and play?"

"There, there," soothed Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk, trying hard to keep back her own tears. "Don't cry, friends. I can't see any trouble with your babies. They are most adorable. All little Bunnies look just like that when they are first born."

"What? Blind and hairless!" almost screamed Mrs. Bunny Rabbit. "Why, my cousin, Mrs. Hare raised a family and they all had lovely hair and eyes when they were born."

"Certainly they did," chuckled Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk. "But remember, you are a Rabbit—just a plain little rabbit. All rabbit babies are born with their eyes closed and hairless. Now you just give them a few days and see if I am not right," and, kissing the little mother, Mrs. Chipmunk hurried home with her groceries.

As the Spring days grew warmer the wee Rabbit babies grew stronger, and sure enough one day their eyes popped open and Mama and Daddy Bunny Rabbit were too happy for words. Daddy Rabbit ran over for Mrs. Chipmunk and she came over to see them.

"Just as I told you," she laughed merrily. "One of these days they will be covered with soft grayish-brown fur just like yours. They will have the loveliest white cotton-ball tails you ever saw."

So it all happened just as Mrs. Chatty Chipmunk had said. When the Rabbit babies were old enough to romp outside of the burrow with their Mama and Daddy and good neighbor, Mrs. Chipmunk, they were the prettiest little bunny rabbits you ever saw. They were covered with the softest of soft fur and each had a lovely white cottontail and Mama and Daddy Bunny Rabbit were the proudest of proud presant.

CAMPBELLFORD HAS SPORT ON VICTORIA DAY

Celebration Under Auspices of Seymour Agricultural Society Yesterday.

GOOD WEATHER.

Lacrosse, Softball and Races Form Attractions of Splendid Meet.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25.—The Victoria Day celebration, held here yetserday, under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society, was a big success. Favorable weather brought out a large crowd and they watch with interest the various attractions.

At 1.30 p.m. two local teams staged the first softball game. The boys of the Hydro, Clerks, St. Mary's and Christ Church won from the Mill, Outlaws, St. Andrew's and Millionaires by a 15 to 8 score.

The line-up:

H., C., St. M., C.C. . . 410070102—15
M., O., St. A., M.. . . 00010304O— 8

Umpires—Bush, plate; Rev. Clark bases.

The Lacrosse Game.

The softball sports of Campbellford would like to ask Mr. Wisecracker if all his lacrosse stars are playing softball now. Peterborough was to be the opposing team in the lacrosse game, but Ira Dundas was the only Peterborough player to learn the game in the city. The White boys and Nicholson got their start here, and Wells is a product of Marmora and Havelock Juniors. The rest of the team was filled out from former and present Campbellford boys, but they failed to move the Meyers Cup from its present resting place, Campbelford winning 2 to 0. Old-time lovers of lacrosse got a few thrills, as they watched some clever manoeuvres of their favorites, and then they would learn the fact they would probably not see more of their favorite pastime before another 24th of May.

Last year's good juniors were very prominent all through, Fox, Cochrane, McArthur, Cowell, Copperthwaite and the two Ingram boys handling the ball in clever fashion. Cowell got the first counter, when he took a nice pass from Copperthwaite right in front of the opposing cage.

Copperthwaite also gave the pass for the other goal, this time to Harry Ingram, and Harry went around his check for a nice goal. Freddie Ingram had several shots on goal, but was decidedly off in his aim, and seldom came close enough to bother Garrison. "Lefty" White, Wells, and Harry Lott were the pick of the Petes. They tried hard to avoid a shut out, but the home defence played steady lacrosse and they failed to get in close very often.

The line-up:

Campbellford — Fox, goal; McArthur, point; Cochrane, c point; F. Ingram, 1st defence; Bush, 2nd defence; Cowell, centre; Copperthwaite, 2nd home; H. Ingram, 1st home; Brown, outside home; Labrash, inside home.

Referee—B. Lott, Oshawa.

Warkworth Wins.

Seven hits was all the Campbellford boys could collect off the pitching of Darling, and Warkworth won the final softball game 14 to 4. They scored 8 runs in the second innings by some solid hitting and loose playing by the locals. Outside of the second inning, the home boys held their own. Line-up:

MILLBROOK HAS GOOD SPORT ON BIG FIELD DAY

Doug Loomis Judges Track Events With Many Entries.

HORSE RACES.

Cognawagas Give Local Nine a Baseball Battle, and Win.

MILLBROOK, May 25. — The Cosmos Club is to be congratulated on the fine programme of sports successfully run off, under its auspieces, at the Agricultural Park on the afternoon of Empire Day, this being the first occasion for several years that a field day has been held locally on May 24th.

The attendance was large, and with two or three different events going on simultaneously practically all afternoon, no complaints were heard either of lack of interest or entertainment.

The parade to the grounds at 12.30 p.m. was headed by the Millbrook Band, under the leadership of G. A. Duncan, but apparently local motorists do not care to go to the trouble of decorating their cars as only three competed for the prizes offered, and there were but two entries in the "comic outfit" class. V. C. Lambert won first prize for his car, the floral decorations in a color scheme of green and gold being most effective; Councillor G. W. Sayles came second, with an appropriate "Empire Day" decoration for his car; H. Nattrass had third place, the efective flag arrangement being suitable to the occasion. The prizes were: 1, Five gallon can of motor oil; 2, tire tube (to suit make of car winning the prize; 3, baseball bat.

W. Mulliss won first prize for clown costume, and F. Turner, second.

Field events

The field and track events, which were under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, with D. Loomis of Peterborough, as referee, was as follows:

Junior 100 yards dash.—1, J. Hope, Peterborough (All Saints) time 11 2-5; 2. 1. Northam.

Running Broad Jump, Senior—1, J. Larmer, 16 feet 9 and one-half inches; 2, J. Ward (Peterborough A.S.A.) 16 feet 5 inches.

Running Broad Jump, Junior—1, Jack Hope, 16 feet 4 inches; 2, E. Northam, 15 feet 8 inches.

Shields, suitably inscribed, bearing the Cosmos colors of olive and orange, were given as first prizes in the track and field events, the second award being donated by the local merchants.

Horse Races

In the named horse race, Messrs. P. Stinson and Milton Fallis starters, the same order was maintained in the three heats, the result being: 1, Hazel M., owned by W. Mulligan, Bethany; 2, Spingixieoria, owned by H. A. Fallis, Cavan; 3, Sadie P., owned by A. Lunn, Millbrook. The time was 2.30, 2.29 and 2.31.

Ball Game

A special feature of the afternoon was the ball game between the Cognawagas, of Peterborough, and the local nine, the former apparently either having had more practice, or being more expert twirlers of the leather-covered sphere, than the home team, as they outclassed their opponents practically from the start the final score being 13-4, in favor of the visitors. The line-up was:

Cognawagas—H.Smith, p; E. McGee, c; A. Rooke, 1b; W. Crary, 2b; Weese, 3b; W. Graham, ss; W. Prest, rf; J. Billingsley, lf; F. Cripps, cf.

Millbrook—E. Hutchison, p; N. Gilmour, c; H. Nattrass, 1b; R. Shaw, 2b; A. Armstrong, 3b; W. Budd, ss; L. Ingram, rf; R. Smith, lf; H. Lancashire, cf.

B. Price, Orillia, plate umpire; E. C. Richards, bases.

The softball game between the girls' team from Pontypool and the local players had the following line-up:

Pontypool—M. Trick, p; E. Scott, c; E. Voysey, 1b; M. Barwell, 2b; M. Smith, 3b; Mrs. Beale, ss; Ida Payne, rf; E. Wright, lf; Annie Bernstein, cf.

Millbrook—Thelma Armstrong, p; Phyllus Brown, c; G. Gray, 1b; May Earle, 2b; P. Richards, 3b; Helen Larmer, ss; Olive Carl, rf; Bessie Wood, lf; Pearl Davis, cf.

Umpire—A. McCorry.

Score — 14-6 in favor of Pontypool.

Unfortunately the final ball game, between Pontypool and Elizabethville, was called unavoidably late in the afternoon, but the majority of the spectators remained to see the play, which resulted in a victory for the former team, the score being 12-8. The teams lined up:

Elizabethville—L. Trew, p; L. Muldrew, c; W. Muldrew, 1b; O. Beatty, 2b; C. Beatty, 3b; H. Trew, ss; R. Megathie cf; Clarence Beatty rf; G. Megathie, lf.

Good Support.

The business men and other citizens of both Cavan and Millbrook generously supported the Cosmos Club by donations of cash and merchandise, supplying worthwhile prizes for all events. The band selections throughout the afternoon added considerably to the sum total of enjoyment.

Tea was served to the visiting ball teams in the agricultural hall, the officers and members of the Cosmos Club acting as hosts. The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group sold tags all day in aid of the Cosmos funds, and the boys had a well-patronized booth on the grounds. Total gate receipts were $221.00; from the booth $196.00. Only one dissatisfied person was heard from when the sports programme was completed—not a local citizen—and he was advised to apply at the gate and his money would be refonded.

A largely-attended dance in the Armouries at night, with good music supplied by the Stewart-Moncrief 4-piece orchestra, rounded out most enjoyably a successful day's programme.

HAVELOCK COUPLE CELEBRATES GOLDEN WEDDING, SURROUNDED BY DESCENDANTS AND FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barnett Receive Many Tokens of Affection.

ATTEND MASS.

Rev. Father McCarthy Speaks on Blessings of Well Founded Life.

HAVELOCK, May 25.—An event of more than usual interest took place in Havelock on Monday, May 24, when Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barnett celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding, at their home on Concession Street.

The [illegible]ring was made additionally unique by the presence of four generations of the family. Four guests who were present at the wedding half a century ago were also present, namely Mr. John Barnett of Rochester, N.Y., brother of the groom, and who was best man; Mrs. P. Hefferman of Peterborough; Mr. P. Boland, and Mrs. N. Doris of Keene. Not the least pleasing feature of the occasion was the fact that all of the family of ten were able to be present.

In the morning at nine o'clock, grand high mass was celebrated in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church by the parish priest, Rev. Father McCarthy, in honor of the occasion. In speaking on "Vocation," which was the subject of the sermon, Father McCarthy said, "God has a special work for every man to do. For some, God's call is to a state of perefection accepting the invitation of our Lord: If thou would'st be perfect, go sell what thou hast and give to the poor, and come follow me. This is the highest vocation—to give up willingly for God's love, by the vows of obedience, poverty and chastity, the things that the human heart holds dearest.

"This can be only for the few chosen ones. For the great number of men and women the call is to the state of marriage, to do their share of the world's work, and in the home to raise up other souls to know and love and serve God.

"Fifty years ago to-day Mr. and Mrs. Barnett came to the altar together to pledge to one another until death, fidelity and love. Jesus of Nazareth was a guest at that wedding as He was at Cana long ago. Not in His visible human nature, but through the wonders of God's power and love in the Blessed Sacrament really and tduly present under the veil of bread. And duding the 50 years that have passed since then, many many times has our Blessed Saviour been their guest in Holy Communion.

"That's God's blessing has been upon the home," said Father McCarthy, "is evidenced by the scene about us to-day. Ten children and thirty five grand children and great grandchildren have come together to make this a happy day for the venerable couple. All have been united this morning in the banquet of the Eucharist. To you children and grandchildren no gift so precious as that gift of faith can come to you in the whole world. You have the home founded fifty years ago to thank for that gift and it is for you by lives that are [illegible] and true to guard it, and in other [illegible]s to hand it on to those who are to some after you."

There were many tangible signs of the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held by their numerous friends. During the course of the festivities they were presented with four pursus of gold. Rev. Father McCarthy made the presentation on behalf of the ladies of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish, and Mr. H. Falkner made the presentation on behalf of the neighbors. Both presentations were accompanied by congratulatory and complimentary remarks expressing the interest of a large circle of friends in the happy occasion. The presentation by the family consisted presented with four purses of gold, and a spiritual bouquet, and was accompanied by the following address:

Dear Mother and Father,—We your children, grandchildren, relatives and friends are assembled to congratulate you on the occasion of your golden wedding anniversary. We desire to take this opportunity of expressing to you our affection and good wishes. After half a century of happy married life you have stored away many pleasing memories. We look up to you with admiration and pride and respect your many noble characteristics.

At times some of us have caused you pain and annoyance. This we deeply regret and we know that your parental hearts will prompt you to overlook the unpleasant and that your memory will serve you only to emember the joys you have experienced. It is a satisfaction to us to know that you are enjoying the reward of a life well spent and we are not unmindful that one of the most precious things to us is that parental blessing which is our privilege to receive from you. We trust and hope and pray that your paths through life may be pleasant. Please accept this purse of gold. The groomsman, Mr. John Barnett, also presented the couple with a purse of gold.

A reception was held in the afternoon from three to five o'clock when a large number conveyed their good wishes in person. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett received their guests under an arch of evergreens and daffodils. The guests were all asked to register their names before departing so that in the years to come the happy event might be more vividly recalled.

The roms were prettily decorated, the color scheme being gold as befitted the occasion. The table was made very attractive with daffodils, marigolds, tulips, wild flowers and gold candles, while the "bride's cake" ocupied the place of honor in the centre of the table. Mrs. John Moore and Mrs. H. Peters poured tea: Mrs. H. Falkner managed the table, and Miss Katie Masters of Peterborough served.

Despite their advanced years Mr. and Mrs. Barnett are still hale and hearty and look forward to many more years of happy wedded life.

Among the guests from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. James Barnett and sons, Franklin and Norman; Mr. and Mrs. P. Coughlin; Mr. and Mrs. Joyce; Mr. J. J. and Miss Clara Merrill of Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. P. Boland, Misses Annie and argaret Boland, Mr. and Mrs. N. Doris of Keene, Mrs. P. Malloy, Miss Catherine Masterson, Mrs. Mary Hefferman of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Wood and daughter, Helen, of Campbellford; Mr. John Barnett, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. T. Roach, Westwood; Mr. and Mrs. P. Roach, Keene; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Riley of Toronta; Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Barnett of St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Barnett of Toronto; Miss Josephine Barnett of Windsor; Mr. P. H. Masterson of etroit, Mich.; Mrs. James Moran of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Lapointe, Misses Agnes, Doris and Evelyn Lapointe, Mr. J. M. Lapointe, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall of Toronto.

ILLNESS CAUSE OF BAD TEMPER

A tendency toward violent temper is often a direct aftermath of disease, according to Dr. George M. Stratton, noted psychologist of the National Research Council. This conclusion, says Popular Science Monthly, was reached by Dr. Stratton from a study of the physical and emotional histories of more than 1,000 students, and of twenty classes of disease, including heart trouble, neurasthenia and influenza. He found that men who at some time in their lives have had a serious illness appear to be abnormal and are more subject to intense emotional reaction.

FINDS $37,000 IN GOLD.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 22.—Miss Alma Currie, high school girl, discovered gold under her own doorstep near Teague, Tex. The gold was in the shape of coins and totaled $37,000 in value. The farm on which the treasure was found was occupied a few years ago by a man supposed to have operated a gambling and drinking resort.

Even the fool is wise after the event.—Homer.

DANGEROUS FIRECRACKERS.

Nobody objects to the use of fireworks, if properly handled, as a feature of a holiday celebration.

They delight juvenile hearts, and many an adult gets nearly as much thrill out of the display as the youngsters.

But there are certain kinds of people who are not to be trusted with explosives, even if the latter are labelled firecrackers.

The fools who over the holiday have been carelessly tossing those viciously exploding "salutes" around the streets are certainly not mentally fit to be allowed to handle such dangerous commodities.

Perhaps the only way to keep the two apart would be to forbid the sale of this particular type of firecracker.

Some years ago a somewhat similar firecracker known then as "dynamite crackers" enjoyed a wide vogue until several bad accidents followed careless use of these explosives and a ban had to be put on them.

"Salutes" will suffer the same fate if they are not handled in a sensible manner.

SHOULD REPORT EARLIER.

Like most political squabbles the row in the House of Commons last week over the Canadian National Railway committee developed good arguments on both sides.

There is no reason why Sir Henry Thornton should be handicapped in his management of the Canadian National system by being compelled to disclose information about salaries of his officials and many other similar points while his opposition is under no compulsion in regard to the publication of such information about the privately-owned line.

At the same time the Railway Committee, however, if it is to be of any real service, should get down to work on the business for which it was appointed.

To have the committee bring in its report late at night at the tail end of the session, as was the case last year, is to heavily discount the effectiveness of the work of the committee.

That mistake should be avoided during the present session.

HERE IS ONE REASON.

Sometimes urban residents are inclined to think that they are not as popular among their country friends as they would like to be, and they wonder why this should be so.

It seems difficult for us to realize that the whole countryside is not a public park established especially for our amusement and recreation.

City motorists drive out into the country and treat private property as if it were a common.

They deprive the woods and fields of wild flowers, break down fences, think nothing of robbing apple trees of branches covered with blossoms, picnic where their fancy suggests and strew the lawnscape with the debris from their luncheons.

Pop bottles, banana peels, fragments of food, the Sunday supplements, empty paper bags all are cast to the winds, and when the picnic party blithely spins off cityward the farmer looks at the evidence of their presence and thinks unpleasant thoughts.

And can you blame him?

Common decency should suggest better treatment than this of our friends on the farms, and the Examiner in calling attention of its readers to this abuse trusts that Peterboro people who picnic in the country well endeavour to be guided by the principle of courtesy and good-will.

A NEEDED ORGANIZATION.

Several letters have appeared in the Star's Letter Box lately in which the suggestion to form a local branch of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been revived. Some years ago there was a discussion of this project and for a time it seemed that something might be done. For one reason or another, however, no action was taken. Now it has come up again, the talk starting from reported cases of extreme cruelty to fowls on the Windsor market.

Humane societies are flourishing and accomplishing splendid work in cities and towns all over this and other continents. They operate in cities large and small. Many of them have been established for decades. They have done much to alleviate the sufferings of dumb animals and to make the path of life clearer and easier for all our four-footed and feathered friends. In the beginning, protection of the horse was the chief object of these societies. This object has, to some extent, been removed through the ever-extending use of gasoline-propelled vehicles, yet, if one could know the number of horses still in use the figure might be surprising. The equine field, however, is not the only one in which humane societies operate. The market conditions complained of here could be rapidly cleaned up under ordinary humane society methods. When people find they have to, they soon evolve ways and means to handle fowl in a proper manner.

The Border Cities Star believes that it would be an excellent idea to form a humane society here and will be glad to lend its co-operation to this end.—Border Cities Star.

"FISHING IN CANADA."

The director of the National Resources Intelligence Service has just issued a booklet, "Fishing in Canada," and a mere turning over of the pages of this attractively illustrated pamphlet will make it difficult for the average Canadian to remain at his desk.

He'll want to get down the old tackle box and immediately start out after some of the finny beauties referred to it in the well-prepared publication.

"Fishing in Canada" was prepared with a view to bringing the attractions of the Dominion waters to the attention of Canadian sportsmen and of visitors from abroad.

It should admirably fill these purposes, especially as copies are available to anybody who is interested and will be furnished in quantities for distribution among club members and those interested in fishing.

Even Canadians who are well posted in regard to their own country will be surprised to learn that the combined length of the principal rivers of this country, not including the hundreds of small rivers and streams, is 44,000 miles.

And as the booklet points out, the catching of fish is not the whole thing about fishing.

The fishman unsciously "feels the influence of nature and is transported for the time being into what seems another world. The cares and ceaseless strain of city life are forgotten, and the sight of beautiful wooded shores, of the sparkling blue waters of a Canadian lake, together with the privilege of breathing such an exhilarating atmosphere, carry the fisherman deep into the heart of nature. No better opportunity exists for contemplation, for the enjoyment of philosophic thought, than the fisherman finds in the pursuit of his art. And ever unconsciously he is receiving impressions of inestimable value in each day's experience, which afterwards reveal themselves in in lingering memories. There was the exciting incident of landing the twenty-pounder in the canoe without upsetting; there was that mysterious little stream with its opaque pools, reflecting the pines and hemlock, where we caught the mighty trout; there was the ancient Indian trail which led us through the dense forest to that magic lake of solitude and silence where we made the wonderful catch of bass; and there was the glorious sunset, seen as not between the rows of city houses, the resplendent nights and the snowy aurora—a great host of beautiful memories to illumine the grey of life's toils."

"Fishing in Canada" is great stuff.

RECENT PRESS ACHIEVEMENTS.

Some particularly fine achievements have been placed to the credit of the Press during recent weeks, furnishing further proof of the oft-repeated contention that in general it is governed by lofty motives and actuated by high ideals, and that the slogan, "Service above self," which one fraternal organization has taken unto itself, is not the exclusive property of any one set of individuals banded together in a common cause.

It is now generally recognized, and nowhere else more keenly than in the labor movement itself, that those who engineered the general strike in Great Britain committed a tactical blunder when they attempted to stifle the voice of the Press. It was the gag which the strikers endeavored to apply to the London Daily Mail that proved the "last straw" for the Prime Minister and which strengthened his determination to fight the illegal movement to the last ditch. It is now known that the unions began operations several days before the time fixed for the walkout and that the main attack was made upon the Mail when the national body of the printers demanded the withdrawal of an editorial which bore the head-line, "For King and Country." The Evening Standard and the Evening News were also stopped, likewise the Times and the Daily Telegraph because it was their intention to insert police notices calling for volunteers for the special constabulary.

The demand of the striking printers was for control of the editorial columns of the newspapers. This, as Lord Burnham remarks, inclined towards the establishment of Soviet government in the newspaper offices, and to that British publishers would never agree. The strikers then came forward with a proposal that if the publishers would accept unaltered two columns of labor propaganda in each issue, publication would be permitted. Again, the publishers very properly refused in the plainest terms to entertain such a proposition. They declined to submit to the censorship of the trades unions or to lose control of what appeared in their newspapers and if printers were lacking to carry out the normal duties of the offices, other members of the staff filled the gaps. In many instances, it is reported, editorial staffs set type and ran flatbed presses. Ian Colvin, one of the editors of the Morning Post, personally manned a linotype machine, while Thomas Innes, editor of the Express, remained in the otherwise deserted printshop to act as fireman. By the third day of the strike the public was generally well supplied with newspapers, necessarily of tabloid form, as well as with mimeographed dodgers and similar substitutes, and this must have been of great influence in bringing the walkout to an early end. The London Times did not miss a single edition, although it printed only four pages, and it thereby maintained an unbroken record of more than a century.

In declining to submit to a Labor dictatorship; in ensuring, by hook or by crook, the appearance of their publications; and in thus furnishing the public with news of the day, with particular reference to the troubles in progress, the members of the Press adhered to its best traditions and rendered a national service which was of the greatest importance. It meant long hours, hard work, considerable sacrifice, much inconvenience and loss of money, but it was in the public interest that the newspapers should appear and appear they did. It may be predicted that never again will the promoters of a general strike attempt to subjugate a free and independent Press. It doesn't pay.

A newspaper published in the United States has recently provided another instance of the insistence with which the Press, even at considerable monetary loss, moves to preserve its editorial freedom. In Wichita, Kan., there is published the Daily Eagle, one of the customers of which was a certain amusement company operating five of the six leading theatres in the city. This company had an advertising contract with the Eagle involving the annual expenditure of $18,000. The Eagle published a criticism exceedingly unfavorable to one of the attractions of the company. Naturally, it did not meet with the approval of the theatrical interests, who demanded that the Eagle print only such news of their attractions as it considered right and proper. In effect, it was an attempt to dictate policy upon a par with the demands of the British strikers. What Victor Murdock, the editor-in-chief, did would be done by the editor of any other self-respecting newspaper in the country. He told the amusement company very plainly that neither he nor the owners of the paper would become a party to such an understanding for a single instant. It meant the loss of $18,000 a year in revenue, yet it was a decision promptly reached.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

DICTATORSHIP FOR POLAND IS FORESHADOWED IN STATEMENT

Pilsudski Government Proposes Investment of Special Powers Pending Changes in the Constitution—Dissolution of Diet Demanded.

WARSAW, May 25 (Canadian Press).—The Pilsudski Government late Monday issued a statement declaring that the country demanded a fundamental change in the constitution and that pending such reform the president of the republic must be given special dictatorial authoization.

This declaration is considered in political circles as tantamount to announcement of a dictatorship.

The statement also said that the country demanded dissolution of the Polish diet, which was to have met shortly to elect a president to succeed former President Wojciechowski. M. Rataj is now provisional president.

During the period of the change in the constitution, the declaration said, the president must be given power to issue special orders for communal and federal administration and to direct civil and military affairs.

Power to President

After guaranteeing tranquil fair elections, the government statement says:

"Public opinion urgently demands dissolution of parliament. Changes in the constitution are necessary, especially upon lines empowering the president to dissolve parliament. Such changes are to be voted either by the present or future parliament.

"Irrespective of the action of parliament, it is essential that a number of state decrees be issued, indicating the most striking legislative and administrative defects. As it is impossible to pass such resolutions in the diet as constituted at present, it is indispensable to invest the president in the interim between the two parliaments with special powers to clean up the administrative apparatus, promulgate a new electoral law, unify the courts and reorganize civil and military bodies."

The declaration announces that these reforms are to become active within a year.

Review of Events

Two weeks ago the Government fell upon a taxation issue and was succeeded by a reactionary cabinet headed by Witos.

Marshal Pilsudski as a private citizen published several articles demanding the resignation of the new Government and in reprisal the Witos had these newspapers suppressed. Deprived of what he called the right of free speech, Pilsudski protested to the Government.

On May 11 numerous clashes occurred between followers of the Marshal and ahherents of the parliamentary right. Rumors that Pilsudski had arrived and that his country residence had been stormed by parties of Fascist were circulated about the Polish capital. Regiments of Fascist were concentrated at Rimbertov.

Meanwhile the Pilsudski loyalists rallied to the estate of the Marshal a short distance from Warsaw. On Wednesday morning before the revolution the troops escorted the Marshal to Rimbertov and from there a march upon Warsaw began.

Fruitless Parley on a Bridge

On the Poniatowski Bridge across the Vistula in the suburbs of Warsaw, President Woiciechsk met Pilsudski and asked him not to march into Warsaw. Marshal Pilsudski agreed provided the Witos Government would resign. This demand was refused by the President and he and the Nationalistic Cabinet retired to the Belvedere Palace. At 6 o'clock the same evening Pilsudski at the head of his troops entered Warsaw. They were fired on by Government soldiers and street fighting began resulting eventually in the overturn of the Government.

On Thursday Pilsudski broke through the defences, established by the Government troops on the western edge of the city and began to attack the Belvedere Palace with armored cars and tanks and machine guns.

A cadet school opposite the mansion was a scene of massacre and bloodshed. The total killed is not officially fixed, but it is known to be more than 350 dead, of whom more than a hundred were civilians, mostly women and children. The wounded total was more than 1,200.

The President and his Cabinet presented their resignations to Rataj, President of the National Assembly, who, under the Constitution, then became Acting President of Poland.

All Fighting Was in Warsaw

The forces loyal to the Government retreated westward and the fighting ceased. On Saturday order was restored. At no time was there fighting outside the vicinity of Warsaw. The railroads began operating again.

Despite the strongest pressure from army officers and civilians, Pilsudski declined to declare a dictatorship. President Rataj named Charles Bartel Premier, and a Cabinet was built with Pilsudski as Minister of War. It was decided to hold a Presidential election in the National Assembly before the end of May.

Meanwhile the political leaders in Posen who favored the reinstatement of Witos attempted to engineer a military drive against the new regime under the leadership of General Haller and other conservative hotheads, but thus far there are no signs that the much-advertised volunteer forces will ever mobilize. Moreover, the opposition of the parties of the political "Right" has decreased, and it is a foregone conclusion that if Pilsudski is not elected President of the National Assembly, at least a compromise candidate satisfactory to Pilsudski will be chosen.

Among Pilsudski's staff officers there exists a movement to restore the Polish monarchy and make the Marshal king, but it is in unorganized form and scarcely likely under any circumstances whatever to gain the approval of Pilsudski himself.

Pilsudski's health is good, although he is weak from the severe nervouse strain he has been under.

These facts have been formerly communicated to the outside world and are repeated here in order to give a complete picture of Polish conditions today.

60 FAMILIES IN TWIN COUNTIES RECEIVING AID

25 Beneficiaries in Durham County and 35 in Northumberland.

SOME CANCELLED.

As Children Come of Age or the Widows Remarry.

MILLBROOK, May 25.—A meeting of the Mothers' Allowance Board for the County of Durham was held in the Town Hall, Bowmanville, on Friday at 10 a.m., the chairman, F. W. Galbraith, of Port Hope, presiding. Members present included Mrs. A. L. Nichols, Bowmanville, secretary; C. J. Thornton, Orono; A. Van Camp, Burketon; H. Bland, Mount Pleasant; Misses J. M. Burry, of Port Hope, official investigator for Durham and four other counties, and B. P. Burnham, Millbrook. There was but one absentee, Mayor T. B. Chalk, of Port Hope.

The secretary's report showed 25 beneficiaries at present in Durham County, involving an expenditure of $815 a month; Northumberland has 35 beneficiaries, and an expense of $1,115 a month. Since the Act came into force in 1920, Durham has had 48 beneficiaries, 23 of which have been cancelled, the children in the families affected having reached the age limit of 16 years; the mothers re-married, or for other reasons.

The Government has limited the total amount to be used for the mothers' allowances to $2,000,000, the expectation being that the number of beneficiaries accepted would practically balance the number being cancelled annually. The sum already required, according to the latest figures available, is $1,715,205, which was paid out in 1924, and of this Durham and Northumberland received $23,143.

Remarkable tributes to the transformations which have been effected in many homes and lives through the operation of the Mothers' Allowances Act are readily obtained from local boards all over the Province.

The Board on Friday considered a number of applications which had come into the secretary's hands through one or other of the members, and also had a personal application from an incapacitated returned soldier, on behalf of his wife and five children. Non-residence in Ontario for the required time (two years immediately prior to applying for an allowance), together with the fact that the applicant is in receipt of workmen's compensation grant, made it impossible for the Board to recommend his application to the Commission.

It is of general interest to learn that almost 93 per cent. of the beneficiaries under the Act are of British birth, 68.7 per cent. being Canadians; only 7.1 per cent. are naturalized Canadians.

Campbellford Mourns Alex. McGregor

The funeral of the late Alex. McGregor, Campbellford, representative of the Examiner, was held from his home on Sunday afternoon. The pall bearers were J. A. Anderson, Dr. G. A. Hay, R. N. Morrison, H. D. Atkinson, J. A. Allen and A. G. Watson. Interment was made at Streetsville, the home of Mr. McGregor's brother.

The following expressions of regret in the passing of one who was universally well liked, have been received by The Examiner, and are reprinted as a tribute to the late Mr McGregor:

Rev. W. Elliott.

For three years I have known the late Alexander McGregor. During that time I have observed his alertness regarding the events transpiring in the community about him, as well as in places more distant. He was interested in current events, not only as a reporter for the press, but as a citizen, and as one who had concern for his fellows.

I found Mr. McGregor to be deeply interested in the church, in its programme, its operations, and in the meetings of its higher courts. He was always ready to write of those things that make for the improvement and well being of mankind.

The news of Mr. McGregor's sudden passing came with startling surprise to the town of Campbellford, and the surviving relatives have the deep sympathy of the community at large.

REV. W. ELLIOTT.

G. A. Hay

In the death of Alexander McGregor, which occurred on Saturday last, Campbellford has lost a respected and valuable citizen. The late Mr. McGregor was a man of sound judgment and possessed the rare ability of appreciating the best in human nature. He had a keen interest and insight in the various activities of public life and enjoyed a social affability with all with whom he came in contact. Through his associations with The Peterborough Examiner, Mr. McGregor became well known among the citizens of Campbellford and surrounding districts and will be greatly missed by a large circle of riends.—G. A. Hay.

A. J. Meyers

Mr. McGregor has been a familiar figure in Campbellford and the surrounding district for a number of years. He was not only well known but was also very much appreciated and respected as a man and as a citizen.

During my term as Mayor of Campbellford, I had many opportunities of meeting and conversing with Mr. McGregor and as a result I learned to think very highly of him. He was always very keenly interested in the affairs and welfare of our town and always ready and willing to give proper consideration to any subject which might be of interest to our citizens.

I was very sorry indeed to hear of his sudden death and I am sure that this feeling is shared by all those who knew him in Campbellford.—A. J. Meyers.

Rev. James Grier

I have ever found Mr. McGregor a man of sterling worth. He was one ever to be deepnded upon as having a fixed centre, with the consequent stability that fixity gives. His friendship was such as could stand severe strains. In matters of common concern he was ever loyal to his principles. He ever held the purity of public life as of paramount importance. He was a devout worshipper in the Church of his fathers, and despised the slightest element of hypocrisy in the realm of religion. He was an indefatigable worker, and brought to his labours in this community a wealth of professional training and experience, as well as a large knowledge of life. As his presence in this community was a distinct asset, so his death is a loss felt by every citizen, not only in this town, but throughout the large area for which he was responsible to his paper. St. Andrew's Church extends its sympathy to his sorrowing wife and son, and to the distant relatives.

—James Grier.

Imperialism Does Not Consist in Singing National Anthems, Declares Professor of McGill University in Montreal Address.

MONTREAL, Que., May 25 (Canadian Press)—Imperialism did not consist of singing the national anthem or "O Canada", declared Professor Brodie Brockwell, of McGill University, addressing a gathering of national societies during the Empire Day services at the monument of Queen Victoria here Monday. He felt that the poorest French-Canadian tilling his soil in a remote section of the province, faithfully doing his duty, was every bit as loyal as those who sang these songs, and had more occasion for expressing loyalty. Who, he asked, was the greatest imperialist, the French-Canadian who had with hard labor amassed sufficient money with which to buy the farm of his English neighbor, or the English-speaking neighbor, who, having received the price of his farm, took a train to the United States?

Never was there a time, said Professor Brockwell, when it was so essential that there should be instilled in the minds of the growing generation ideas of greater and more noble worth. There was a British educational continuity of 1000 years, which had given Britain the most progressive educational system in the world. Why was it, he asked, that so many of that strain were anxious to go to the United States.

POLICE SEARCH MEMBERS' DESKS

OTTAWA, Ont., May 25 (Canadian Press) — In a statement issued by Lt. Col. H. W. Bowie, Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Commons, explanation is given as to the cause for the searching of the desks of the member of parliament by a patrol of the police protective squad every Saturday. Members' rooms have been inspected by a patrol every night for years, but owing to a recent number of thefts, officers of the patrol were instructed to search all unlocked desks every Saturday and to gether up any valuables, the same to be returned to members the following Monday. The statement says:

"This emergency order was given because of numerous thefts that were complained of by members, of articles of value taken from the desks and rooms. Members, when making complaints, usually stated they were suspicious of employes of the house who had access to their rooms, in some instances mentioning the name of the employe who was suspected of the theft.

"Every effort has been made to discover the guilty parties and a short time ago an employe was apprehended stealing money from a member's rooms; also two other employes have been suspected of going into members' rooms and taking money and other valuables, particularly over the week-end, from their desks and rooms."

WELSH WOMEN BEARING BRUNT OF MINE STRIKE

Women and Children First To Feel Pinch of No Wages.

FUNDS FAILING.

Evidence Increase of Hunger in Homes—Grim Determination Shown.

MERTHYR-TYDFIL, Wales, May 25 (Canadian Press).—The grimly determined meanor of the women of this mining village at the head of the Merthyr valley, with its largely Welsh population, is a constant reminder that the women and children are bearing the brunt of the miners' fight for what they consider a just wage.

Without grumbling and almost savagely cheerful, mothers go about the task of feeding large families even though wages or strike pay is not forthcoming. Where the average income is approximately $10.50 weekly when the men are employed, there is now $2.75 weekly allowance to the strikers' wives from the county guardians. There is no strike pay anywhere in South Wales, although the miners daily besiege union headquarters in the villages for relief.

Evidences of Hunger.

Local strike committees declare their funds are nearly exhausted. Few admit the desperate condition, but evidence is everywhere of hunger in the homes, particularly among those children whose parents will not allow them to eat at the school soup kitchens. These youngsters are forced wistfully to watch their playmates satisfying their hunger while their own appetites go unappeased. Schoolmasters tell of cases of children boasting of the splendid meals provided them when the neighbors know the families are living on bread, margarine and tea.

In many cases, children are unable to play in the stony school yards because their shoes are without soles. Dozens of half-naked tots are to be seen in every village. As a whole, the miners' children are badly clad; some of them resemble small rag bags as they run along the roads, cups in hand, on the way to soup kitchens.

Some Draw Doles.

Miners who were not employed when the mines closed on May 1 are in better condition than those who were at work, for they are drawing doles of 18 shillings weekly, with five for their wives and two for each child. The average is about $5.50 weekly.

Everywhere the miners are comparing the present situation with that during the strike of 1921, when they were out for 13 weeks. They say that it is not as bad now as it was then.

This town and Penydarren, adjoining, with 15,000 of their population employed in the mines and steel mills, are located in deep ravines. Fifty per cent. of the populations were unemployed on May 1.

The schoolmaster at Penydarren, who is not a Laborite himself, describes the average striking miner as a "quiet, grim, God-fearing man, moderate but determined when roused."

Twenty-five per cent. of the families here own their own homes, paying an average of $50 yearly taxes.

SHOES FROM PANAMA HATS.

Making shoes from Panama hats may not sound practicable, but it is being done with surprising success, says Popular Science Monthly. Managers of a New York department store not long ago found themselves with an overstock of Panamas. They cudgeled their brains to figure out some way of disposing of them profitably. Finally they found that the hats would make attractive shoe tops, and accordingly turned them over to the shoemakers. The Panamas were cut for uppers which were bound off in black velvet. The result was declared to be exceptionally "dressy."

CHOIR CONCERT GIVEN AT MADOC

Recital in St. John's Church To Inaugurate Improved Organ.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

MADOC, May 25.—A delightful recital was given in the church of St. John the Baptist on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the choir.

During the past week, Mr. Lye of the firm of Lye Bros., Toronto, has had charge of the installation of a motor and the general overhauling of the organ. When the work was completed Mr. Lye kindly assisted the choir in giving a programme which proved to be a musical treat. Mr. Lye played with the touch of one who for many years has been a master of pipe organs and a lover of music. Excellent work was done by the soloists and the gratitude of the choir is due to Mr. W. Hawthorne who assisted in his usual fine tenor.

The evening was opened with the hymn, "The Churches One Foundation," followed by prayer. The Rev. Mr. Strother, the rector, then made a few remarks of appreciation of the voluntary work that is done by the choir and organist every Sunday and of the initiative they have displayed in the task of purchasing the motor and renovating the organ. He also voiced the thanks of the choir and congregation to Mr. Lye for the extra work he had put upon the organ, and for his assistance at the recital.

The balance of the programme was as follows:

Anthem—"I Will Pray the Father" by choir.

Solo—"I Belong to the King", by Harold Bowerman.

Organ solo—Mr. Lye.

Cornet solo—Flower Song, by James Aylesworth.

Trio—"In a Garden", by Miss Hart and Messrs. Hawthorne and Bowerman.

Organ solo—Mr. Lye.

Vocal solo—"The Hymns of the Old Church Choir", by Mr. Hawthorne.

Cornet solo—"Twilight Dreams", by Mr. Aylesworth.

Vocal solo—"The Lord Is My Shepherd", Mrs. Strother, with cornet obligato by Mr. Aylesworth.

Anthem—"Now the Day Is Over", by the choir.

Organ solo—Mr. Lye.

Hymn—"Hark, Hark, My Soul."

The closing prayers and benedictions were pronounced by Mr. Strother.

The proceeds will go to the organ fund.

MONTREAL HONORS DOLLARD'S MEMORY

Sacrifice of French-Canadian Heroes Commemoratd.

MONTREAL, Que., May 25. — Canadian Prses. — Thousands of citizens representing all phases of French-Canadian life, paid tribute on Monday to the memory of Dollard des Ormeaux and his band of warriors, who in 1660 saved Ville Marie from the Iroquois.

Hundreds of wreaths were laid at the foot of the Dollard monument in Lafontaine Park. The gathering was addressed by various speakers.

Felix Desrochers, representing the Notre Dame du Saint Sacrament section of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, urged French Canadians of today to make a searching examination of conscience in order to discover whether they were keeping unimpaired the high virtues of the past. To this end, the speaker first asked whether French-Canadians were striving always to maintain undefiled their language. He denounced slipshod methods of speech, both as to pronounciation and unwarranted importations from the English idiom. When it came to insisting upon respect for their language in the administration of public affairs, the French-Canadians, unfortunately capitulated, he said. They should never forget that the French language in Canada was not inferior in status to English, yet neither the coins nor stamps bore bi-lingual inscriptions. Even the Boers in South Africa had insisted upon Dutch inscriptions, as well as English, on their money.

1439 Automobiles Valued at $510,945 Exported in April Canada's March Export Was 2,851 Cars Worth $990,142

OTTAWA, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Canada exported 1,439 automobiles, weighing one ton or less, valued at $510,945, and one motor car, over one ton, worth $2,040, last month.

These amounts show a decline as compared with the previous month. In March, 2,851 motor cars, weighing over one ton, with a valuation of $990,142, and four automobiles, over one ton, worth $6,732, were exported.

British India proved to be the Dominion's best customer last month, 203 of the lighter Canadian-made cars, valued at $104,295, being shipped there. Dutch East Indies was second with 256 automobiles, worth $73,919; while Straits Settlement was third with 178 cars, valued at $65,065. There were no shipments to the United States; while one motor car, of the heavier type, represented the export to the United Kingdom last month.

ORGANIZES COUNTER-REVOLT

In the present Polish turmoil, however, he has broken with his former leader, and is now reported to be actively engaged at Posen, in organizing a counter-revolution against Pilsudski's newly formed government.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute —Milton.

Ida.—You have always been quite strong and with a great deal of physical power. You have strong healing powers within yourself, but should guard your throat, lungs and kidneys, as with you, medicine is very slow to act. You will find your best success always n allying yourself with others in any underaking. You will not do well when standing alone, nor when attempting to control the affairs of those about you. You are strong in your likes and dislikes, and thrive best when surrounded by those you care for. You should seek always the companionship of pleasant people and things. You are generous, noble and kind-hearted, but are apt to be jealous of your friends and companions, and should guard against this tendency. You fear poverty, burglars and robbery. Try to realize that happiness can be had, even if you are not always at the head of things. February and September are your lucky months, Monday your good day. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are blue and silver.

W. W.—You are quite strong physically and should strive to develop this by gymnastic exercises, for, while undeveloped, you are apt to be pugnacious and coarse. Service to others should be your watchword in life. You would make a good doctor, and should try to attain this aim in life, if possible. Your drawback in life will be fickleness and a changeable quality that will not make for happiness and success, unless you strive hard to overcome it at all times. You are also jealous-minded and have a quick temper, and will destroy some of your best chances in life by these traits, if not controlled. Cultivate patience and do not work too hard, as you will injure your health in this way. You spend money too freely and your tendency to indulge the senses will bring its payment in the years to come. At this early stage of the game, it might be warth while to sit down and take stock of yourself. Never touch drugs or stimulants of any sort. Your lucky months are June and July, and Tuesday is your lucky day. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are blue and green.

Ward.—Well, you are rather a nice type in one way, but in another, very much the contrary. Although you may be quite well satisfied with yourself as you are, it is not likely that your family or friends share the same good opinion of you. You have a certain amount of personal charm, but no great depth, and you are fickle and changeable to the last degree. You will never amount to anything in life, although you have great possibilities for good, until you try hard and all the time to overcome this quality of change and uncertainty. You are generous, affectionate and kind-hearted, but inclined to be self-centred and to be very critical at times of others who you imagine are not as good as you are. And you have the earmarks of a snob. Read Thackeray's "Book of Snobs" and find yourself in it. You are strong and healthy, and the advancing years will not leave much of a mark on your physique. You like neat, tidy surroundings and wish always to speak with great precision. Try to realize that harsh, unjust criticism is often harder to bear than a blow in the face. February and November are your good months, Wednesday your lucky day. You were born on Thursday. Your color is pink.

May.—You have a strong nature in one way, weakened by faults that are like the barnacles on a ship, clinging to you unseen and unregarded. It is a curious fact about barnacles, by the way, that they never cling to a ship which is painted in bright colors, preferring to attach themselves to the vessels of darker hues. You were born with a strong, active, creative nature, inclined to be disregardful of the rights of others. You can gain success in life by holding out a helping hand to others in real understanding and sympathy, and your environment should give you plenty of opportunity for this, but you may not avail yourself of the chance that Life offers you. You are inclined to be fickle, whimsical and changeable, and will destroy your best chances and advancement through jealousy. You are not patient and are apt to sacrifice your health by working too hard. You resent any interference, even when well meant, and become jealous over imaginary slights. You should try to conquer indecision of character, practice silence, spending some portion of every day alone, and never touch drugs or stimulants of any type. Marry a man born in December. June and July are your lucky months, Tuesday your good day. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are the many variations of flame, from rose and yellow to gas blue.

Mab.—You have a pleasant nature, even tempered and kind and affectionate, without a great deal of initiative or efficiency. You are quite fickle and changeable in your ways, which does not always make for happiness. You are intensely interested in educational matters and have a habit of asking a great many questions about any subject that interests you at the moment. You have unusual quickness of perception and of memory along any line that interests your mentality. You are inclined to be restless and this, allied with nervous anxiety, is the source of much unnecessary trouble to you. You are fond of responsibility but lack self-esteem and self-assertiveness, which you should cultivate. The shrinking violet has its place—in poetry. A certain amount of travel is good for you, in order to overcome your innate restlessness. You may have a serious illness soon, but later, will settle down to steadier conditions. You would make a good wife, although you are not over-fond of the company of men. Marry a man born in September, October or July, and on Saturday, your lucky day. Your lucky months are May and June. You were born on Wednesday, not Thursday. Your colors are gold and violet. The day you ask about, a Tuesday, is one for taking advantage of every opportunity.

A. W.—Although you were born with a great deal of changeablenessin y our makeup, still you have essentially a fine type of nature, and will find your success and happiness in loving service to others. You are frand and energetic and have a friendly manner. You are always in a hurry and dislike awaiting results and this will tend to bring on nervous trouble in later life if you do not try to curb it at all times. Strive for repose and calmness and for the faculty of not seeing those little things that annoy in the daily round. You are easily annoyed and have a quick temper, but do not harbor resentment. You are possessed of excellent health and will live to a good old age. You will always be more successful in following out your own inspirations than in listening to the advice of others. Do not give way to feelings of anger or hatred or jealousy. They will hurt you more than anyone else. Remember it is the specialist who succeeds in this period of the world's history. February and June are your good months, Thursday your lucky day. You were born on Monday. Your color is pink. The day you ask about, a Sunday, is one for avoiding arguments and undertaking nothing new, especially in social relations.

C. I. W.—You have rather a conservative type of nature, unfavorable to new enterprises and inclined to like things occult and mystic. You will find success in life by allying yourself carefully with others in any enterprise or endeavor, rather than by trying to stand alone. Do not attempt, either, to control the affairs of others. You will always fail. You are active, independent and persevering and are a good worker, working better for yourself than for others, however. When jolly, you are very jolly, and when miserable are quite wretched, often without any real reason. You would make a good milliner, designer, teacher or do well in almost any commercial position. You will be happiest and most successful when you gain self-poise and control of your temper. Always try to follow out your own original ideas and copy nobody. Make self-reliance your watchword. Study the art of personal attractiveness, especially the arrangement of your hair. Marry a man born in May, July, February or November, March and November are your lucky months, Tuesdays and Saturdays your good days. You were born on Friday. Your colors are steel and purple. The day you ask about, a Tuesday, is one for collecting information and for engaging in no important business enterprise.

Ray.—You have rather a charming type of nature, peace-loving and affectionate, without a great deal of efficiency or initiative. Your way of success in life lies along the avenue of constant work, of always keeping at your job, whatever it may be. You will gain nothing by trying to sidestep your responsibility in any way, at any time. You are quite ambitious and talented and full of enthusiasm and courage. Defeat does not cast you down. You are honest at heart, but don't realize the value of money, and are sometimes slow in paying your bills. You are kind and amiable, are fond of praise and are easily wounded by trifles. You despise routine work. You will suffer much from nervous stomach trouble, caused by worry, anger and impatience, and should try to conquer this tendency to worry and your quick temper. Do not waste time in worrying over things that may never happen. Try to be patient and to learn self-control. Be careful in the selection of your friends, as your mind is quite susceptible to the influence of others. Try to live without envy, hate and jealousy, which react to your detriment at all times. Yes, you were born on Saturday. Your colors are gold and white.

R. N. A. S.—Although you have a good deal of attraction, both spiritual and physical, in your makeup, you like steadfastness, being inclined to be fickle and changeable in your ways and manner of thinking. You will do best in any endeavor by allying yourself with others, and making no attempt to stand alone. You have a great liking for art, also architecture and designing, and have much mechanical ability. You are greatly interested in religious and educational matters, and have a habit of asking many questions about a subject that takes your fancy at the time. You are inclined to be rather restless and skeptical, and will find that this nervous restlessness is at the root of many of your difficulties. You are very kind-hearted, also magnetic, and in your desire to help others, frequently overdo yourself. You are apt to be too modest and to lack self-esteem, and will, as indicated above, do best when associated with a more self-assertive type. Guard carefully against association with those of vulgar and uncouth mind. Learn the value of silence, and try to cultivate more self-esteem and self-assertiveness. You were born on Thursday. Your color is pink.

A. D. T.—You have naturally a strong type of character, well able to cope with the circumstances of daily life, and one that will be a refuge to your associates in times of trouble. You will find success only by constant hard work, by keeping everlastingly at your job, whatever it may be. You have a good deal of will power, also skill with your hands, and have much tact and good taste in the choice of language. You are courteous and affable when not engaged in serious business, but can be blunt to cruelty. You are fond of the good things of life, in food and dress. A bad habit of putting things off will not make for success, unless you can overcome it. Also a habit of scolding and nagging. You like praise and flattery, and should learn that every duty well done brings its own reward. You like pleasure and have a great aversion of rules and regulations. A quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency to sarcasm are faults which you should try to overcome. Learn self-control and the value of money, also try to stop finding excuses for yourself in difficulties that come to you, and lay the blame where it belongs. Be more careful of the feelings of others and less tender of your own. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Wednesday, is one for being patient and agreeable. Make no important purchases and don't exercise strenuously.

Marie.—You have a strong type of mentality, denoting accomplishment in business or scientific lines. However, your manifest destiny does not lie along these paths. It will come rather in trying always to bring joy and happiness to the lives of those around you. You are generous, ambitious and talented, but you do not always realize the value of money and are apt to be careless in paying bills. You have a habit, of dropping and losing things, and forgetting to return borrowed articles, resenting criticism when you are reminded of such loans. You do not like any work that is hard and dirty and like neat surroundings. You are apt to suffer from nervous stomach trouble, caused by worry, anger and impatience. You are of the type that, can accomplish almost anything you desire, if you will strive always to control a quick temper and a tendency to worry. Think often of your friends and seldom of your enemies. Follow out your own intuitions and you will seldom be deceived. Strive for habits of order and to learn to be patient at all times. Marry a man born in February, May, August or March. Your lucky months are August and December, and your good day Friday. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are tan and buff. The day you ask about, a Wednesday, is one for avoiding arguments and undertaking nothing new. Don't marry on this day.

Dot.—You have a very peace-loving nature, kind and affectionate, and you will find your happiness in life by giving loving service to others. You are efficient in your ways and have a very competent manner of performing any task entrusted to you. You are orderly and methodical and thrive best in neat, comfortable surroundings. You are fond of your family and a great believer in blue blood. Do not become a snob. They are very detestable people. You are secretive about your own affairs, and those of your friends, very fastidious about your dress, and extremely exacting in money matters. Although fond of accumulating money, you are wise enough to enjoy life as you go long, while making provision for the "rainy day." You are fond of travel and will always find change of scenery beneficial to your health and spirits. You are quite strong and healthy, and advancing years will leave little mark of age upon you, as long as you control a tendency to eat and drink too much. You will be critical at times of your friends and also somewhat selfish. Cultivate individuality, self-reliance and a helpful attitude toward your fellows. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are gold and violet.

Polly.—You have much heavy physical power, indicating creative strength and tenacity. You will do best in life by the use of tact and diplomacy rather than force, by using the velvet glove rather than the iron hand. Do not forget this. You are dominant in home and family life, and ardent at heart, although often considered as cold by those who do not know you. You are generous, kind-hearted and noble, but apt to be very jealous of your friends and companions. You are very fond of your home and its surroundings. You are sensitive to slights, and should always seek pleasant people and things, realizing that this world is pretty much what we make it for ourselves. Think always: "Why should anyone wish to harm me?" You have strong healing powers within yourself, but medicine is slow to act with you, and you should guard your health well, particularly your throat, lungs and kidneys. You are inclined to be changeable, a disagreeable trait. You resent very keenly any personal criticism, even when it is for your own good. You will probably think this reading is all nonsense, but think it over a second time before you throw the paper away. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are blue and silver. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for safely undertaking new enterprises. Be bold, but let your boldness be tempered by good judgment and logic.

Pip.—You have a natural aptitude for pleasure and good times, and a liking for dancing, singing, music and painting. You will find your success in life through giving loving service to others. You will make a very good husband and father, if you resolve to control your habit of waywardness and changeful thinking, and also a tendency toward fault-finding, nagging and scolding. You are of the type that is nervous and dissatisfied much of the time, always wishing to be somewhere else and doing something else. You will never find rest, as you go through the world, until you control these tendencies within yourself. You have the elements of a very likeable, lovable nature, if you can keep down these weeds of fickleness and nagging and scolding. Always guard your health. You are not over-strong. You are affectionate, unselfish and self-sacrificing, with a great deal of family pride. You would do well in politics, science or religion. Cultivate cheerfulness and steadfastness, do not complain or murmur, and keep your hands and feet still. Be careful in your choice of friends. Marry a girl born in February or November. April and August are your lucky months, Friday your good day. You were born on Wednesday. Your color is black.

Violet Eyes.—You have a strong, individual type of character, but somewhat self-centred and of limited vision. You will have to cultivate much understanding and sympathy toward others, to achieve happiness and success in life, and to do this, you will have to do considerable reconstruction work on your own nature. However, it would be quite worth while. You will have to try and conquer that tendency of yours toward nervous dissatisfaction and unrest, also a habit of whining, scolding, and fault-finding. You will have to strive first and last to be lovable, and, as you are affectionate and self-sacrificing, this should not be too difficult for you. You are especially fond of color and flowers and of everything beautiful in art and nature. You are able to attract birds and flowers to you, and to promote the growth of flowers about the home. Do not go to extremes, as you are inclined to do, and be very careful of your health. Learn to be patient and to keep your hands and feet still. Do not criticise your friends and associates, and finish one task before beginning another, in this way helping to overcome the fickle and changeable traits in your nature. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are the many variations of flame.

E. W.—As I am not a fortune-teller, I cannot advise you according to the information asked for in your letter. You must decide these things for yourself.

You are quite strong physically and have a good deal of tenacious force. Your best way of success and happiness in life will come from bringing joy and laughter to the lives of others, and you should be quite able to do this, as you have the innate faculty of making happy those around you. You are a natural home-builder and make a fine wife. You should learn to be self-reliant and study hard to how concentrate. Remember that perfect honesty and truthfulness are necessary to the formation of character. Strive at all times for perfect independence of all outside influences. April and August are your lucky months, Saturday your lucky day. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are blue and cream.

Bobby B.—You have a strong mentality and would do well in any pursuit connected with business or finance. As long as you remain unmarried, you will find that you will attain most by constant work, by keeping always at your job, whatever it may be. You have a frank, energetic, progressive nature, and easily make friendships with others by reason of your congenial manner. You have not much patience with those who do not understand your way of doing things, and this is sometimes your fault, as you have an original method in most matters, and others do not always understand your peculiar ways. You are honest and conscientious and a promise with you is absolutely sacred. You have very good health and will probably live to a good old age. You are very fond of music and art, and have the pleasant faculty of minding your own business and refusing to interfere much with the affairs of your neighbors. You are very careful in your work, and always wish to finish one task completely before beginning on another. You will be more successful in following your own inspirations than when listening to the advice of others. You should marry a man born in April, August or November. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are shades of tan and buff. The day you ask about, a Monday, is one for being patient and agreeable and for making no important purchases.

Stenog.—You have considerable will power, and a great deal of poise and skill with your hands, but you have an innate leaning toward fickleness and a changeful quality that will not make for happiness or success for yourself or those associated with you, as you go through life. You should strive to understand yourself and resolve to overcome this disposition, if possible. You have considerable influence over others, and are apt to exert this influence for good. You are fond of the good things of life, both in dress and in food. You have the very bad habit of putting things off, a habit that will do much to spoil your good times, if not broken, while you are still young. You will do best at all times by associating yourself with others in any endeavor, instead of trying to stand alone. And never try to control the affairs of those around you. You will always fail. Control a quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency to sarcasm, and you will be happy and successful. Marry a man born in June, July, December or January. You were born on Thursday. Your color is pink.

easier ironing

The labor of lifting your iron about a hundred and fifty times in the course of an ordinary ironing is the equivalent of raising nearly half a ton. The Hotpoint Iron never needs to be lifted at all, but simply tips back on its specially-constructed heel rest. This is one of the Four Features that make Hotpoint Ironing "the easier way".

Livelier Action-
Longer Life!
for your FORD

YOU can get smooth, powerful, trouble-free operation from your good Ford motor and add care-free years to its life by using Marvelube "F", the new process Ford motor oil that successfully combats carbon.

Used regularly in your Ford engine, Marvelube "F" protects you against the annoyance and expense of engine knocks, transmission chatter, draggy clutch action and wornout bearings. It "seals in" the power and endows your car with new life.

Marvelube "F", specially made from a selected grade of Peruvian Crude Oil by the new Marvelube Process, is a light-bodied, free-flowing oil.

It cannot form destructive carbon deposits, because it is refined by the Marvelube Process. In its ability to hold its body and retain its lubricating value under high engine temperatures, and remain fluid without stiffening at low temperatures, Marvelube "F" has proved itself superior to all other oils.

Marvelube "F" ushers in a new era in Ford motor lubrication. It sets new standards in all the qualities by which Ford lubricating oils are judged. It is the only lubricating oil of its kind and it cannot be duplicated by any other oil company because Imperial Oil Limited controls Peruvian Crude Oil and is sole owner and operator of the new Marvelube Process which has been developed after four years of research in our laboratory at Sarnia.

Today—drain your crank case and fill with Marvelube "F." You will enjoy new satisfaction from your Ford's performance, reduce its up-keep cost and preserve its re-sale value.

Marvelube "F" is on sale at all Imperial Oil stations and by good dealers everywhere. The standard retail price of Marvelube from bulk is 35c. per quart.

ROYAL SOCIETY OF CANADA URGES PROTECTION OF INDIAN RELICS

Keep Totem Poles and Other Antiquarian Articles in Canada.

FINAL SESSION.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 25. — The annual meeting of the Royal Society of Canada came to a close Friday afternoon with the election of new officers and the passing of a number of important resolutions. A motion to increase the membership of the different sections, from 40 to 43 members was postponed for consideration by the council. A motion to raise the endowment of the society was carried and left to the incoming council and officers to take the necessary steps for its adoption.

The next annual meeting will be held in Ottawa next spring.

Officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Dr. J. H. Coyne, of St. Thomas, Ont.; vice-president, Dr. A. H. R. Buller, professor of the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg; honorary treasurer, Dr. G. A. Young, Ottawa; honorary secretary, L. J. Burpee, secretary of the International Joint Commission, Ottawa; honorary editor, John Patterson, Ottawa.

Dr. Coyne was unable to be present to take over the chair after his election, owing to the death of his brother.

Retain Relics.

The society in a resolution adopted, voiced its unanimous endorsation of the proposal of the Department of Indian Affairs to revise the Indian Act for the purpose of protecting totem poles and other valuable Indian relics, from dealers in antiques and agents of foreign museums. Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott superintendent Indian affairs, and a member of [illegible] informed the meeting that legislation. It was proposed by scientists present that similar legislation should be sought to safeguard antiquarian relics, such as fossils of prehistoric animals, etc., discovered in Canada, from removal to foreign museums, when they might be properly preserved in Canadian museums.

Fears were expressed, that dealers and traders made fossils and other relics the instruments of their practices, and the society finally incorporated all valuable fossil and antiquarian discoveries in the resolution to the government advising protective legislation.

It was suggested that licenses might be granted for the removal of such articles to foreign countries. Canada, thereby, would not be a total loser.

New Zealand, it was stated, had prohibited the export of a very rare type of lizard which abounded there some years ago. These rarities could be taken from New Zealand only after much official formality.

ILLNESS DELAYS DIVORCE ACTION

Lord Cheylesmore Confined To English Hospital.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 25.—Owing to the sudden illness of Francis Henry Ormonde Eaton, the young Lord Cheylesmore, who farms at Alix, Alta., a further postponement of the divorce action between the earl and his wife, Mary Eaton in the Alberta court, and the cross-petition by the wife in the English court, has been made necessary.

Lord Cheylesmore, with his Edmonton counsel, Stanley C. S. Kerr, is at present in England for the purpose of giving evidence at the trial to decide the question of domicile which is being brought against him in London. It was for the purpose of attending this trial that Lord Cheylesmore left Edmonton early in April for the Old Country, and the date of the trial being set for the first week in May.

Shortly after arriving in England, the earl was taken suddenly ill and suffered a breakdown and is now in hospital. Until his recovery both divorce proceedings are being held up. Divorce proceedings against him in the English courts had only reached the stage where it was necessary to decide the point as to whether Lord Cheylesmore was domiciled in Alberta by virtue of his Alix Ranch, or in England.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HARRY MORTON is middle-aged, attractive to women, unmarried and rich. He maintains a home in Peterborough and an apartment in Toronto.

AUDREY, his adopted daughter, has told him she loves him and wants him to marry her.

NONA, a Toronto stage girl, also loves him.

JOHN PARRISH, Morton's secretary, loves Audrey.

Morton, to divert Audrey from her idea of marrying him, has brought Nona to Peterborough, from which she returns to Toronto. Audrey, to learn how stage girls manage to attract Morton, goes into rehearsal in Toronto for a cabaret revue with Nona as her partner. She becomes angry at Nona, and with Morton returns to Peterborough. They meet their next-door neighbors on the street. The neighbors "cut them dead."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"What's the matter with those people?"

Audrey turned and stared after them, wonderingly.

"We're being high-hatted," Morton grinned.

Parrish did not take the episode so lightly. "That was an insult," he said, with anger. "They didn't even LOOK at Miss Morton!"

The young man flushed. "That's different," he said. "Men don't care if people speak to them or not. Now with young ladies—"

"Young ladies don't care either," snapped Audrey. "Those old stick-in-the-muds! They have that little nasty barking terrier, and if he ever comes in our yard again—"

"You'll revenge yourself on the terrier," Morton finished for her. "Don't be absurd. You can't hit a little dog because his owners don't speak to us."

"Well, we ought to do SOMETHING' Audrey argued.

"Why?" Morton apparently was enjoying the situation.

Parrish interposed before Audrey could answer. "I think Miss Morton is right," he said. "I think you ought to call on those people and demand an explanation."

"That's a silly idea," declared Audrey.

Parrish, his support thus rejected, was silent.

The little maid-servant opened the door as they arrived at the Morton home, and she bobbed a curtsey, smiling with pleasure. Audrey stopped to talk with her, as Morton and Parrish exchanged a few words in the reception hall.

When Parrish left, Morton called Audrey into his study.

"I'm going down town in a few minutes, but I want to tell you something.

"I think I know what's the matter with those people next door."

"What?" Audrey was wide-eyed.

"It was my fault, I believe," he said. "You will remember that I had Nona come to town here for a day or two."

She nodded.

"Well, I took her to the restaurants, and to the theater, and to the hotel. She looks like a stage girl, you know. And I think I'm being boycotted, because of it. You're suffering with me."

The girl's nostrils distended. "Why, the very idea! The impertinence of them!"

Morton smiled. "People are always impertinent, when it comes to other folks' morals."

Audrey's thoughts took a new direction.

"Daddy, why did you have Nona come here?"

"You've probably guessed by this time," he told her. "I wanted you to get disgusted with me as a candidate for husband."

"Oh." She was silent, with a finger to her lips.

He went on: "I really counted on all those people seeing me, and talking to you about Nona and me. And I thought it might help you get rid of your idea that you wanted to marry me."

"Oh," she said again.

He turned back to his desk, and Audrey slowly turned and went up to her room.

Morton was busy at his office for the remainder of the day, dictating letters and going over a mass of reports. Parrish hurried back and forth with piles of papers, and small pocket ledgers that contained statements of Morton's affairs, arranged to be read at a glance.

"What are you going to do this evening, John?" Morton asked, idly, as he was preparing to go home.

"Going to get my flivver, and grease it, and go out for a ride," Parrish said. "I haven't been near it in a long time. Want to see if it runs."

"All right. Amuse yourself," Morton advised, as he took his departure.

Audrey had been exploring the house, after the manner of women when they've returned from a trip out of town. She had directed a transfer of the fruits from one closet to another, inspected her clothing and discarded a heap of it, ordered various cleaning operations in obscure corners, and when Morton arrived, she was sitting in the middle of his dressing-room floor, his shirts strewed widely around her.

"What are you doing to my linen?" he wanted to know.

"Just looking it over," she said. "I think you'd better order some new ties and shirts. Shall I order them for you?"

"Heavens, no!" He spoke in mock concern. "Thank you just the same, but I'll order them myself. The last time you tried it, you got them all in awning stripes an inch wide. They looked like some of Firpo's or Battling Siki's haberdashery. Poor Siki! He's dead, now."

"Who?" she asked absently, holding up a shirt before her.

"Siki," he said.

"I didn't know him," she said, seriously.

Morton laughed, and turned into his bedroom.

There was a telegram from Mr. Sunshine at Morton's office next morning.

"What shall I do with this chorus do we put on our production or has the young lady quit please answer quick. A. Sunshine," the message read.

Morton rubbed his ear reflectively.

"Take this telegram," he said to Parrish. "It's to Abe Sunshine, Toronto. 'Will let you know in day or two. Meantime better keep them rehearsing'."

Parrish paused, with his pencil upraised, waiting for further orders.

"Parrish," said Morton, "when you start any place, driving a young filly, you've got to count on at least one runaway, having the dashboard kicked out, getting into the ditch once or twice, and enjoying a lot of excitement en route."

"I know that," agreed Parrish. "I've broken a few colts myself. Are you going to buy a filly, sir?"

Morton's eyelids quivered, but he suppressed his smile.

"I was just thinking," he said, and pursued the subject no further.

Toward noon, a woman caller was announced. Morton frowned as he was told the name.

"All right—show her in," he said, with something like a groan.

Rising, he greeted his visitor. She sat down. He remained standing, as if to convey the thought that her call should be short.

She was the woman who had been waiting for him at the door of the building, a month or so before.

"My dear Mr. Morton," she said now, "how glad I am to see you! I saw you coming from the station with Audrey—dear little Audrey! How is the child?"

Morton's answer was impatient. "Quite well, thank you. What did you want to see me about?"

She drew her chair forward, beaming into his face. "This is very confidential," she said.

Morton drew back, and sat down. She dragged her chair after him.

"It's about Charles," she said. "He's been acting dreadfully, and I want to ask your advice."

"But I'm not a lawyer," he protested. "Why don't you see an attorney?"

She looked at him coyly, through lowered eyelids. "But," she said, "it's about YOU."

"About me? What has your husband to do with me?"

She leaned over, and tapped him on the sleeve.

"You see, dear Mr. Morton, he's jealous of you!"

He leaped to his feet, with an exclamation. "Why in the name of all that's holy should he be jealous of me?"

She simpered. "Perhaps it is because I talk of you so much," she offered. "You know all of us girls talk about you!"

Morton walked up and down the room, running his fingers through his hair, perplexedly. "How far has this thing gone? What does he say? What is he going to do?"

His visitor smiled, with visible satisfaction.

"He says he's going to sue for divorce, on account of you!"

Morton sat down, heavily. With intent eyes he studied the woman before him.

"I wish you would explain this nonsense," he said, slowly.

She drew a mirror from her handbag, and with a pencil improved the line of an eyebrow.

"I was afraid he would come in here and raise an awful scene," she told him. "I wanted to warn you."

"That doesn't explain anything," he said. "What have you been doing, anyway—seeking a thrill?"

She leaned forward, and smiled at him.

"You ARE thrilling, you know, Mr. Morton," she confided.

"Poppy-cock!" he said. "Look here, Mrs. Carver, I have never seen anything of you except when I met you at a dance, and the two or three times you've been at this office. You came without my invitation. What idiotic nonsense have you been telling that husband of yours, anyway?"

The lady drew herself up.

"It won't be 'poppy-cock,' as you call it, when my husband sees you," she said, coldly. "You can't trifle with my affections without paying the penalty."

She arose, and started for the door. "A man whose life is a scandal in this community, bringing fast women from Toronto and putting them up at the hotel, hasn't much defense when he tampers with the life of an innocent married woman!"

She raised her handkerchief to her eyes, and fumbling for the knob, turned it, and took her departure.

"Well, I'll be—," said Morton to himself.

He leaned back in his chair and considered, rubbing his chin from time to time. At last he thoughtfully returned to his work. He said nothing to Parrish about his woman visitor, but kept the young man engaged in making entries in his small private account books.

He did not leave the office for luncheon.

"Bring me a sandwich, or something," he told Parrish.

When the latter returned from his own lunch, Morton told him that he was not to be disturbed for the remainder of the day.

"But," he said, "I have an idea a fellow named Carver is coming up here to see me. Let him in if he comes."

Parrish nodded, and went out, closing the door.

Morton's desk was clear, and he sat with his feet on the window-sill, looking at the smoke mounting from a neighboring chimney. His forehead was wrinkled in concentrated thought.

Two hours elapsed, and still he scarcely had moved.

The young man entered, and leaned over the desk.

"Mr. Carver is outside, waiting for you," he said.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and their families.

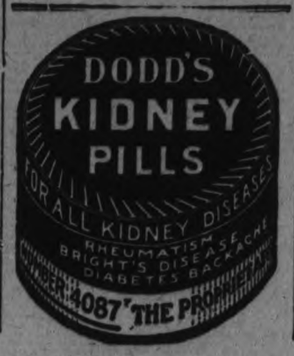
Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous waste matter is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

There is no guess work about Rheuma bringing you back to health. That's why McDermid & Jury and druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick relief.



COBOURG CONSIDERS LICENSING BUTCHERS

And Requiring All Meat To Be Inspected Before Sale.

COBOURG, May 25.—There is considerable discussion among butchers and other vendors who sell in the Cobourg market about possible by-laws being passed by the Town Council that will provide for official inspection of meat that is cut up on the market, and other regulations in connection with the selling of meat on the open market. The Cobourg butchers have asked the Town Council to fix a tax of at least $5.00 per Saturday on all butchers who are known as "curb stone dealers" by which is designated dealers who have no stores in town. The butchers contend that as they not only pay taxes on their properties but also business tax, and on account of other considerations, the competition is unfair.

Ask For Meat Inspection.

The Board of Health met with the Town Council during the week to discuss the inspection of meat in Cobourg not alone on the market on Saturday but also in the shops. Dr. Geo. H. Field, Medical Officer, Mr. T. J. Stenhouse, chairman of the Board, and members of the Board addressed the Council along these lines. The Board of Health submitted the following recommendations to Council:

"1st—That no fresh meats shall be offered for sale or sold in the Town of Cobourg until such fresh meat has been inspected and approved by a qualified veterinary surgeon or inspector."

"2nd—That said inspected meats shall not be offered for sale or sold by anyone but a licensed dealer on the market, or in a properly conducted meat store, or by a farmer engaged in farming exclusively, and who has raised and fatted the animal."

There was quite a spirited discussion on the part of the Council over the question, which brought out quite a bit of witty cross-fire.

Finally a resolution was passed adjourning the debate until the next Council meeting, and upon motion the recommendations from the Board of Health were referred back to the Board.

NOVEL INVENTIONS TO LIFT THE S-51

Submarine Salvagers Rely on Under-Water Torch and Compressed Air.

In attempting, the tremendous task of raising the submarine S-57, rammed and sunk off Block Island on the New England coast last September, the Navy Department is undertaking one of the most daring and ingenious salvage operations in maritime history; for the rusty hulk of the fighting machine lies fast in sticky clay at the bottom of the ocean under 130 feet of water.

The plan of salvage, as evolved by Lieutenant-Commander Edward Ellsberg of the construction corps after months of study, calls for methods and apparatus never before tried. One invention which will play a vital part in the job, writes L. U. Reavis in Popular Science Monthly for June, is a remarkable cutting torch, invented by Commander Ellsberg, which will work with full efficiency under water. Air under pressure is supplied in such a way that it forms an envelope around the flame of the torch.

At present a buoy is anchored by a long rope to the deck gun of the S-57. A diver from the Falcon, the principal salvaging vessel, will slide down this rope and land on the deck of the submarine. Other divers will follow. First they will lash eight steel pontoons to the sides of the wreck. Each of these will be fitted with a hose connected with air pumps on board the Falcon.

Two smaller "pilot" pontoons will be attached to the front and rear of the craft by sixty-foot chains.

Meanwhile other divers, working with under-water torches, will close as many of the water-tight doors in the hull as possible, and cut vent-holes in the bottom of the hull. Holes also will be cut in the hull at other points, and the air hose lines from the Falcon will be fitted to them.

At the word of command the air pumps will be started, forcing the water out of the pontoons. The eight pontoons, when filled with air, will have a combined lifting power of 760 tons, and the two "pilot" pontoons will add 120 tons, making a total of 880 tons pulling steadily against the dead weight of the hull.

The supreme test will come when air pressure is applied to the hose lines connected to the hull itself. It is hoped that sufficient water can be forced out to add at least 500 tons of buoyancy and to break the grip of the sticky clay.

Your Smile
can be given dazzling white teeth, and pretty gums quickly, this new way

You can now work wonders quickly by removing the dingy film that clouds your teeth and imperils healthy gums. Please accept this remarkable dental test.

Famous $100,000 stars of the movies use this new method as a "make-up" before going on a scene. That is why movie smiles are so gleamingly white. Leading dentists widely advise it, because it protects the teeth and gums.

It is called Pepsodent—a new-type tooth paste that works by removing the dingy film coat from teeth that old-time dentifrices did not clear off successfully. That's why brushing failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel that film. A slippery coating that absorbs discolorations and keeps your teeth off color; that breeds bacteria and invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea.

Remove it and you will be amazed at what you see. Discard old ways now. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Or send for 10-day tube—no charge.

In Peterborough Churches

MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH. Sons of England Attend.

On Sunday evening, May 23, the members of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England, together with a number of members of Westminster Lodge, Lindsay, adult and juvenile attended the Murray street Baptist church. The service throughout was well-chosen for the occasion, the Sons of England hymn, "Go Forward, Sons of England," was sung by the whole congregation. The music rendered by the choir was exceptionally good, the solo "Land of Hope and Glory," by Dr. J. Graham and the anthem, "Soldiers of Christ Arise" were much appreciated by the lodge members. Dr. Rose preached an eloquent sermon from the text "Whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report . . . think on these things." Beginning with Egypt, the sermon dealt with the contribution that the different nations of the world had made to civilization. Greece had given culture; the Hebrew nation, religion; Germany, Luther and the Reformation; America, religious liberty. Other nations had also contributed something, but, after all, it was to England that the world and world civilization owes the most. Literature, law, science and religion—England has contributed probably more than any other nation during her long history. Today she stands pre-eminent in the world, beloved at home and revered abroad.

To the Sons of England he gave a most hearty welcome, assuring them that they had a name to be proud of, and it was also the boast of many Canadians born in Canada and American born in the United States, that they, too, have a common heritage with the Sons of England, because their ancestors were Sons of England many years ago. The service was brought to a close with the singing of the hymn, "God Save the King."

In the Lodge room after the service, many expressions of appreciation were made of the splendid choral singing and the sermon of Dr. Rose, also the arrangements made by the committee in charge. Next Sunday Lansdowne Lodge will go to Lindsay to join with the Lindsay members in their church parade. A large number of members is expected to make the journey.

GILMOUR CHURCH.

"Spiritual Gladness" was the subject of the sermon at Gilmour Memorial church on Sunday morning. Taking as his text, Psalm 9:2, "I will be glad and rejoice in thee: I will sing praise to thy name, O thou most High," Rev. W. S. Edgar said:—

"There is one thing about the religion of the Psalmist that must strike every reader, and that is its joy, its bright unextinguishable gladness. It strikes a truly optimistic note, has a favorable outlook on life and radiates happiness all around. Gladness is most appropriate when we are engaged in the worship of Jehovah; we sing praises to his name; we rejoice in His goodness; we bless Him because His tender mercies are over all His works.

"All nature seems to rejoice in the benevolence of the Creator. The birds praise God in their swelling notes of gladness, the cattle in the fields low forth their praise with tumult of happiness; and the fishes leap up with excess of delight in His worship. Moloch may be worshipped by the shricks of infants dying in the flames and the homage of the Juggernaut may be accompanied by the groans of self-immolated victims, but He Whose name is Love, is best pleased by the holy mirth and sanctified gladness of His people.

"The truly religious man is optimistic. He has a bright outlook. He sees God the infinitely Good, behind all the phenomena of nature, and a divine purpose of mercy running through all the discipline of life. Hence his joy. A celebrated German physician used to pursue his studies through the night with a couple of skeletons as candle-bearers. It is easy to discern that the Psalms and prophecies of the Old Testament were not written in any such ghastly environment or ntmosphere. Despair with the sexton's lamp did not make the darkness visible to Moses, David and Isaiah; in the light of the torch of Hope, they construed the blackest problem and viewed tragedy and death in the blaze that streamed from the throne of the Eternal. And if hope and cheerfulness characterize the Old Testament, an even brighter gladness and peace breathes in the doctrines of the New. No longer are dark themes relieved by torchlight; all are softened and solved in the golden light of a heavenly day; at the heart of revelation throbs a wondrous blessedness and hope.

Joyfulness has not always been the ideal of the Christian world. There is an old law book in which Jonathan Trumbull, a Puritan, records some of the cases, which he tried as a Justice of the Peace. Here is one of the entries: "His majesty's tithemen entered complaint against Jonathan and Susan Smith, that on the Lord's Day, during divine service, they did smile." And these two were found guilty. Each was fined five shillings and costs. For smiling! And yet, we are told again and again in the Sacred Word that one of the fruits of true religion is an overflowing joy. "Rejoice and again I say, Rejoice!"

"Now this old Puritan narrowness is not quite extinct today. One reason why our religion is not captivating the people is because it is not sufficiently warm with an exuberant joy. It is too melancholy, too sombre. It is more significant of the funeral than of the wedding. If only we had the fulness of the Spirit, the most joyous and exhilarant people to be found on earth would be the intimate friends of Christ. They would be the centre of every merry-hearted company, the bright genial fire in every social circle. But how often are we regarded as long-faced and repressive, wet blankets, rather than genial flames.

"R. L. Stevenson uttered a really profound truth when he said, "To be happy is the first step to being pious." It would be a grand thing indeed if Christians could finally rid themselves of the superstition of sadness and show the world the virtue of Christianity in bringing to perfection all the elements of gaiety that beautify the soul and life. The Christian world has never yet summoned up sufficient courage to let itself go; it has never yet given free expression to the mighty gladness that stirs its heart. There are many purposes to which this pent up joy may lend itself.

"(1) Christian joy is a bulwark against temptation and sin. Unlike the Greek ideal of happiness, which fostered selfishness and sensuality, the Christian objective concerns itself with the soundness of the heart. It inculcates the grandeur and soul-satisfying pleasure of unselfish and righteous conduct. Thus it forms an effectual barrier against illegal enjoyment of every kind. True joy has wonderful preservative qualities.

"(2) Christian joy is an effective remedy for sorrow. An adequate conception of the happy times and things of life makes a good preparation to withstand the assaults of sorrow and adversity. A famous preacher has well pointed out that the summer flowers which survive to autumn bear the chills of the approaching winter much better than do the flowers which do not appear until autumn; the summer flowers, drenched in the long sunshine have a fuller vitality than have those which enjoyed only the fainter light of the shorter day. So also, men best sustain the trying season who enjoyed most healthily the privileged hours, who stood well out from the shade and drank at every pore the golden sunshine of life's summer days. If threatened by misfortune, confront it with a trustful song. If tribulation overtakes you, disperse or sanctify it in the power of a smiling confidence and a holy joy.

"(3) Christian joy arms the saint for service and obedience. It is said that Leonardo da Vinci, the great artist painted his masterpieces to the accompaniment of music, holding a lyre in his one hand, while he painted and touched the instrument with the other. Everybody knows how superbly he painted. Holding a lyre in our had, we cannot fail to work well for our Master.

"Now this truth can be reversed. Happiness is the best inspiration for service but service is also the true secret of happiness. The highest happiness is the feeling of well-being which comes to one who is actively engaged in doing what he was designed to do, carrying out the great life purpose patterned in his individual bent. The practical fulfilling of that life purpose is to man what the recording of the passage of time is to the watch. Without action, both are meaningless.

"There is no tonic like that which comes from doing things worth while."

SUMMERVILLE, Nfld., May 24.—(Special).—Kidney conditions resulting in rheumatism and sciatica usually come on gradually and so in all such cases the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills should be persistent, as changes that are gradual are likely to be permanent.

Mrs. W. Tilley, a well known resident of this place tells her experience in the following letter. She says; "My trouble started with a cold. I was troubled with rheumatism and sciatica for about a year. I tried so many things that I had heard about but none of them seemed to do me any good. A friend of mine told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used four boxes and today I find none of my old trouble, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

The human body is always in a constant state of change. One of the commonest changes is a cold, which in a few hours will derange the whole system. Advt.

Let me walk where'er I will. I can't keep my spirit still. Call me tramp, or call me Bo, anything—but let me go. Clear the way to out-of-doors, where there's grass upon the floors. Down the dirt road, edged by wheat. Turn me loose—upon my feet.

Let the sun shine down on me. Let me drink of ozone free. E'er I go, when I arrive. I will know that I'm alive. Watch my gait. Yea, see me swing, free and easy. That's the thing. Up the highway, down the street, I'll go my way—on my feet.

FAITH IN THIS COUNTRY FORMS BASIS OF TALK

Mr. James Dorris Tells Rotary Club Something of Canada's Greatness.

NATURAL WEALTH.

Figures That Show Every Reason To Be Optimistic Over Future.

The doctrine of faith in Canada was preached with good effect by Mr James Dorris of the Wm. Hamilton Company, in an eloquent address to the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon at the Empress today.

Mr. Dorris, who was introduced by Rotarian Fred L. Roy, gave a 20-minute talk that was permeated with the spirit of Canadianism. There was no reason, he told his hearers, for being pessimistic over the future of this country, and he buttressed this statement with a convincing array of imposing statistics that told of the greatness of Canada's resources, and the possibilities for development of these natural sources of wealth. The figures quoted by the speaker showed Canada well to the fore-front in all lines of production in fisheries, agricultural products, manufactured articles, forest products, mineral wealth and water power. Only the surface had so far been scratched in this development, Mr. Dorris believed.

Canada had its problems, of course—the tariff, secession talk in the west and in the Maritimes, the ever-present difficulty among the miners of Nova Scotia, the necessity of a better understanding and closer relations between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians, but if these things could be taken out of politics could, in the opinion of the speaker, be very readily found.

Times were dull in Canada at the Present time but the outlook was not gloomy. The present conditions, Mr. Dorris declared, were the natural aftermath of the period of inflation that had followed the war, and there was every reason to believe that better times were on their way. The dull period would be a blessing if it put an end to the extravagance which most of us had plunged into during the boom years, and substituted for it more substantial methods of doing business on a smaller margin of profit and with the cost of production cut down.

Vice-President A. L. Killaly voiced the appreciation of the Rotary Club in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was heartily accorded by the members.

VETERANS VISIT SALVATION ARMY

Interesting Service Held in Connection With Visit of Band.

GOOD ADDRESSES.

The Sunday morning service at the Salvation Army Temple formed one of the most interesting of the events held here in connection with the visit to the city of the Earlscourt Citadel Band. The Temple was filled almost to capacity, between four and five hundred people being present for the service, which was preceded by an open-air concert by the Band, given at the corner of Hunter street and Belmont avenue.

Soldiers of the King joined with the Soldiers of the Cross in this service, when veterans of the city to the number of about seventy, paraded to the Temple, led by Captains Abraham and Whatley.

Two selections by the Earlscourt Band featured this service, the first "Redemption," a selection which includes some fifteen hymns of the Salvation Army in its composition, and "Songs of Comfort." The band plays with a smooth, velvety tone, a rhythmic volume and a religious atmosphere which permeates all its music.

A section of the band, composing a Male Voice Choir sang in excellent voice, "Christ for Me," and addresses were given by Major Walton and Colonel Hargrave of Toronto.

Major Walton, in a direct, simple, form of address, spoke of the trials endured by the soldiers in time of war, and, addressing himself directly to the men in uniform in front of him, reminded them of the supreme sacrifice wihch had been paid by 52,000 of their comrades who failed to return to their homes, as they had done.

"But remember, he said, "it is often easier to give up life and die for a cause than it is to stand up with your shoulders back, your face to the foe, and your heart in the right place, and live for the cause for which your comrades died."

Colonel Hargrave's address was inspirational and quietly eloquent. He spoke of the lessons to be learned from the Apostle Paul, the contender against God and His servants, who later became one of the greatest of all His servitors. When he was struck down on the road to Damascus, on the way to do harm to the followers of Christ, his response to the reproach of the Almighty was instantaneous: "What wilt Thou have me to do?"

And, having at last set his feet on the right path he never swerved from his allegiance to Christ, although his service involved separation from his family and friends, and led finally to his own martyrdom.

Paul, said the speaker, was always master of the circumstances of his life. He was able to adapt himself to any conditions in which he found himself, but he never for one moment forsook the ideal he had set for himself: the winning of souls for Christ. He was independent in his views but he never forgot that he had been one of the greatest of sinners in his days of persecution of the Christians, and he worked always with a sense of keen personal responsibility, so that, when his time at last came, he could say with truth, "I have fought the good fight. I have kept the faith."

It was just fifty years ago, 1876, that the first proposal for federal constitutional amendment prohibition was made in Congress in a joint resolution introduced by Henry W. Blair of New Hampshire.

HOLLYWOOD, May 25.—Wallace Beery with swaggering modesty cites a fan letter from an ardent young girl admirer from Westchester county, New York, in which she admits that her admiration for Beery as a screen figure is shared by her mother.

"Father says," reads the letter, "that mother has most peculiar taste. But mother says she admires big, strong men."

Among the most carefully guarded treasures in the Lasky studio property room is a collection of some 5000 bottles and flasks—glassy remains which the spirits departed by the Volstead taboo.

Once containing almost every variety of wines, whiskies and liqueurs, and still retaining the original labels, these flasks are invaluable for period pictures.

Visitors with a yen for antiques were in the habit of purloining the rarer specimens before a watch was set on the collection. Many visitors were also under the delusion that they contained the original contents.

Von Stroheim is having a hectic time trying to find a place of secluded hibernation where he can complete his script for "The Wedding March" without interruption by inquisitive friends.

Recently discovered in a lair at La Jolla, Calif., he has fled to yet remoter retreat. Wouldn't it be a good publicity stunt to organize a hunt for Erich, with an appropriate prize for the finder?

At the long directors' table in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's studio dining room, the regular patrons shake dice each noon to determine what one shall pay for the checks of all.

Often the loser has to fork over from $25 to $30. A new director has 10 days of grace before he is expected to participate with the "bones."

Girl movie novices resort to many schemes to attract the attention of directors. Symona Boniface, a recent recruit from the stage, is achieving excellent results by sketching them during lulls between shooting.

She usually manages to catch a flattering likeness, and then autographs it for the complimented director. If he keeps the picture, how can he forget her name or fail to keep her in mind for the next picture?

Give no thought wherewith ye shall be clothed—that was never meant to apply to motion picture actresses. Claire Windsor has just created a bathing suit nifty of black velvet. Of it she says:

"The wearer, emerging from the water in wet velvet, looks like a beautiful glossy seal." And the bathing season is almost upon us, too!

Noah Beery recently had a fight that wasn't designed for the screen. While playing the villain in "The Vanishing American," Beery became interested in an exceptional young Navajo Indian boy.

As guardian of the youth, he brought him to his ranch. Two of Beery's well-meaning but too exhuberant cow hands thought it would be good sport to initiate the Indian to the Hollywood brightlights.

Beery, disapproving of this short-cut to dubious civilization, promptly whaled the daylights out of the cowboys, then reinstated them for the good fight they had given him.

HOLLYWOOD, May 85.—When Tom Mix, Hollywood's most showy citizen, recently moved into his new and pretentious manse in Beverly Hills, the comparatively sedate souls of that exclusive residence district were thrown into a state of acute civic anxiety.

Tom was welcomed as a neighbor, of course. He is well liked—a man of sterling character. But it is no secret that Tom has a penchant for the extremely picturesque in adornment and possessions. And it was anticipated that he might indulge his passion for showmanship in a manner not exactly encouraged by Beverly Hills folk.

There was, for instance, that huge electric T-Bar-M sign on the Mix house at Catalina Island, glaring like a lighthouse from the roof, advertising his domicile to the world.

Sign for Beverly Hills?

Would Tom duplicate this here? Such likelihood, and gentle means of dissuasion, were seriously discussed by Tom's new neighbors, picture folk mostly.

But now Mr. Mix has settled down with the most approved decorum, and is even pointed to with pride by those who so lately viewed with alarm. He has even developed a shade of reticence—who once gloried so frankly in white doeskin suit, embossed boots, clinking spurs, carven saddles and the last flash in autos.

But not completely tamed as yet even by the soft pedal of Beverly Hills conventions. For Tom Mix has the sheer courage of his egotistical convictions. More than any man in pictures he dramatizes himself. He is first and last the showman. He believes superbly in himself, and that modesty is its own punishment.

Takes Name from Autos.

But it is significant that Tom's name is no longer emblazoned on his remuda of six automobiles, as once it was on the leather decked roadster of a more flaunting period.

It seems unlikely, however, and fortunately, that the conventional trend of Hollywood will ever subdue its most picturesque citizen, nor stale his infinite variety.

And many of the one-time dubious neighbors now foregather delightedly in that grand drawing room of Tom's, with its bison heads and rifles, who once feared the blaze of a bizarre electric name brand from his rooftree.

BAND CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

Large Attendance at Final Appearance of Earlscourt Band.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

A very entertaining programme of music formed the concluding session last evening of the Earlscourt Citadel Band from Toronto, which paid a week end visit to the city. The concert was held in the Temple, and was greeted by a large and appreciative audience. Professor R. Gliddon, of the Conservatory of Music acted as chairman.

The programme, which was excellent, had some especially good numbers in a euphonium solo, "True Till Death," by Bandsman W. Pyle; a band selection "Gems from the Master," comprising popular numbers from many of the operas; a beautifully played pianoforte solo, "The Last Rose of Summer," by Bandsman N. Audoire, L.T.C.M.; a trombone solo, "O Sole Mio," by Bandsman A. Woods, and a saxaphone selection, "Childhood Dreams," a fine number by the massed saxaphones of the Peterborough and Earlscourt Bands, conducted by Bandmaster Robinson, of the local band.

Other numbers on the programme were a selection, "In Immanuel's Praise," by the Earlscourt band; a vocal selection, "Soldiers' Chorus," by the Male Voice Choir of the Band; a band march, "In the Firing Line"; a saxaphone march, "Concourse," by the Earlscourt saxaphones; a march by the band, "Under Two Flags," a cornet duett, "Glory to His Name," by Bandsman N. Audoire and Bandmaster Robertson; a selection by the band, "Discipleship"; a monologue, "At Wits End Corner," by Dept. B. M. Webber; a trombone quartette, "Comrades in Arms," by A. Wood, first trombone, W. MacGregor, second trombone, A. MacFarlane, third trombone, and F. Brooks, bass trombone; a cornet solo, "I Love Him Better Every Day," by Bandmaster Robertson; a selection, "Rockingham," by the Band, and the closing hymn, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," by the band and congregation.

ENTERTAINMENT BY 'TEEN AGE GIRLS

Successful Concert Given in All Saints' Parish Hall.

(Contributed.)

The 'teen age girls of All Saints' church gave a successful entertainment on Friday night. A large and appreciative audience greeted every number with marked enthusiasm.

Several pleasing choruses and action songs were rendered by the girls before presentation of a play, entitled, "The Mystery of Satterlee's Seminary."

The farce was full of humor and brilliant dialogue and the caste is to be congratulated upon the creditable manner in which every character performed her part.

The clever Celtic serving maid (Mrs. Edgar Le Bar) brought down the house with more than one jolly burst of merriment and terminated the drama with her wonderful fiance Patrick Hogan (Mabel Nixon) to the strains of the wedding march.

The most effective numbers on the programme were probably—Hawaian duet by the Misses Tretheway; vocal solo, by Mr. C. Clark; vocal solo, by Miss Isabel Black; Recitation, by little Ruth McNeely; solo, Miss Edith Tucker; Reading, Gwelda Pakenham.

There was a pleasing diversity in the rendering of a character choral number "Reduced to $1.99," which was one of the evening's successes.

The accompanists of the evening were Mrs. E. Goodley and two-piece orchestra, and the success of the evening was due in large measure to the untiring efforts of Miss R. J. Devey, Mrs. G. Davis and Mrs. F. Pakenham.

The proceeds, amounting to over $30, will assist in reducing the church mortgage.

A fact not generally known is that black and green tea are both the produce of the same plant, the difference being in the age of the leaves.

OUTLAWS AND POLICE WAGE FIERCE FIGHT

Forty Outlaws Were Killed and Several Wounded at Tugaya.

MANILA, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Forty more outlaws were killed and several wounded in a battle between the outlaws and the Philippine constabulary at Tugaya, Lanao District, Island of Midanao, reports of which reached Manila yesterday. One constabulary soldier was killed and nine wounded.

Two forts in which the outlaws had taken refuge were destroyed. The Moros had been carrying out depredations throughout the country around Lake Lanao and terrorizing the peaceful inhabitants of the district.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A CHARMING SUMMER FROCK.

Pam is fairly spasmodic about her sewing, but when she does plan to make a frock, it is hard to get her out of the manikins' room, even when Madame is waiting to have her model a frock.

Pam, you really must jump when you're called," I warned her today.

If you don't, Madame won't like the idea of our sewing in spare moments, and as it is she is darling about letting us do it."

With this gentle reproach, Pam hopped up to go, assuring me that she didn't mind working for Madame, to the world's end, if necessary, but that she did love to make a dress once she got started.

By this time she had reached the door, and she called back over her shoulder for me to wait till she came back.

I smiled at her ardor, once she had undertaken a task, and then I picked up the mass of sewing she had let fall where it would when she hopped up.

I must tell Pam to be more careful about where she drops white goods, as this place just will collect dust," I mused to myself.

I help up the piece of sewing with needle attached, and saw that Pam had set herself the job of setting finely pleated white batiste godets into a white linen skirt.

Smart idea," I said aloud, just as Pammie returned, to announce that the hurry call had been a false alarm after all.

Don't you think it will be a really lovely frock?" she asked with enthusiasm.

What else is there besides this skirt with its three godets?" I asked.

For answer Pam flew to a cupboard and brought out the finished overblouse, which was as lovely and feminine as anything K have seen lately.

What a dream!" I announced.

I think linen is awfully smart combined with a thinner material, and this frilled overblouse just seemed to design itself," Pam explained.

Awfully pretty trimming," I said, referring to the bands of white linen embroidered in Copen blue lines and dots.

I've had that several seasons, and only just found this way of using it," Pam replied.

She explained that she had a little Copen rought sraw hat to complete the costume.

SOME HEARTY SALADS.

For the one-dish dinner in warm weather there is nothing nicer than a salad. This may be made of meat, fish, vegetables, fruits or combinations. The main part of the salad can be cooked and prepared ahead of time so that there is nothing to do but mix it at the last moment. Wash and pick over the lettuce then put it in the lettuce bag on the ice to stay until needed. Celery may be prepared in the same way, onions, chopped and put away in a covered bowl. The dressings may also be made and set to chill.

Roast Beef Salad.

Cut enough rare roast beef from a cold roast to chop fine. There should be two cupfuls when chopped. Add pepper, salt, a grated onion, a finely minced red pepper and a tablespoonful of chopped celery leaves. Put in a bowl and set to cool until ready to use. Add to the salad a half cupful of chopped celery, a minced gherkin pickle, a cupful of finely cut lettuce and enough mayonnaise made with mustard and having a tablespoonful of capers mixed with it. Toss the salad lightly and fi salad leaves with it. Or wipe the inside of a salad bowl with a cut bud of garlic and line it with fresh red beet leaves. Put in the salad and garnish with chopped red pepper and olives and quartered deviled eggs.

Vegetable Salad.

Boil two large potatoes, two carrots, one small turnip, and a small cauliflower. When the vegetables are done, cool and dice them, then slice down the cauliflower. Heat and drain a small can of peas. Wipe a large flat salad plate with a cut bud of garlic, and arrange the lettuce leaves on it. Mix each vegetable with white mayonnaise and arrange star fashion from the center. Lay slices of the cauliflower around the edge and in the middle put deviled eggs cut in quarters, stoned olives stuffed with a little anchovy paste and short lengths of stuffed celery.

Sea Salad.

Open, drain, and free from skin and bones a small can of salmon and a small can of tuna fish. Open and drain a can of shrimp, then break them into halves with a silver fork. Wipe a salad bowl with a cut bud of garlic, put in the fish, add the juice of an onion, three tablespoonfuls of French dressing, a cupful of minced celery, a tablespoonful of capers, a minced gherkin, two chopped hard-boiled eggs, and enough mayonnaise to bind. Arrange in cupped lettuce leaves and garnish with oysters, cooked three minutes in their own liquor, then drained and masked in mayonnaise. Do not save what may be left, as it does not keep well.

Country Life Bags the Ensemble Idea in Gay Cottons

"COUNTRY COUSIN" has changed to a term of envy from one of reproach. In Summer the advantages of country over city life are so apparent that it's rather rubbing it in to swell the list. To wear cotton frocks, delicious candy colors, and to go to market in short sleeves! Tub frocks this season have added to their charms matching bags of the new pouch type and proportions. The bag holds the bottle—baby's, of course—a good buy in artichokes, your novel, your knitting, your purse, your powder when you go shopping, your bathing-suit and your lunch when you go to the beach. Chintz, cotton prints, novelty ginghams, the new rayon cottons and alpacas, make charming "ensembles."

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

YOUR HEALTH

It is a strange fact that some nations are subject to certain diseases while the peoples of other countries are free from them.

Some nations, too, may be remarkably free from certain diseases. For instance, tuberculosis, which is very common among the colored race, is rare among the Jews.

The Health Commissioner of New York City has recently written on this subject. He said, "As a result of the survival of the fittest, and through a severe testing within the Ghetto walls, the Jews have acquired an immunity against tuberculosis."

But, says the same writer, "The high tension under which the Jews have so frequently worked, and the sensitive nervous equipment of which they are possessed, have affected their hearts, blood vessels and kidneys." So, you see, while they are exceptionally free from one disease, the Jews are more liable to others than the rest of us.

It is so with every other race. Each has its own particular peril. Every climate, too, and every country have their own weaknesses. The country and the city inhabitants differ in their susceptibilities.

Country folks are used to fresh air, open spaces and the sunlight. Take a husky young man from these surroundings and he will suffer inconvenience and actual illness when crowded into the city places. The subway, the packed street-car, the hot and unventilated theatre, the tiny bedroom opening on to a court, the smoky restaurants and the crowded streets—all these have an evil effect upon the health and welfare of the country lad.

The common cold, influenza, bronchitis and pneumonia find such persons easy prey. On the contrary, folks who live all the time in such surroundings, become immune to these ailments. That is why the Ghetto-dwelling Jews do not have them. The diseases of the breathing organs, including tuberculosis, pass by the members of this race.

The active, energetic, bustling, hustling person has his particular weakness. Enthusiasm, so desirable usually, may cause the heart to beat too vigorously and to be weakened by such use if the enthusiasm is chronic.

It is well to learn what are the weaknesses of your particular race and family. Then by living the right manner of life, you will not be plagued by the racial or family ailments.

Many otherwise good folks are very neglectful of their bodies. They flatter themselves that somehow or other they will escape the usual diseases.

To think this is foolish. Take time enough to lay out for yourself a manner of living which will tend to protect you against the habitual ailments of your group.

Just because your parent or your race has a particular disease, is no reason for you to get it. You are captain of your fate.

JUDY WONDERS WHY

The stern lips of that man behind the desk took on a thinner line as he looked me over. Some way he reminded me of my father. I felt myself grow red. But I threw back my head and gave him look for look.

"Where do you want to go—Miss—Miss?"

"Miss Dean," I supplied.

The way that man asked me that question was almost an insult but I answered with spirit. I had been used to that sarcastic tone from my father ever since I was a little girl.

"I didn't know that an applicant for a position in a department store had a choice," I explained. "However, since that seems to be your policy, I would like to be in the men's gloves or handkerchief department."

The man raised his eyebrows.

"I am afraid, Miss Dean, that you have not made a very good choice — under the circumstances." He looked at me so meaningly, that again I felt myself growing red. I still looked him straight in the face, however, until his eyes fell and he said: "However, I will put you at the men's handkerchief counter. Miss Atley is quite ill and will not be back for a long time."

Again I raised my eyes, this time to intercept a queer kind of an expression on his face. One moment I thought it was pity and the next I almost felt that he was angry.

In the meantime Mr. Armstrong who had gone back to his office, returned and he brought with him a paper which he passed over to Mr. Smith.

After reading it the man seemed almost flabbergasted.

"So you were recommended by Mr. Hathaway, Sr.," he observed looking up from the paper.

"I don't think I went so far as to say that Mr. Hathaway recommended me, Mr. Smith. Mr. Hathaway knows nothing about what I can do. I told Mr. Robinson that Mr. Hathaway would probably say that I was honest as I had one experience which he knew about that showed to him that I was one of 'those poor but honest working girls' that we are always hearing about."

"How long have you known Mr. Hathaway, Miss Dean?"

"I only met him for about a half an hour yesterday morning, but I know his son quite well."

"Oh, that's it," he said softly as if to himself. I wondered what he meant by that.

WHITE CURTAINS.

Home decorators now seen agreed that only the small quaint colonial house with braided rugs and painted furniture can stand ruffled white curtains, and they frown at any kind of white ones for average homes. They are breaking away from the old idea that curtains are protection from the curious without, and must completely cover the window. A modern tendency is to ban the glass under-curtains and have but sidedrapes of gay hued gauze which permit the room to be flooded with sunlight.

TO EAT WHEN TIRED.

"A new wrinkle" which lists menus according to mood and temperament, says that the exhausted individual should eat milk toast and baked apple, cereal or fruit, and cream soup.

COLORS IN DRESS.

A color, we learn, casts its reflection downward, but brings out its complementary color above. Thus, a rose facing on a hat would cast a rosy hue over the face, but a rose dress would bring out its complimentary color, green, on the face, making it a bad choice for the sallow woman.

EASY MADE CANAPES.

Cut bread into small squares or triangles and toast on one side. Spread with 2 cups minced ham mixed with 1 chopped onion. Spread with 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and cover with thick layer of 1 cup ground snappy cheese. Place in broiler until cheese is melted and serve at once.

CURLY HAIR.

Girls who do not like the hot iron on their hair may enjoy this curling lotion. Gum arabic, 1 dram, borax, 2 ozs., strong spirits of camphor, 12 fluid drams: dissolve first two in quart hot water and when cold add camphor, wet hair with liquid and roll it up on rubber or—id curlers.

THE HOUSE.

Are you building? This word from Edwin Bonta, house designer, might interest you. "The interior that has the greatest promise is the one that depends for its interest, not on fixtures, but on furniture. Except for doors, windows, stairs and fireplaces, we can think of little else that would not be better moved in than built in."

FORMAL DINNER TABLE.

Ten-inch dinner plate is used, meat knife with blade turned in is next the plate to the right, then silver fish knife, soup spoon, fruit spoon, oyster fork. At left of plate nearest it is salad fork, meat fork, fish fork. Dessert spoon and fork are brought on with dessert course. Forks are laid with prongs up. Spoons with bowls up.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT more cities need more harmony and less friction; more wide-awake people and less sleepy ones.

THAT it is said that boundless energy is build on sound sleep—some cities must have much energy stored away! Now is the time to release it.

THAT time waits for no man. Don't put off until tomorrow what you should do today. You won't live forever.

THAT some cities should wake up, get into a constructive frame of mind, turn loose some of their stored up energy and get busy.

THAT the citizens of some cities need to get a better vision of their city's present and future greatness.

THAT they should bear in mind that the future of the city is a public trust.

THAT as the world progresses so should the home city progress. Business must be improved, industries encouraged and a spirit of progress developed in such a way that will lead it into doing greater things.

If you don't want to be known as a back number, do your share to keep your city ahead of your neighboring cities.

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

MISTER APPLEDUSTER.

Pretty soon they met a man who said his name was Mister Appleduster.

Mister Appleduster said it was a nice day and if things kept up the alligators would soon be in bloom, and spoke of how terribly expensive sea-saws were getting and went on to remark that if fire-engines didn't have a care, wheel-barrows would get all the business.

The Twins looked at each other as much as to say, "Here's another crazy one," and the little Whiffet looked as though he was going to cry again. But nobody let on. That's really the best way to be polite, you know.

"I suppose," said Mister Appleduster, "that you think my remarks are curious. But they are as sensible as overshoes if you know how to take them. It's like reading French, or Latin. It says one thing but it means another. Now, for instance, when I speak of alligators being in bloom, I don't mean that at all."

"What do you mean then?" said Nancy politely, for she felt that Mister Appleduster must be expecting somebody to say something by this time.

"Why," laughed Mister Appledusters sitting down and scratching his ear with his toe, "I mean that huckleberry steak is delicious served up with noodles. Ha, ha! You neevr would have guessed that, now would you."

"I shouldn't," said Nick.

"And I shouldn't," said Nancy.

"And I shouldn't," said the little Whiffet. "Sniffle! Sniffle! I only know one thing. I've lost my shadow."

"Why, do you know!" cried Mister Appleduster, springing up like a rubber ball and tieing his coat-tails around his neck as he did so, "that is curious—very. That's exactly what Bo Peep did with her sheep. She LOST them! But she just let them alone and they came home and brought their tails behind them."

"Oh!" cried the little Whiffet. "Do you think that if I let my shadow alone it will come home and bring home its nice necktie and ears and pockets and everything along with it?"

"I haven't any more doubt of it than I have that my rubberplant is going to turn into an automobile tire," said Mister Appleduster. "And that reminds me, have you heard the latest news?"

"No," said Nancy and Nick and the Whiffet all together. They could not understand a word of the queer man's conversation, but it sounded jolly and he seemed to mean well. After all it doesn't matter so much what people say, as the way they say it.

"Well," said Mister Appleduster, shaking his fountain pen on his shoes and polishing them off with his pocket handkerchief, "the wooden Indian in front of the cigar store took the measles, and then he took a chill, and he shook so hard he shook every measle off. And when he found his measles were all off, with all his might and main he promptly caught another chill and shook them on again."

The Twins had to laugh at this and so did the poor little Whiffet. It was also very, very silly.

Mister Appleduster began to grin. "Well, I hope you all feel a bit jollier than you did when I met you. Your faces were a mile long," he said.

"Oh yes, indeed!" said Nancy. "You'd make anybody laugh."

"Then I've served my purpose," said Mister Appleduster. "I really didn't mean a word of all I said. Good-day, folks. A pleasant journey."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, MAY 26.

According to the side ea' operations, this should prove to be a day of aggressive activity and initiative, with a d'sposition to plunge into large enterprises. These are not entirely encouraged as, unless these ventures be in relation to women or women's wear or projects, there is a sign not considered as propitious. Not only may there be delays and obstacles, but there is an afflicted sway for finances and menace of fraud or misrepresentation. Social, artistic, domestic and affectional matters should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very active year, with initiative and enterprise under high stimulus. They are urged to be very cautious in all new ventures, unless these revolve around the affairs or belongings of women. Protect the finances and beware of fraud or duplicity. A child born on this day should be active and resourceful, with a leaning toward art, poetry and music, but it may require firm discipline not to let its fancy or imagination run away with it.

OBITUARY.

MRS. THOMAS PAGE.

HAVELOCK, May 25.—The funeral of the late Mary Elizabeth Haig, wife of Mr. Thomas Page, who died on Wednesday, May 19th at her home on George St., was held on Saturday afternoon. The impressive service at the United Church was conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour and a large number of sorrowing friends gathered to pay their tribute of respect to one who had earned the regard of all with whom she had come in contact.

The deceased was twenty-five years of age, was born in Havelock and spent her entire life here.

There are left to mourn her loss, her husband and infant daughter, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Firman Haig, Havelock; two sisters, Mrs. J. Howley, London; Mrs. W. Page, Havelock; three brothers, Firman, of Toronto and Peter and Benjamin, of town.

There were many beautiful floral tributes which spoke eloquently of the love and esteem in which the deceased was held.

The sympathy of the entire community is given to the bereaved family.

MRS. JOHN P. BROWN.

DOURO, May 25.—The death of Mrs. John P. Brown occurred on Tuesday morning, May 18, after an illness of a number of years. The funeral took place on Thursday morning at half past nine to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. A large number of friends and relatives were present to pay their last respects to one whose long life has been passed in the county. The Mass of Requiem was sung by Rev. M. J. McGuire. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. W. Condon, J. Dwyer, John Leahy, George Whibbs, J. D. Shea and James Walsh. Those from a distance who attended the funeral or visited the house of mourning were: Rev. P. Butler, his mother, Mrs. J. Butler and a daughter, Mrs. J. McCormick and family; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Butler, Mrs. J. Armstrong and daughter, Mr. William McCliggott, Mr. and Mrs. E. Grose and family, Misses Mary T. McCliggott, Mary McMurray, Madeline McCliggott, all of Peterborough and Mrs. James McManus, of Lakefield.

The deceased, who was eighty-nine years of age, was born at Glengarry, Ireland, and at nine months of age came to Canada, settling at Port Hope, where the family remained four years, moving thence to Douro. She was a daughter of the late James McCliggott. For twenty-one years, Mrs. Brown was employed by the Bouker family of Lakefield, at one time accompanying them to England for a time. Forty-one years ago she married the late James Butler, of Hastings, who died seven years later. Twenty-two years ago she was married to John Brown, who survives her. She is also survived by her brother, Mr. James McCliggott, and by a number of step-children. Twelve years ago Mr. and Mrs. Brown moved to Douro, where they have since resided.

Mrs. Brown, though far advanced in years, retained her faculties to the last and had a most remarkable memory. She could tell splendid tales of early days in Douro. Another splendid pioneer has passed, and the township is the poorer for her passing.

MRS. JAMES DIAMOND.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25.—The funeral took place on Saturday of Birdie Ethel, beloved wife of James Diamond, in her twentieth year. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis, who reside near Havelock. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and infant son, her parents, two sisters and four brothers.

Interment took place in the Maple Grove Cemetery at Havelock, the Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of Cordova? taking the services.

Wreaths were sent from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hay and Miss B. Diamond, neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Shapter and Miss Ada Shapter, Mr. Sam Ellis and a sheaf from Trent River.

Mr. John Diamond and Mr. William Gordon, of Toronto, attended the funeral.

JOHN McKAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25.—Relatives were shocked to hear of the sudden death of John L. McKay, of Oshawa on Friday evening. Deceased had delivered a parcel from his store and was found dead about midnight, on the sidewalk.

About two months ago Mr. McKay suffered severely from escaping gas. He had been a resident of Oshawa for several years and lived formerly at Peterborough and Morden, Manitoba.

Besides his wife, who was formerly Effie Joyce of Campbellford, he is survived by one daughter and three sons, Arnold Joyce and Mrs. Percy Sherwin, of town are brother and sister of Mrs. McKay.

Girls! Your Health!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a godsend to women and girls who have become run-down in health. When I was a girl, I became all run-down in health, was weak and nervous, suffered from irregularity, and at times with pains. I was as miserable as could be, when, upon the advice of a friend, I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and it corrected all my trouble. I did not suffer any more, my nerves grew strong and I gained in health and strength very rapidly. After I married I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and it gave me wonderful relief."—Mrs. Elizabeth Penmen, 205 Oak St. All druggists.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his precription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

This season it is the small things that spell smartness. The woman who knows how to assemble these small things correctly is the woman who appears at her best.

The neck handkerchief checked in gay colors, with grays and red predominating, makes a delightful finish for the two-piece sports frock. For the trim tailored suit, the narrower gay scarf is worn tied snugly about the neck.

YOUNG BRITONS LODGE MEETING

Annual Convention Opened at Ottawa With 200 Delegates.

ELECTION TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, May 25 (Canadian Press).—About 200 delegates from many parts of Canada are in attendance at the 45th annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Canada of the Loyal Orange Young Britons, which opened here Monday for a two-day session. The meetings are under the chairmanship of Most Worshipful Grand Master Cecil Beckett, of Kemptville, Ont. Business sessions were held yesterday morning and afternoon, and in the evening there was a banquet provided by the County of Carleton North, L.O.Y.B.

The report of the Grand Secretary, J. A. Dickson, of Dundas, showed excellent progress during the past year, with increases both in the number of members and of the number of Lodges. The Grand Treasurer, R. Hardy-Small of Toronto, presented an excellent financial statement, which showed the Order to be in sound condition in that respect.

Officers will be elected to-day.

Addresses of welcome on behalf of the city were given on Monday morning by Con. H. H. Hoelroy and Ald. Sam. Crooks, and on behalf of the County Lodge, Ottawa, by County Master Vic Magladry, and Deputy County Master Gordon Comba.

K. C. INITIATION.

Fifty New Members Take Three Degrees.

The Knights of Columbus initiation of fifty candidates at Columbus Hall, Simcoe Street, on Empire Day, was preceded by attendance at the high mass at St. Peter's Cathedral. Rev. Father McCorkel, president of St. Michael's College, Toronto, prached an eloquent sermon on Charity.

The first and second degrees were exemplified by officers of Peterborough Council, and the third by A. J. Sophie and staff of Rochester, N.Y., in co-operation with T. J. Begley, District Deputy of Lindsay. The new members and the visiting team were guests at a banquet in the evening at St. Alphonsus Lyceum catered by Hooper and Sons.

As a tribute to the Rochester degree team the Stars and Bars of "Old Glory" was hung with the Union Jacks in the decorations of Columbus Hall, and reference was made in some of the speeches to the fact that the international boundary has for so long tended to emphasize the goodwill existing between the United States and Canada.

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

ACUTE ALVEOLAR ABSCESS.

The once familiar and somewhat ludicrous picture of a man with his face widely swollen from a sore tooth, is now passing.

This wholesome change is due, in chief, to the spread of dental education among the public, and to the better methods of treating dental diseases at their inception.

But it cannot be said that its discomforts are less severe than formerly to those who, through neglect or ignorance, still suffer the torments of the acute alveolar abscess.

What, then, is the cause of this disease?

Alveolar abscess is subsequent to the death of the tooth pulp, and it is so named because it occurs within the bone which forms the alveolar process.

Following pulp destruction, the area surrounding the end or apex of the tooth root, may become involved in inflammation, resulting from the poisonous products of pulp decomposition, incited by disease producing micro-organisms.

Depending upon the resistance of the individual or the severity of the disease process, the inflammation may stop here, or it may progress to the stage of pus formation with marked tissue swelling, and severe throbbing pain when it becomes an acute alveolar abscess.

The pus soon penetrates the bone in an endeavor to find its way to the surface, and entering the soft tissues, proceeds to burrow through them, generally discharging on the surface in from one to three or four days.

Following this discharge, the swelling will gradually subside and the pain ceases.

With this disease, the most prominent early symptom is likely to be soreness of the tooth, it being tender to touch, or bite upon.

In its severe type, it is almost always marked by a fever and may be accompanied by headache and general listlessness.

The danger of allowing this disease to run its course is that there may be marked tissue destruction with the possibility of disfiguring scars about the face and neck. And being an acute infection, vigorous alleviating and curative measures should be at once instituted in its beginning since grave consequences to health and life might follow where it is allowed to go unchecked.

Long ago he did a wise thing. Those whose birthday it is may look for a very active year, with initiative and enterprise under high stimulus. They are urged to be very cautious in all new ventures, unless these revolve around the affairs or belongings of women. Protect the finances and beware of fraud or duplicity. A child born on this day should be active and resourceful, with a leaning toward art, poetry and music, but it may require firm discipline not to let its fancy or imagination run away with it.

HAVELOCK, May 25.—The funeral of the late Mary Elizabeth Haig, wife of Mr. Thomas Page, who died on Wednesday, May 19th at her home on George St., was held on Saturday afternoon. The impressive service at the United Church was conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour and a large number of sorrowing friends gathered to pay their tribute of respect to one who had earned the regard of all with whom she had come in contact.

The sympathy of the entire community is given to the bereaved family.

MRS. JOHN P. BROWN.

DOURO, May 25.—The death of Mrs. John P. Brown occurred on Tuesday morning, May 18, after an illness of a number of years. The funeral took place on Thursday morning at half past nine to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. A large number of friends and relatives were present to pay their last respects to one whose long life has been passed in the county. The Mass of Requiem was sung by Rev. M. J. McGuire. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. W. Condon, J. Dwyer, John Leahy, George Whibbs, J. D. Shea and James Walsh. Those from a distance who attended the funeral or visited the house of mourning were: Rev. P. Butler, his mother, Mrs. J. Butler and a daughter, Mrs. J. McCormick and family; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Butler, Mrs. J. Armstrong and daughter, Mr. William McCliggott, Mr. and Mrs. E. Grose and family, Misses Mary T. McCliggott, Mary McMurray, Madeline McCliggott, all of Peterborough and Mrs. James McManus, of Lakefield.

She was a daughter of the late James McCliggott. For twenty-one years, Mrs. Brown was employed by the Bouker family of Lakefield, at one time accompanying them to England for a time. Forty-one years ago she married the late James Butler, of Hastings, who died seven years later. Twenty-two years ago she was married to John Brown, who survives her. She is also survived by her brother, Mr. James McCliggott, and by a number of step-children. Twelve years ago Mr. and Mrs. Brown moved to Douro, where they have since resided.

Mrs. Brown, though far advanced in years, retained her faculties to the last and had a most remarkable memory. She could tell splendid tales of early days in Douro. Another splendid pioneer has passed, and the township is the poorer for her passing.

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a godsend to women and girls who have become run-down in health. When I was a girl, I became all run-down in health, was weak and nervous, suffered from irregularity, and at times with pains. I was as miserable as could be, when, upon the advice of a friend, I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and it corrected all my trouble. I did not suffer any more, my nerves grew strong and I gained in health and strength very rapidly. After I married I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and it gave me wonderful relief."—Mrs. Elizabeth Penmen, 205 Oak St. All druggists.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his precription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

Nicaraguan Rebels Flee To Costa Rica.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 25 (Canadian Press).—The city of Bluefields, which has been held by the revolutionists, was captured Monday without fighting, the Government announces. This is regarded here as the end of the revolutionary movement.

Ernesto Solorzano Diaz, Governor of Bluefields, advised the President that the revolutionists had evacuated the city, the rebel chiefs with fifty soldiers sailing in a schooner for Costa Rica. Government troops had gradually been closing in on the city, and its recapture had been expected.

This season it is the small things that spell smartness. The woman who knows how to assemble these small things correctly is the woman who appears at her best.

The neck handkerchief checked in gay colors, with grays and red predominating, makes a delightful finish for the two-piece sports frock. For the trim tailored suit, the narrower gay scarf is worn tied snugly about the neck.

The Grand Treasurer, R. Hardy-Small of Toronto, presented an excellent financial statement, which showed the Order to be in sound condition in that respect.

Officers will be elected to-day.

Addresses of welcome on behalf of the city were given on Monday morning by Con. H. H. Hoelroy and Ald. Sam. Crooks, and on behalf of the County Lodge, Ottawa, by County Master Vic Magladry, and Deputy County Master Gordon Comba.

K. C. INITIATION.

Fifty New Members Take Three Degrees.

The Knights of Columbus initiation of fifty candidates at Columbus Hall, Simcoe Street, on Empire Day, was preceded by attendance at the high mass at St. Peter's Cathedral. Rev. Father McCorkel, president of St. Michael's College, Toronto, prached an eloquent sermon on Charity.

The first and second degrees were exemplified by officers of Peterborough Council, and the third by A. J. Sophie and staff of Rochester, N.Y., in co-operation with T. J. Begley, District Deputy of Lindsay. The new members and the visiting team were guests at a banquet in the evening at St. Alphonsus Lyceum catered by Hooper and Sons.

As a tribute to the Rochester degree team the Stars and Bars of "Old Glory" was hung with the Union Jacks in the decorations of Columbus Hall, and reference was made in some of the speeches to the fact that the international boundary has for so long tended to emphasize the goodwill existing between the United States and Canada.

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

The once familiar and somewhat ludicrous picture of a man with his face widely swollen from a sore tooth, is now passing.

This wholesome change is due, in chief, to the spread of dental education among the public, and to the better methods of treating dental diseases at their inception.

But it cannot be said that its discomforts are less severe than formerly to those who, through neglect or ignorance, still suffer the torments of the acute alveolar abscess.

What, then, is the cause of this disease?

Alveolar abscess is subsequent to the death of the tooth pulp, and it is so named because it occurs within the bone which forms the alveolar process.

Following pulp destruction, the area surrounding the end or apex of the tooth root, may become involved in inflammation, resulting from the poisonous products of pulp decomposition, incited by disease producing micro-organisms.

Depending upon the resistance of the individual or the severity of the disease process, the inflammation may stop here, or it may progress to the stage of pus formation with marked tissue swelling, and severe throbbing pain when it becomes an acute alveolar abscess.

The pus soon penetrates the bone in an endeavor to find its way to the surface, and entering the soft tissues, proceeds to burrow through them, generally discharging on the surface in from one to three or four days.

Following this discharge, the swelling will gradually subside and the pain ceases.

With this disease, the most prominent early symptom is likely to be soreness of the tooth, it being tender to touch, or bite upon.

In its severe type, it is almost always marked by a fever and may be accompanied by headache and general listlessness.

The danger of allowing this disease to run its course is that there may be marked tissue destruction with the possibility of disfiguring scars about the face and neck. And being an acute infection, vigorous alleviating and curative measures should be at once instituted in its beginning since grave consequences to health and life might follow where it is allowed to go unchecked.

He Has Earned His Leisure
His income is assured

HE and his wife can look calmly out on the world. He is old and can work no longer but, he is independent—his income is assured.

How did he do it? He was fond of good things; he didn't live a miserly life. He couldn't save money in the ordinary way any more than the rest of us could, for only three men in a hundred are able to save enough money, unaided, to retire upon at sixty.

Long ago he did a wise thing. He called in one of our trained representatives who helped him to systematize his spending and showed him how a few dollars deposited each year with The Imperial Life would give him independence in his old age, and also provide for his family should he die prematurely.

He has earned his leisure—his income is assured. Will this describe YOUR future? Why shouldn't it?

May we tell you about the income you can insure for yourself twenty or thirty years hence, by making small deposits now—when you have the money?

Petes Lose Kingston Game--Win Both Exhibition Contests

HARDILL AND COLLINS PROVIDE BRIGHT SPOT IN KINGSTON GAME AS YOUNG PETERBORO BATTERY

Petes' Young Pitcher Had Plenty of Speed and Sharp Curves.

COLLINS' DEBUT.

First Game of Season Won By the Ponies By 13-2.

(By F. D. C.)

After a nip and tuck ball game until the eighth frame of Saturday's Central Ontario League opening fixture, played in football weather in the Richardson Memorial Stadium at Kingston, the Petes suffered a disastrous blow-up in that inning, the Ponies scoring 10 runs on a combination of loose fielding and timely hitting. The final count was 13 to 2.

Manager Johnston's team was not at full strength, the players were short on work and the lacing they got offers no real line on the prospects for the season.

The bright spots in the picture for the Petes were furnished by the work of the young battery, Hardill and Collins, sent into action by Manager Johnston.

Hardill's excellent twirling is not reflected in the final score; in fact the big youngster should have got by with only one run scored against him. Two soft flies to the outfield in the first frame that went for hits instead of outs presented the Ponies with their first pair of runs and the ten counters in the eighth were made possible when Hardill's support collapsed at the beginning of the frame.

The tall right-hander had a world of speed and a sharp breaking curve and made a fine impression upon the experts, including Umpire George Sullivan, an old pitcher himself.

Lambert Collins, making his senior debut, held Hardill up in snappy style and with any luck would have broken in with a couple of hits as well, smashing two hard drives right at Halbert and Batstone.

Fast Fielding.

Despite the disagreeable weather conditions there was plenty of fast fielding to enthuse the fans. Both in fields pulled off some snappy work while Wolfe's running catch of Cherry's fly to left centre in the seventh was a gem. Thompson, who once upon a time played for Cobourg, made some nice plays in left field for the Ponies and he got away with one piece of daylight robbery when he dove after Jeff Hardill's drive in the fifth and although the ball hit the ground in front of him, he came up with it in his hand and Umpire George Sullivan called the batter out.

The Richardson Stadium is an improvement over the Kingston fair grounds as a ball field so far as the infield is concerned and there is splendid accomodation for the fans. The right field bleachers, however, are close in and there'll be a flock of soft home runs made this season unless the ground rules are changed. A pop fly to right field is a homer under the conditions as they are now.

The Ponies were without Somerville, Halbert taking second and "Bubs" Britton going to short. They played snappy ball behind steady pitching by Bruce Cairns, who showed perfect control and more speed than last season, holding the Petes to five hits. He was a bit lucky in that respect as three or four balls hit on the nose were driven right at somebody.

Two Easy Ones.

The Ponies got two cheap runs in the first. Teepel walked to start with and with the count 3 and 2 on him Halbert lofted a high fly to centre which looked like an easy out. Wolfe, however, fell as he backed up the terrace and the ball dropped behind him for a soft two-base hit. Teepel going to third. Johnston fielded Batstone's sharp roller and threw him out at first, Teepel scoring. Cherry's short fly to right was misjudged by Ash and went for a single, Halbert of course registering. Then Hardill threw out Thompson and Rose made a smart play to get Purvis at first.

There was no further scoring on either side until the fourth when the Petes broke into the run column. Wolfe started with a sharp single to left and after Johnston was called out on strikes Jimmy Hall singled to centre on a line. Rose doubled a mile a minute past third, scoring Wolfe and sending Hall to third. The prospects looked good for more runs but Harrison struck out and Ash's high bounder through the box was fielded by Halbert for an out at first.

The Ponies got that one back in the fifth. With one out Halbert singled through short and scored on Batstone's screaming double to the centre field bleachers. Cherry lined to Harrison and Helson tossed out Thompson to retire the side.

The Terrible Eighth.

That was all the scoring until the terrible last half of the eighth. Johnston started the sad doing when he lost Thompson's roller. Purvis bunted for a sacrifice and Jackson fumbled long enough to let the runner. The two errors were followed by a safe bunt down the third base line by Britton, filling the bases. Arniel smashed one back at Hardill, who threw Thompson out at the plate, and the batter should have been double at first but Collins' toss pulled Harrison into the air and Arniel was called safe. Cairns hard hit roller to right bounced over the wire into the bleachers for a double, scoring Purvis and Britton. Teepel struck out. Halbert singled through short, scoring Cairns, and taking second on the throw in. Batstone's roller was fielded by Harrison, but Hardill covering the bag dropped the toss and Halbert crossed the plate. Cherry singled to left. Thompson up for the second time was hit, filling the bases. Purvis singled to centre scoring Batstone and Cherry and Britton followed with a lofty fly into the bleachers for a cheap homer, sending Thompson and Purvis in ahead of him. Arniel was thrown out by Collins to end the disastrous frame.

Wolfe's second hit, a slashing double past Batstone paved the way for the Petes last run in the ninth. Wolfe stole third, sliding around Batstone. Jack Hall, batting for Johnston, was called out on strikes. Jimmy Hall rolled out to Cairns, Wolfe scoring on the play. Rose singled through short but Harrison fanned to end the game.

OMEMEE 3, THISTLE 0 IN FRIENDLY GAME

Rain Did Not Prevent Teams Playing—Ground in Good Shape.

The friendly soccer game scheduled for Saturday was "washed out" more ways than one but more particularly from above than from spectators' attendance. A continuous downpour that dominated the field of play for the Juvenile opening scared the youths into the trees for shelter. Then followed the senior battle between Omemee and the Thistle.

After a tiresome journey from the tannery village, the Omemee boys arrived ready for the game with only nine men. They completed the quota by the inclusion of Montgomery in goal and Asa Downer at left back.

As for the Thistle eleven, it was made up of players from the other teams of the city; also included Tommy Craig, who now is playing in Saskatoon, in the team that is leading a nine team league.

First Half

Omemee won the toss to take the wind advantage that made the Thistle custodian a busy man in the opening stages. A tackle and break away by Craig let the local boys raid Omemee's goal without any success. From the goal-kick Omemee went right down into their opponent's territory to gain the opening goal when J. Black, playing at centre half, rapepd a fast shot past Griffine who did not see the incoming drive. Ten minutes later a scrimmage in front of the Petes goal resulted in Rhodes shooting a right foot drive in below the bar, from five yards out. Attacks and counter-attacks reigned supreme with clever combination but Omemee's forwards were more dangerous around goal. This was demonstrated just before half time when McGill dribbled through the defence to register the third counter for the visitors. Half time: Omemee 3; Thistle 0.

Second Half

Upon resuming, the local lads made it very interesting around the visitors' goal but their defence kept them outside the shooting distance; thereby giving the goal-keeper every opportunity to handle the shots ranged for goal. The ball travelled from end to end in well-planned attacks but the half-backs checked without hesitation, to confine the play to mid-field. There was keen rivalry between the individuals to gain a superior lead when in possession of the ball. During the final minutes, the element of robust cup tie tactics crept into the tussel, which did not please the "knight of the whistle" who handled the situation very satisfactorily. Omemee 3, Thistle 0.

Goal scorers: J. Black, Rhodes and McGill.

LENNOX AND HECKMAN WIN PAIR FROM TORONTO MOOSE MONDAY

New Pitcher Allowed Only Two Hits in Morning Game on Holiday—Heckman in Great Form in Afternoon Bill.

PETES' DEFENCE WEAK IN SPOTS.

(By F. D. C.)

The Peterboro Central Ontario League team celebrated Victoria Day very enjoyably by winning two holiday exhibition fixtures at Riverside Park yesterday from the Moose, the leading club in the Toronto "Pit League. The Central Ontario Leaguers bagged both engagements in hollow fashion, winning the morning 7 to 3 and slaughtering the Toronto gang 23 to 2 in the afternoon.

The visitors were far from being in the Central Ontario loop class. Their hitting was weak, and their pitching staff had nothing with which to fool the Petes.

Defensively the work of Manager Johnston's team left a lot to be desired but the gang showed more than usual punch in their attack and yesterday's workout will do much to put them in shape for the opening clash with Belleville here on Saturday.

Lefty Lennox, pitching his first game in a Peterboro uniform, gave a fine exhibition of twirling in the morning fixture. He only yielded two hits and should have had an easy shutout if his support had been steady, the three Moose runs being gifts. The Petes fielding was wobbly but they made up for it in their hitting, driving Jago out of the box in the sixth and giving Smith a hot reception in the next frame.

Good defensive work by Hardman, the Moose third baseman, Rose's catch of a line drive to end the game, and two fine running grabs by Jimmy and Jack Hall were the fielding features.

The game was scoreless until the sixth. Coulter walked to start this frame, Maxwell bunted and Rose dropped Lennox's throw to second, everybody being safe. Coulter stole third and Maxwell went to second on the next ball. Sidsworth hit to Rose and Coulter was run down between third and home, Jimmy Hall making the put out. On a double steal Holyman threw low to the plate and Maxwell scored. Hardman rolled to Lennox. Barrett singled to left, scoring Sidsworth. Swing was safe on Rose's error but Holyman tossed out Radke.

The Petes got them back in their half. Ross hit a high one back of short and stretched it into a double by good base running. Jim Hall flied to centre. Helson beat out a hit to short and went to second on Barret's high throw. Harrison's high fly back of third was neatly taken by Barrett, Ross scoring after the catch. Ash walked and when he started to steal Sidsworth threw high to second, Helson scoring and Ash reaching third. Heckman batted for Holyman and scooted through the box scoring Ash. Lennox singled to centre, Heckman going to third. This was enough for Jago and Smith, another right-hander, went to the rescue. He stopped the fun by striking out Jack Hall.

In the seventh errors by Rose and Batten put Gillespie and Smith on the runways. Coulter sacrificed neatly and Maxwell's sacrifice fly, on which Jimmy Hall made a beautiful catch, scored Gillespie. Sidsworth fanned.

In the Petes half Rose opened with a long double to right and scored on Ross's mammoth two-bagger to centre. Jim Hall and Helson fanned but Harrison doubled to deep right to score Ross, and Ash doubled to left sending Harrison in. Batten rolled to Coulter.

The home talent got another in the eighth. Lennox opened with his third hit in a row. Jack Hall bunted a fly to Hardman and Rose rolled to Maxwell. Lennox going to second. Ross walked and Jim Hall singled through third, Lennox scoring when Hardman threw low to the plate. Helson rolled to Coulter.

The Afternoon Game.

Al. Heckman was on the firing line for the Petes when the afternoon fixture started and the right-hander showed great form, blanking the visitors and allowing but one hit in the six innings he worked. Lennox finished the game and the Moose got two unearned runs off him in the seventh. He held them to two singles in the three frames.

The Petes had a batting bee, slamming the offerings of four Toronto pitchers to all corners of the park. Booth, the Mooses ace, was driven to cover in the second frame and Gillespie, Smith and Jago who worked in that order were given a terrific lacing. Hap Harrison doubled twice with the bases full, Jimmy Hall had two doubles and a pair of singles, Lambert Collins hit safely four times in a row and walked twice, and Helson, with four hits, Rose three, including a triple and Ash with three singles, had a field day.

Altogether the Petes bagged twenty-seven hits off the unlucky Moose quartette and altogether 62 batters appeared at the plate in eight innings which must come close to being a record for these parts.

The Petes put the game on ice in the first inning by scoring five runs. Wolfe was safe on Barrett's error. Rose and Jim Hall were thrown out by Hardman, but Heckman was hit and Ash singled to left, scoring Wolfe. Helson drew a pass filling the bases and Harrison's long double to deep centre scored Heckman and Ash. Barertt's wild throw on Holyman's hit sent Helson and Harrison in. Collins singled to centre but on Wolfe's tap in front of the plate Holyman was out at home.

They drove Booth out in the second when Rose was hit and Jimmy Hall doubled past third, both scoring on Heckman's hot single over second. Gillespie relieved the Moose left-hander and an error by Barrett on Ash's roller and hits by Helson and Collins sent two more runs in before the side was retired.

In the fourth clean singles by Collins, Rose and Jimmy Hall gave the Petes another and they had a field day in the fifth when nine runs were registered on two errors by Barrett, and eight ringing hits. Rose tripled with two on to send a pair of runs across and Harrison, who had singled on his first appearance in the inning, came up again and doubled with the bases full, scoring three counters. This smash was registered off Smith who had relieved Gillespie after Rose's triple.

Smith disappeared from the picture in the seventh when an error by Barrett, Helson's double and a single by Batten gave the Petes two more and in the eighth the homesters ran their total up to 23 when they scored twice on a double by Jimmy Hall, Lennox's single to centre and Batten's sacrifice fly.

The Moose got their only counters in the seventh. Swing opened with a single to left. Hardman hit to Helson but with a double play in sight Batten lost the throw and Swing went to third. He scored when Batten was tossing out Turner, the next batter. Gillespie was safe on Helson's low throw to first and on a double steal, Hardman scored.

INTERESTING ATHLETIC EVENTS AT ANNUAL OMEMEE FIELD DAY

Baseball, Softball and Football Provided Full Afternoon of Sport.

ATTENDANCE GOOD.

Good Music Provided By Oakwood Band—Races For Little Ones.

(By A Staff Reporter)

OMEMEE, May 25.—Football, baseball, and softball provided a full afternoon of sport for a large number of Omemee citizens yesterday, on the occasion of the annual Victoria Day field day of the Omemee Athletic Association. For the little ones, as yet unable to understand the sports of their elders, there were a number of races which were keenly contested.

Quakers, 3; Omemee, 0.

The opening event of the afternoon was the football match, a friendly encounter between the E. & E. Tannery team of Omemee and the Quaker team of Peterborough. The tannery boys were short a couple men who had gone away for the holiday, and proved no match for the visitors, who had most of the play and won quite handily, three goals to nil.

Playing with the wind in their favor, the visitors notched two counters in the first half, while their custodian, W. Curtis, had only one shot to save. Play rarely passed beyond the half line and the Omemee forwards spoiled any openings by poor shooting and failure to pass the ball. Stan Maker scored the first goal, while J. Black aided the visitors by scoring on his own side, trying to clear a shot from G. Logan.

The wind in opposition seemed to make little difference to the Quakers in the second half, although the home team got in a few more shots on the visitors' goal. Mitchell scored the only counter when the period was more than half over, taking a pass across the goal mouth. Several other opportunities were missed, while rarely did an Omemee player have a clear shot on Curtis.

The teams lined up as follows:

Quakers—W. Curtis; Grant and H. Curtis; S. Maker, Scott and Craig; Cross, G. Logan, Mitchell, T. McPhate, and W. Logan.

Omemee—Bayman; J. Black and Nicol; W. McPhate, Burchell, and Rhodes; Leiper, Smith, McGill, A. Black, and Wass.

Omemee, 18; Mount Pleasant, 12.

A bad first inning, in which the home team scored 10 runs before the visitors settled down, proved too great a handicap to the Mount Pleasant girls, and they lost a softball game to the Omemee lassies by 18 runs 12. Both teams showed need of practice but when they recovered from their poor start gave a fine exhibition. Some good catches were made by both teams, while the battery work was of a high order. The players were:

Mount Pleasant—E. Bland, ss; B. Lowes, 1b; H McLean, lf; S. Bryans, 3b; K. Sisson, c; A. Downer, p; V. McColl, 2b; G. Lough, rf; M. Hocton, cf.

Omemee—H. Johnston, p; M. Rowan, c; H. Mackey 1b; M. Thorn 2b; E. Overholt, 3b; G. Pogue, ss; I Pogue, ss; A. Clemett, lf; A. Monroe, rf.

Umpires — Clemett, Mills and Boyd.

Omemee ..... 10 3 1 2 1 0 1—18
Mt. Pleasant ... 3 4 1 0 0 0 4—12

Mount Pleasant, 14; Omemee, 6.

In a game in which both players and umpires showed a lack of practice the Mount Pleasant boys secured at hardball revenge for the defeat of their sisters at softball. Like the girls, they started off on the wrong foot and let Omemee pile up a lead of four runs, but the homesters were unable to add to their four until the last inning, and by that time the visitors had 14.

The game was featured by a number of long drives by players of both teams, and by several amusing plays. Bases were stolen with abandon, and the use of three umpires left several openings for dispute. On several plays the motto was, "Let George do it", each umpire waiting for the other to render a decision, while on others all three gave decisions, never being in perfect agreement. First baseman Corneil and pitcher Stephenson of the home team provided a similar comedy on a slow roller, both running to pick it up, and then both running to the bag to take the throw, thereby letting the batter run out a cheap hit.

The teams were:

Mount Pleasant ..... 211271x—14

The Oakwood brass band provided music all through the afternoon and in front of the Coronation Hall, where the annual concert was held, at night. Several tents were on the ground to provide for the hungry, while a small midway drew a number of people.

DE LAVAL BOYS LEFT OUT IN OPEN AIR

Campbellford Cup Tie Was Not Played—Bus Broke Down Outside Hastings.

"As usual our good luck!" exclaimed the DeLaval man when asked how the local soccer team succeeded in Campbellford.

The whole team and friends left the city in the best of spirits en route for the Trent Valley town, and made satisfactory progress until outside of Hastings. All of a sudden the company had to leave the Cooney and find new 'us to assist it to make any grade that they did meet. After a prolonged battle the clutch of the bus broke and left the soccer boys out in the open air.

Undaunted the party never lost the spirit of real sports and accepted the situation light hearted, when one and all had to foot it to Hastings. They arrived in the village with a good part of the countryside attached to their wearing apparel. But a sigh of relief came over the party as the seven o'clock train came along to convey them all back again to the city at eight o'clock in the evening. This is only one of the many thrills of "once in a lifetime."

Campbellford and DeLaval soccer teams were scheduled to play in the Phelan Charity Soccer Cup at Campbellford.

TWO GOALS SCORED AGAINST OWN TEAM

British Soccer Player Gave Belgium Two.

ANTWERP, Belgium, May 25 (Canadian Press Cable)—The English representative eleven of the Football Association defeated Belgium in an international soccer game here Monday, the score standing at five goals to three for the Britons. The game was thrilling throughout and was featured by a couple of goals scored for the Belgians by Braine of Arsenal.

First score came to England after twelve minutes of play when Osborne of the Spurs shot a fast one past the Belgian goal-keeper. The home country quickly equalized, however, through Thys. It was following the second count of the game that Braine, after an error by Reymond, playing right back for England, defeated his own goalie.

Stung by this unexpected reverse, the Englishmen set in to play in real ernest and in a few minutes Carter had equalized.

But, as if determined that England should be defeated through Blunders, Braine again put Belgium ahead when he miskicked. The ball struck the post and bounded into the net. Osborne again equalized and though the Belgians played good soccer and kept continuously on the attack they were unable to get past Ashmore.

TOMMY M'AULIFFE WON 10 MILE RACE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 25 (Canadian Press) — Tommy McAuliffe, running under the colors of the Gyro Club, Port Arthur, romped in winner of the Times-Journal road race Monday, covering the ten miles in 55 minutes 5 4-5 seconds, only fifteen seconds behind the record of 54 minutes, 50 seconds, made by Joe Keeper over the same course. McAuliffe ran easily, leading the field by about two minutes till they turned for home in Port Arthur, when he let himself out and increased his lead to over half a mile, coming up the straight-away to the finish with a fine spurt and ending fresh. P. Jacobson, Provincial Paper Company entry, winner last year was second and Charlie Horne unattached, Port Arthur third.

KINGSTON MAKES IT TWO STRAIGHT

BELLEVILLE, May 24—Belleville's new diamond in connection with the recreation parks was officially opened this afternoon when Grand Trunks and Kingston played the opening game of the Central Ontario Baseball League before about three thousand fans.

Kingston won a closely contested game in the eighth inning, when they scored the two runs that gave them the game by 4-2.

The teams were evenly matched, the C.O.L. champions of last year hitting out eight hits to the locals seven. Ouellette was on the mound for the Belleville team and gave a good account of himself, striking out eight men to Young's four.

BELLEVILLE TEAM HERE SATURDAY

First Local Central Ontario League Game of the Season.

So far as the local season is concerned, the Central Ontario League will open on Saturday, when Peterboro's old rivals, the Belleville crew, with Jack Oulette on the firing line, will clash with the Petes at the James Stevenson Park. Manager Johnston's team will be in much better shape than against Kingston last Saturday, yesterday's games against the Moose giving the team some much needed work and they should be fit and ready for Saturday's clash.

The three games played so far shows that the Petes' pilot has nothing to worry about in his pitching staff. Jeff Hardill, "Lefty" Lennox and "Al" Heckman have each turned in a rattling good card. The outfield is strong, and Manager Johnston's problem is to steady up his infield and get the inner guard working smoothly. When that is accomplished the Petes will be a mighty tough crew to turn back.

Saturday's game should attract a big crown of fans, as the Belleville team are a colorful aggregation, and their clashes with the Petes have always been full of fireworks.

PEOPLE ARE ALL TALKING ABOUT IT

"My experience as a salesman has taught me what people think but personal experience qualifies me to speak about another matter. For years I suffered with a chronic case of indigestion and constipation. The gas on my stomach was something terrible. I did not have any appetite and could not sleep. I heard however, so many people talking about what HERB JUICE had done for them I decided to try it and I can never be too thankful for what it did for me. After taking only two bottles I felt like a different person. I could sleep the night through and was not bothered with constipation or indigestion. The gas on my stomach has entirely gone away. The relief has been permanent. I want everyone to know what it has done for me and wish to recommend it to all. I am so enthusiastic over HERB JUICE it gives me pleasure to give this statement."

MONTREAL, Que., May 25. Canadian Press. — Hilaire Thibault, 50, and Paul Aubertin, 50, were drowned Saturday night when the automobile in which they were driving, plunged off a wharf at Lachine. Both bodies and the car were recovered.

The police were informed that Thibault was driving Aubertin home and that the driver lost control of the vehicle which left the road and went down on the wharf before the chauffeur could stop, the auto had slipped into the river and the men had no chance to escape.

after three Radox footbaths

The great value of Radox for removing corns bodily is not only that Radox enables the corn to be lifted out root and all, but also that the treatment is absolutely painless, no cutting, no caustics, no bulging plasters, no risk whatever of blood poisoning—just a footbath in hot antiseptic, oxygenated water and the corn may be lifted out. Read this letter.

"I had five corns (not callouses) on each foot, and after using Radox Bath Salts as directed for three nights in succession, I was able to walk in perfect comfort. I managed to get the last of my corns right out after the third bath in Radox. Have still got some of the first packet. Can honestly say I had spent dollars on different 'patents' but nothing but Radox had the desired effect."

When you put your feet in a footbath containing Radox, the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn and the dead skin (of the corn) combines with the Radox Bath Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This dissolves in the water and so loosens the corn that it can be lifted out bodily.

We know of no other salt that will do the work of Radox in removing corns.

THEATRE

"CHIP OF THE FLYING U."

Opening yesterday for a two days' run which finishes this evening, the Hoot Gibson picture at the Capitol Theatre is one of the best in which the ingenuous, round-faced young hero with the wide-brimmed hat and the tight white shirt, has appeared for some time. It is just a little different from the usual run of Western films, in that it doesn't feature any spectacular rides or lurid situations. It is really a comedy and a very good one. The opening scene, in which a lynching party appears to be in pursuit of the unfortunate hero, who later appears in an entirely different role, sets the keynote for the entire production, in which there are plenty of laughs. The funny element centres about characterizations of people that have become famous in the B. M. Bower stories of Western life. The way in which the cowboys react to the presence in their midst of a handsome little lady doctor from the East, the manner in which "Weary," one of the group, makes love to the woman of his choice, and the very entertaining acting of "Hoot" himself, in the role of Chip Bennett, of the "Flying U" ranch, all combine in an extremely amusing picture.—Jeanette.

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE." SHOWS HAROLD LLOYD AT HIS MERRY BEST

As a Wealthy Missionary, Bespectacled Comedian Has Lively Time in Story Studded With Gags and Thrills.

Flashing on the heels of his college comedy classic, "The Freshman," comes another hilarious Harold Lloyd triumph, bearing the somewhat startling though quite appropriate title of "For Heaven's Sake!"

The irrepressible and bespectacled comedian is a millionaire clubman in this, his initial Paramount release, who starts out to uplift the hard-boiled denizens in the slum section of his city, and succeeds in stirring up no end of excitement, fun galore, thrills aplenty and a choice assortment of long, loud, lingering laughs.

A Perfectly Balanced Production

"Picturegoers, who have come to expect certain things in Lloyd productions, will find them in overflowing measure in "For Heaven's Sake!" There is an abundance of sentiment and pathos that give the story an appealing flavor and serve to emphasize the funny gags and sparkling foolery. And threading its way through the comic complications is a romance as clean and sweet as a fresh Spring morning.

As in 'The Freshman," there is a worth-while idea underlying the rollicking humor—in this instance, the wholesome thought that happiness is to be found in helping others. Harold's rib-tickling trials and tribulations arise from the fact that the toughs and gangsters resent his missionary efforts. The methods he uses in winning them over are as ingenious as they are mirth-provoking.

Harold Gives a Capital Performance

The role is one literally made to order for Lloyd, and he plays it with a carefree zest and a chipper self-confidence that is quite convincing and altogether delightful. Jobyna Ralston, whose demure charm and winsome loveliness was such an asset to "The Freshman," is again his leading lady. The others in the large and capable supporting cast include such experienced players as Noah Young, James Mason and Paul Wiegel.

Credit is due John Grey, Ted Wilde and Clyde Bruckman for the sprightly plot, and Sam Taylor deserves a goodly measure of applause for his deft and intelligent direction. The picture has been generously embroidered with a wealth of local color, and the slum atmosphere, around which most of the action centres, has been reproduced with a fidelity and realism that is truly amazing.

All in all, "For Heaven's Sake!" stands out as a genuine Lloyd achievement—another comedy gem from the comedy genius!

"For Heaven's Sake," is the attraction at the Capitol for the last four days of this week.

AT THE REGENT

PATHOS AND IRISH WIT MIX NICELY IN "SHAMROCK HANDICAP"

"The Shamrock Handicap," which is now showing at the Regent Theatre is another of Fox Films' irresistible combinations of Irish wit and pathos, which includes the combined efforts of John Ford and J. Farrell MacDonald. Ford directed and MacDonald played the role of Casey in "The Iron Horse" and the result was a masterpiece of photoplay comedy which is duplicated in this Peter B. Kyne story.

Leslie Fenton, who played Douglas Keith in "Sandy", and Janet Gaynor, who was Anna Burger, the heroine of the "Johnston Flood," have the leading roles, and others among the cast are Willard Louis, Georgie Harris, Claire McDowell, Brandon Hurst, Andy Clark, Louis Payne, Thomas Delmar and Ely Reynolds.

"The Shamrock Handicap" is Kyne's dramatic story of a heroic Irish jockey and a famous Irish steeplechaser transplanted to an American track. Fenton plays Neil Ross, the jockey, who is injured in a race so badly that he is not expected to walk again. Miss Gaynor has the role of Lady Sheila Gaffney who owns the jumper and J. Farrell Mac Donald is the trainer. Miss McDowell is his wife.

Lady Sheila, her father, the trainer and his wife, arrive with the famous jumper, to find Ross in a wheel chair. They had expected Ross to provide funds until the horse had made a winning and they are broke, which opens the way for a lot of John Ford's best comedy.

The race is not the only high spot in the picture. Ross and "Chesty" Morgan, Clarks role have a knock out fight in the early scenes, which adds to the swift action of the story.

JOCK HUTCHISON—CORRECTING SLICE.

The best and surest way to avoid slicing is to learn how it is accomplished by the expert. I advised one of my pupils to do this once, and it put the matter to him in such a clear light that he never forgot it. I asked him to slice a ball for me intentionally. Mind you, he had been doing this very thing day in and day out. He stood on the tee, bewildered for a moment, then shifted his stance and grip to something entirely different from what he had ever tried. Much to his surprise, the ball flew as straight as an arrow.

I showed him where he was in error. He tried again, and this time he took his natural stance, and, with his regular way of hitting the ball, he sliced as prettily as one could wish to do.

I explained to him that he had learned the secret quite easily, but he insisted that this was the way he always stood and the way he always played. And this, I added, is why you always slice.

It was easy to convince him then that he had been in the dark for a long time. Any good teacher could have set him right in a few minutes.

SECRETS OF STARS ON INSIDE BASEBALL

as told to BILLY EVANS

By RAY SCHALK.

I am of the opinion that catchers have a style of their own more than any other player on the ball field.

For that reason it is most difficult to intelligently tell how to best do the receiving. Good catchers must have individuality, and assert it in their handling of pitchers and trying to outguess the strategy of the opposition.

While every ball club has its manager and captain, the catcher in a sense is the general. He is in command of the situation more definitely than any other man on the field or bench.

The catcher has the field in front of him. He has a perfect vision of where each player is stationed. It is up to him to rearrange his defense any time he believes some player is out of position.

Often the moving of some outfielder a few feet to his right or left, after taking into consideration the strength of the batsman and the style ball that has been signaled for, makes all the difference in the world in the chances of properly executing the play.

The placing of the fielders and the best style ball to pitch is determined by the batter's weakness.

Star outfielders know the strength and weakness of every batter just about as well as the catcher. However, they are not always familiar with what ball is to be pitched and a wave of the hand to the fielder to move either to the right or left a trifle usually acquaints him with this knowledge.

Then there are in baseball certain outfielder inclined to play every batter from the same position. It is up to the catcher to see that these fielders shift to meet the various conditions that constantly arise.

Keeping tab on the defensive position of the players is a most important task the every catcher must master.

BIG CROWD AT THE RENDEZVOUS

Many Holiday Makers Visit the Chemong Pavilion.

One of the popular places with holiday-makers yesterday was the Rendezvous Pavilion at Chemong, which has just been opened for the season under the personal management of its new proprietors, Messrs. Harry Forler and A. C. Kimmel. Many people visited the Rendezvous during the day, and the attendance at the dance at night was about the largest in the Pavilion's history. The new decorations were greatly admired, and Ken Blood and his music provided just the desired musical setting. Messrs. Forler and Kimmel have made a number of improvements in the Pavilion, and the season that has just opened promises to be a most successful one.

When you get that tired, lay-me-down-and-die feeling take 15 to 30 drops of Seigel's Syrup in a glass of water. Does the trick and safely. You'll feel like new.

PETES BATTED .500 YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

In yesterday's afternoon game against the Moose, the Petes had a team batting average of .500, which is a most unusual performance. Out of 54 legal times at bat, the Petes collected 27 safe hits. Had the game been played on the new Kingston grounds the home run count would have totalled at least half a dozen.

WHITEHOUSE WINS FIRST PRO. GAME

Local Southpaw Pitches Grand Rapids To Victory Over Muskegon.

Frank Whitehouse, the Peterboro southpaw, who was "farmed out" by the Rochester International League Club to Grand Rapids, recently has made good in his first start as a professional pitcher. Working for Grand Rapids against Muskegon, he won his game, 11 to 6. Whitehouse was unusually wild, but he held Muskegon to six hits and bagged two safeties himself.

AUZZIES AT BAT.

190 More Runs Than Oxford Team.

OXFORD, England, May 25 (Canadian Press Cable).—The second day's play in the encounter between the touring Australia cricketers and Oxford University Monday attracted a crowd of 8,000 who were treated to a delightful exhibition in an atmosphere of mid-summer. The Dark Blues gave a heroic demonstration of gameness, a battle against fearful odds, for before the Australians had wound up their first innings they had bettered the Oxonians' initial tour at bat by 190 runs.

Although half a dozen countries are usually represented in the annual European international cross-country race, the event has never been won by any runners other than those of England or France. Of the 19 races held to date England has won 16 and France 3.

WALKS OF CITY MAIL CARRIERS ARE OF A VERY VARIED NATURE

Some Walk Miles With Few Letters To Deliver En Route.

OTHERS CARRY MANY.

Shortest Walk Is Only Seven-Eights of a Mile—Long-

ELEVEN times a week, rain or shine, howling blizzard or balmy zephyr, with slushy walks or good footing, he passes your door, for His Majesty's Mail must be delivered, and weather cannot be allowed to interfere with the postman's regular trips.

The handling of the mail, from the time it leaves the writer, until the mailman slips it into the letter slot at the recipient's home, is a somewhat mysterious procedure, and not the least important cog in the machinery is the postman. His duties comprise far more than the ordinary citizen would imagine and he is not considered really efficient until he has covered his route regularly for a year. He should by that time, know every man and woman and most of the children on his walk.

There are seventeen regular routes, or "walks," in the city, and, although they are all about equal in work, they vary very much in length of walk and amount of mail carried. Walk 13 is the longest in actual mileage. This carrier covers the northern half of Ashburnham and walks seven and three quarter miles twice a day. There are 330 houses and stores, etc., to which he may deliver mail. Another long route is 14, in the southern half of East City. Once a day the carrier on this route walks to Downet's corners, and he covers a total of six and a half miles in his beat. He has 325 possible calls.

In striking contrast to these beats are routes seven and eight, seven-eighths and one, and one eighth miles long, respectively. These are in the centre of the city, however, covering George, Hunter, Brock, Simcoe, Charlotte, and Aylmer streets, and the lengths given do not take into account all the stairways that are climbed on the day's trips. These men have 322 and 305 calls, but they are business houses which receive large bundles of mail, and three trips have to be made every day.

From the point of calls, route 16 leads with 395. This covers the district between the River and Water street and between Simcoe and Smith streets, and the carrier walks three and a half miles on this trip. Route one comes next, with 390 calls and three and seven-eighths miles of tramping in the district between Chamberlain and Sherbrooke streets, west of Rubidge street.

The smallest number of calls is found on walk 12, with 265. This is a long walk, slightly over five miles, and covers all the territory from the Normal School and Inverlea Park to the Isolation hospital.

Every few months, Senior Carrier Charles Stenton, a veteran of nineteen years service, goes over the walks with the men and rearranges them. The conditions have changed since Mr. Stenton started out as one of the original seven postmen who started the delivery service in Peterborough. The number of walks has been more than doubled, and wagons have been provided to carry all the larger parcels. In the early days each postman had to carry two bags and a bundle.

The veteran of the men on the walks is Jack Grisdale, who has been in the service for eighteen years. Other men have been on the job for long periods, although none of them approach the terms of the two seniors.

WITNESS TELLS OF SMUGGLING

J. G. Gauthier Admits That He Smuggled Goods.

DESTROYED PAPERS.

OTTAWA, May 25.—(Canadian Press.)—J. G. Gauthier, of the R. and G. Company, Rock Island, Quebec, confessed to smuggling and also to the destruction of documents required by the Customs Inquiry Committee this morning. For several days the committee has been trying to find out from Gauthier where certain books and documents of his firm were to be found. These books and papers are required by the auditors of the committee who wish to find out certain facts in connection with the business of the R. and G. Company. Until to-day little progress had been made, but this morning, under close and continued examination by different members of the committee, Gauthier confessed that he was a smuggler, described how he brought the goods into Canada and agreed to assist auditors.

His partner, H. G. Duncalf, also admitted that he knew that Gauthier was engaged in smuggling for the firm.

Gauthier gave the committee the names of several manufacturing companies located in the United States from which he bought goods which were afterwards smuggled into Canada.

Apparently the witness had little trouble in evading the Dominion customs officials. He said that he conducted his smuggling in daylight, that he sometimes drove in via the main street of Rock Island, that he passed the customs officials, and that he had no trouble. He declared that he had never bribed customs officials to pass goods.

Hon. H. H. Stevens produced cheques to a total of over $600, signed by the R. and G. Company and payable to one Paquette, a customs officer at Rock Island. Gauthier insisted, however, that these were issued in payment of insurance premiums and agreed to produce the policies.

AROUND THE CITY.

The fire department was called to one chimney fire yesterday at 444 Driscoll Terrace. No damage was done.

The government employment bureau reports for the week ending May 23rd, placements 26, new applicants 31 and number on the list 95. There are still plenty of farm openings but the blame is not all on the labor side for these positions not being filled, as the wages offered by some farmers is not attractive.

Hudson, 405 Carlton Stret, Toronto, in his eighty-seventh year. A graduate of Victoria College, then at Cobourg, he was ordained about sixty years ago, and had since held pastorates at Cobourg, Newcastle, Brighton, Tweed, Warkworth and Omemee. It was an interesting coincidence that his only son, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, and deceased were both President of the Bay of Quinte Conference when pastor of Brighton.

VOL. LVII., No. 122 PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1926 PRICE THREE CENTS

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS MAY MEET ENTIRE INTEREST CHARGES THIS YEAR, DUNNING PREDICTS ON THE IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN FIRST FOUR MONTHS

Operating Net Earnings For Last Four Months $9,689,217 as Compared With $3,774,782 For Same Period Last Year.

ANNUAL BUDGET OF C. N. R. REVIEWED.

Capitalization of the System Should Be Revised, Says Minister—Conservative Declares $250,000,000 Unaccounted For.

OTTAWA, May 25 (Canadian Press).—"We hear various proposals from time to time intended to relieve our railway ills. My own view is that the solution of the problem must be found along the line of greater density of traffic." Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, thus summed up the railway situation in his annual statement to the House of Commons Monday. Greater density of population, Mr. Dunning urged, would provide greater density of traffic where most needed.

Points from the statement were:

1.—Given reasonably good harvest and freedom from traffic losses due to Labor difficulties, this year may see the National Railways meeting entire interest charges due the public.

2.—Operating net for first four months of 1926 shows improvement of $5,914,485 over first four months of 1925.

3.—Budget amount required for fiscal year 1926-27, is $31,000,000. Gross capital expenditure proposed is $19,127,284, including Central Vermont. The later figure is reduced to $15,727,284 by retirements recoverable through operating account.

4.—Definite proposals expected during current year for placing of company's finances upon sound and permanent basis. Object sought is "a capital structure reasonably commensurate with the earning prospects of the company."

"What is desired," added Mr. Dunning, "is a capital structure that will simplify financial and accounting practice, with consequent saving of expenditures, and which will also ease the burden imposed on the Canadian National System by inheritance from private ownership.

Inherited Heavy Debt

It may well be questioned whether it is humanly possible for any railway management to make good the frantic borrowings which overwhelmed the former owners." Later, however, Mr. Dunning said: "We must not forget that when we come to the consideration of railway rates and capitalization, that there is relationship one with the other. Call it what you may, there would be no object in writing down, or writing off, or suspending obligations due the Government if, at the same time, we force upon the railways an uneconomic structure that so far as the Canadian National is concerned, would result in the piling up of fresh charges of Government account, later to be similarly written off."

Cannot Pay Full Carrying Charges.

"What is desired is a capital structure which will simplify financial and accounting practice, with consequent saving of expenditures, and which also will ease the burden imposed upon the Canadian National system by inheritance from private ownership. It may well be questioned whether it is humanly possible for any railway management to make good the frantic borrowings which overwhelmed the former owners. The former prime minister, after considerable experience with the problem, had this to say last year in the course of his annual statement:

"'Underpresent conditions — and I do not want any person to be disturbed about this—with all this mass of intricacies that nobody has been able to unravel the Canadian National Railways cannot under any management pay carrying charges if we take into account the amounts advanced by the government. The people of Canada could not stand the rates which would be sufficiently high to carry all this under our present arrangement.'

"The object sought by the present examination is a capital structure reasonably commensurate with the earning prospects of the property."

Reason for Confidence

"I have spoken with a certain optimism and a degree of confidence which I would like the house to share. With me it is not merely a case of the wish being father to the thought. I have been able to secure the operating results of the Canadian National lines for the first four months of the present year. They indicate net earnings of $9,689,217, as compared with $3,774,782, for the same period last year, an increase of $5,914,435. It is on this outlook that I base the confidence that I would have you share. Our railways are excellent barometers so far as business is concerned. They reflect, in accurate measure, the trade and commerce of the country.

Earnings Up, Costs Cut

"Last year's operating results were so far in advance of previous years that I feel that my first duty should be the altogether happy one of congratulating the chairman and president, the board, the responsible officers and the rank and file of the National Railways on the results achieved. The figures indicae roughly that while two-thirds of the year's improvement of fifteen millions in net earnings was the result of increased business due to a good harvest and improving trade, one-third was due to decreased costs of operation. And Sir Henry Thornton affirms that this improvement was accompanied by no deterioration in service or unfair treatment of employees.

"It is now six years since the government became responsible for Grand Trunk financing and while the re-organization and consolidation of the National System did not take place until late in 1922, we have a six year background from which to judge of the progress made by the railways towards recovery from the difficulties which proved too much for private ownership. There are a number of ways in which progress may be noted. It is four years now since there has been operating deficit. In 1920 the operating deficit was $34,000,000. In 1925, there was an operating surplus of $32,000,000. The extreme swing between the operating dificit of 1920 and the operating surplus of 1925 was $66,000,000, or an average improvement, over the period, of eleven millions a year.

"A very hopeful feature also of our railway situation is the fact that the annual increase in operating earnings in recent years has been greatly in excess of the annual increase in fixed charges. While, as stated, the total of the annual increase in fixed charges over that period was but $26,000,000, or $40,000,000 less.

Saved $40,000,000

"A year ago parliament was asked to provide $50,000,000, to meet expenditures made and indebtedness incurred by National Railways during 1925-26. At that time the immediate outlook for the railways was not very bright. It transpired, however, that of the fifty millions voted

Villages Appeal Against Making Cheese On Sunday

KINGSTON, May 26. Canadian Press. — The Lord's Day Alliance has been appealed to to prevent the making of cheese in the Kingston and Brockville district during the summer months on Sunday.

It appears that many of the farmers are not in a position to preserve their milk from Saturday till Monday, and in some of the cheese factories they have not the equipment for handling such a large amount. Quite a number of the factories have operating seven days per week. This is not the desire of the cheese makers but they have been compelled to do so to save their milk. The people in the small villages where the factories are located, are quite agitated over cheese making on Sunday and are appealing to the Alliance for its prevention.

"We shall also have light hydroplanes with flexible wings, which will be carried on the sleds.

INTERIM REPORT TO COMMITTEE INTIMATES POSSIBLE LOSS OF MILLION DOLLARS TO TREASURY

Auditors Tell of Liquor Shipments on Which No Excise Paid.

SALE IRREGULAR.

Some Consigned To Miquelon Went on Steamer Sailing To Detroit.

OTTAWA, May 26 (Canadian Press) — The possibility that the Canadian treasury has been defrauded of more than a million dollars through the non-payment of excise on liquor, is raised in an interim report submitted to the customs committee this morning by its auditors. The report signed by Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, deals exhaustively with liquor transactions carried on over a period of seven years by the George Companies in Canada. These comprise a number of companies, of which the shareholders are practically the same and the auditors find that their books and records are incomplete, mutilated and recopied until "they do not reflect the complete transactions of the company."

Liquor sales totalling $7,622,000 have been reviewed by the auditors. Their report draws particular attention to the sale by the Dominion Distillery Products Company Limited of 82,989 proof gallons of denatured spirits which was designed for export but was shipped to a company in Canada. Alcohol, denatured under the Canadian process, is forbidden entry into the United States because it is said to be easily rendered potable.

Sale Irregular

Commenting that the sale of this alcohol "had been most irregular" the auditors add: "If the spirits were sold in Canada for beverage purposes there would appear to be no doubt that the excise duty should be collected." At nine dollars a gallon the excise on this quantity of liquor would amount to $769,396.

In another place the report recalls the investigation into the voyage of the "Frank H" which brought a cargo of liquor from St. Pierre, Miquelon, to Canada for export via Vancouver to Yokohama, Japan. It was insured only as far as Walkerville, Ontario, and the consignee in Yokohama, G. Harbert, bears the same name as a shipper for the Dominion Distilleries.

"The importance of these facts is that if the liquor included in these return shipments is dutiable, the amount of excise duty at nine dollars per gallon would be approximately $235,000." "We have not seen any record of duty being paid on these shipments, the auditors state. This consignment was handled by the W. George Company.

Dealing with the method of handling the huge quantities of liquor which this company shipped from Walkerville, Ont., presumably for export via an Atlantic port, the auditors find that the shipping records conflict. While half a million dollars' worth actually is traced to the Atlantic, a number of shipments of which the total value of $2,153,165 are billed to St. Pierre, Miquelon, but shown on the export entry as going forward on the boat "Killarney." This boat plies between Walkerville and Detroit.

Appeal Made For Money To Help Miners' Families

In an appeal cabled abroad the committee said $2,000,000 was urgently needed, chiefly for food and milk to relieve what was described as the terrible plight of wives and children of the locked out miners.

Ownership Of North Pole Subject Of Court Decision American Firm Wishes To Enter Films Free Of Duty

NEW YORK, May 26 (United Press). — The first official ruling as to who owns the North Pole may result from a $12 tariff charge on some photographic films.

Pathe News, producer of a new reel, has announced that it is shipping to this country pictures taken by Commander Richard E. Byrd at the North Pole. It has applied for admission of the films duty free on the ground that they were made on American soil—the North Pole. The company maintains two Americans—Peary and Byrd—have been the first to go to the Pole and that it is American.

The duty amounts to only $12, but the company has indicated that it will be glad to test the matter in the courts merely to see a ruling made.

DRAYTON ASKS IF DEPARTMENT IS STILL NEEDED

Suggest That Railways and Canals Staff Might Be Cut.

ON ESTIMATES.

Not Running Railways Now, He Says—Dunning Says Officials Kept Busy.

OTTAWA, May 26 (Canadian Press).—"Does the minister know of any reason why the Department of Railways and Canals should not be wiped out now?" asked Sir Henry Drayton (Conservative, York West) when an estimate of $260,155 for salaries and contingencies in that Department was under consideration in the committee on supply last night.

"I can only say I am finding plenty to do and I am reasonably sure that the officials of the department are in the same position," replied Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals.

Sir Henry stated that there had been the idea that when the department did not have to run the railways, as large a staff as formerly would not be required.

Merchandise Estimated at $180,000 Damaged

WINNIPEG, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Starting on the third floor of a four-storey brick warehouse building on Bannatyne Avenue, in the centre of the wholesale district, fire early today caused loss estimated at $150,000.

Stocks of A. Bright and Co., wholesale crockery, and of W. L. Mackenzie, commission merchant, valued at $180,000 suffered heaviest losses. Fire was of an unknown origin and spread quickly, flames shooting from windows.

On the first and second floors, smoke and water caused great havoc.

Five Points Listed By Spanish Newspapers As Proof That Columbus Was Spaniard: A Reward For Final Proof

MADRID, May 26 (United News).—The newspaper A.B.C. which has long been carrying on a campaign to convince the world that Christopher Columbus was a Spaniard, offers a reward of $50,000 to any person who can prove to the satisfaction of all critics that the newspaper's contention regarding the discoverer's nationality is correct.

Along with the offer, the newspaper lists the following points to back up its claim that Columbus was a Spaniard.

1.—He always spoke Spanish.

3.—He gave only Spanish names to lands he discovered.

4.—He could not speak Italian.

HUNGARY COMPLAINS IN NOTE THAT NEIGHBORS ARE ARMING WHILE SHE IS KEPT DISARMED

Says Feverish Reinforcing Contains Germs on New Wars.

ASKS TREATY CHANGE.

League Commission Refers Note To Sub Committee and Adjourns.

GENEVA, May 26 (Canadian Press).—The feverish reinforcing of armaments by most of the European countries which contain the germs of new wars was alleged today by Hungary in a memorandum presented to the preparatory disarmament commission.

Hungary also complained with bitterness that, practically disarmed herself, she is surrounded by a group of allied countries possessing vastly superior military forces.

By this memorandum, Hungary has placed herself at the side of Germany which through Count von Bernstorff already has protested that Germans have been disarmed while their neighbors are permitted powerful military forces.

The memorandum further demanded abrogation of the treaty regulations whereby Hungary's army was restricted to 25,000 men.

Representatives of the Little Entente immediately protested the tenor of the Hungarian document. They declared it was virtually a petition for a revision of the treaty of Trianon, which they contended had no place in the deliberations of the disarmament commission.

Great Britain and France supported this view. There could be no question, they said, of modifying treaties and on this understanding the Hungarian memorandum was referred to a sub-committee for examination of its technical suggestions.

After adopting the report of the drafting committee the commission adjourned to an unfixed date. Meanwhile a sub-committee of experts will tackle numerous problems on which their advice has been sought. The commission will be convoked when the work of the sub-committee is completed. This may require some months.

WROTE OF STRIKE.

LONDON, May 26.— (Canadian Press.)— The Daily Express, Lord Beaverbrook's paper, dealing with the quarrel between the Liberal leaders, Lord Oxford and Asquith and David Lloyd George, over the latter's attitude during the general strike, says it considers that now that Lord Oxford has publicly censured his chief lieutenant the only course for the lieutenant to take is to tender his resignation.

"There can be no question," the Express says, "that Lloyd George's articles in the American press are responsible for the revulsion of feeling against him, even amongst his intimate supporters."

ASQUITH LETTER TO LLOYD GEORGE

Criticism Over Attitude During General Strke.

LONDON, May 26 (Canadian Press).—The newspapers today publish correspondence of an unusual kind between the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, who was premier from 1908 to 1916, and David Lloyd George, premier from 1916 to 1922. The correspondence arises out of Lloyd George's attitude in the recent general strike.

Addressing Lloyd George, Lord Oxford says: "I should not be doing my duty as leader of the Liberal party if I did not convey to you my regret at the course you have pursued in the greatest domestic crisis the country has had to confront in your time or mine."

Then, after a long explanation in justification of the policy adopted by himself, Viscount Grey and Sir John Simon, other prominent Liberals, toward the strike, Lord Oxford alludes to Lloyd George's refusal to attend the meeting of the Liberal leaders on May 10 to discuss the policy of the party with relation to the strike.

"I regard this as a grave matter," the letter continues. "We had reached a most critical moment of the strike, when it was the primary duty of all responsible for the Liberal policy, and certainly of the chairman of the parliamentary party in the House of Commons (Lloyd George) to meet together for full and free discussion. Your refusal to do so I find impossible to reconcile with my conception of the obligations of political comradeship."

Lord Oxford then proceeds to complain about Lloyd George's article to the American press, concerning which he writes:

"I cannot but deplore that such a presentation of the case should have been offered to the outside world on the authority of an ex-prime minister of Great Britain and a chairman of the Liberal parliamentary party. It gives me no real pleasure to have to write this letter, as you well know; it is not dictated by personal feelings."

Mr. Lloyd George sent a brief reply immediately, saying:

"Appreciate fully the gravity of the unprecedented letter you have written me and as my decision must affect seriously the fortunes of our party and add to its distractions, I propose to take two or three days to consider and consult before I reply."

Accordingly three days later, Mr. Lloyd George sent Lord Oxford a very long reply, going into much detail, as justification for his attitude. This lengthy communication was intended for the cars of Liberals at home. His argument is that nobody at an important Liberal council held when the general strike was imminent had sugested that the unconditional surrender of striker should precede the resumption of negotiations, and he contends that he never deviated from this position.

WOMAN INJURED.

OTTAWA, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. John Ladds of Kingston, Ont., is in hospital here suffering from a fractured collarbone and minor injuries following a collision between an automobile in which she was riding and a motor truck. She was in the city visiting relatives.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL IS TEACHER OF DEAF

Miss Nelle Y. MacDonald Lived Here For Several Years.

On the Woman's Page of the Examiner of Thursday last appeared a cut of two "Modern Miracle Workers," as they are styled, Miss Nelle Y. MacDonald and Miss Mary Gillanders, who conduct classes for deaf and dumb children at the Clinton Street School, Toronto. Miss MacDonald lived in Peterboro when a little girl and had many friends here. She acted as bridesmaid for one of these friends, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund, at the time of her marriage to Mr. Stanley J. Richardson.

At the Clinton Street School these two young ladies have 22 small pupils, the youngest four years of age and the eldest fourteen, all deaf and dumb, who are being taught to speak quite distinctly by means of careful tuition, and to hear, in a sense, or at least to apprehend, the meaning of other's words by the lip-reading method.

The children are taught objectively, by means of pictures of birds, beasts, ships and motor cars, with the names attached. They are given voice-building, exercises by lining them up behind a piano, their hands on its frame-work, thus getting the sound vibrations as the teacher plays. They become acquainted with the words and the rhythm, and can sing several songs correctly.

An interesting part of their performance for a visitor is the way in which they shield their own mouths when competing with their comrades in giving the right answer to a question. They cover their mouths with their hands so that their companions cannot lip-read their sentences. A normal deaf child, it is said, can lip-read from 50 to 100 nouns and about 30 commands in the first year, but two exceptionally bright children learned last year to speak, lip-read, spell and read 200 nouns and adjectives and 50 commands.

The deaf child, of course, has no vocabulary except what he learns word by word. It is a long and painful process for him to learn concretely every noun, adjective, verb and preposition that he needs.

ASQUITH LETTER TO LLOYD GEORGE

Criticism Over Attitude During General Strke.

LONDON, May 26 (Canadian Press).—The newspapers today publish correspondence of an unusual kind between the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, who was premier from 1908 to 1916, and David Lloyd George, premier from 1916 to 1922. The correspondence arises out of Lloyd George's attitude in the recent general strike.

Addressing Lloyd George, Lord Oxford says: "I should not be doing my duty as leader of the Liberal party if I did not convey to you my regret at the course you have pursued in the greatest domestic crisis the country has had to confront in your time or mine."

Then, after a long explanation in justification of the policy adopted by himself, Viscount Grey and Sir John Simon, other prominent Liberals, toward the strike, Lord Oxford alludes to Lloyd George's refusal to attend the meeting of the Liberal leaders on May 10 to discuss the policy of the party with relation to the strike.

"I regard this as a grave matter," the letter continues. "We had reached a most critical moment of the strike, when it was the primary duty of all responsible for the Liberal policy, and certainly of the chairman of the parliamentary party in the House of Commons (Lloyd George) to meet together for full and free discussion. Your refusal to do so I find impossible to reconcile with my conception of the obligations of political comradeship."

Lord Oxford then proceeds to complain about Lloyd George's article to the American press, concerning which he writes:

"I cannot but deplore that such a presentation of the case should have been offered to the outside world on the authority of an ex-prime minister of Great Britain and a chairman of the Liberal parliamentary party. It gives me no real pleasure to have to write this letter, as you well know; it is not dictated by personal feelings."

Mr. Lloyd George sent a brief reply immediately, saying:

"Appreciate fully the gravity of the unprecedented letter you have written me and as my decision must affect seriously the fortunes of our party and add to its distractions, I propose to take two or three days to consider and consult before I reply."

Accordingly three days later, Mr. Lloyd George sent Lord Oxford a very long reply, going into much detail, as justification for his attitude. This lengthy communication was intended for the ears of Liberals at home. His argument is that nobody at an important Liberal council held when the general strike was imminent had sugested that the unconditional surrender of, striker should precede the resumption of negotiations, and he contends that he never deviated from this position.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL IS TEACHER OF DEAF

On the Woman's Page of the Examiner of Thursday last appeared a cut of two "Modern Miracle Workers," as they are styled, Miss Nelle Y. MacDonald and Miss Mary Gillanders, who conduct classes for deaf and dumb children at the Clinton Street School, Toronto. Miss MacDonald lived in Peterboro when a little girl and had many friends here. She acted as bridesmaid for one of these friends, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund, at the time of her marriage to Mr. Stanley J. Richardson.

At the Clinton Street School these two young ladies have 22 small pupils, the youngest four years of age and the eldest fourteen, all deaf and dumb, who are being taught to speak quite distinctly by means of careful tuition, and to hear, in a sense, or at least to apprehend, the meaning of other's words by the lip-reading method.

The children are taught objectively, by means of pictures of birds, beasts, ships and motor cars, with the names attached. They are given voice-building, exercises by lining them up behind a piano, their hands on its frame-work, thus getting the sound vibrations as the teacher plays. They become acquainted with the words and the rhythm, and can sing several songs correctly.

An interesting part of their performance for a visitor is the way in which they shield their own mouths when competing with their comrades in giving the right answer to a question. They cover their mouths with their hands so that their companions cannot lip-read their sentences. A normal deaf child, it is said, can lip-read from 50 to 100 nouns and about 30 commands in the first year, but two exceptionally bright children learned last year to speak, lip-read, spell and read 200 nouns and adjectives and 50 commands.

The deaf child, of course, has no vocabulary except what he learns word by word. It is a long and painful process for him to learn concretely every noun, adjective, verb and preposition that he needs.

Deputy Returning Officer Must Serve Sentence For Fraudulent Practice.

POTATO PRICE IS WEAKENING

$3.50 PAID RECENTLY.

GRAFTON, May 26.—Although a dealer paid $3.50 a bag to farmers for potatoes for shipping from this depot in quantities a short time ago, $3.50 is about the top price at the present time, and those who have spuds to spare think this very weak. There are some who contend that the farmers have held their potatoes too long. The new potatoes are now in at the town stores, and the price is so little more than it is for the old ones, there is a tendency to buy the imported spuds, hence the demand for the Canadian grown article is not quite as strong.

WORK ON FARMS WELL ADVANCED

Most People Around Burnbrae Are Nearly Finished Seeding.

PASTURE IS POOR.

BURNBRAE, May 26.— Farm work progressed rapidly last week in spite of showery weather and the holiday and most farmers neared completion of their spring cropping. Indeed some are already finished while others, in fact nearly everyone, will finish this week. It has always been the aim of local farmers to be through seeding by the 24th and although this season started late, the last two weeks, with good drying weather and yet cool for horses, have been very favorable for rapid work, so that the finish of the spring work is not much later than usual.

The cool weather continues to make conditions backward for the grass and clover crops. Old stands of alfalfa in many sections received a severe set-back in April from frost and will be quite thin, in fact many fields will be ploughed up this fall. New alfalfa seeding is doing wondefully well and should give a good crop if the weather turns warm during the first half of June. Timothy and other clovers are slow owing to the cold also. Although several herds of cows are on the pasture, there is practically nothing for them as the old grass in low land is not growing and sweet clover, the usually heavy forage crop is very backward. Farmers with a fair supply of feed are well advised to keep their dairy cows in the farm until the first of June.

For the first time in years wheat has grown better on the real low land than on high ground. A high south slope has usually given a good crop of fall wheat but this April's frosts touched the high ground while the lower fields were covered with snow, with the result that some fine stands are seen on quite low fields. A number of farmers have cultivated barley into the thin spots of their wheat fields to thicken the stand.

CHURCH CONDEMNS MILITARY TRAINING

Hamilton Conference of United Church Passes Motion Unanimously.

HAMILTON, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Discussing a resolution against military training which he introduced at the holiday session of the Hamilton Conference of the United Church, Rev. M. E. Conron, Hamilton, declared that military training trained men to be obedient to brass buttons and tin hats, but not to great ideals of the country. His motion, seconded by J. M. Denyes, passed unanimously, and the Hamilton conference urges upon the General Council of the United Church to demilitarize all training.

OBITUARY.

MRS. L. McGRATH.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26.—Friends were shocked to hear of the sudden death on Monday evening of Mrs. Letty McGrath, at her home on Mill street. Deceased, whose maiden name was Letty Nathan, was in her usual health up until her sudden death. She was born near Burnley sixty-five years ago, where she spent most of her life, coming to Campbellford about four years ago.

She is survived by one sister, Miss Jane Nathan of town, and one brother, Lawrence Nathan, of Detroit.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning in St. Jerome's church, Warkworth, Requiem Mass being celebrated by Father Ferguson.

FRANCIS J. DALY

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26—The death occurred in Toronto on Saturday afternoon of Francis John Daly, beloved husband of Edith Archer Daly, in his thirty-seventh year. The deceased, whose death occurred in the Christie Street Hospital, had not been in good health for some time but was confined to his bed for only a short time before his death.

Frank was a veteran of the Great War, enlisting in 1915 with the 13th Royal Highlanders in Toronto. He was badly wounded and gassed and was later invalided home. For the past four years he had been lockmaster at Number 13 lock, Campbellford.

The remains were brought to his home on the River Road on Monday and the funeral was held on Tuesday morning at St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Ferguson of Warkworth, in the absence of Father Phelan, celebrated requiem mass.

The funeral cortege was preceded to the church by fellow veterans in command of Major Bygott, Captain Hyland and Lieut. Free and headed by the 40th Northumberland Regimental Band.

The pall-bearers were Richard Cook, Charles Nicholas, Thomas Dutton, John Patrick, Walter Sutton, and Harry Smith, of the Great War Veterans' Association.

The remains were interred in St. Mary's Cemetery. Three volleys were fired by a firing squad and the Last Post was sounded by Walter Lowe.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one son, James, his father James Daly and one brother, Bernard of town, and one sister, Mrs. Leonard Dickson of Hydro, New Ontario.

Relatives from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. William Archer of Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brady Marmora, Mrs. B. McKever of Toronto, Percy Archer of Marmora and Mrs. Phillips of Deloro.

WOOLER, May 26.—The death occurred at the home of her son-in-law, J. C. Herrington, of Mrs. Wallace Hugh McColl, after a lingering illness of eighteen months. The late Mrs. McColl was born at Rosmarkie, Ross-shire, Scotland, in 1853. She came to Canada with her parents when only four years old and settled at Colborne, Ont.

In 1877 she married Wallace Hugh McColl and settled at Wooler.

ANDREW P. CARVETH.

There passed away on Friday, May 14, Andrew P. Carveth, of Frazerville, formerly of Dummer, youngest son of the late John and Louisa Carveth.

There are left to mourn his loss, his sorrowing wife, one son Ernest, one daughter Mrs. John H. Moore, both of Fraserville, and several grandchildren.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. H. B. Herrington, pastor of the United church, Warsaw, on Sunday, May 16 at 2 p.m.

The pallbearers were six nephews, William and Hilliard Darling, Ernest and Henry Batten, Walter and Arthur Carveth.

MORE SALVAGE EQUIPMENT.

Chief Gimblett's opinion that the Fire Department should have more tarpaulins for salvage work will be shared by many citizens.

In the larger centres a salvage corps forms a recognized part of the department, and often is of most valuable service in saving property from damage.

While such a corps is not a necessity here, the local department should, however, be provided with a supply of tarpaulins sufficient to use in the case of a fire such as Sunday's in the upper floors of a building where valuable goods downstairs can be protected from water damages.

There are many fires of this nature, and it can readily be appreciated that with the assistance of adequate tarpaulins the stock on lower floors can to a considerable extent be saved from injury.

In the material reduction in fire loss that would be entailed by their use these tarpaulins would be a worth-while investment, and if, as is stated, there are not a dozen available for use now, the city fathers might do well to consider the advisability of adding a few more to the equipment of the department.

Water often causes as much damage at a fire as the flames themselves, and much of this damage could be avoided if the fire-fighters had sufficient salvage equipment to cope with the situation.

HOME LIFE GONE?

A Brockville speaker, addressing a number of societies the other day, deplored the fact that home life in Canada as it once was has disappeared.

"In Canada," he said, "the home is now the place where the families gather to eat and sleep."

This indictment of existing conditions is not at all fanciful.

We can see right at home in Peterboro the change that has come over home life.

Everything tends to break up the home circle, to drive its members out in search of amusement and recreation.

Parents set the pace for their children; they find a dozen and one reasons why they should not remain at home.

Naturally the old-time control over the children is disappearing; the youngsters are left to their own devices and to their own ways of killing time.

Even the home work that was considered an indispensable part of the educational system is being reduced to a minimum.

Is it any wonder that children ape their elders in their choice of recreation, and that the new generation is growing up practically without parental discipline, or at the best, under spasmodic control?

The Brockville divine already quoted declares that home life has been killed through the selfishness of parents sacrificing the interests of children to gratify their own desires for pleasure.

Is he far wide of the mark?

COMMUNITY CELEBRATIONS.

The local Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club or any other organization that wants to raise funds for a worth-while cause might seriously consider the advisability of floating a community celebration of Victoria Day in Peterboro, such as was so successfully staged by the Woodstock Rotary Club on Monday.

The Woodstock Rotarians did not do things by halves, for they arranged an all-day programme in which there was not a let-up from early morning until midnight.

The militia units of the district assembled in Woodstock, six bands supplied music, there was a military parade, a calithumpian parade, a programme of sports, a band contest, a concert by the six massed bands, an old-time fiddlers' contest, and two dances to wind up with, one in the City Hall for those who wanted the dances of yesteryear and the other with the more modern form in the Armouries—altogether a big day's fun that not only kept the good folks of Woodstock at home but that brought in thousands of visitors.

It is a long time since Peterboro has seen a celebration like that.

National holidays here seem to resolve themselves into a general scramble to get out of town, and the Examiner is sure that many people would be glad to see an attempt made once in a while to arrange a programme attractive enough to make it worth while for our people to spend a holiday at home and to cause many people to resolve to come and spend it with us.

MUST GET THE BEST.

A Peterboro citizen, writing to the Examiner about the fuel question, says: "In connection with the editorial of April 30th, only one thing was overlooked and that was a warning that second and third-grade coal should not be shipped to Ontario. Some low-grade coal was received in Peterboro last winter, and those who were supplied with it have no further use for Alberta coal. Only the best grade is worth the long haul."

The Examiner fully agrees with this correspondent.

The quickest way to destroy the possibility of a market in Ontario for Alberta fuel is to send inferior stuff to the consumer in this Province.

Whether or not a market can be found here for the Western coal depends first upon the quality of that coal as compared with anthracite, and secondly, upon the ability to transport Alberta coal here and sell it at a price equal to that of the American product.

If the consumer cannot be convinced that Alberta coal is as good as anthracite and that it can be sold as cheaply, there is not a chance in the world for the development of a worth-while business in this Province.

And if those interested in such a development want to get anywhere with their campaign they must first of all see to it that Ontario gets the best coal that Alberta can produce.

This country's paint bill is $1,000,000,000 a year. But some of the paint is for houses.—New York Herald-Tribune.

SAVING THE FRANC.

The French franc has declined to a record low level, selling for around 36 to the dollar, which is more than seven times less than its par value. This continued fall is naturally very distressing to the French people, who are making sincere efforts to stabilize their currency. They have been told that an honest attempt to meet their obligations to creditor nations would be reflected in an improvement in the national currency, but in spite of the fact that negotiations have been entered into with Great Britain and the United States, the slump, far from being arrested, becomes only the more pronounced. Taxes have been greatly increased in the country and a special "save-the-franc" fund inaugurated, made up of voluntary contributions from citizens of all classes. These measures have not proven effective and it is hard to see what more the French people can do to stop the depreciation. Great sympathy is felt for France in her financial difficulties, but sympathy does not help to remedy the situation. The efforts of the French to obtain credits in London and New York do not give much promise of success so far as they have gone.

Montreal is extending its sympathy in a practical way by opening a "stabilize the franc" fund, under the chairmanship of Sir Lomer Gouin. It is fitting that the French-Canadian Province should inaugurate the campaign, but well-wishers throughout the Dominion are invited to send in their subscriptions to the fund headquarters in Montreal as an expression of gratitude to our gallant allies in the Great War. The fund has already reached a total of about 200,000 francs, estimaetd at 35 francs to the dollar, subscriptions large and small having been received from all classes of citizens of Montreal and the Province of Quebec. The money will be sent to Marshal Joffre, who is the head of the French "save-the-franc" organization. Not only would a generous subscription from Canada be a gracious act on the part of this country, but the re-establishment of French currency would be of the greatest benefit to international finance generally.—Hamilton Spectator.

CANADA'S NEED.

Dean Fox of the University of Western Ontario praises the work of Mr. Mussolini in Italy, but thinks that a similar program of government would not work in Canada. "While ideal for Italy," the Dean said in an address the other day, "Fascism wouldn't work here because we would all want to be Mussolinis."

Dean Fox is probably right, although it is not to be questioned that a Mussolini form of government, for two or three years at least, would be an excellent thing for Canada. The temperament of the Canadian people would probably not permit a cast-iron dictatorship such as Mr. Mussolini has given the Italians. We lack the European faculty of throwing ourselves enthusiastically behind strong leaders. We are more individualistic. We are apt to regard the individual as being even more important than the state—in other words, more important than the whole body of individuals comprising the state. In short, as Dean Fox remarks, introduction of Fascism here would only result in all of us—or most of us—wanting to be Mussolinis. This frame of mind, of course, would nullify the whole idea.

It may be, however, that some modified form of Mussolinism—if one may use the term—might succeed in Canada. Certainly there is work for it to do, a place for it to fill. As things stand now, we are only drifting—not, perhaps, in the serious way that Italy drifted before the Duce seized power, but drifting nevertheless. Our governmental system is over costly and far from efficient. In one way or another we are throwing money away right and left. We are maintaining an expensive double legislature at Ottawa and eleven Provincial Houses—including the second chambers of Nova Scotia and Quebec—elsewhere. We have ten sets of Parliament Buildings, a Governor-General and nine Lieutenant-Governors. There are no less than ten complete civil services to be maintained year after year. And all the parliamentary bodies—from Ottawa, the largest, down to Charlottetown, the smallest—are much too large, much too expensive. Our own Province of Ontario has 112 members in the Legislature—at least 50 too many. The House of Commons has 245 members and there are 96 Senators. A hundred members and 30 Senators would be ample. And so it goes everywhere.

What is the solution of this situation? How could it be changed? It could be changed if we had a man in the public life of this country, a man in power, who was sufficiently courageous, sufficiently strong, sufficiently magnetic, to go out and sell the idea of introducing modern business efficiency into the conduct of public affairs. Perhaps we have a man of this type; perhaps he is in public life at the moment. On the other hand, he may still be in the background, waiting for the opportunity that would mean so much to him and to the country he could serve.

In Italy, Mussolini succeeded through what we are pleased to call "strong arm" methods. His was the policy of force, backed by nation-wide disgust of things as they were and an almost unanimous desire for change. In this country public opinion has yet to be crystallized. The average voter is largely indifferent. But the right kind of man could change all this. He could dissipate the pall of indifference that now hangs over the land. He could rouse the people to a real appreciation of the futility of our present course. He could set a ball rolling that would sweep away the lagging inefficiency of the moment and replace it with a keen desire—a desire that could not be thwarted—for better, cheaper and more effective government.

What Canada needs is a man of Mussolini's courage, foresight, ability and power, who could adapt himself to the Canadian temperament and bring about, in a milder way, the reforms and improvement that Mussolini has been able to effect for Italy.

Have we such a man?

There is work for him to do.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Add to the list of dictators—General Pilsudski, Poland.

It is explained that the desks of the members of Parliament have been searched because of recent thefts. Somebody may have tried to steal their notes to prevent further speeches.

The latest fairy tale takes this form: "There was once a Peterboro man who owned a car and he didn't drive it at all on Victoria Day."

Vancouver Sun: "Nature is beautiful. It is admirable for the family to take a day out under the trees and admire her beauty. But leaving shoe boxes, trash doesn't help thetin cans, banana peels and other fair face of Mother Earth one bit. It is a curious thing how inconsistent some 'lovers of the great outdoors' are. They rave of the beauties of nature, then go away leaving a litter of papers or other refuse that spoils an ideal picnic spot for any others who might choose to have an outing there."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A COMMUNION OF CONFIDENCE.

A friendship is a communion of confidence and how unhappy a man must be in not having friends.

By "friends," I mean having that great sense of satisfaction that comes to the individual who can win and hold the confidence of worthy men.

Friends are about the only thing in the world concerning the value of which all mankind are agreed.

Friendships stimulate our desire to be respected.

When two men are true to each other, as true as they are to themselves, the foundation for friendship is well laid.

Men cannot be expected to enjoy the firmest friendships unless they are willing to pay the price. Valuable friendships cost.

The trouble is that we often look for the great gift of friendship without the cost of pain, pain of price.

We exact from others what we are not willing to give. We often expect from others what we do not deserve, then when we fail to realize on our expectations, we criticize the fraternity of friendship instead of condemning a personal fault.

Lasting friendships brook no "bunk." Friends have a way of occasionally and tactfully testing each other. The confraternity of concord, the fellowship of friendship has its suspicious seasons, but when friends are faithful the outcome is wonderful.

When there is no confidence, friendship is a mere counterfeit that even an enemy will disdain to accept.

Friendship is a communion of confidence, nothing more, nothing less.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To The Editor of The Examiner:

In your issue of 21st "Inquirer" issues a challenge and offers a prize. He is doubtless another would-be champion of "Personal Liberty", whatever that may be, as his challenge is to Prohibitionists.

The love of argument seems to be a disease of this age. Here is another Goliath with a chip on his shoulder, ready to fill the corner, devoted to the people in your worthy paper, with bellowings and so called arguments, all of which have been hashed and re-hashed times without number.

I would like to answer the question he put forward in the Irishman's style;by asking him one in return: "Has not any country or state or province a perfect right to enact any law which the majority of the people by their votes decide is a good law for their country? And once such a law is approved by the people and placed on the Statutes, is it not the duty of every right minded citizen to obey it?"

"Salus populi suprema lex"—the well being of the people is supreme law.

STATE-OWNERSHIP—A MENACE.

Sir.—It may be remembered that in my last letter I reproduced the "Social and political program of the Methodist Church of Canada," in which the nationalization of all natural resources is advocated and by making employees partners in industrial undertakings with excess profits to go to the State, the nationalization of industry as well. This is all in keeping with the slogan that all that is in a state should be owned, operated, controlled and administered for the benefit of all who are in the state. It is a complete renunciation of individualism. Sir Andrew McPhail lays it down that we are over-educated, which causes the young to acquire a distaste for practical work, that we are not thorough, but superficial, and that the reduction of our whole system of industry to a basis of "efficiency" in which all parts work as parts of a gigantic machine, has deprived the worker of interest in his work. The question at once arises, "Can we make a man or woman a better man or woman by depriving them of individual initiative, ambition, personal interest and moral and physical, individual responsibility?"

Now, strange to say, that this was all tried out in the later Middle Ages, when the individual capitalist was unknown. The state, at that time, undertook all of the larger enterprises. What was the result? A complete loss of the development and intellectual strength of the individual. It was not until individuals threw themselves individually and intellectually into production and invention that the great era of modern trade and commerce arose. There can be no doubt that the modern system has its drawbacks, as when the government issues a statement of the weekly budget, giving the minimum of cost per week for living expenses and shows exactly what must be earned to maintain a family at the bare level of decency, yet opposing a minimum wage. Wages must square with this bare level of industry is to continue unchallenged, let alone the right of labour to have something more. This is the real cause of present industrial and agricultural unrest and this difficulty must be met fairly or it will necessarily lead to trouble. But that is one thing and to wipe out labour, capital, individual and company enterprise in favour of including the whole in a gigantic system owned, handled and controlled by the state, is another. Can the individual, as something more than a mere part of a huge machine, owned and controlled and managed by the state, be wiped out? Will people be content to work for a bare wage under the iron rule of a state, where all the excess or profit goes to the state? Yet that is what state-ownership of which Hydro is the entering wedge means. Will the "individual" be content to give himself up, body and soul, with all his share of personal liberty and independence to a group of individuals composing a government, and called the state? If so, then the Methodist Church of Canada is right and the ministers who lead it. If not, we had better give the matter some serious thought before we sink into the coma, which may ensue, and which is already creeping upon us in Ontario. Will people work if they are working for the sole benefit of somebody else, and for nothing but a bare living for themselves, and that, too, without any option or hope but to go on? The next step after reducing all industry (including agriculture) to a single system under government or state-control and management, is the promulgation of state moral as well as industrial laws. We have one of these state-moral laws with us today. Personal liberty, personal ability, personal energy, personal interest, personal property must all be given up and surrendered to the state.

That is what we are moving rapidly towards in Ontario and that is what in my humble opinion is paralyzing us. Private enterprise in Ontario is growing less and less. The "excess profits" that are to go to the state will form, in time, the capital necessary for all undertakings. Will the new plan work? Will the thieves get in and steal the profits? Will our people be keen to devote themselves to it. It is a great compulsory, philanthropic conception, in which the eager, conscientious and capable will be compelled to work for the rest. Perhaps, dear reader, you would like to begin now by handing over your profits to your next door neighbour.

In time, state shops will necessarily replace both wholesaler and retailer in all lines. The distributing system will be merged with the others.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, May 25.—The supply of butchers' cattle was not as liberal as last week and today's demand will easily take care of the run. Baby beeves sold firm from $8.50 to $10 a cwt. One load of Western heifers, 600 lbs. each, sold at $5.50 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee only want about 550 export cattle this week and were slow in buying. Prices on export steers were consequently easy. A few choice steers brought $8.25 a cwt. and heifers were $7.35 to $7.50 a cwt. The Old Country markets were bad last week end. In a general way the market as a whole was not as satisfactory as last week, but the smaller supply is favoring shipper.

Packers were doing very little in the calf market, but the Jewish buying was considerable and prices were quite steady. Some calves were taken for Buffalo. Real good calves were to 12 to 12½ cents a pound. Good calves sold from 11 to 11½ cents and mediums were 9 to 10 cents.

Sheep and lambs held steady. A few good yearling lambs were bought at 15 and 15½ cents a pound. The top on spring lambs this morning was $14 each and the prices graded from this down to $9 each.

A very small run of hogs left sellers in control of the market again. Packers were bidding $13.50 a cwt. f.o.b., but none were disposed of at this figure during the morning.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, May 25 (Canadian Press).—There was sufficient export business to absorb the light offerings in the wheat market here today, and prices showed an advance of 1-8c to 1 1-8c at the close.

The May future, which closed at the high point of the day—$1.53 3-4—for a gain of 1 1-8c, featured the trading. Exporters, shippers and "shorts" on the buying end were all after the moderate offerings, other futures, July which closed at $1.50 5-8, and October at $1.32 5-8, were not in urgent demand.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK

WINNIPEG, May 25 (Canadian Press).—An improved demand was apparent on the livestock market here today, a good clearance being realized on all killers. Prices reflected a firm undertone. Cattle receipts totalled 1,400.

Hogs were unsettled with thick smooths selling up to $13.50 and select bacon at a premium of 10 per cent. Receipts 1,620.

Despite adequate supplies, a definite price trend was not established on the sheep and lamb market.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Although wheat averaged lower in price today, the May delivery and to some extent the July tightened up with a sudden jerk at the last. May shorts were nervous, and it was reported that rains northwest were for the most part insufficient. The wheat market closed irregular, 3-8c net lower to 1 1-2c advance, with corn 1-2c off to 1-8c up; oats unchanged to 1-4c higher, and provisions showing two to seven cents gain.

A good deal of notice was taken of an estimate from a leading crop expert that 240,000,000 bushels is a liberal allowance for the probable yield of spring wheat in the United States this season, as against 271,000,000 bushels in 1925. This estimate gave special emphasis to reports from other sources that an average crop in large sections of North and South Dakota this season appears impossible. On the other hand, the Liverpool wheat market today showed relative weakness, and with improved weather throughout Europe export business was confined to 300,000 bushels of wheat and 100,000 bushels of rye.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 25 (Canadian Press).— Offerings from the West on Eastern markets are lighter and prices firmer. A car was offered at extras 31 1-4, firsts 29 1-4, seconds 26 1-4 f.o.b. Lauder, Manitoba.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, May 25 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 5-8.

Sterling cables $4.86 1-8.

CURB DAIRY PRICES

MONTREAL, May 25 (Canadian Press).—On the local curb market the offerings today amounted to 1,000 packages butter, and 1,800 boxes cheese. The No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter sold at 3 1-2c per lb; No. 2 pasteurized at 32 1-2c per lb, and No. 3 pasteurized at 31 1-2c per lb., while the cheese brought 17 5-8c per lb., delivered here.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE

MONTREAL, May 25 (Canadian Press).—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Belleville cheese held here today there were 854 boxes offered of which 517 boxes No. 1 white sold at 18 1-16 cents per lb., and 337 moxes No. 1 colored at 18 1-16c per lb.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Prices bid for wheat on the Montreal market today by exporters were below working basis and the volume of business transacted was small. Sales of a few loads of No. 3 Northern wheat were made at 5 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal. The domestic market for car lots was stronger at an advance of 1-2 cent per bushel.

The weakness that developed in the potato market at the latter end of last week continued today and prices suffered a further decline of 20 to 40 cents per bag.

The egg market was active and firm. Prices for all grades of butter were well maintained under a quiet demand. Cheese prices were marked up 1-8 to 1-4 cents per pound.

Salesman For Face Cream Learns a Lesson

New York City. Mr. H. B. I was amazed to find that within a few days after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills my skin took on a new healthful look." Druggists, 25 & 75c red packages.

POLISH POLITICS BREAKS OUT IN FRESH RIOTING WITH SCORE HURT MANY CIVILIANS RETAIN RIFLES

Three Policemen Injured in Lemberg Riots—Democrat Factions Clash.

OUTDOOR MEETINGS.

Pilsudski Meets Press, But Avoids Most Pertinent Questions.

WARSAW, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Clashes between the Right and Left parties, with bloodshed in some cases, is reported from the various provinces in connection with political meetings preparatory to the National Asembly, which is to meet next week for the purpose of electing a President of the Republic.

Despite the demand of the War Minister of the interim Cabinet set up after Marshal Pilsudski succeeded in overthrowing the Government of President Wojciechowski that the civilians give up the arms furnished to volunteers during the revolution, more than 3,000 rifles are still in the hands of civilians, causing the Government anxiety.

A Score Injured.

It is reported from Lemberg that street rioting followed outdoor meetings Tuesday of the Socialists and National Democrats, the police having to use their clubs to restore order. A score of persons were injured, including three policemen.

Marshal Pilsudski, in his first joint interview with newspapermen yesterday declared that he would demand that Parliament revise more than 200 laws and unify the whole code of Polish law, to untangle the endless governmental red tape, and wipe out the bureaucracy which hampered the nation's development. Poland's foreign policy and the general principles of domestic administration, he added, would undergo no change.

Beyond this the newspapermen could get little definite information from the Marshal. At one point in the interview, he answered a question by saying: "You cannot make me talk by throwing compliments at me," and then he took refuge in his private office. His aide said: "When Pilsudski is president he will give another interview."

Asked about his intentions should Parliament refuse to elect an agreeable President and decline to invest the President with the powers demanded in the Cabinet's announcement Monday, Pilsudski declared: "We'll see what we do when we come to it."

Foreign Affairs.

Questioned concerning the status of the Franco-Polish alliance, and Polish relations with Germany and Russia, he replied: "Those are matters for the Foreign Office."

To a query as to the exact nature of the proposed Presidential powers, his answer was: "See the Premier and Minister of Justice."

Then he was asked about the status of the inter-party negotiations and, pointing to a press photographer, Pilsudski said: "Why don't you photograph me? You see I am smiling. That means I am optimistic, but I am no prophet."

Premier Bartel announced yesterday that the Government would abide by the action of Parliament regarding the election of a President, as well as increasing the President's powers.

DIFFICULT TASK FACES PREMIER

Alberta Legislature Has Created Problem For Hon. Mr. King.

SCHOOL QUESTION.

OTTAWA, May 26.—The action of the Alberta Legislature in amending the concurrent legislation in regard to the transfer of natural resources in such a way as to provide that the school lands shall be administered "according to the laws of the province" puts the issue squarely up to Ottawa. There are three possible courses, and which one will be followed no one was seemingly in position to state with any assurance. One course would be for the Dominion Government to ask parliament to put through the agreement here in the precise form in which it has been passed by the Legislature; another would be to insist upon enacting the legislation as it stands on the order paper at Ottawa without any amendment, although this course would be rather abortive, inasmuch as to be effective the concurrent legislation must be identical and not at cross purposes. Moreover, the Legislature has prorogued and is on the eve of dissolution, so it could not be called back to make its bill conform to that of the Dominion if it had any disposition to do so, which is not probable.

The third course would be to do nothing this year, not take up the legislation at all, but let it stand till the outcome of the Provincial elections is known and until the complexion of the Provincial Government is determined.

Likely Course.

What appears to be a more predominant view here is that his latter procedure will be taken, although certain Progressive members are very anxious not only to go ahead with the bill, but to put it in the exact form that Alberta wants it. Some of the leading Progressives from the Province were wiring to ascertain just what the bill provides as amended by the Legislature, and also to sound out their people at home as to the attitude they are desired to take. There have been several conferences on the subject, but without any agreement, and the situation is one that creates considerable embarrassment. The Legislature has adopted that part of the proposed Federal amendment that would provide for school lands being administered "according to the laws of the Province," but has cut out the further provision perpetuating certain sections of the Dominion Lands Act for the support of schools carried on under Section 17.

May Offend Quebec.

The situation seems to be that to conform to Alberta's desire the Government would doubtless be pleasing its Progressive supporters, but in doing this it might alienate its friends in Quebec. While the exact line to be followed was not certain to-day, the plain disposition is to let the bill stand till next year. It is a government measure and the government has the say as to whether or not it will be proceeded with.

There will be hesitation against discussing in the House, on the eve of the Alberta elections, a question so potentially troublesome as a religious issue over schools.

GIRL CRUSHED BY COLLIDING CARS

Thigh Broken and Skull May Be Fractured.

MONTREAL, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Marielle Terrault, 7, suffered three fractures of her right thigh and a deep wound in the leg when she was crushed between two automobiles here Tuesday. Physicians are observing her also for a possible fracture of the skull.

The little girl stepped in the path of an automobile coming in an easterly direction. The driver of the car tried to avoid her, but in the meantime the girl walked in front of another car coming in an opposite direction. In avoiding her the westbound collided with the eastbound automobile. The child was crushed between the two machines.

PRISONS FEWER AND BETTER IN ENGLAND TO-DAY

33 Prisons and Only 10,000 Inmates Chaplain Says in Montreal.

VISITING CANADA.

More Humanitarian Treatment of Prisoners—Provide Concerts By Radio.

MONTREAL, Que., May 26 (Canadian Press).—Prisons in England have decreased by one-half and the number of inmates by two-thirds, according to Captain Casey, head of the Anglican Church Army Mission, now visiting Montreal.

At one time, said Capt. Casey, there were 66 prisons and 30,000 inmates behind lock and key. To-day there are 33 prisons in England and only 10,000 inmates.

Improvement had also been made in prison methods, it was pointed out. The old treadmill, on which prisoners formerly had to work twenty minutes on, with five minute rests, has disappeared. To-day prisoners were given labor to do, productive for the general good.

Radio in Prisons.

Recreation has also changed, Capt. Casey said. In this connection he cited a visit last winter to one of the prominent English prisons, where he had found a group of prisoners sitting around listening to a music concert over the radio.

Sanitary conditions have shown a vast improvement, in addition. Every prisoner now has a little room to himself. The speaker recalled former heddled conditions, and commented on the fact that in one year two judges had died from diseases contracted from prisoners.

Emphasizes Training.

Capt. Casey remarked that he had been impressed with the manner in which the youth of the Dominion was looked after, in comparison with conditions in the Old Country. He praised this work, saying the criminals of to-morrow are in the schools and streets of to-day, and if boys trained aright future criminals would be an unknown factor.

WOOD ALCOHOL IS FATAL TO INDIANS

Three Calgary Indians Dead After Party.

CALGARY, Alta., May 26.—Three Indians are dead and one is in an hospital following a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Owlchild of the Blackfoot reserve, near Gleichen to Mr. and Mrs. Good Chaser, visiting Peigans (a neighboring tribe) on Sunday night. They are believed to have drunk wood alcohol.

Spencer Owlchild, the host, is the only survivor, and is at present in Gleichen hospital, where he is gradually recovering from the effects of the poison.

Who sold the alcohol to the Indians is somewhat of a mystery, as Owlchild was too ill to speak much on Monday. Toward evening however, he revived sufficiently to tell that he got it from another Indian, who had purchased it from a white man on the understanding that it was good liquor.

The inquest on the two Peigans, and on Mrs. Owlchild will be held at the Indian agency in Gleichen and several Indians will give evidence.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating the fatalities.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets Fine For Thin Under Developed Kids

Children Love Them Because They Are Sugar Coated and as Easy to Take as Candy.

It's your duty, Mother, to see that the frail, peaked, sickly youngster grows up to be strong in body, keen in mind and robust in health.

Extracted from the livers of the lowly codfish are the health, weight and strength producing vitamines that are found in McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, which are sold by pharmacists all over North and South America.

Doctors know about them and so does McDermid and Jury and Bond's drug stores, and if your children need building up ask for these tablets to-day if you want to give your loved ones a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones.

But be sure and get McCoy's.

They are not expensive—60 tablets 60 cents—and if you are not pleased with the improvement after 30 days, your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

MANY JAPANESE BURIED IN LAVA AND MUD STREAM FROM VOLCANO

SUPPOSED EXTINCT.

TOKYO, May 26. Canadian Press.—One hundred dead and more than 200 injured, have been removed from the mass of mud, lava and rocks precipitated by Monday's eruption of a volcano in Tokachi province, Hokkaido Island, the governor of the island announced in a telegram yesterday.

How many of the one thousand farmers missing were buried alive in the lake of mud which covered the district, could not be foretold.

Two hundred doctors and nurses are attending the unfortunate peasants, aided by 800 relief workers of the Young Men's Association.

The lake in the crater of Mount Tokaichi, released by the eruption, poured through the sides of the mountain, inundating several of the villages. Many were drowned, and the waters mingling with lava and earth loosened by the eruption covered the rice fields and houses with mud. Landslides occurred on the steep slopes.

The volcano, supposed to be extinct, began rumbling May 4th.

Many inhabitants, warned of the impending catastrophe, fled from the district.

A despatch from Sapparo said river beds were hurled up 30 feet by the upheaval and that a stream has flooded surrounding districts. The health resort at Hokkiodo was reported to have been destroyed as well as a sulphur mill there. Hokkaido is the northermost island of Japan.

Many Killed.

One hundred and fifty persons are known to have been killed, despatches said, and firemen searching the ruins have recovered 50 bodies.

More than 300 were injured, and almost 4000 perosns are homeless in the area.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS WILL MEET

a year ago only ten millions were required of the government, and there were no bond issues, either guaranteed or otherwise. This improved state of affairs appears to have been made possible by a number of circumstances. The railway was itself able to provide 80 per cent of its interest requirements due the public. That supplied the chief reduction in the estimated requirements. Nothing, perhaps, could be more indicative of the rapidly-improving position of the national lines than the fact that a minister of railways finds it necessary to explain why forty million dollars voted were not required to be forthcoming. It is a very much more agreeable task than would have been the necessity to explain why the railways had required 40 millions more than had been estimated.

"The budget amount required for the present fiscal year, 1926-27, is $31,000,000, distributed as follows:

Interest on funded and other debt	$36,540,598.34
Grand Trunk Pacific guaranteed interest	1,108,000.00
Sinking fund payments	165,133.33
Equipment principal payments	7,397,4000.00
G.T.R. 4 per cent guaranteed stock	2,433,333.33
Retirement of capital obligations	808,000.00
Total financial requirements	$48,452,545.00
Less resources	34,379,829.00
Net financial requirements	$14,072,716.00
General additions, betterments, including new equipment	15,727,284.00
Discount on securities to be issued	1,200,000.00
Total estimate	$31,000,000.00

"The gross capital expenditure proposed is $19,127,284.00, including Central Vermont. Retirements recoverable through operating account reduce this figure to $15,727,284. This year's vote is intended to provide for the following:

Betterments to road	$13,047,211
New equipment	1,325,000
Betterments to equipment	1,500,000
Com. telegraphs and express	750,000
Electric lines	795,000
Hotel	330,500
Miscellaneous	637,013
Central Vermont	736,760
Gross capital expenditure	$19,127,284
Less retirements recoverable through operating accounts	3,400,000
NeNt increase in investment account	$$15,727,284

Says $250,000,000 Missing

G. B. Nicholson (Conservative, Algoma East) who followed Mr. Dunning, announced that he would undertake to show that the total cash advances to the railway had been over $800,000,000 of which $250,000,000 was unaccounted for. This amount was not shown in detail anywhere in the railway statement. The Canadian National accountants must have learned their methods from the Minister of Finance who had shown similar tendencies in presenting his budget.

The surplus of $32,000,000 claimed by the railways was overstated by many millions, said Mr. Nicholson. Items charged against transportation should have been deducted from the given surplus. Mr. Nicholson went at length into the original cost of the various parts of the Canadian National system at the time of amalgamation.

"What does my honourable friend suggest has become of the $250,000,000?" laughingly asked Mr. Dunning.

"That's what I would like to know," replied Mr. Nicholson.

Prior to 1922, when the Conservatives were in office, full particulars of the expenditure of cash advances had been given. Since 1922, complete details had not been shown. "The public has not been given the facts with regard to what it has cost to operate the Canadian National Railway system," said Mr. Nicholson.

C.T.P. Expenditure.

The Minister had said that the various roads were taken over when private ownership had failed. It was not private ownership that had failed. It was the mad exploitation of railroad building which had brought about the trouble. If the C.N.R. system was taken as it stood to-day and the amount mis-spent upon the old Transcontinental and Grand Trunk Pacific, written out, it would leave a cost of one hundred and twelve million dollars, and on that basis, with proper operation, the road could be made to carry itself and pay dividends. It would then have a valuation of $60,000 per mile.

The per mile earnings of the Canadian National Railway were very close to the C.P.R. per mile earnings, but the latter road cost eight per cent. less per mile to operate. The better showing for 1925 was partly due to the fact the National system had let its equipment run down.

Mr. Nicholson suggested that it might be wise to carry grain to Canadian ports for exportation at less than cost, and it might also be wise to carry coal similarly. The difference would have to be made up either by a suvention or by a distribution of the cost over the rail traffic in more densely populated areas.

So long as the C.P.R. was subjected to competition by a railway which was not required to pay its own cost, there would be difficulty as to just what an equitable rate was.

Waste in Duplication.

W. F. MacLean (Conservative, York South) said our railway problem in Canada was being "sidestepped." Millions of dollars were being wasted owing to the unnecessary duplication, and the two railway system should be merged. He thought the Canadian Pacific would listen to a proposal along this line.

A good freight rate could not be produced, so long as the two railways continued to operate in unnecessary competition.

He said the long term indebtedness of the Canadian National system—and of the Canadian Government and the Canadian people—was on December 31, 1925, $2,110,811,644. This annual addition to the capital liability had been increasing year by year. In 1919 the fixed charges of the system had been $29,000,000, and in 1925 they were $71,880,000, showing that the extension of the railways had involved annual increases.

Mr. Dunning interrupted to point out that the increase included the amount due to the Government in interest.

HULL MAYOR LOSES BY BIG MAJORITY

Carried Only Two of Nineteen Polls.

HULL, Que., May 26 (Canadian Press).—Theodore Lambert, local contractor, defeated Mayor Louis Cousineau at the polls Tuesday for Mayoralty honors, receiving a majority of 560, the largest accorded a successful Mayoralty candidate in the past ten years.

The result came as a surprise even to Mr. Lambert, who swept into power on a wave of economic and moral reform, for in only two of the nineteen polls did his opponent secure small majorities.

There were three aldermanic contests, which resulted in Alphonse Houssette defeating J. E. Laflamme, in Wrightville, by 155; in Montcalm Ward, Ald. Stafford lost out, out by one vote to Edmond Gauthier, and in Laurier Ward, Moise Galipeau beat his opponent, A. Sabourin, by 168 votes.

The remainder of the Council was re-elected by acclamation.

LABOR OPPOSED THE EXCLUSION OF UNION JACK

South African Flag Design Threatened Split With Nationalists.

INTEREST INTENSE.

Proposed Design Regarded as Symbol of South African Unity.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, May 26 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—Indications of the intense interest taken in the question of the South African flag were seen in a packed House of Assembly yesterday when Hon. Dr. D. F. Malan, Minister of the Interior, announced that the bill to define the nationality of South Africa and provide for a new national flag would be withdrawn by the Government but would be re-introduced next session.

Princess Alice, wife of the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of South Africa; the Governor-General's secretary, Major J. U. Alexander, and nearly the whole Government House staff were present.

Agitation against the proposed flag, from which the Union Jack is excluded, has been growing more intense in the past few days, and a split between the Labor party and Nationalist party on the question has been threatened, prominent Labor politicians being opposed to the exclusion of the Union Jack from the new flag, and intimating that the Nationalist-Labor pact might be disrupted if the Government of Gen. J. B. Hertzog, Premier, insisted upon carrying out the flag scheme.

Affects People's Soul.

Dr. Malan, who spoke in English, in announcing the withdrawal of the bill for the present, was eloquent. He dwelt earnestly on the grave importance of the measure and emphasized its urgency, not along the line of "bread and butter politics," but as a piece of national legislation. He declared that the bill affected South Africa's national status, which, he said, concerned the soul of the South African people more than material possession, and he was cheered by the Government supporters.

Dr. Malan said opinion was divided regarding the legal recognition due the South African nationals, and it was necessary to have the outward and visible symbol binding together all sections of the South African people which was provided in the bill to give South Africa a national flag. He emphasized the fact that South African nationality did not confer the right of the vote—that came solely under the franchise.

TEACH NEW STAFFS.

QUEBEC, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Notwithstanding the active interest which Premier Taschereau, Assistant Attorney-General Charles Lanctot, K.C., and Mayor Martin have taken in the boot and shoe industry dispute during the last few days, the manufacturers and the unions appeared to be no nearer arriving at a solution of their differences Tuesday.

Herbert Gale, president of the Quebec Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association, held an interview with Premier Taschereau and Mr. Lanctot, but although he admitted that the situation in the local shoe industry had been discussed, he declined to say whether anything had been decided upon.

He denied the report that Premier Taschereau had declared during the interview that both sides must come to an agreement in order to avoid further trouble.

Mayor Martin telephoned Mr. Gale and asked him to have the members of his association agree to meet a conciliation committee. Mr. Gale did not accept the suggestion, however, but the Mayor said he still hoped the manufacturers would decide to give the suggestion a trial.

It has already been announced by the manufacturers that they would have no further dealings with the unions and in keeping with that decision they have brought a staff of mechanical experts from the United States to show inexperienced workmen how to operate the machines in their factories. It is claimed that production has already reached about 25 per cent. of the pre-strike output in the shops of members of the association.

VAULT RESISTED ROBBERS' ATTACK

Unsuccessful Entry To Manitoba Bank.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 26 (Canadian Press). — An attempt to rob the branch of the Standard Bank of Canada at Wellwood, Man., Monday night was unsuccessful, according to reports received here yesterday.

Stealing an acetylene torch and an oxygen tank from the Wellwood blacksmith shop, the robbers gained entrance to the bank but could not open the vault.

The attempted robbery was discovered Tuesday morning when employees arrived at the bank. Only a revolver, taken from a desk drawer, was missing.

COUNTIES COUNCIL MEETING IMPORTANT

Rate Will Be Struck at June Session, Opening on on June 14.

COBOURG, May 26.—The Counties Council for Northumberland and Durham is called to meet in its June session on Monday, June 14. This session of the Council is the most important one of the year as the rate is struck at this meeting. The amount required for maintenance work and for additional road construction seems to forecast the necessity of a large vote for road expenditure. The equalization of the assessment of the various municipalities is another matter to come up at the June session.

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HARRY MORTON, in a quandary because his adopted daughter, AUDREY, and NONA, a Toronto stage girl, are both in love with him, is visited in his Peterborough office by a woman who tells him that her husband threatens to sue her for divorce on account of Morton.

Morton, rich, unmarried, middle-aged, is extremely attractive to women. He maintains his home in Peterborough and an apartment in Toronto.

At the end of the last chapter, his secretary JOHN PARRISH, has just announced that the woman's husband is waiting for him oustide.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXV.

A small man, with graying hair, was ushered into the room. His clothes were neat and carefully pressed. His hat, which he held in his hand, was of college-boy type. He stood, waiting apologetically, until Morton told him to sit down.

Parrish shut the door and went out.

"I rather thought you'd be in," Morton said. "What's all this about?"

The little man crossed his feet nervously.

"My wife said I ought to come and see you," he explained.

"She was in to see me today," Morton told him. "She said you were going to start divorce proceedings against her because of me."

Mr. Carver cleared his throat. "She said I ought to do that," he ventured.

Morton surveyed the other man. "Then it wasn't your idea, this divorce proposition?"

The visitor shook his head. "My wife thought I ought to take some action," he said.

He looked uneasily about the room, gazed at the two or three pictures that hung upon the wall, and finally returned his gaze to Morton.

"My wife," he continued, "tells me that she has been seeing you in secret, and that she doesn't see how any man in his right senses can stand a thing like that. You see," he smiled deprecatingly, "you have a reputation among the ladies."

He leaned back, as if the entire matter had been left in Morton's hands.

Morton looked him over in wonderment and finally smiled.

"Carver," he said, "I think I know what's the matter. The fact is, I met your wife at the same time I met you, at a dance, two or three months ago. She has been at my office three times, on trifling errands. That is, they were trifling except this last one."

He arose and put his hand on the little man's shoulder. "Is this thing worrying you?"

The other shook his head. "I can't say it is, exactly," he said. "I haven't been able to understand my wife for the last year or two. You know—" he shifted uneasily—"I didn't put much stock in this story of hers. What would you do about it if you were I, Mr. Morton?"

Morton sat down again. "It's like this," he told the little man. "There comes a time in many women's lives when their husbands are prosperous and they themselves haven't much to do at home. That's your case, isn't it, Mr. Carver?"

His visitor agreed. "We started out poor," he said, "but I'm well fixed now, and my wife doesn't have to do anything at all, unless she wants to."

"That's just the trouble," said Morton. "It's the trouble with lots and lots of women. Their real duty in life is done. Their hands are idle. So they look around for something to entertain them. Some of them get into mischief; some join clubs. Your wife has decided that she wants a bit of excitement. I happened to be a good target. She came up here once or twice, I didn't pay any attention, but evidently she elected to use her imagination a little. Does she—er—imagine other things?"

Mr. Carver said she did. "I can't make out the facts half the time."

"I have an idea she'll settle down," Morton told him. "She'll find something to do that really interests her and she'll drop this sort of thing. I hope so, anyway."

Mr. Carver was getting up, but Morton motioned to him to be seated.

"Maybe you're to blame, too, Carver," he continued. "Do you do anything to amuse her—take her around places?"

The little man thought it over. "I take her every place she tells me to," he said.

"That isn't enough," Morton said. "Suppose you make a great to-do about taking her to dances, and out to dinner, and to the theater, and on trips to Toronto, and when you get her there, take her to a lot of jazz places where she'll see some excitement—and see it with you. Maybe you yourself are a little bit humdrum."

"I AM humdrum," said Mr. Carver, sadly. "She tells me that almost every day."

Rising, Morton offered a final bit of advice. "Remember what you used to do when you were a boy, in courting her," he said. "Put on some of those stunts now. It'll please her after she gets through being surprised."

The little man went out the door. "Thank you, Mr. Morton," he said, earnestly. "I hope she don't bother you any more. She drives me almost crazy, sometimes," he added, as he passed into the hall.

After dinner that night Parrish drove up to the house in his little, black, two-seated car. It rattled to a halt and Parrish descended. Opening the hood, he looked anxiously into the interior, made a cautious exploration with his hand, burned himself, and blowing on his fingers, turned to the house. Morton and Audrey were seated on the porch, watching him.

Night had fallen but his movements were illumined by the street lamp, on the sidewalk, and by the light that hung above the door of the Morton home.

"Would you like to go riding in my flivver?" he asked Audrey, as he stood on the steps hat in hand.

"Come in a minute before we settle that problem," Morton said. "Sit down."

He tossed a cushion to the young man, who seated himself on the top step.

"Audrey's been having an adventure today," Morton continued. "Some ladies have been in to sympathize with her."

"The old cats!" Audrey observed.

Parrish looked up with inquiring interest.

"It seems that Nona's visit to Peterborough not long ago has created much debate in our circle," Morton proceeded.

"The people next door wouldn't speak to us this morning, you remember. These ladies came to tell Audrey how sorry they were that I am a miserable old rake."

"I know," Parrish said absently.

Audrey took him up. "You think the same way yourself!" she accus

Parrish did not deny the charge.

"I told you and Mr. Morton what I thought," he said, stiffly. Then, his tone changing: "But I don't like these people to be talking about you, Miss Morton. Or you either, for that matter, sir," he added, turning to Morton.

The older man smiled. "I thought when we came back here that Audrey would be associating with her old companions. However, it appears there is so much talk about me, that she is not likely to be happy. I'm afraid she is going to have to fall back on you for company again."

"That will be fine," said Parrish earnestly.

Audrey was not in agreement. "I don't think so," she said. "Do you know what I think I'll do."

The two men looked at her.

"I think I'll send for the chorus, and Nona, and the other folks in that revue I was rehearsing in, and put on the show right here in Peterborough. That'll show these people what I think of THEM."

"Don't—don't do that!" cried Parrish, alarmed.

Morton was not perturbed. "I'm afraid you'd have to put it on in our own house, then," he surmised. "The restaurants here have their own performers. You can't jump in and put on a show at a moment's notice. That is, unless you want to hire a theater."

They discussed Audrey's plan and its shortcomings. Parrish was in strong opposition to every phase of the idea. "Those girls are not the right company for you," he insisted.

"Then who IS the right company for me?" she demanded. "The people who have known me all my life here get snooty, over something that is none of their business. Are THEY the right company for me? Anyhow, those girls in Toronto are broad-minded."

"Too broad-minded, maybe," Morton remarked. "It's a good idea to be broad-minded about other people, but mighty watchful of your own conduct. Those girls are apt to be broad-minded about themselves, too."

Parrish had been sitting with his elbows on his knees, and his chin buried in his hands. Now he raised his head and turned.

"I wish you'd marry me, Miss Morton," he said, loudly and unexpectedly.

The man and girl were genuinely startled.

"What?" cried Morton.

The young man repeated. "I wish Miss Morton would marry me."

The girl only stared at him, her lips half open. Morton, however, pursued the question further.

"Are you proposing?" he wanted to know.

"I suppose you can call it that," Parrish said. His tone was stubborn. "I can take care of her, anyway. Nobody's ever going to say anything against my wife."

"I suppose you mean they CAN say something against Mr. Morton's adopted daughter," commented Audrey. "Well, I won't do it."

Parrish got up and stood fumbling his hat. "Then you won't ride in my flivver?"

Morton laughed, and after a moment the girl joined him.

"Not tonight," she said. "This was—was so sudden!"

Parrish went away, his head bowed. Throwing his hat into the machine, he went to the front of the car to crank it. It suddenly responded with a "phut, phut—phut, phut, phut." He climbed in, and with an explosion from the muffler and a thumping of protest from the motor, he drove away.

Morton turned to Audrey.

"I've seen that proposal coming," he said, "but I certainly didn't think he'd do it that way."

Audrey giggled. "Isn't he funny?" She thought a moment and laughed again. "One time, four or five days ago, he was watching me rehearse with the chorus, there in Toronto. One of the girls waltzed over and sat down on his knee! You ought to have seen his face! It got as red as a boiled beet, and he stood right up, dumped her on the floor, and went outside and waited all the rest of the time I was there!"

"He's a good boy," Morton said. "However, I'd liked to have seen him drop the chorus girl." He joined in Audrey's laugh.

Their conversation wandered away from the departed Parrish. They talked of the women who had called that afternoon, and of what they had said to Audrey. The girl was troubled and Morton himself was puzzled as to the way in which they should meet the situation.

"This foolishness will die down here," Morton said, "but in the meanwhile, you are going to be unhappy. Personally I don't care, but there's no use in your being annoyed all the time. Do you want to go back to Toronto and proceed with your theatrical scheme?"

Audrey considered. At last, with a shake of her head, she said: "Not right now. I'm still too mad at Nona—and I'm afraid that will make you and me quarrel again!" She shot a quick glance at him. "I never want to quarrel with you!"

He patted her hand.

"I think that show will succeed without you, Audrey," he said. "I'll wire Abe Sunshine, and Nona, in the morning.

"And I know what we'll do."

That Stomach of Yours!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the very best medicine any one can take for stomach trouble and to build up the blood when it becomes thin and impoverished," said Mrs. Peter Sargent of 39 Cornwall St., Toronto, Ont. (Picture above.) "I suffered all the time from stomach trouble. My food did not digest properly, would set heavy on my stomach, causing me to suffer great distress. Food did me no good. My blood was impoverished and I did not have enough. But, after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my digestion was good and my trouble was at an end so far as my stomach and blood were concerned. The food I ate nourished my body and soon my blood was in a good healthy state."

Don't Poison Baby Through Your Constipation

Nursing mothers must avoid constipation. Slow bowel movements allow poisons to form and be absorbed by the blood. This means tainted milk for baby.

Mothers are the best friends of Nujol. When precious new lives are at stake they use and give their babies Nujol—the remedy medical authorities prescribe because it is so safe, so gentle, and so natural in its action.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

LAKEFIELD BURIAL.

Funeral of Levi Payne Largely Attended.

LAKEFIELD, May 26.— The funeral of the late Levi Payne took place on Thursday afternoon from the family residence on Queen street and was attended a large concourse of people, many of their relatives and all of their friends.

The service was in charge of Rev. S. A. Kemp, of the Regent street church, who spoke feelingly from the words of the 90th Psalm. Two favorite hymns were sung, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Nearer My God to Thee", led by a choir of ladies.

The funeral was under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters, of which the deceased was a charter member, and the casket, covered with beautiful flowers, was borne to its last resting place by six members of the C.O.F., Messrs. W. H. Casement, W. H. Down, R. H. Little, W. G. Morrison, John E. Richardson and Charles Thomson.

Interment took place at the Lakefield cemetery.

Mr. Payne's genial presence will be much missed in the life of the community where his long life had been spent and where he was a beloved figure. In spite of his advanced years he retained his vigor to the last and was interested in his home and garden and the activities of the village and surroundings. The passing of the "Old Guard" leaves a vacancy none can fill and Mr. Payne was one of the rapidly decreasing army of pioneers, whose efforts cleared our country and made good roads and community life possible.

UNVEIL MONUMENT TO MISS COUSINEAU

Memorial Erected at Bewdley To Memory of Missionary Worker.

MILLBROOK, May 26.—The unveiling of a Missionary Memorial to the late Miss Agatha M. Cousineau, of Montreal, which took place at Bewdley cemetery on Sunday afternoon, drew an attendance of between two and three hundred people. Probably the cool weather and the lack of public knowledge of the event, accounts for the fact that fewer were present than has usually been the case at similar functions in the same locality.

Music was furnished by the Port Hope Citizen's Band, an eight-piece orchestra from the Christian Workers' Tabernacle, Toronto, with D. Smith as leader, and by Madame Coutts-Bain of Toronto, who contributed two vocal selections: "God Knew My Need," and "Throw out the Life Line," Miss McKay of Toronto being her accompanist.

Rev. D. S. K. Byrne, D.D., who erected the memorial, presided and led in the opening prayer. The march from Dr. Byrne's cottage took place at 2.15 p.m., the band playing, "Rescue the Perishing", and upon arrival at the cemetery, where a marquee had been erected for those taking part, a song service, led alternately by the band and the orchestra, preceded the formal programme.

Rev. W. J. Harmsworth, of Bedford, England, was the first speaker, his address, like that of those who followed him, being strongly evangelistic in character.

"If you want to know God, make a home for Him, and He will dwell with you," was the key-note of the speaker's remarks. Mr. Harmsworth dwelt for a time on his personal acquaintance with Miss Cousineau, his association with her as a Christian worker, and his appreciation of her godly life" which well deserves a lasting testimonial."

"Can you see Christ in that flag?" said the speaker in his concluding remarks, pointing to the Union Jack which draped the memorial. "The white shows Him as earth's spotless Man; the blue shows Him as heaven's redemption. Have you made His acquaintance yet?"

Mrs. (Rev.) L. C. Hall, of Ottawa, was next called upon, and she to began with a personal testimony of loving respect to the noble woman, "who lived and worked for God, and had gone home to be with God."

"The memory of the just is blessed, but the name of the wicked shall rust," furnished the text for Mrs. Hall's remarks. Mrs. Hall said she had first met Dr. Byrne in Chicago, in 1907, and knew personally of his meeting with Miss Lucy Byrne, his influence in persuading her to return to her parents, and in winning her to Christ so that she died affirming a strong trust in her Saviour.

Mrs. Hall was a very pleasing speaker, and her closing appeal to be ready, "for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh," was strong impressive, her belief in the Second Coming of the Saviour as an event of the rather near future being quite evident.

Dr. Byrne began his address with a prayer of gratitude "in memory of the dear sister, who was for thirteen years a member of our household, and who ever lived a consistent Christian life."

He quoted a poem written by Miss Cousineau, who was a convert of the late Father Chiniqueay, and was disowned by her people when she embraced the Protestant faith. Dr. Byrne made a characteristic address, mingling humor with an evident genuineness in his appeal that the listeners would acknowledge the claims of Christ upon their lives and hearts.

Mrs. Agnes L. Snyder, secretary of the International Missionary Society, was the concluding speaker, adding her testimony to that of the others as to the joy of a personal knowledge of salvation through faith in Christ, and urging upon her hearers the opportunity and responsibility of making a like decision for themselves.

After Rev. Mr. Harmsworth had pronounced the benediction, and while the band played, "Shall We Gather at the River", Mrs. Synder, Madame Coutts-Bain, with Messrs. Harold Whyte and Howard Boyles, of Toronto, drew the flag and unveiled the monument, a white Italian cross on a marble base, suitably inscribed.

A memorial tablet on the marble slab which covers the grave has the following inscription:

"Miss Agatha M. Cousineau was a distinguished French, Italian, and English missionary. She, with her late family, was the founder of St. Giles' English-Presbyterian Church, Mount Royal Methodist Church, and other French Methodist churches. She spoke many languages, including French, German, Italian, and English in her Gospel Missionary work in Montreal and Toronto. She was born a Roman Catholic, but was converted under the teachings of a converted priest, the late Father Chiniqueay. She was a true, and faithful member in the household of Rev. D. S. K. Byrne for 13 years.

"Buried in a bronze-steel shell vault. Burial and memorial donated by her friend, Rev. D. S. K. Byrne.

"Face to face I shall behold Him (Jesus); In all His glory I shall see Him bye-and-bye."

The inscription on the monument reads:

"Agnes M. Cousineau, Born March 1854; Died November 19, 1925. Late of Montreal. Donated by her friends, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. K. Byrne, D.D."

SUMMER DELEGATE ADDRESSES MEETING

Mrs. Cook, of Beamsville, Speaks To Cavan Women's Institute.

CAVAN, May 26.—On Thursday afternoon, May 20, Cavan Women's Institute had a summer delegate at the home of Mrs. D. J. Hunter to address the ladies of the community.

The speaker sent by the department was Mrs. Cook, Beamsville.

The ex-President, Mrs. F. M. Staples, conducted the meeting, which opened by all singing a verse and the chorus of "The Maple Leaf," with Mrs. A. Kennedy at the piano. Miss Eileen Hunter sang a very pleasing solo, with Mrs. Totten accompaning. Mrs. H. Tinney, Secretary last year, gave an excellent report of the year's work, telling how the money was raised and spent and reporting a good balance on hand. Mrs. Cooke spoke for a few minutes on "Institute Activities." She urged the Institute to take full advantage of the short courses put on by the Government, and also to take a great interest in the School Fair and assist it in every way. She advocated having a teacher of domestic science to judge the children's baking, etc. This teacher would give the children a short talk which would be interesting and beneficial. She thought that there should be a hot lunch served in every school, as the children could do more and better work and show more interest than when they had only a cold lunch. She was in favor of federation of the Institutes because one Institute cannot do very much to change unsatisfactory laws or conditions, but the thousand Institutes of Ontario united could accomplish much, and also much was to be learned at the federation convention held annually in Toronto. Very many new ideas were gleaned there.

She would like to see a chicken competition in every county. They had proved of great interest to the young people where they had been carried out. These are introduced by working in co-operation with the District Representative.

Dental inspection and medical inspection were explained and their benefits pointed out.

Mrs. Cook had a number of topics and the Institute chose "Balancing Our Lives." She spoke on this topic in a very interesting manner, pointing out so many ways in which people can be helpful and happy if they only manage to balance their own lives.

"We only own ourselves, so the balancing must be within ourselves. We may help others, especially by being cheerful. It is not necessary to try to reform our neighbors, but just pass on happiness. Just as in business, 'stock is taken,' so we must take stock of our manner of living and chances of balancing our lives. The business woman has an easier time doing this than the home-maker. The former has exact hours in which she works, and to keep herself fit must have regular hours for sleep and recreation and eat proper food. To the housewife this seems difficult, with housecleaning, mending, cooking and children to mind, but it can be managed. The woman who works from morning to night does not strike a happy balance. She becomes a slave to work. She needs to leave her work behind, mix with other people and avoid getting into a rut by going to extremes. Our standard should be high. One of the most important things to all is the health and happiness of our families. If necessary rest is taken we can have a more serene mind. It is possible to have a spotlessly clean house and be so tired mentally and physically as to be unable to enjoy it or allow our families to have any pleasure in their home. We owe it to ourselves as much as to our houses to keep ourselves neat and serene. Get out and come home fresh and rested. We must be temperate in our work, play and rest. We must read books and articles which will make us more interesting and better informed. A garden is a wonderful tonic for those mentally tired. It is a good cure for nerves. Then we can receive our inspiration from our church, Institute, friends and books. We must carry an open mind to learn. In every Institute there are members who can do some one thing better than others, and they can pass their methods on so that we can learn something new at each meeting."

At the close of her address she was requested to say a few words on customs and conventions.

Some of the things mentioned were: The proper serving of a lunch for an afternoon tea, an evening party, the proper use of silver, etc.

"Dignity comes from confidence and confidence from knowledge. If a person knows the proper way of doing things she feels at ease," she said. "All good manners are based on the Golden Rule. We must aim to make everybody comfortable. Whether we entertain, visit or meet people we must try to keep everything agreeable. "It is only a person with a very kind heart who can at any time be abrupt. Sometimes even though things spoken may be true, they wound unless tactfully expressed."

Mrs. Cook's talk was much enjoyed, the only regret being that the time was too short to hear more.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins, the District Secretary, spoke a few words concerning the annual district meeting to be held in Millbrook June 2nd. Mr. Putnam had intended being present, but had written that he would be unavoidably prevented.

Mrs. (Rev.) Totten played a piano solo, after which the meeting adjourned, and lunch was served by a committee of ladies.

A social time was enjoyed over the tea cups.

A number of ladies from the Millbrook Institute were present.

There will be no June meeting, but all the members are urged to attend the district annual meeting in Millbrook, June 2nd.

A domestic science class is being planned for the first week in August.

Among those present were: Mrs. E. Syer, L. Syer, Mrs. F. M. Staples, N. Staples, G. Staples, Mrs. R. Matchett, Mrs. H. Lang, Mrs. L. Sutton, Mrs. C. Fee, Miss G. Hatherly, Mrs. J. Hatherly, Mrs. T. MARMORA, May 26.—Anniversary services were conducted at Cordova United church on Sunday by Rev. F. J. Horwood, Mus. Bac., of Marmora, who preached to good congregations at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. The Blaviton Trio sang in the morning and Mrs. (Rev.) Herrington of Warsaw at night. Anniversary rejoicings were continued the following afternoon. The village was gaily decorated with flags in keeping with Empire Day. A good assemblage of residents and visitors gathered on the Cordova Baseball ground to witness an interesting game of softball between teams chosen from the Rockdale and Cordova schools. The game was refereed by Mr. Jack Brady of Marmora and lasted five innings. Cordova ran out winners by the score of 19-14. A seven innings game of baseball was then staged between the Deloro Excelsiors, captained by Tom Cousins, and Cordova, captained by Rev. C. H. Ferguson. J. Brady pitched with H. Auger catching for the visitors, while C. H. Ferguson and J. McCurdy pitched for Cordova with R. Young as catcher. In this encounter, the visitors lived up to their name vanquishing the local team by a substantial score. Clayton Neal registered a homer for his side.

MISSION ADDRESS GIVEN AT HAVELOCK

Mrs. M. Clark Conducts the Morning Service at United Church.

HAVELOCK, May 26.—In the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour, who supplied the pulpit at Cambray on Sunday, owing to the illness of the Rev. J. Glover, the morning service at the United Church was conducted by Mrs. M. Clark of Norwood, the widow of a former medical missionary in China. Mrs. Clark gave a very interesting talk on Chinese customs, recalling that six years ago she had celebrated the 24th of May in China.

"Evil spirits have a great part in the every-day life of the Chinese," she said. "Even in case of illness when we believe in quietness they make great noise in order to scare the evil spirit which has entered the sick person. The Chinese are not a religious people. That is not to say they have no religion, for they have different forms of heathen religions and have a basis for their religious belief. They honor their parents perhaps more than some Canadian people do and are well versed in universal law. They are also more industrious and more economical than we are. They like the foreigner and his way, but do not all accept Christianity.

"Religion to them is a matter of form, and down in their hearts they do not know what it means to live a religious life. They have been so long worshipping a God of fear that it is hard to get them to cast off their superstitions.

"China at the present time is passing through a hard period of re-adjustment, which will uplift the nation if she has enough men who are not working for self elevation but the good of the people to lead her in this crisis. The church in China has also gone through a testing time. Last July the missionaries were sometimes in danger of their lives and were almost afraid to re-open the schools. Missionaries when within their own walls have protection, and the question is whether or not to dispense with protection and give the Chinese the right of all control in their own country. Another struggle China is passing through is the opium plague which is somewhat similar to the liquor traffic in our land. As you walk the streets in China it is quite easy to pick out the ones who use opium. Opium comes from the poppy. The poppies of China are very beautiful and take a lot of cultivating to bring to a state to give a large amount of opium. When looking over the poppy fields it is almost impossible to believe that so great a poison could come from something so beautiful. The Government forces the farmers to grow poppies in order to keep up the supply of opium. In many cases farmers do not wish to grow poppies, and it is hard for them to be forced to do something they know to be wrong. It is almost impossible to be a military man in China and not smoke opium."

In closing Mrs. Clark took as an illustration the case of a Chinese student, who after living for four years in Toronto, attending the Toronto University, returned to China and joined Buddishm because he did not think Christians lived up to their standards. "We cannot all go to China," she concluded, "but we have a duty in citizenship right here. We can live so as to make Canada a land that when the Chinese come in they will see that we live up to the standard of our Christianity."

Rev. T. M. Wesley of Norwood conducted the evening service.

A Straight Coat

Reverses Itself

Smartly

A COAT that can turn itself two ways is practically two coats. Satin crêpe, satin faille, wool-back satin and reversible flannel make unlined coats that lead a doubly useful life. Heavy silk crêpe, shantung and light wool crêpe can be lined with a printed silk and worn with either side uppermost and with frocks matching either side. Eyelet embroidery, cretonne and printed linen make smart Summer coats for the country but haven't an underside of sufficient interest or finish to make them reversible. Transparent coats of Georgette or crêpe Roma trimmed with bands of taffeta are being worn in Paris over frocks of printed silk.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

Evening Examiner "Ideal Fashions" by Jean Bell Hamilton

Navy Blue Is Smartest

If you are partial to the straight silhouette, you will find much to admire in this distinctive frock of navy crêpella. The straight bodice smartly fastens under a flat plait at the center front, and a suggestion of the flare, now so popular, is achieved by the use of inverted plaits running from the curved lower edge of the bodice front to skirt hem. The back is in one piece and quite plain, except for a narrow belt caught in the side seams, which ties in the center back. The collar is of the convertible type, to be worn high or low, and the long set-in sleeves have tab cuffs fastening at the wrists. NO. 1320 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 2¾ yards 54-inch navy crêpella; ¾ yard white crêpe. Price 20 cents.

Many styles of smart apparel may be found in our new Fashion Book. Our designers originate their patterns in the heart of the style centers, and their creations are those of tested popularity, brought within the means of the average woman. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A CHARMING AFTERNOON FROCK.

Madame seems to have a special aptitude for knowing just exactly the type of frock a person should have. This gift is a sort of second sense with her, and it seems to come to her the minute she sees a person.

For instance, a new young client came in today. She was brought by an old customer, who introduced the girl, saying:

"Madame, this is Miss Janet Bristol, the daughter of my best friend, whom I've often mentioned to you."

Madame was delighted to have such a lovely new client and showed her delight in her warm greeting.

"Janet has been begging for mother to let her come to you her months," the older client explained.

"Mother says I'm too young to pay so much for my frocks, but I told her that if you seemed expensive you weren't really, because I'm all in favor of getting awfully good things and wearing them a long time." Janet explained to Madame.

Madame smiled and said:

"You say it's an afternoon frock you want? I have just the model for you in mind, and if you'll wait a few minutes while I sketch it, I want you to see the satin we will use before you go."

As Madame sketched she explained to the older client who had brought Miss Janet:

"She is so charmingly youthful that I want to accent that quality, and this demure little inset yoke and lovely turn-back cuffs will do the trick."

Janet was charmed at the frock. She looked at the completed sketch a moment and said:

"I've never seen pleated godets before!"

"They are very new," Madame assured her. "I thought they'd be good on you, because they give fulness to the skirt which is very useful for teadancing, and at the same time preserves the slender outline of the dress."

Janet agreed heartily with Madame's choices, and gave nods of approval to the heavy black satin and the heavy cream lace which were to be used in the frock.

CORRECT FEEDING FOR SMALL CHILDREN.

We are frequently asked what to feed children between the ages of four and eight. Normal children who are not under a doctor's care oare ften fed just what the family have at their table, sometimes it is all right, but more often it is not the rounded diet the child needs. The following menus suggested may show the mother why it is best to stick to special feeding until the eighth year is reached as food authorities agree. The choice may be used as basis for other menus.

Breakfast, 7:30.

Five stewed prunes, or one baked banana, or half a cupful of either fresh fruit or stewed small fruit. A bowl of well-cooked cereal, oat meal, hominy, farina, or cornmeal, with full milk. Two slices or carefully made toast lightly buttered, and a glass of milk.

Luncheon, 12:30.

A bowl of well-cooked split pea soup, with crisp crackers. A baked potato, or boiled rice, or creamed macaroni. A small serving of some green vegetable or stewed fruit. Then a cup of custard, or bread pudding, or junket.

Supper, 5:30.

A scrambled egg, or a poached egg on toast, a bowl of cereal with milk. Bread and butter. Two plain cookies, or a couple of lady fingers. A cup of whole milk.

By way of variation, a piece of fresh fillet of sole may be poached, then creamed. The lean heart of a delicately broiled lamb chop, or a slice of bread dipped in the drippings of a freshly carved piece of rare roast beef, the blood but no fat. Or a little of the breast of broiled chicken is sometimes allowed. The green vegetable must be carefully washed and cooked. Spinach, asparagus, boiled beets, young creamed carrots, Summer squash, creamed lettuce, or boiled and creamed young onions are a few suggestions.

All fruit, before stewing, should be washed well, then soaked several hours until it comes to three quarters of its normal size. Stew gently until it is done, then add a small quantity of sugar or honey. If the fruit is made too sweet it cloys the taste for other food. Whole fresh milk is better for childre non fruit or cereal than the bottled cream. If in the country, where the cream is taken from the milk at home, it is all right to use. Fresh whole milk, cool but not cold, is best for drinking.

If a child is a poor or a fitful eater, the ten o'clock and three o'clock glass of milk helps out a lot. Sometimes a stiffly beaten egg-white with a little sugar and a few drops of lemon juice in it may be given, or a small dish of ice-cream. These things are nourishing and help out meager meals.

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 22—THE KIWI AND THE COCK-CHAFER.

"I do wish," said Nancy, "that we could find the door to Mister Snoopsy's cave."

"So do I," shivered the little Whiffet, who had lost his shadow.

But what ever else he was going to say will never be known. For they had come upon a most peculiar couple who were having a most peculiar conversation. The peculiar couple consisted of a cock-chafer and a kiwi bird. The peculiar conversation consisted of the following remarks:

"Such big feet," the cock-chafer was saying. "I never saw such big feet on a person your size. And as for tail, tee, hee, hee! Why, you haven't a hair—I mean a feather."

"Have a care, you little shrimp," retorted the kiwi bird. "My tail bothers me not. I do not miss it because I do not eat with it. As for my feet, I dote on them. In Kiwi Land it is not fine feathers, but large feet that make the fine birds. Now I wish to sleep. Begone! But come back at a quarter to twelve—for lunch!"

"To lunch or for lunch," said the cock-chafer.

"For lunch," said the kiwi bird, shutting his eyes and dropping off to sleep as kiwi birds do.

But suddenly he opened his eyes again and looked at the cock-chafer sharply. "What's that?" he demanded.

The cock-chafer jumped about a yard. "Nothing," he chirped. "I didn't say a thing."

"But you were thinking," said the kiwi bird. "I distinctly had a shock and it wasn't a pleasant shock like you get when you open your bureau drawer and find a box of candy you had forgotten about. I had a shock like you get when you put salt on your berries instead of powdered sugar. Now out with it! What were you thinking?"

"Well, then," said the little black beetle with the white velvet spots, "I was thinking that your nose was entirely too long. What time did you say lunch was?"

"It will be right now," said the kiwi bird, "if you don't stop making remarks about my personal appearance."

"Catch me if you can! Catch me if you can!" shouted the cock-chafer rudely, backing away out of reach of the kiwi bird's long bill.

"Oh I can catch you all righteo," said the kiwi bird. "Only I don't dine until a quarter to twelve. It will be time enough then."

So the kiwi bird closed his eyes again and went to sleep.

"He's afraid! He's afraid! He's afraid!" shouted the cock-chafer, dancing around on his short bowlegs. "He's afraid to touch me for fear I might pinch him!"

"Say!" said Nick, for the Twins and the Whiffet had seen and heard the whole thing. "You'd better be careful and not get so saucy, Kiwis eat cock-chafers, you know."

"Perhaps," said the cock-chafer, "but I'm the world's original digger. I can disappear in the ground before you can wink your eye." Which he did. And of course everything looked safe as a bank for Mister Cock-Chafer.

But just then the kiwi bird woke up. "It's a quarter to twelve. I can tell by my appetite," he said suddenly. And with that he stuck his long lead-pencil of a beak quite twelve inches down in the ground and pulled up Mister Cock-Chafer and ate him.

"Handsome is as handsome does," said he. Then he went to sleep again before the Twins could ask him a single thing.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

THE FIRST SALE

By this time Mr. Smith seemed to feel that he had talked quite long enough with one of the little clerks in the store, and he sent a boy with me to show me where my station was.

I had hardly gotten behind the counter when Buddy Tremaine came in. I had never seen him, but I knew him in a moment from Mamie's description, and just as surely I knew that he was looking for me.

He walked up to the floorman and evidently he asked for some one. The man shook his head decidedly. He seemed sure that there was no one by that name on the floor.

I was so sure, however, that he was asking for me that I walked from behind my counter, and said to him: "This way, Mr. Tremaine."

I will say this for Buddy. He certainly was all there when it came to catching on.

He walked across to my counter immediately, saying as he glanced around quickly to see what I was selling, "Have you my handkerchief order filled, Miss Dean?"

"Not yet. I wanted you to help me to pick them out."

"All right, let me see them."

Mr. Tremaine seated himself at the counter, and after I had asked the stock girl on what shelves the most expensive ones were kept, I began to take down box after box of handkerchiefs, telling him the price.

"Look here, Miss Dean. "You know I don't care a darn 'about these, he said softly. "You just put me up about two hundred dollars worth of the best handkerchiefs that you have and let it go at that.

"That ought to pay the store for letting me talk to you for a few minutes, don't you think?"

I bowed my head and smiled, saying: "I think I will give you about a third of them in plain white, Mr. Tremaine."

"Oh, damn the handkerchiefs," he said under his breath. "I have something very important to say to you. I was at the Beaux Arts restaurant this morning before Mamie got there and when she came in she told me that she was going to be very busy in the office arranging for her resignation, and she said that I was to come over here and buy something of you."

ONTARIO DOCTORS MEETING IN LONDON

Directors Meet To-day As Preliminary To Main Sessions.

LONDON, Ont., May 26.—(Canadian Press). — The forty-sixth annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association opened in London yesterday with a meeting in the Masonic Temple at nine o'clock of the Board of Directors.

The Committee on General Purposes met at eleven o'clock and again after luncheon at two o'clock for preparation of the annual report which was presented at the opening session of the convention this morning.

Many medical men from a number of Canadian and American cities arrived in advance of the opening session of the Medical Association meeting to attend two other important preliminary meetings. One is the meeting of the Ontario Neuro Psychiatric Association and the other the meeting of the Trudeau and Laennec Societies. The Trudeau Society, a Michigan organization, and the Laennec Society, an association of Ontario medical men, are specialists in tuberculosis research.

Dr. Charles E. Stewart, assistant superintendent of the Battle Creek Sanitorium, Battle Creek, Michigan, and Dr. Bruce Whyte of the Chest Department of that institution are among the distinguished medical authorities attending the meeting.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much tree alkali, for this is very injurious as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

LEATRICE JOY
The Film Favorite
How She Keeps Her Hair Beautiful

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

YOUR HEALTH

Not long ago Congress was called upon to pass an appropriation bill for the support of the District of Columbia.

You will recall that the City of Washington, being located in the District, is a ward of the Federal Government. In a sense the Congress acts as a Board of Aldermen Common Council, or Board of Estimate, in that it must legislate for and appropriate money to meet the municipal needs of the District.

When the bill was up for consideration I was struck by the number of mandatory appropriations. What a lot of things a community must do, whether it likes it or not. It must take care of its criminals and support its jails. It must provide for the insane and feeble-minded. It must establish and maintain homes for the old, the helpless orphans and the blind. It must nurse the incurables. It must care for the victims of infectious diseases.

No matter what may be the state of public opinion on the subject of taxation, expenditures for these purposes are conceded as unescapable. We face these problems and solve them more or less wisely. But in doing so we deal with the product of disease or with social deficiency.

We spend a lot of money to care for results. What are we doing to prevent disease and to eradicate social conditions which lead to the necessity of making such appropriations?

Considered from the dollars and cents view-point, what better thing could be done than to spend money in the prevention of disease, blindness, insanity, feeblemindedness, and the formidable social factors of evil? The benefits of such a program are beyond estimate.

Proper advice to the prospective mothers, care at delivery, oversight during school days and correction of all remedial physical defects at graduation from the high school, will lay a foundation of health that will guarantee reduced medical and institutional bills for each and every community where this progressive program is installed.

But you mustn't wait for an enlightened public opinion. You must begin now to give your children and your family the kind of care which will insure their physical welfare. That is your first duty. Love for your own will make you glad to have the necessary things done when you are convinced they are needed. I assure you they are needed and that you have it in your power to promote the efficiency and prolong the days of your loved ones.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

J. P. Holland, of the Watertown (Wisconsin) Daily Times says that:

The well set and well displayed advertisements in the newspapers are akin to well kept and well displayed goods in a store.

There is an appeal in every line of the well displayed ad as there is an appeal in the goods.

They go hand in hand as it were—the dingy store which does not believe in advertising and the dingy newspaper whose owner cares little how the ads are set or displayed.

Such ads are passed over with scarcely a glance of recognition, while the store which is daily brightened up and the newspaper which daily brightens up its ads, as well as its news, are always in the public eye.

The newspaper which takes pride in its daily makeup and its advertising columns attracts the business man who takes pride in his store and stock, and attracts its readers, the consumers of the advertised articles.

BROKER'S WIFE FREE SPENDER

19 Pairs of Shoes One Afternoon's Purchase.

$58,000 IN MONTH.

NEW YORK, May 26. — The public yesterday received interesting details of the domestic affairs of Percy K. Hudson, stock broker, with an income of $150,000 a year, and his wife, Elizabeth, who Hudson charges had no trouble at all spending what maney he made.

The case came into court in a separation suit Mrs. Hudson brought, charging abandonment.

Hudson, in his defence, charged that he prepared an apartment at a cost of many thousands of dollars, and then his wife refused to give him a key to it. Finally, it was alleged, they agreed that he was to visit it only on her invitation.

Hudson indicated his patience became exhausted when his wife spent approximately $58,000 for clothing, jewelry and living expenses in a month.

He cited as examples of his wife's wardrobe the following purchases he said she made:

December 4, 1924.—Nine pairs of shoes for $127.

December 6, 1924.—Nineteen pairs of shoes for $392.

Christmas, 1925—Nine dozen pairs of silk stockings at $50 a dozen, and one dozen at $40.

December, 1925.—Assorted hosiery costing $1,320.

In addition, Hudson alleged, his wife acquired jewels worth $243,000.

He paid the bills, he said, but was a "husband in name only."

TARIFF BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Chairman Announces That Meetings Will Be Open To Everyone.

STEEL MEN HEARD.

OTTAWA, May 26. Canadian Press. — At the first public hearing of the tariff board this morning, Hon. George P. Graham, chairman, informed applicants that the board was beginning on an experiment.

The Board was to be an open forum where everybody who wanted to be heard, could be heard. Its purpose was to secure the facts and place them before the Minister of Finance.

Memorandum of Algoma Steel Company was then read. It was claimed that iron and steel producers were faced with relatively higher costs of raw material, labor and transportation to consuming markets than their foreign competitors.

On account of the heavy production of European and United States mills, costs there were much lower than in the Dominion. "For such reason alone, it is essential that the Canadian steel producers should receive better protection." Suggested alterations in the present tariff were made.

IN POLICE COURT

Magistrate O. A. Langley adjourned judgement for one week in the case of Mrs. Caroline Henry, who was charged with illegally having a still for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor in her home. Joseph Wearing acted for the prosecution and J. A. O'Brien appeared for the accused.

The accused pleaded not guilty.

W. H. Buller of the Department of Customs and Excise, examined by Mr. Wearing, said that in company with another officer and License Inspector Joseph Stewart, he entered the premises of the accused. The accused was the only adult in the house at the time, he said, and on entering the kitchen they found a still in full operation, with liquor coming out of the worm into a jar.

Mrs. Henry, the accused, examined by Mr. O'Brien, stated that the still belonged to her husband. Her husband, she said, placed the still on the stove and lighted the fire. He stated that she had heard there was a warrant out charging her husband with a similar offence. She did not know her husband's whereabouts, and had tried to get in touch with him but without success, she said. The reason she wanted to get him was that she wanted him to take the blame himself, as the still belonged to him. She said that her husband left the house about 15 or 20 minutes before the arrival of the officers, saying that he would be back in a little while. The reason she did not notify the police of the still or remove it from the stove was, she said, "her husband was liable to subject her to physical abuse if she removed it." She admitted trying to prevent the officers from entering the house, but claimed that she did not know they were officers of the law.

Mr. O'Brien in summing up stated that the defence was that a husband was responsible for everything that happened in his home. His client, in his opinion, he said, was being made the scapegoat by a despicable wretch, her husband, he said.

Mr. Wearing, for the prosecution, maintained that the accused was the person in possession at the time.

His Worship adjourned his decision for one week in order that he might give the matter of possession fuller consideration.

The case against C. Rightmeyer, charged with keeping intoxicating liquor for sale, was adjourned until June 2, by the consent of both counsel.

His Worship dismissed the charge against the two men who were charged with illegal fishing, and whose case was last week.

Smelters Are Strong Issue On Heavy Stock Exchange

TORONTO, May 26. Canadian Press. — The broad list was dealt in on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, and trading was increased in volume, but few large advances were recorded in the general moderate upturn. Smelters, the leader, was also one of the strongest issues, advancing 1½ at 206¼. Brazilian advanced ½ at 96 1-2, and industrial alcohol, third active leader, firmed 1-8 at 19 5-8 after touching 20. International Nickel improved ½ point at 35½ and City Dairy ¼ at 69 1-4. Canada Bread common softed 3-8, 60. Lake Shore was the strong mining stock, climbing 40c at 11.00.

Very Small Trading On Mining Exchange

TORONTO, May 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Trading was almost at a standstill on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. The transactions were only about a quarter of the usual volume and the price changes were very few. Undertone was firm. Lake Shore advanced forty cents at 11.00, the largest move of the morning. Barry Hollinger gained one at 42, and one point gains were also made by Beaver, at 71, and Castle Trethewey at 138.

Wheat Swings Upward With Heavy Foreign Buying

CHICAGO, May 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Foreign buying of future deliveries here and the fact that practically no more wheat can be shipped to Chicago in time to fill May contracts, gave values a decided swing upward to-day. With Winnipeg reporting an increase of bad crop reports, Chicago wheat quotations opened unchanged to 5-8 cents up and soon showed in some cases nearly 3 cents gain. Enlarged rural offerings of corn made corn and oats easy, Corn starting unchanged to 3-8c. off and later sagging all around. Provisions also were easy.

Outside interest in the wheat market showed considerable increase to-day and trade as a whole was much broader than of late.

LAKEFIELD COUPLE ARE GOING ABROAD

Presentation To Mr. and Mrs. A. G Lawless

LAKEFIELD, May 25. — The Catholic Women's League held a card party and dance in the Hotel Lakefield on Friday evening, with a very large crowd present. The dance was held in the rotunda with a good orchestra in attendance and more than one hundred couples tripped the light fantastic till about one o'clock. Progressive euchre was played in the dining room and was under the direction of Misses Martha Garvey and Carrie Maloney. Prizes were won by Mrs. O'Brien (Peterboro), and Mr. Ambrose Coughlin. The consolation prizes were won by Miss A. Morin and Mr. M. P. Coughlin.

Refreshments were served about 11.30 by an efficient committee and before the dancing was resumed the prizes for euchre were presented and an address was read to Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lawless and a steamer rug presented to Mrs. Lawless and a handsome umbrella to Mr. Lawless, who have left for an extended trip abroad. The following is the address.

To Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lawless, Lakefield.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Lawless.—We are assembled here this evening, as on many former occasions, to spend with you a social evening and to enjoy your generous and wholehearted hospitality, on this, the eve of your departure to the Old Land, we take occasion to thank you for this hospitality.

The Parish of St. Paul's is particularly indebted to you, for your house was ever open for any and every enterprise undertaken for the benefit of the parish. You do not realize whhat this has meant to us. Nor shall we ever be able to repay you for it, but we feel sure you know what we try to express when we say 'Thank you."

In the Holy Name Society, you, Mr. Lawless, were from the beginning a prominent and active member. In the League and the Altar Society, your name, Mrs. Lawless, always ranked first. In every parish activity you gave unsparingly of your time, talents and financial support to such an extent that we feel it would be next to impossible to undertake any work without Mrs. Lawless' advice and able assistance. On this occasion we regret your departure, but when we realize that your absence will be only temporary we bid you "God speed."

In a few days you set sail for Europe and will shortly be separated from us by the broad expanse of the mighty Atlantic, but be assured, dear Mr. and Mrs. Lawless, you leave fond memories behind you and carry with you our most sincere wish for a bon voyage, good health and a safe return. As a tangible proof of these good wishes, we ask you to accept these litle gifts, which may remind you, when far away, of your good friends at home in Lakefield.

Signed on behalf of the parish.

Ambrose Coughlin, Robert Allen, Mrs. George Charlton, Miss Mona Fortier, Miss Emma Kennedy, Mrs. Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawless were completely taken by surprise and deeply touched at the presentation and the good wishes which accompanied it, which were unanimously echoed by all present. Mr. Lawless replied, thanking their friends and assuring them of the pleasure they felt in entertaining these gatherings and hoping that in the future these might be many more.

The remainder of the evening was given up to dancing. This At Home was one of the most successful held by the League, financially and numerically and by reason of the good time which everyone had. These parties grow more and more popular and are eagerly looked forward to by a large number of people.

COTTAGERS OPEN SEASON AT LAKES

Many Made First Trip By Boat Saturday.

LAKEFIELD, May 26—A steamer left the village on the arrival of the noon train on Saturday, en route for Stoney Lake, with a large quota of passengers going up to spend the week-end at their cottages, to see what will be needed for the season, and also how and where the wharf may be. This is one of the spring problems of the cottager, as strange things happen. A great deal depends on the direction of the wind when the ice breaks. Some cottagers whose property is on low ground have had a surprise to find the woodpile destined for summer consumption has floated off. Flower beds are usually planted about the 24th, and leaves are raked up and a pleasant week-end spent.

Work has been commenced on the improvements which are to be made to Crawford Bros. butcher shop. A cement foundation is being put in and the front of the building is to be altered. W. J. Webster has the contract.

A new cafe will be opened in a few days in the store next to Dickson's, and will be known as the King Cafe. Work is being rushed on the necessary alterations.

Bulbs are blooming in the flower gardens, tulips and daffodils make a cheerful note of color, announcing to all and sundry that spring is here in spite of the croaker who proclaims that there will be no warm weather.

Gardeners are buying their seeds and bedding plants, although very few, are actually planting their gardens quite so early. Locally-grown rhubarb and asparagus are on the market.

Canon Braithwaite of Winchester Cathedral, England, will be the preacher in St. John's Church next Sunday morning and evening.

Sunday, being Whitsunday, the feast of Penticost was observed in St. John's Church by a celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 o'clock and by special sermons. Rev. A. W. Mackenzie officiated in the morning and Mr. R. N. Stuart, lay reader, of Peterboro, in the evening.

The Church Guild of St. John's Church held their closing meeting for the season at "Uplands," the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Strickland. There was a good attendance present, and a delightful afternoon was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Connell moved to "Harborne" last week. They have leased the property from Mrs. F. J. Tate.

"I Didn't Want To Be a Miser!"

"It was a difficult place to be in, but what was I to do? I knew I was losing out with my wife and family, and myself too, but I just couldn't think of what the future might be for Alice and the children and spend every last cent.

"So I worked, slaved, saved; but it didn't give me much pleasure nor satisfaction.

"—Finally I discovered something.

"I found that by depositing just a little more than 10% of my salary with The London Life, I actually guarantee everything for which I had been striving,—protection for my family and our home and other investments, together with provision for my own old age.

"Now we do get genuine enjoyment out of the pleasures we treat ourselves to. We have money for the present because our plans for the future are so well laid."

The London Life Jubilee and Duplex policies meet perfectly the needs of men in this position. Any of our representatives will be pleased to explain them without obligation.

Bowling

AT K. OF C. ALLEYS.

The bowling games which have been going on for the past seven weeks among ladies' teams at the Knights of Columbus' alleys in a second additional schedule to the season's playing have aroused a good deal of interest. GOLFERS COMPETE.

Mixed Two Ball Foursome Played at Local Club on Holiday.

There was a large crowd out at the Peterboro Golf and Country Club's links yesterday and the greens were in excellent shape. The holiday competition was a mixed two ball foresome, and the winners were Mrs. Gardiner and George A. MacDonald, who turned in the best set score, and also the best green score.

WALTER MAILS PASSES

Walter Mails, southpaw and comedian, has slipped back again. As you know, Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals shunted the eccentric flinger to Syracuse the other day. There he's likely to stay for some time.

Mails—"The Great Mails" as the Pacific Coast League knew him—stepped into fame back in 1920 when he won seven straight games for Cleveland after joining the club late in the season. His sensational work had much to do with bringing the Forest City its first and only pennant. In the world series that fall Mails played an important part, too, holding the heavy-hitting Brooklyn team to few hits and less runs.

Shortly after Mails drifted back to the coast where he likewise proved a winner. The Cards got the easy-going hurler last season and he did fairly well, though handicapped by injuries.

Mails has always preferred to play on the coast. This spring Hornsby told Mails if he didn't deliver he'd be shipped to Syracuse, not to the Pacific slope. Hornsby figured it might cause Mails to take the big tent seriously. It didn't however, so Hornsby made good his threat.

FONTAINES WIN LEAGUE OPENER

C.G.E. LOSE 16-11.

The official opening of the Men's Softball League took place last night in Central Park, with Mayor Holloway at the bat, Alderman Bob Cotton, president of the Ladies' Softball League, pitching, and John E. Sullivan, president of the Men's Softball League, catching. The Mayor took one vicious swipe at the first ball pitched by the Alderman and drove it well into centre field.

Fontaines won the game from the C.G.E. with better fielding, and they gave more support to their pitcher. The C.G.E. suffered a break in the second innings which gave Fontaines six runs, and after that the winners were always well in the lead. Both Nichols and Dormer turned in good games, with Dormer proving a little better in the pinches. The game showed that the teams had not had much practice and after a few more games they should play more snappy ball. Maudsley, for the winners, was the leading run-getter, having four to his credit, while McDonnough, on the loosers' team, had three to his credit. The score:

Fontaines ..... 061030132—16
C.G.E. ..... 202200302—11

The line-up:

Fontaines—Cameron, ss; A. Baird 2b; Woods, lf; Oxley, cf; J. Baird, 3b; Maudsley, 1b; Dormer, p; Holland, c; McLeish, rf.

OXFORD LOSES TO AUSTRALIA

Second Victory For Touring Cricketers in England.

OXFORD, England, May 26 (Canadian Press Cable).—The Oxford University cricket eleven were defeated by the touring Australians in a three-day match played here, the Australians winning by one innings and thirteen runs. This was the second victory scored by the visitors in the course of their present tour, their previous "victims" being Hampshire. In the six other matches played, five have been drawn and one abandoned.

The Australians' record so far reads: Minor Counties (drawn), Leicester (drawn), Essex (abandoned, rain), Hampshire (won), Surrey (drawn), the M.C.C. (drawn), Cambridge University (drawn), and Oxford University (won).

To-day the tourists are scheduled to begin their game with the South of England, the match to be staged at Bristol.

The end of the play on Monday found Oxford at bat for the second time. In the first innings, the Dark Blues had marked up 131; and the Australians' response was 321. Going in for the second time, the Collegians had had two men disposed of, Serrurier and Stewart-Brown, with E. R. T. Holmes and C. H. Taylor not out for 91 runs.

This looked much more promising than the initial innings, for both Holmes and Taylor had contributed considerably to the score, and when they resumed Tuesday they were standing at 19 and 20 respectively. Unfortunately for the Dark Blues, Holmes had added only one more run when Gregory bowled him out. Further disaster loomed in front of Oxford when G. E. B. Legge succumbed to the same bowler at three, but at this juncture the heavy-scoring J. S. Stephenson took the bat. Stephenson had been top scorer for the Dark Blues in the first innings, running up 45, a figure that was exceeded in the whole game only by T. J. E. Andrews of the Antipodeans, who made a straight half-century. The burden of run-getting was borne by Taylor and Stephenson and together they set themselves the rather hopeless task of wiping out their side's deficit. It was a case of the history of the first innings repeating itself, for these two had been the mainspring of Oxford's defence.

The partnership was gallant but unavailing, Stephenson was in excellent form, but the hard driving of Taylor overshadowed him. In one hour the two of them had contributed 52, and in that total was a sixer and three boundaries from Taylor's bat. Unfortunately, Taylor's fortress was undermined by the tricky and insoluble bowling of Richardson, who eventually took his stumps when the Oxonian had rang up 59.

Thereafter there was little to the game. Stephenson went from a catch by Woodfull off Grimmett at 23, and the others were indifferent.

Tony Lazzeri, the Pacific Coast League recruit, promises to be of considerable help to the pennant aspirations of the New York Yankees.

During the evening an address of farewell was read and Harriet was presented with a handsome leather club bag and French ivory manicure set. Miss Potts' Campbellford friends wish her the best of luck in her training. She left on Friday for Rochester, where she will spend a few days before leaving for Buffalo.

BETHANY HOLDS FINE FIELD DAY

Annual Sports Day of Athletic Association is Well Patronized.

GOOD BALL GAMES.

BETHANY, May 26. — Bright sunshine and a good crowd were to be seen at the annual field day which was held under the auspices of the Athletic Association on the Athletic Park here Monday, May 24th.

The most interesting game played was between the Bethany girls soft ball team and the Janetville girls. The score was 21-4 in favor of the home team. Mr. LeBarr of Peterboro umpired the game.

The different baseball games played were not of an exciting nature, as the players were not as nimble as they will be later on in the season. They evidently have not the chill of the past winter out of their bones yet but better things are expected of them again. Lindsay boys came up against Peterboro boys; the score was 4-3 in favor of Lindsay. The Bethany team then played Janetville with a score of 17-3 in favor of the Bethany boys. In both games Mr. LeBarr was the umpire.

The Women's Institute held a tag day in aid of the street light and realized a fair sum.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church served an appetizing supper in the Sunday school room which was well patronized.

At 8 o'clock a play entitled "Our Boys," was presented in the town hall by the Baraca class of the Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro. The orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Cecil Gallaher, produced some very fine music.

A dance wound up the evening's programme.

BELATED RALLY WINS FOR MILL

Lead Secured By St. Andrews in Second Gradually Cut Down.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26.—Staging a batting rally in the last of the eighth that netted them six runs, the Mill overcame the commanding lead that St. Andrews had held from the second innings, to win last night's game in the Softball Association, 24 to 22. The game was late in starting owing to the non-appearance of some of St. Andrews players, and the church team tok the field with six players, another player joining the squad in the sixth innings.

The Mill boys gave their worst display of fielding since the league was organized, and only their belated rally saved them from defeat. Bell, of the Mill, was the batting hero with five safeties in five times at bat, two of them good for the circuit. Reynolds, of St. Andrews, had three homers, two of them in the second innings when the Saints scored 10 runs. Line-up.

FAMOUS FEET
..how they're kept free from corns..

GENE SARAZEN'S Golfing Feet

"Thirty-six holes of golf a day certainly doesn't drive corns away," writes Gene Sarazen.

"But Blue-jay does. A sensitive toe gets a lot of friction in a day's going on the links. But when a corn appears, I put on a Blue-jay plaster."

In every walk of life, where feet are essential to fame and fortune, Blue-jay is the preferred method for vanquishing corns. A cool and velvety pad fits over the corn and relieves the pressure and pain at once. Then the corn goes—unless unusually stubborn. But even the most obstinate corn seldom needs more than a second plaster. At all drug stores.

JOHN DUNCAN DUNN—PSYCHOLOGY.

The feeling should be ever present in the miad of the ambitious golfer that a thing can be done and that he can do it.

The things which will contribute chiefly toward his doing it well are intelligent practice, plenty of it, and a clear and comprehensive knowledge of what his faults are and how he is going about eliminating them.

We can all remember at school cases of where the tortoise has beat the hare, metaphorically speaking.

We can remember boys who seemed to learn everything right away and other boys who seemed almost stupid, but who were plodders and when it came to examinations the plodders often passed with flying colors and the brilliant ones were plucked. That is exactly so in golf.

Diamond Disputes Decided

By WILLY EVANS

When two runners are occupying the same base, the situation not being due to any force play, to whom does the base belong?

If the final ending of a play finds two runners on the same base, without any force play figuring in the situation, the base always belongs to the original occupant.

To illustrate: With runners on second and third the batsman hits sharply to the infield which is in close for a play at the plate. The shortstop gets the ball and throws to the catcher ahead of the runner.

In the run-up that follows the batsman gets to second and the other runners are on third before either has been retired, the man from second advancing to third and the other runner getting safely back to his base.

The base belongs to the original occupant. To retire one of the runners standing on the bag it would be necessary to touch the runner who had advanced from second.

If that runner could get safely back to second and the batsman who had reached second could get safely back to first base, everybody would be safe.

MOVIGRAPHS

NEW YORK, May 26.—Under terms of an agreement between the UFA company of Germany and several American producing and distributing companies, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation was this year permitted its choice of the outstanding productions made by the European company.

It chose "Variety," a drama starring Emil Jannings and Lya de Putti, and also "Metropolis," a fantastic drama of New York in the year 2000.

"Variety" tells the story of a trio of marvelous trapeze performers. Two of these parts are taken by Mr. Jannings and Miss de Putti.

The plot centers about a love triangle between the three and reaches its climax when Jannings, realizing that he is losing Miss de Putti's love, decides to permit his rival to drop from the dizzy heights of the trapeze to the crowded floor below.

Jannings at the last minute loses his nerve and what follows is to be said one of the most tense moments ever caught by a movie camera.

Mr. Jannings is expected in America next fall to star in Paramount pictures. Miss de Putti already is in this count and now is working in "The Sorrows of Satan," directed by D. W. Griffith.

BELLEVILLE HOPE TO WIN SATURDAY

Walter Gerow's Team in Good Shape For Week End Battle.

The Belleville ball club with several new faces in the line-up but with most of the old guard still in harness will be here on Saturday to meet the Petes in the first home game of the Central Ontario League season. The Quinte crew were nosed out by Kingston on Monday but they showed fine form and expect to knock off the Johnstonites Saturday. The Petes cannot see it from that angle at all, and are very hopeful of breaking into the win column at the expense of the Gerowmen. Belleville will have Oulette or Goyer on the rubber. Feeney Mills behind the bat; Harry Mills, Weir, Blakely and either Meagher or Gibson in the infield and Ross Hagerman and Palmer in the gardens. Manager Johnston has Heckman, Hardill and Lennox all ready to work Saturday and there has been no announcement as to which will start against the Easterners. The park is being groomed for the occasion and will be in the best of condition by Saturday. Belleville always put up a tough argument in Peterboro and this week's game promises to line up to the old traditions.

CRICKET GAME WON BY LOCALS

P. C. C. Beats Upper Canada Occasionals By 36 Runs.

ON HOLIDAY.

Peterboro C. C. entertained the Upper Canada Occasional Cricket Team on the holiday and won a fine match by 36 runs. The game commenced at noon, and Peterboro went in to bat first, opening with Dunkerley and Coutts to the bowling of Grier and Carpenter. The bowling was good and the different variety of the bowlers kept the two batsmen playing very cautiously, Carpenter being especially tricky with his slow leg breaks. With 4 runs only scored Coutts mistimed a ball from Carpenter and was caught by Grier.

Doug. Hammond was next man in but was also caught by Grier off the first ball he received, 2 good wickets being down for only 4 runs.

Thorpe then found Dunkerley who was playing a correct, careful game. These two players by very cautious playing put a brighter aspect on the Peterboro score by bringing the total to 28 before Dunkerley was given out lbw. F. Dyer was next in and with the total at 34 for 3 wickets, the game was adjourned for lunch, Thorpe being not out 12, and Dyer not out 2.

Play was again commenced at 2.15 p.m. With only a few runs added, Dyer was clean bowled by Dobson, who was now bowling from the south end. Dr. Hewitt came next, and he soon started hitting the bowling. With 49 runs scored, Thorpes patient innings ended for 14 runs. R. Dyer scored 2 and was caught. Langley hit away merrily for 15 runs and the score was brought to 68. Dr. Hewitt hit up 19 runs before being bowled by Dobson. The other Peterboro batsmen who added materially to the score were Monkman and Stuart who made useful totals. The last wicket fell at 93, a good score for a low scoring wicket. Harris was the most successful Toronto bowler, capturing 6 wickets for 30 runs.

Toronto started batting at 3.30 with Seagrams and J. Grier against the bowling of F. Dyer and Dunkerley. With 3 runs scored Dunkerley bowled Seagram. C. G. Grier and McGiverin were soon disposed of with the addition ow only 3 runs—3 wickets being down for 6 runs. Dobson played good cricket for 10 runs, Carpenter, a big hitter, who has often repreesnted Toronto in big matches, was clean bowled by Dyer for only 2 runs; a good batsman being got rid of cheaply.

The Peterboro fielding was keen and the batsmen found it hard to get runs. Harris and Stuart were the only other men to give the bowlers any trouble. The scoring finally totalling 57, leaving Peterboro with a fine win by 36 runs. F. Deyer took 6 wickets for 25 runs; Dunkerley 2 for 11 runs; Thorpe 2 wickets for 18 runs and Hammond 1 wicket for 0 runs.

The teams had lunch and tea at the new Paragon tea rooms, where Charlie Coleman looked after their needs in first class manner. A few cricket stories were told by members of both teams. The Toronto team left the city about 7 p.m. after seemingly enjoying the day's outing. A return game will probably be played in Toronto in the very near future.

The smallest dog ever entered for the Waterloo Cup, the world's greatest coursing event, actually won the cup in two successive years. This was Coomassie, winner in 1877 and 1878, which was picked up at a sale for a few dollars and used for a time as a rabbit dog. After her capabilities were discovered she won $7,500 in stake money.

MONTREAL PAPERS REPORT ON ADDRESS

Give Lengthy Summaries of Dr. Blagrave's Convocation Speech.

The Montreal "Star" and Montreal "Gazette" in their issues of Friday last, report at some length the address given by Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., rector of St. John's Church, at the Fifty-third annual Convocation of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College, held on Thursday last.

"In his convocation address," said the Montreal Star, "Dr. Blagrave laid stress on the outlook that should inspire those who bore witness for the church today. There was, he said, a three-fold obligation devolving upon them, first through the realization that the church was concerned in general with religion; the witness of the church today had in common the ideals of all who are assigned to the maintenance of religion of any kind.

"More particularly, said Dr. Blagrave, the church is concerned with the maintenance of Christianity, since Christianity was the only religion which has been able to survive the enlightenment resulting from modern progress; it was the only one that could not only stand up against modern civilization, but could also inspire it to better things.

"The third obligation of the witness of the church, said Dr. Blagrave, was the maintenance of the doctrines of the Church of England, which was a matter of having faith in the church's conception of Christianity.

"Let us utilize the assets of the modern mind," he urged, "instead of fulminating against its unbeliefs. We can use them to drive home more deeply our conception of God. All ages have made some contribution of nature, and nature therefore becomes bound up in men; but he is so far above all the other things in nature, his own mind, with which he created science itself, is so much the greater power, unanalysed, that it contains in itself evidence of his divine origin."

"The very mental apparatus with which man, as an opponent to belief in God, carried on his contentions, concluded Dr. Blagrave, was proof in the reality of that which he tried to deny."

TORONTO, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—The demand for permits to sell 4.4 percent beer in this province is normal, according to James Hales, K.C., chairman of the Board of License Commissioners. Mr. Hales said the popularity of the beer, or otherwise, could not be ascertained from the applications for license renewals, as the new applicants were equal to number of those not desiring renewals.

THEATRE

SUPERB RAILROAD MELODRAMA BUILT ALONG NEW LINES

"Whispering Smith" Packed With Thrills and Drama Based on History

Something decidedly new in Western photoplay presentation is offered in 'Whispering Smith' which feature production has been booked by the Regent Theatre for three days, beginning tomorrow Thursday.

Heretofore we have seen Indians and renegades stage raids and hold-ups on the frontier, and after stealing the girl ride away to the hills where, eventually, the hero locates the thieving band, stages a heroic battle and rescues the heroine—and marries her.

In "Whispering Smith," one of the most colorful stories of the early west—founded on actualities—all this is lacking and in its stead are featured authentic historical scenes of railroading in the shadow of the Rockies. Of bands of marauders, freight car thieves and hold-up men. Of daring robberies and foul murder of railroad and ranch hands.

During the building of the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and other Western railroads, cattle and sheep men, of the plains, and manufacturers of the East suffered heavy losses through the theft of their goods en route to market.

And around the railway detectives, U. S. Marshals and Sheriffs of various counties, Frank Hamilton Spearman wrote this story—"Whispering Smith."

In this production of "Whispering Smith," Director Melford had the co-operation of Spearman and also Joe Le Fors, the man who inspired the author to write his book. An excellent cast is featured. This includes H. B. Warner, John Bowers, Lilyan Tashman, and Lillian Rich. In the support are Eugene Pallette, Robert Edeson, James Mason, Nelson McDowell, Warren Rodgers, Richard Neill, and Will Walling.

CONFERENCE GAVEL SYMBOLIZES UNITY

Rev. Dr. J. A. Doyle, President of United Church Body.

WINNIPEG, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Rev. Dr. J. A. Doyle, superintendent of missions, was elected president of the Manitoba conference of the United Church of Canada at the opening session of a three-day meeting here Tuesday.

Following an impressive devotional service, the first act of business was of historic import—the presentation of a conference gavel by Dr. John Maclean.

Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches are represented in the make-up of the gavel. The gavel head is made of wood from the Methodist Church built at Norway House in 1871; the Presbyterian denomination is represented by a portion of wood taken from the first house used by Manitoba College in 1871, and a silver shield, bearing the history of the gavel, is the Congregationalists contribution.

In his adress, Dr. A. B. Baird, retiring president, stressed the obligations for service which rests on the individual Christian, whatever his calling, and emphasized the work being carried on by the United Church in Manitoba.

Three hundred and eighty-five delegates, representing all parts of the province and western Ontario, attended the opening session.

BELGIAN DOG RECOVERS FOX

Puppy Wanders Away in the Night and Is Led Home.

STRONG, TOO.

The remarkable intelligence of the Belgian police dog was emphasized during the early hours of Tuesday, when "Captain," the dog owned by G. G. Hendren, Silver Fox Rancher, Peterboro, was the means of recovering a valuable fox puppy.

The puppy had disappeared from its pen during the night, and at dawn no traces of it or the dog could be found. At 6.20 a.m., both were observed coming down the highway at a slow pace, "Capt." being in front, and frequently glancing at and at the puppy which was closely following.

The great strength and determination of "Cap" was further emphasized by the fact that he had snapped a strong steel chain with which he was tethered, half of it still being attached to the collar on his return to the ranch with the fox.

While it is not certain that any attempt had been made to steal the fox, the means of its escape remain a mystery. In any case only the dogs sagacity is entirely responsible for its recovery.

PETLOURA SLAIN.

Former Premier of Ukraine Assassinated.

PARIS, May 26. Canadian Press. —The spectacular career of General Simon Petlura, former president of the Ukranian Republic, recognized as such by the allies in March, 1919, and later beaten by the Bolsheviki, came to an end last night. He died in the "Charite Hospital," a few hours after he was shot down by a Ukrainian Jew, Samuel Schwartzbar, in the student quarter of Paris. Petlura was walking in the Boulevard St. Michael when he was accosted by Schwartbmar, who shouted "Dirty Dog, defend yourself!" Then he fired a revolver. Schwartzar exulted over his deed, saying it was in revenge for the way Petlura had mistreated the Russian Jews in the Ukraine.

POLICE SEEKING WOMAN AND BOY

Mother Says She Had Letter Threatening Life of Son.

MISSING FOR WEEK.

NEW YORK, May 26.—(United Press).—The police yesterday organized a search for Mrs. Edith Davis, 47 years old and 14-year-old Charles Murfitt, who disappeared a week ago.

The boy had boarded at the Davis home for six months. His mother showed the police an anonymous letter she had received, which she claimed, was in Mrs. Davis handwriting, threatening death to her son.

"I am down-hearted, all in, and sick of living." "You have me for a fool". "Now its my turn to get revenge and send your boy home dead."

Mrs. Murfitt said Mrs. Davis had asked her to allow the boy to board with her because she was lonely.

STILL OPERATING NEAR MILLBROOK

James Richardson Fined $263 By Magistrate Floyd.

MILLBROOK, May 26.—Magistrate Floyd imposed a fine of $200 and costs on James Richardson, who was tried here on Saturday on a charge of having a still on his premises.

Provincial Police Cousans made the arrest, he and Inspector Goodrich having visited Richardson's home, about three miles west of the village, last week and seized the still and a quantity of mash and liquor.

In pronouncing sentence the magistrate stated that had it not been for Richardson's previous good character and the fact that this is a first offence he would have given additional sentence of one month in jail besides the fine and costs, which totalled $263.00.

F. H. Field of Cobourg appeared for the defendant and T. F. Hall of Cobourg represented the Crown. Richardson pleaded guilty to the charge.

VERMONT CENTRAL DEFICIT $822,755

OTTAWA, May 26.—(Canadian Press.)— The Central Vermont Railway, the capital stock of which is largely owned by the Canadian National Railways, had a net deficit of $822,755 in 1925. This is shown in the annual statement of the road tabled in the House of Commons Tuesday. In passing, Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways, remarked during his speech on Canadian National Railway affairs that the operation of the C. V. Railway was not included in his statement.

The result of the operation of the Central Vermont road in 1925, however, showed an improvement over 1924 of $74,307. The gross revenue increased $82,886. Total operating expenses increased $59,790, chiefly because of extraordinary expenditure last year on maintenance of way.

FARMER KILLED CROSSING TRACK

Walter Herman Dies When Train Hits Car Near Corinth.

WIFE IS HURT.

ST. THOMAS, May 26. Canadian Press. — Walter Herman, a farmer residing just south of Corinth, was almost instantly killed last evening, when the automobile he was driving was struck by a special Wabash passenger train, carrying officials on an inspection trip on a grade crossing east of Corinth. Mrs. Herman, the other occupant of the auto, was taken to the hospital at Tillsonburg in a very serious condition and little hope is held out for her recovery.

The crossing is considered a comparatively safe one. It is equipped with a signal.

CHURCH CHOIR VISITS ISLAND

St. Andrew's Choir Entertained By Leader at Stoney Lake.

ANNUAL OUTING.

(Contributed.)

On Monday (Victoria Day), St. Andrew's Choir, following the practice of the last five years, journeyed up to Gladhalken, Mr. Crane's cottage on Stony Lake. Everything contributed to make the day one of great pleasure. The weather was ideal, the company most congenial, and our host the inimitable Mr. John Crane.

Through the kindness of various members and friends of the choir we were taken in automobiles to Lakefield. It did seem cool for a picnic but former experience has taught us that the day always turns out satisfactorily. At Lakefield, we boarded the Stony Lake and proceeded to Young's Point. Here a change of steamers was necessary due to the building of the new lock. The Islinda was boarded and we proceeded on our way.

Gladhalken was reached in good time, where our host, to show his optimism of the weather, had donned his straw hat. Various sports were engaged in at the island but the chief one was getting dinner. Many had had hasty and abbreviated breakfasts and were naturally clamorous for an early dinner long-continued. It is always surprising how well some people can eat at picnics. In Goldsmith's "Traveller," in describing one particular person are the lines:

"And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all he knew."

One is reminded of these lines, only of course the lines must be altered to suit a different part of the anatomy than the head.

After returning to Lakefield, the annual ball game took place. It is the annual game for some of the members. They pile up so many runs on this occasion that their quota of runs is filled for the year. It is impossible to give the score as we had neglected to bring an adding machine along. There is always a vast store of latent and unexpected talent unearthed on these occasions. Some of the pitchers had evidently been accustomed to the Giants'; they were out of their class in pitching only to the Cubs.

By means of automobiles and one of Cooney and Jopling's new buses we then journey to Chemong for tea. Here we were extended most thoughtful courtesies by the proprietors, Messrs. Forler and Kimmel, which were most highly appreciated. A person can scarcely be expected to eat two big meals in one day, but all did their best. A toast to Mr. Crane was drunk most enthusiastically. We were a very picturesque crowd adorned by the variegated headgear so kindly provided by the proprietors of the Pavilion. Some represented Scotchmen; others, gentlemen of the 18th Century; a few represented the military, but most might be classed as nondescript.

When tea was finished, the party was almost ended. Some left for home, but many remained to dance. All pronounced the day one of the best yet and were delighted when Mr. Crane declared the picnics were to be continued.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of George Wilson Gray, who died May 26th, 1923:

We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking.
Thoughts of you are always near;
When the shades of night are falling
And we are still alone.
There often comes a longing—
If daddy only could come home.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

PENNY POSTAGE RESTORED JULY 1ST, BUT POSTCARDS UNCHANGED; TAX ON PLAYING CARDS REDUCED

Hon. Mr. Robb's Budget Resolutions Given First Reading.

IN COMMITTEE.

Hon. Mr. Meighen Refers To Increase in Sales Tax.

OTTAWA, May 27 (Canadian Press).—Budget resolutions for the return of penny postage, abolition of the receipt tax, reducing the tax on playing cards, extending the list both of articles exempt from sales tax and of articles liable to only fifty per cent. sales tax passed the House yesterday.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, had two amendments, both of which were adopted. One added steel tubing for oil wells and machinery for pumping crude oil to the list of articles exempt from sales tax. The other added dried or evaporated apples to the list of articles liable to only fifty per cent. of the sales tax.

A bill based on the resolutions was given first reading.

During discussion, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader, wanted to know what had become of "crocodile tears" shed by Liberals when the sales tax was first imposed. The sales tax was now five per cent., or two per cent. more than under the previous Government. Mr. Robb observed that the Government had removed the sales tax from certain articles and reduced it on others. He thought abolition of the sales tax should be gradual—suggesting reduction at the rate of one per cent. every year or six months.

The income tax resolutions are before the House to-day.

$6,500,000 Less on Postage.

The first amendment under discussion yesterday was that providing for the return of penny postage on July 1. Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, stated that the amendment would remove the one cent tax on letters for outside points within Canada. The additional cent would, however, remain on dron letters and post cards. It was estimated that the reduction in taxation, for the year, as a consequence of the change, would amount to $5,500,000.

J. D. Chaplin (Conservative, Lincoln) asked what was being done about the postage on newspapers. The Post Office Department was carrying big city newspapers at less than cost, and the effect was to put many country newspapers out of business.

Mr. Robb agreed that perhaps the postage on newspapers did not represent a profit. The subject might be brought up when Post Office estimates were before the House.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) and R. H. Hanson (Conservative, York-Sunbury) wanted to know why the postage on letters to Great Britain was not being reduced. The Minister replied that that was a matter for the Postmaster-General to deal with. It had nothing to do with his bill. The item passed.

Receipt Tax Abolished.

The clause abolishing the receipt tax also passed the committee. Mr. Robb said the Minister of Customs estimated that it would result in a loss of $750,000 a year.

Sir Henry Drayton challenged the figure. How much had been collected last year?

Mr. Robb admitted that some people had been evading the tax.

Sir Henry retorted that the only people that did pay the tax were the few who thought it was meant seriously. He was sure that the estimate of $750,000 lost was a wild guess.

The clause reducing the tax on playing cards from 15 cents to 10 cents a pack also carried the committee.

The Sales Tax.

Consideration was then given to an amendment providing that, where any person, other than the manufacturer, producer, importer, transferee or licensed wholesaler, acquired from any of these parties the right to sell goods, the sale of such goods by him would be subject to the sales tax.

Mr. Robb said the Government had removed the sales tax on certain articles and reduced it on others. He thought it should be our objective to get rid of the sales tax. In removing this tax, Mr. Robb suggested the tax should be reduced at the rate of one per cent. every year or six months. The item passed.

An item placing fish, or products of fish, in the section requiring only 50 per cent. of the sales tax was also debated.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, took advantage of the item to quote from opinions of Liberal members in 1920 on the subject of sales tax. At that time it was one and one-half per cent., but Liberal members had denounced it as class legislation in the interests of the rich. The Prime Minister had said that it was an undue pressure upon the people, and J. F. Johnston, who had become a "subdued and docile" Liberal, had said that the sales tax was in the interests of big business. Yet the present Government had made this same tax 65 per cent. higher than it was then.

Tax to Pay Debts.

Mr. Boivin stated that the reason that the Government did not reduce the income tax three years ago and had increased the sales tax then was owing to the fact that it was obliged to find funds for debts contracted by the Conservatives when in office.

He stated that of the twelve million dollars reduction in income tax, over six million dollars would be remitted to people receiving incomes of less than $6,000.

Mr. Meighen asked why, if the Government were so concerned for the poor, consideration was not given for those whose incomes did not come within the taxable distance, by removing the sales tax. The sales tax to-day was two-thirds higher than it was before the King Government came into office.

Mr. Robb moved an amendment, including dried or evaporated apples in the section requiring only 50 per cent. of the sales tax. The item and the amendment then carried.

THINK IT OVER.

The value of the seven principal crops (wheat, oats, barley, rye, flax, corn and hay) shows a phenomenal increase in the last 25 years; from nearly $200,000,000 in 1900 to over a billion dollars in 1925.

KRIM ARRIVES IN FRENCH LINES WITH HIS COURT

Surrendered Chieftain May Be Required to Apologize To Sultan.

FIGHTING NOT ENDED.

Various Chiefs of Riff Expected To Continue Some Resistance.

FEZ, French Morocco, May 27.—Canadian Press. — Abd El Krim, the Riffian chieftain, arrived this morning at Ize Marquene, north of Targuist, where he was presented with his suite to the commanding general of the Moroccan division. Later he was conducted to Bou Red, taking the military road toward Taza, where he is expected to arrive tomorrow. It is presumed the Riffian chieftain will be required to make honorable amends to the Sultan his sovereign, with suitable elaborate Oriental ceremonial, before departing to the place of exile provided for him by France.

The capitulation of Abd el Krim, completes the debacle in the Riffian federation, but it does not necessarily involve an end to hostilities and operations may continue as planned.

The downfall of the chieftain has created a great impression but there is nothing as yet to show how it has been taken by the Djebala tribesmen and the Riffans proper. It is thought probable that different chiefs will try to organize centres of resistance, but that the reduction of these will call more for political than military action.

NORTHERN FOES BESIEGE CANTON

Marshal Wu, of Hanslow, Declares State Under Bolshevist Influence.

MANY CASUALTIES.

CANTON, China, May 27. Canadian Press. — The war between Canton and her northern foes, which has threatened for weeks, has begun. The forces of Marshal Wu Pei Fu, of Hankow, having advanced through Hunan Province, are attacking the Canton defenders from three strategic points along the Kwantung border, causing a large number of casualties.

Canton is ruled by the National party, founded by the late Sun Yat Sen, but Marshal Wu declares it is under Bolshevist influence which he proposes to eradicate.

BRIAND TO MEET PARLIAMENT CONFIDENT THAT HIS MINSTRY WILL WEATHER ALL ATTACKS

NEW YORK, May 27 (Canadian Press).—Earl Carroll was found guilty to-day of perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of the bath tub party in his theatre, at which Joyce Hawley, a nude show girl, served drinks from the tub.

End of Moroccan War and Peace and Syria Strengthen Him.

FRANC IMPROVES.

PARIS, May 27 (United Press).—Premier Aristide Briand awaited the opening of the French Parliament to-day with confidence that his Ministry would weather any attacks in store for it.

"I am here for life," he said, on the eve of Parliament's re-opening when it was suggested that Communists and Radicals would attempt to oust him from the Premiership.

Eleventh hour termination of the war in Morocco, pacification of the Syrians, and a surprising improvement in the French franc, have taken from the opponents of Briand 90 per cent. of their ammunition. The Berenger-Kellogg debt settlement stands out as the chief problem about which any fight may centre, and the chances of ratification of that pact have been greatly strengthened with the franc's rally.

Confidence Voted.

The Briand Government to-day was given a vote of confidence by the Chamber of Deputies, 323 to 209.

Earlier in the proceedings the Government was victorious in its demand that the debate on financial matters and foreign debt settlements, including the Washington agreement, be postponed. Unofficial figures gave the Government a majority of 100.

Previous to the vote, Premier Briand told the Chamber France would never compromise "even the smallest portion of her independence" in order to remedy her financial situation.

The Premier's words were taken to mean that the Government would not consider the institution of the "Dawes plan" for France, or the cession of French colonies in payment of France's debts.

HUMANE SOCIETY HEARS ADDRESS

J. M. Wilson, General Manager, Tells Local Branch About Work.

MUCH CRUELTY.

President Says Case Recently Dismissed Will Be Appealed.

The quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society held in the Chamber of Commerce Council Chambers last night proved a decided success judging from the enthuiasm displayed by the members who were present.

C. H. Ackerman, president of the local organization, presided. He informed the members that the recent case which the society had had in Millbrook and which had been dismissed by the magistrate, would be appealed. He stated that he had been in communication with the Deputy Attorney-General regarding the case, and while it was decided to let the society look after this particular case, in future the Attorney-Generals' depantment would look after all appeals and save the society a great deal of expense.

Two readings, one by Miss Helen Kelly, and the other by Miss Irene Wright were much appreciated.

Mrs. J. S. Chandler, secretary of the society, presented a comprehensive report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, to which she was a delegate.

The Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, a past president of the Peterborough branch, in a brief speech, introduced the speaker of the evening, J. M. Wilson of Toronto, to the meeting. Dr. Blagrave expressed his pleasure at the reorganization of the branch in the city and assured the members that their efforts on behalf of dumb animals were being appreciated by the majority of right-thinking citizens.

J. M. Wilson

J. M. Wilson, general manager of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals, with which the Peterboro Humane Society is affiliated, was the special speaker for the evening. Mr. Wilson assured his listeners that it was an outstanding event in his life to be a visitor to the Peterboro society. He congratulated the members on the very successful reports that had been presented.

Commenting on the work of the Humane Society, Mr. Wilson said that in the course of his official duties, going trough the country and viewing the sights that come before his notice daily, it made him wonder "whether we were Christians or not." He stated that in the mail he received in his Toronto officer yesterday there were no fewer than fourteen letters bearing complaints regarding the starving of cattle alone. From November until the grass comes there are thousands of cases of starvation and semi-starvation in this province alone, he said. It is just a case of farmers figuring how little they can feed their stock during these months and pull them through until spring, he said. One

CHURCH ARMY PARTY COMING

Founder of British Movement Will Visit City With Crusaders.

HERE IN JULY.

An event of unusual interest, especially in Anglican circles in the city, will be the visit to Peterboro, on Saturday and Sunday, July 24th and 25th, of Prebendary Wilson Carlile, D. D., C.H., and his Church Army Crusaders, from England.

Prebendary Carlile is the founder and honorary chief secretary of the Church Army, some of whose crusaders are engaged in a tour this year of the Dominion, when, from June 13th to 26th, they will visit Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Montreal and Peterboro. These Crusaders are young men who have given up a secular calling for religious work, have passed through the Church Army Training School in London, England, have been commissioned as evangelists by the Church of England, and are dedicating their lives to full-time service as Lay Evangelists in the Short Missions Department of the Church Army.

From September to May of each year, they work and live on one or other of the 56 Church Army Diocesan Mission Caravans, and conduct missions chiefly in rural England. During the summer months, these eleven men (and 100 others in England) become hikers-evangelists of the way-side, carrying on a crusade of positive witness, reaching all sorts and conditions of men by glad song and convincing testimony, and by the preached word. They are in Canada this year through the invitation of several of the Bishops of the Dominion, and their tour this season extends from Montreal to Hamilton.

Each man has a waterproof ground sheet, and three blankets, and their bed is usually the floor-boards of a Church hall.

Associated with them is a column of seven Church Army Sisters, ladies who do splendid work amongst women and girls.

Prebendary Carlile, head of the Crusade, is in his 80th year. Nearly 45 years ago, he founded the Church Army in London. To-day, 1000 evangelists and Mission Sisters are giving full time service in the Church through 50 departments of the Church Army. He hopes to enthuse the laity of the Church of England in Canada to still better service, and, if desirable, to establish a branch of the Church Army in some of the dioceses of this country.

Hannibal Unveils Statue Of Twain's Characters

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 27.—(United Press.)—A huge statue of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, the immortal fictional characters created by Mark Twain, will be unveiled here to-day, at what the Hannibal Chamber of Commerce described as "a home-coming for lovers of the great humorist and river pilot."

Participating in the ceremonies will be Laura Frazier, the boyhood sweetheart of Mark Twain, and the inspiration for Becky Thatcher, one of his most famous characters.

C.N.R. FIGURES ARE DISCUSSED BY COMMITTEE

Sir Henry Thornton Stresses Reduction of Costs on Lines.

NO DETERIORATION.

Division of Government Business Between Roads is Taken Up.

OTTAWA, May 27 (Canadian Press).—The estimates for the Canadian National Railways were taken up by the special committee of the House of Commons on National Railways to-day.

Sir Henry Thornton, the president, discussed the annual report of the road, in which he thought the most gratifying feature was the saving in transportation cost, coupled with the reduced cost of maintenance of way.

The fact that there had been a reduction in both, he said, meant that the reduction in maintenance cost had not been effected by letting the road deteriorate.

Several members of the committee were emphatically in favor of all possible government business going to the National Railways.

After some further discussion, it was agreed to stand the matter over until an investigation had been made into the proportions of Government business given to the two railways, and the committee adjourned early. Tommorow the estimates for the Canadian Government Merchant Marine will come up first.

SOCIAL EVENING.

"MR. BELISLE" NONE OTHER THAN BISAILLON WITNESS ASSERTS

Former Chief Preventive Officer in Customs Department Identified as Belisle of Liquor Partnership—Witness Alleges Threat.

BANK MANAGER IS SUMMONED.

OTTAWA, May 26 (Canadian Press). — A witness who declared that J. E. Bisaillon and J. E. Belisle were one and the same man, appeared before the customs inquiry committee yesterday. Not only did he inform the committee that the elusive Mr. Belisle, who gave his name to the Bisaillon-Brien liquor partnership, was the former chief preventive officer, but he also stated that this man of two names had threatened to "get him" after the probe was over.

The witness who gave the committee this information was Matt Barry whose business it is to supply ships in Montreal. In answer to Chairman Paul Mercier, Barry confessed that he was doing nothing for a living at present, but stated that it was very hard to get work.

Witness Reluctant

Barry was reluctant at first to tell the committee whether he knew J. E. Belisle. He wanted to get some papers from his lawyer's office before making any statement. However, on being pressed by R. L. Calder, K.C., the committee counsel, he made the positive statement that Belisle and Bisaillon were one.

J. E. Bisaillon was seated in the committee room, and the chairman asked him to stand up. "Is that he?" he asked Barry.

"Yes," the witness replied. He went on to tell of meeting Bisaillon in Montreal last April when the latter had said to him: "You are a fine fellow. You are working for the Duncan-Knox bunch. I will get you for this."

After Barry's testimony had concluded, Bisaillon was called to the stand. He admitted meeting the preceding witness, but denied that he had threatened him. 'I would not like to tell you what I told him," said Bisaillon to the committee. He explained that he was angry with Barry because the latter had given false evidence in regard to him (Bisaillon) before Inspector Duncan.

Bisaillon's Aides Dead

Chairman Paul Mercier asked Bisaillon to tell the committee who was in the next room when the two formed mounted policemen, Fafard and Macdonald, visited Bisaillon's home. This question was prompted by a statement of Bisaillon's made during his examination Tuesday that these two men had sugested that the family of a certain Montreal woman would be glad to do anything to avoid publicity in connection with a drug case. The case in question was the Lortie-St. George narcotic drug smuggling case.

Bisaillon explained to the committee that Detective Savard, of the Montreal police, had informed him that Fafard and Macdonald were dangerous men and that he had better keep clear of them. As a result of this warning, he had arranged to have two "operators" with him when the mounted police came to his home. These operators were in the next room and heard the proposal made. He could not recall their names.

"Detective Savard is dead, isn't he?" queried R. L. Calder, the committee counsel.

"Yes."

Mr. Calder remarked that it was extremely difficult to find out the names of these operators under the circumstances.

Denies Liquor Purchase

Just before Barry was called, Z. Hebert, of the firm of Hudon, Hebert and Company, Montreal, denied evidence given before Inspector Duncan by a witness called Arthur Mayer, that this firm had purchased liquor from the customs bond in Montreal.

"It is a tissue of falsehoods. The man doesn't know what he is talking about," declared Mr. Hebert.

'Do you know Mr. Bisaillon?"

"No, I never saw him."

Chairman Paul Mercier called upon Mr. Bisaillon, who was in the committee room to stand up.

"Do you know this man?" Mr. Hebert was asked.

"I never saw him," he repeated.

The witness declared that the statement made by Mayer was false. His firm had handled liquor before the creation of the Quebec Liquor Commission when it was perfectly legitmate to do so. Since that commission came into being Hudon, Hebert and Company had handled no liquor.

"There are no more question," said Mr. Donaghy, and Mr. Hebert left the witness chair.

Earlier in the day Major A. E. Nash of the auditing firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, tabled the report of the auditors on the business of the Dominion Distillery Products Company, Limited. This report dealt exhaustively with liquor transactions carried on over a period of seven years by the George companies. Gregory George is the vice-president and general manager of the Dominion Distillery Products Company. The report suggested the possibility that the Dominion had been defrauded of more than a million dollars through non-payment of excise on liquor by these companies.

Summons Bank Manager

A summons to the manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Walkerville, Ont., to appear and furnish information in regard to the account of James A. Cooper was issued yesterday.

Major Nash, of the firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, informed the committee that the manager of this bank hesitated to give information in regard to his customer's account without very definite instructions. The committee decided to bring him to Ottawa.

Tariff On Epsom Salts Sought By Canadian Firm

OTTAWA, May 27. Canadian Press. — The tariff board this morning heard the application of the Basque Chemical Company for an increased tariff on Epsom salts.

The basis of the argument put forward by the applicants was that Epsom salts were being imported into Canada below a sane market price.

The applicants asked for a duty or bounty on their product which would enable them to develop the deposits of salt in British Columbia.

DEYELL'S BRIDGE WILL BE REBUILT

Chairman of County Roads Committee Gives Contract To R. Gordon.

TO MOVE FENCES.

The chairman of the County Roads and Bridges Committee, along with Mr. Smithson, yesterday authorized R. Gordon to build Deyell's bridge in the Township of Otonabee. This is a small bridge one mile from Bensford bridge, and will be a 25-foot span and 18 feet wide.

The County Road Commission was authorized to make plans, if possible, for moving back the fences on the Ennismore road from the Cross to Gannon's bridge and to substitute wire fences in the place of the rail fences. Over this stretch last winter it cost $200 to keep the road open only part time.

STEEL MANUFACTRERS DECLARE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY RECEIVES SUFFICIENT TARIFF PROTECTION

Statement Was One of Feature at Tariff Board Sitting.

BESCO'S APPEAL.

President Says Operations Must Cease Unless There is Relief.

OTTAWA, May 27. — "Unless some relief can be had from the conditions that prevail our operations must cease," declared Roy Wolvin, president of the British Empire Steel Corporation, at the first session of the advisory board on tariff and taxation yesterday. "On the other hand, with adequate protection, there would be a payroll of thirty million dollars."

Mr. Wolvin submitted a lengthy memorandum which gave a history of the Nova Scotia industry, and detailed a number of the difficulties under which it labors.

Auto Industry Safeguarded.

Outstanding in the hearing was the argument of the Algoma Steel Company that the Canadian automobile industry was already adequately protected under the existing tariff by which was meant the tariff as amended this session of Parliament. The Algoma Steel argued consequently that the "drawback" of 99 per cent. enjoyed by automobile manufacturers on several articles of steel was unjustified. The case was presented by Norman Guthrie.

Mr. Wolvin argued that it was not suggested that there should be any departure from the principles of the existing tariff, but that consideration should be given to the fact that owing to the greatly increased cost and market value of the materials subject to specific duties, the ad valorem effect of these duties had greatly decreased. To-day these specific duties did not represent the same value that they did when they were imposed.

The average percentage of duty collected upon the principal forms of iron and steel which were, or could be made, in the steel works of Nova Scotia was less than twelve per cent., and of this a considerable amount was returned in the form of rebates and drawbacks. The industry in Canada had to suffer a further disadvantage from the importation of primary forms of iron and steel more than $5,000,000 in value, free of duty.

An Unfair Condition.

"It is respectfully submitted that this condition is unfair to an industry, the existence and success of which is a national necessity," said Mr. Wolvin. Many of the most important items of iron and steel were subject to even lower rates than 12 per cent. Increased rates should be made to bring the duties "into line with the general effect of the tariff as a whole."

The present tariff discriminated against Nova Scotia industries. It was submitted that a ton of steel produced in Nova Scotia at a cost of $30 represented about twice as much directly in Canadian labor as a ton of similar steel produced elsewhere in Canada. A ton of Nova Scotia steel delivered in Central Canada represented about four tons of Nova Scotia coal used in production.

Mr. Wolvin said that the duty on imported coal for metallurgical purposes should not be rebated and that the duties on steel products should be increased to cover the extra cost caused by the duty on coal. Coke imported for metallurgical purposes should be subject to a duty not less than what the duty would have been on coal required to produce such coke.

Farmer's Opposition.

R. J. Deachman, of Calgary, speaking as the representative of "Wheat Producing Farmer," said that the unfair importation which the corporation complained of was actually less in 1925 than in 1914. Canada was not flooded by importation of iron and steel In 1914, $4,000,000 worth had come into the Dominion, and in 1925 $3,000,000 worth entered. Yet the increased importation argument was used in an endeavor to get a higher protection. The steel company itself was not above taking advantage of dumping its goods in a foreign market.

Depreciated currency abroad landed the farmer without a market, yet the company was using the depreciated currency argument to claim protection for itself in Canada. Speaking of freight rates, Mr. Deachman said that perhaps the company's difficulties were traceable to railroad discrimination against Canada itself. He would like to know the percentage of Canadian and American and British stock-holders of the British Empire Steel Company which claimed to be all British.

MRS. C. F. AYLESWORTH.

MADOC, May 27. — Madoc has again lost one of her best-known pioneer residents, when Elizabeth Jane Aylesworth, widow of Charles F. Aylesworth, passed to her rest on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Aylesworth, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie, was born in Roslin shortly after her parents arrived from the Old Country, in the year of the Rebellion, 1837. Mrs. Aylesworth was the niece of one of the first surveyors in the county, John Emerson.

She came to Madoc with her husband during the gold excitement, and later they settled on a farm one mile north of Madoc. Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast" —which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast Tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not enjoy good health, lacking in energy and force, "ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Canada.

TOKIO, May 26. — (Canadian Press.)—A despatch to the newspaper Nichi Nichi from Hokkaib says the volcano Tokachi, which erupted Monday with heavy loss of life, still was threatening yesterday, with occasional emissions of smoke, causing residents to fear more eruptions.

Rescue work was difficult owing to dense mists and failure of electric lights and communications. Hundreds continued, however, to burrow in the mass of mud, rocks and lava, removing the dead. Occasionally their efforts were rewarded by finding a living person in the debris.

The loss of life is estimated unofficially at 200, but this may be an exaggeration.

MUCH DEPENDS UPON THE CROP.

There were two items in the news of yesterday that no doubt were joyfully received by Canadians generally.

One was the encouraging statement made by Hon. Chas. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, in regard to the Canadian National Railways situation.

The other was an interview with Hon. T. A. Crerar, who dwelt upon the prospects of a greatly increased buying power among the farmers of the West this year.

There was an "If" in both these encouraging predictions; their fulfillment depends upon one thing—a good crop.

Given a reasonably good harvest, the Minister of Railways declares that the Government-owned railways may meet all interest charges this year.

With another good crop, Mr. Crerar predicts that Western farmers, who last year used the proceeds from the unusually fine harvest largely in liquidating liabilities, will this autumn be in a position to buy, and that means more orders for Easterner manufacturers and more work for Eastern industrial employees.

Canadians everywhere then will follow the crop reports with more than usual interest, for upon the success of this year's crop will depend not only the success of the Canadian National Railways but to a considerable extent the prosperity of Canadian industry.

WHY SIGNS ARE NEEDED.

In several articles recently the Examiner has reminded its city readers of the desirability of following the Golden Rule during their motor trips into the country.

Along this same line the Globe editorially points out that "No Trespassing Signs" are becoming common in the country districts, and adds that this is one of the penalties of the changing times.

Before the advent of the motor car the countryside was free from city raiders; today the farm is only a few minutes' ride away from the city's heart, and, unfortunately, as the Examiner has endeavoured to show, many of the urban folk who holiday in the country have not yet learned to regard farm land as private property.

Good citizens who would not dream of holding a picnic on somebody else's property in their own community motor out into the country and begin at once to ignore the rights of others.

As the Globe puts it, "a branch of blossoms, a tree of red apples or a forest of nut trees is a great temptation," and alas, the majority of city visitors seem unable to resist, with disastrous results to rural property.

It is no wonder that farmers have found it necessary to protect themselves by means of "No Trespassing" signs.

In fact the tolerance shown by our country friends in the fact of the violation of their rights as prpperty holders has caused more than a little wonderment among those who realize the conditions.

THE JACK MINER LEAGUE.

The people of Essex County are to be congratulated upon the steps they are taking to create an interest in the study of natural history, and at the same time to honour one of their most famous fellow-citizens, Jack Miner.

It was a happy thought to pay their tribute to Mr. Miner while he is still in the land of the living instead of waiting, as so often has been done with other men who had contributed valuable service, until he died before testifying to his good qualities.

Thus the people of Essex have launched the Jack Miner League, chapters of which are being organized everywhere, to stimulate interest in natural history, plant life, reforestation and the conservation of the wild-bird life of the Continent.

In every community there must be many people in hearty sympathy with these aims and ready to lend a helping hand in the forming and maintenance of a chapter of the Jack Miner League.

Recently such a chapter was organized amid much enthusiasm in Belleville, and there is every reason to think that an effort to form a branch in Peterboro would meet with much success.

The conservation of wild-bird life is something that should have a general appeal.

"The hope of the world," says Mr. Miner, "is more love and education and less bayonet-point compulsion."

That is undoubtedly true, and as he points out that if a boy can be got to build a bird-house, no one will have to make laws to punish him for killing a song and insectivorous bird, because the moment he starts to build he becomes a conservationist.

From Kingston comes complaints of discourteous motorists breaking through the ranks of a parade in that city the other day.

Many people who drive cars have yet to learn the value of courtesy.

We have plenty of such people in Peterboro.

Only last Sunday there were dozens of them in evidence when the visiting Earlscourt Salvation Army band was giving a street corner concert.

The bandsmen frequently had to move to one side to let cars pass, and the music of the band was continually interrupted by the blaring of motor horns as drivers impatiently signalled that they proposed to drive through.

Legally these motorists were within their rights; the Salvationists had no monopoly over the use of the street.

But common courtesy should have suggested to the offending drivers that the kindly and gentlemanly thing to do was to have avoided the interruption by going round the block.

The motor car has come to stay; some people regard it as an evil and more as a nuisance, but we'll have to accept it as an established thing.

And that being so, it is incumbent upon those who own cars to operate them, not only carefully to prevent accidents, but courteously to avoid unnecessary annoyance to others.

In both these respects observation indicates that many motorists have still much to learn.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

Premier Ferguson, speaking before the Synod of Huron, in London, pictured a high standard of public service as the most praiseworthy ideal of citizenship. There is perhaps nothing unusual in the statement, but it is one to which we should give more thought. On many sides one finds a tendency to make light of public service, to poke gibes at public men, to condemn "politicians" generally. This is wrong. This is unfair. And if we have men in public life who would be better elsewhere it is, perhaps, because of the unsympathetic attitude of so many citizens—an attitude that keeps a large body of very desirable men from offering themselves for elective posts.

As Premier Ferguson says, nothing can be more praiseworthy—from the standpoint of citizenship—than a high standard of public service. Fortunately for the state, there are always a number of men prepared to accept public responsibilities and to carry them out faithfully and well. Unfortunately for the state there are always some of the other kind, too. And once in a while they get into office—largely because the voters' indifference or the failure of better men to offer themselves for posts that need filling.

Public men are subjected to much that is unjust and unworthy. Their motives are questioned when there is no occasion for questioning. They are accused of selfishness and a desire for the limelight when no such grounds exist. Yet, in many cases, they go on, doing their best and satisfied with a personal knowledge that they are of service. To them the nation owes much.—Border Cities Star.

A FARMER'S IGNORANCE.

Fined for selling ungraded eggs, a Middlesex farmer grumbled: "The Government pass laws that we farmers don't know anything about."

Of course, the farmer was peeved, but, as the old saying has it, "Ignorance of the law is no excuse." Moreover, it is quite evident that this farmer does not read the newspapers. The egg grading regulations have been dealt with extensively in almost every newspaper in Canada.

A lot of people "don't read the newspapers," and it may not be an exaggeration to say that farmers do less reading than any other class. They have to keep their noses to the grindstone from dawn till dusk, and their system of knowing what is going on in the world is, in many cases, to glance at the front page headings, turn at once to some part of the paper that they think interests or concerns them, and then lay the paper aside. But they do not "read" the newspapers.

The experience of this farmer shows the value of "reading" the newspapers. No law of any importance affecting farmers or any other section of the community is ever omitted by the newspapers. People profess ignorance of public matters which have been staring them in the face time and again, if they would only spend a reasonable time in looking over the paper. In ordinary conversation in homes, in the street, the club, or in the barber shop, there is an astonishing low average of intelligent discussion of affairs of the day because so few people today read the newspapers for the purpose of knowing the ins and outs of the daily happenings.

Many people are in such a danged hurry to get out in the car, or off to the movies, a dance or a card party, that they go through life in a state of semi-ignorance. If they only knew the organization and the pains taken in a newspaper office to get the news of the day for their benefit and enlightenment, they might value the newspaper more. It is their duty, and it is to their interest, to "read" the newspaper. This farmer would have saved money had he done so. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TYRANTS, OLD AND NEW.

History is repeating itself. When the Greek world had cast off the old hereditary monarchies and was making its first experiments in democracy government was wielded for a long period in each of dozens of city states along the Mediterranean by an individual called a tyrant.

The particular odium which moderns attach to that word had not then gathered about it. A tyrant was merely an absolute ruler. Very soon, however, the word gave a picture of a ruler, who without claim to royal blood, made himself by force or fraud the ruler of the state. In general the tyrant seated himself much after the way in which some congressmen get themselves elected—promsiing a much better, indeed an almost perfect, world, and estate. Some tyrants ruled well. Others made tyranny synontymous with cruelty and arbitrary depotism, and so completely does the word now connote those things that plainly just tyrants were the exception.

In that receivership which so many European countries seem to have entered we have an interesting recrudescence of the period of tyrants. Countries coming out of monarchy or liberalizing monarchies are being directed by dictators, absolute rulers who by sheer force of character hold a power greater than that of monarchs by inheritance. Mussolini in Italy, Horthy in Hungary, Pangalos in Greece, Rivera in Spain, Kemal in Turkey and now Pilsudski in Poland—though the latter disclaims dictatorial ambitions—constitute a list that may possibly grow before it begins to shorten.—Chicago News.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Gangway for summer," says the Border Cities Star with its usual optimism.

The demand for permits to sell 4.4 beer in Ontario is said to be normal. As for the demand for the beer itself that, as Kipling said, is another story.

So far this week Premier Ferguson has not said that he has nothing to say about the date of the general election.

What has become of the small boy who always took his first swim of the season on Victoria Day?

The G.W.V.A. flags gave Peterboro a most unusual holiday appearance, and the change was the subject of most favourable comment.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

The Editor of The Examiner.

FROM G. A. KINGSTON, Mayor of Campbellford

Dear Sir.—In the passing of Alex. McGregor, Campbellford loses one of its best known and most highly esteemed citizens. During his residence here he took a deep interest in all the affairs of the town. His long connection with journalism gave him a comprehensive grasp of every phase of life. He had the rare gift of making commonplace news items interesting, and he always clothed his thoughts in polished English.

His work naturally brought him in close touch with people in all walks of life, and he had the happy faculty of making friends of his acquaintance. His death will be greatly regretted in his vicinity.

G. A. KINGSTON.

Dear Sir.—As a citizen of Campbellford and a reader of your valuable paper, I wish to express my sincere regrets at the loss to our community and to the staff of The Examiner, in the sudden death of your representative here, Mr. Alex. McGregor. His intimate acquaintance, his integrity and untiring interest in local matters, I deeply appreciated, and can assure you that in the passing of Mr. McGregor we have lost an intellectual and much esteemed friend and neighbor.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE WISDOM OF MEN-TZE.

China, 371 B.C.

If one strive to treat others as he would be treated by them, he shall not fail to come near the perfect life.

Every duty is a charge; but the charge of oneself is the root of all others.

The disease of men is to neglect their own fields and go to weeding those of others; to exact much from others and lay light burdens on themselves.

He whose good name comes from what he is, needs no trappings.

The great man is he who does not lose his child heart.

If one treat me unreasonably I will say, "I must have been wanting in kindness or propriety. How else should this have happened." Then I will mend my ways.

Let your ideas be round and your conduct square.

The gods cannot help one who loses opportunities.

Dig your well before you are thirsty.

The white clouds pass; the blue heavens abides.

To help another helps yourself.

The wise questions himself; the fool, others.

A good word has heat enough for three winters; a hard one wounds like six months of cold.

Act with kindness; but do not exact gratitude.

SUBMISSION OF RIFFIAN CHIEF DISARMS PREMIER BRIAND'S FOES

Radicals Deprived of Issue They Purposed To Use Against Him.

FRENCH GENEROUS.

Surrender Ends One of Costliest Colonial Wars in All History.

PARIS, May 27 (Canadian Press)—The long colonial warfare in Morocco which Spain has been carrying on with various success for several years and which France has been experiencing since last year, apparently has come to a close with the surrender yesterday of the doughty mountain chieftain, Abd-el-Krim, whose announced object has been to establish autonomy in the Riff. At one time he termed himself Sultan of Morocco and called upon all Moslems to rally to his cause.

Deserted by even his closest tribal followers, the Riffian chieftain has placed himself, his family and property under the protection of France.

The war with Krim has been one of the most costly colonial struggles in history as far as men and materials are concerned.

News Helps Briand

News that Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian war lord, was on his way to the French lines to surrender, has come at an opportune moment for the Briand cabinet.

Although Krim's submission has been looked for at any time during the past week, it caused a great sensation in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies, where a group of political leaders were busily engaged in laying plans for the reopening of parliament today.

The news has particularly upset the plan of the Socialists and Radicals by eliminating Morocco as a political issue of which they were very fond. "There need be no more talk of overthrowing Premier Briand for the moment," was the remark fo one radical leader to whom the news that Krim was about to surrender caused joy as a Frenchman although it upset some of his cherished plans as a politician.

Premier Briand, it is felt, has had the unusual luck to accomplish two of the hardest tasks with which the French Government has been confronted during the past two years. These are the negotiations for an egreement with Germany and the pacification of Morocco.

Generous to Krim

An air of optimism, to which the foreign office has been unaccustomed for a long time, prevailed last evening around the Quay d'Orsay. Satisfaction over the end of hostilities has resulted in expression of the greatest indulgence toward Krim as the future policy of the French Government. It is likely, it was said, that things will be made as easy as possible for the Riffian chief, the only insistence being that measures be taken to guard effectively against a renewal of fighting in the Riff.

INDIANS URGED TO PROTECT FORESTS

Notice In Algonquin Dialect Fastened To Trees.

QUEBEC, May 27 (Canadian Press)—An appeal to all the Indians but particularly to the braves of the Algonquin tribe, has just been issued by one of their oldest chiefs, Louis Tenascon, on the north shore, for care and precaution against fires. A notice has been written in the Algonquin dialect and has been fastened to trees all through the territory over which the men of the tribe are liable to travel, calling upon them to put out all fires they notice or to at once notify the forest rangers if they cannot themselves master the flames.

A copy of the notice in the original vernacular, with a translation, has been forwarded by Louis Tenascon to the provincial department of lands and forests. The notice reads: "My dear children and well beloved, I beg of you this season, you who are always in the woods, if you see a fire to put it out if possible, and if you can not put it out yourself, notify at once the forest rangers. Do not smoke while travelling through the forest. You know yourself what else you should do.

(signed) Louis Tenascon.

The Emperor Montezuma of Mexico, it is recorded, consumed fifty jars of cocoa each day, a further two thousand jars being prepared for members of his household.

LLOYD GEORGE'S CONSTITUENTS PROCLAIM ANEW THEIR LOYALTY

Adopt Resolution of Unabated Confidence in His Leadership.

ADDRESSED 5,000.

Only Passing Reference To Controversy With Lord Oxford.

LLANDUDNO, Wales, May 27.—Canadian Press. — David Lloyd George, the Liberal Parliamentary chairman in the House of Commons yesterday vigorously defended his course during the recent general strike, but failed to make the expected attack upon his critics of the Liberal party who have severely scored his attitude during the strike.

The former coalition premier, in a lengthy address before a crowd of 5,000 of his Welsh constituents, referred incidentally to the struggle now going on within the Liberal party. He announced later, however, that he was hurrying back to London to-day, cutting his holiday short because of the issue which has been opened between himself and his party chief, the Earl of Oxford.

Although those who had hoped that the fiery Welshman would add another caustic chapter to the controversy between himself and Lord Oxford, were disappointed, his constituents adopted a resolution of unabated confidence in his leadership, and expressed unwavering loyalty.

Demands Settlement.

Mr. Lloyd George's defense of the attitude he assumed during the nine days' industrial struggle was a spirited one and he capped it in his closing words by strongly urging that the government cease wasting any further time and get down to the business of settling the costly dispute in the coal industry, even if it meant going over the heads of the miners and mine owners.

"I believe that if the mine owners and miners alike saw that the government at las meant business, they would settle their dispute quickly," he said. "All parties," including the government, have blundered about so long that it is time some one should get along with the job. The government alone should have authority to decide and to put their decisions into effect.

"The coal commission pointed the way. Why not take it, instead of talking about it?"

No Correspondence Yet.

He pointed out that the first definite proposals made to the men by the government did not come until the general strike had been called off. "The parties involved haven't yet sat around a table to discuss these proposals," he said. "The result is that the only settlement in sight is a grim settling down to a strangling wrestle that will, unless it is stopped, inflict incalculable damage not only on the combatants but on the trade and prosperity of the whole country."

The only reference the former Premier made to the exchange of letters between himself and Lord Oxford was in an explanatory prelude in which he disclaimed responsibility for publication of the missive, placing it upon Lord Oxford's shoulders.

A political sensation was created by the publication of Lord Oxford's letter which strongly censured Lloyd George's attitude during the strike, and the press predicts that with the former premier's arrival in London to-day a hot fight will be precipitated between the followers of the two men.

CHILD FELL INTO SCALDING WATER

Mother Washing Floor—Burns Fatal.

LINDSAY, May 27. — A sad fatality occurred at the home of Mrs. Peter Trebli, of Coboconk, this week. Mrs. Trebli was scrubbing and had a vessel containing hot water close by. Her little son, Harold, aged one year and nine months, while crossing the floor, accidentally slipped and fell into the vessel. Before the mother could rescue him, and remove his clothes, he was so badly scalded that death followed a period of intense suffering.

Measles is said to occur in waves in London at intervals of rather less than two years.

HULL'S NEW MAYOR AFTER BLIND PIGS

Also Pool Rooms and Other Amusement Places.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 27. Canadian Press. — "With the aid of other members of the city council, and the police department, I am determined to close every blind pig, and any other disreputable houses in Hull," stated Mayor-elect Theo. Lambert in an interview yesterday. Mr. Lambert was elected mayor in Tuesday's civic elections.

"The respectable citizens of Hull must be given proper protection and I will only be too glad to recommend to the city council that a very serious view be taken in this respect. I also propose to probe the observance of bylaws governing pool rooms, theatres and other places of amusement in Hull and see that henceforth the laws are properly adhered to."

REV. H. J. KEITH AT CONFERENCE

United Church Willing To Co-operate in Foreign Mission Field.

MAY SHARE WORK.

WINNIPEG, May 27 (Canadian Press).—Reporting of the activities of the United Church of Canada in the foreign mission field, Rev. Dr. H. J. Keith, yesterday told delegates attending the Manitoba conference of the United Church that they were ready to co-operate, with the Continuing Presbyterians in this field of endeavor, but were "unwilling to sacrifice either the work or the missionaries." Dr. Keith declared there still was hope of finding means whereby the Continuing church would be given a share in the work.

The recent request of the Continuing Presbyterians for the whole South China field, the whole of Formosa, Korea, British Guiana, certain fields in Indian and all of the Chinese work in Canada had come as a complete surprise. When the matter had been weighed from every angle by the United Council, a decision had been reached to support the missionaries in the field, whatever attitude they took, Dr. Keith asserted. The right of the missionaries, he held, to continue as Presbyterians or to accept Union must be as inviolate as had been the right of the ministers in the home churches to choose for themselves.

The West, Dr. Keith declared, was being measured by an increasingly critical East, and the East was setting up standards which the West might well emulate. The West's attitude of superiority must be altered and racial lines wiped out, he added.

A resolution was passed assuring missionaries in the field of "unwavering purpose of supporting them in their work."

The ordination ceremony was conducted last night.

TUB OF CHAMPAGNE WOULD COST $14,000

Earl Carroll's Case Goes To Jury To-day.

NEW YORK, May 27 (Canadian Press) — Summations in the Earl Carroll perjury trial, growing out of his famous bath tub party, were completed yesterday. Federal Judge Goddard charged the jury this morning.

After a morning session yesterday characterized by charges that Miss Joyce Hawley, "the girl in the bathtub," had offered to accept money to influence her testimony before the grand jury, the defense announced when the afternoon session opened that it was ready to proceed with arguments.

Accordingly Attorney Herbert Smyth, for Carroll, began his address to the jury.

"The government has made this a sex case," Smyth told the jury. "I doubt if Mr. Volstead, when he wrote the prohibition law, ever thought it would be used to gain a conviction in a case of a young woman getting into a bath tub unclothed.

"The government has disguised this as a sex case, but the real question is whether Mr. Carroll wilfully told an untruth when he testified before the grand jury."

The matter of Miss Hawley disrobing, he said, had no place in the case.

"But I warn you," he told the jury, "there is no more dangerous or charming thing in the world than a pretty woman."

He charged that Miss Hawley had "deliberately fooled" the prosecutor about her age, when she said she was but 17.

Smyth maintained Joyce Hawley was the only witness who had testified the liquids served actually were intoxicating, saying that while others maintained they drank champagne and wine, they did not show what they drank contained alcohol.

He estimated that it would have cost Carroll $14,000 to fill the tub in which Miss Hawley bathed twice with champagne as it was alleged he had done.

Long Struggle In Strike Seen By Miners' President

BARNSLEY, Eng., May 27. Canadian Press. — The prediction that the British coal strike will be a long and serious fight, was made yesterday by Herbert Smith, president of the Miners' Federation, in the course of a speech here.

"If we do not fight now, our children will damn us for not doing so when we had the opportunity," he said. "If this is my last fight, I will resist to the end any reduction of wages or any longer hours. All that the miners want is a square deal."

MORE EMPLOYMENT REPORTED FOR MAY

Number of Workers Exceeded Five Years' Figures.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 27 (Canadian Press)—Although activity in some lines was retarded by the unseasonable weather prevailing generally at the beginning of May, says the Bureau of Statistics, employment on the whole showed a considerable increase, 23.14 persons being added to the staffs of 5,866 firms reporting, who employed 773,417 workers. The index stood at 94.3, as compared with 91.4 on April 1, 1926, and with 90.8, 91.8, 91.4, 83.3 and 84.1 on May 1, 1925, 1924, 1923, 1922 and 1921, respectively. The situation was thus more favorable than on the corresponding date in any of the last five years. The seasonal improvement was rather less than on May 1, 1925, when the spring was further advanced, but the gain exceeded that of May 1, 1924. Continued expansion may be looked for in the next report.

Construction, manufacturing, transportation, communication, trade, mining (other than coal) and services reported marked increases, while the only pronouncerd losses were those of a seasonal character in logging camps.

B. Frank Smith, M.L.A., of East Florenceville.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HARRY MORTON finds himself in a quandary because of his effort to avert the love of his adopted daughter, AUDREY who wants to marry him. NONA, a Toronto stage girl, also loves him, and he brings her to Peterborough to disgust Audrey with his way of life. He fails in that, but he finds himself under a social boycott in his home town.

He also has thrown Audrey into the company of JOHN PARRISH, his secretary, and Parrish suddenly proposes to her. She only laughs.

Morton, rich, unmarried, middle-aged, and immensely attractive to women, maintains an apartment in Toronto as well as his home in Peterborough.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Audrey looked at him inquiringly. "It's been two years since you left boarding school," Morton said. "Don't you miss your old friends there?"

The girl waited for him to go on.

"Suppose," he resumed, "you have a couple of the girls come here to visit, and play around?"

Audrey clasped her hands behind her head, and swinging to and fro in her chair, thought over the idea.

"Daddy," she said finally, "I'm ages older than those girls, now. I wouldn't know what to say to them."

"But you're exactly the same age as they are," he objected.

She sighed. "In years, yes. But in experience—" She cast a quick, suspicious glance at him. "Don't laugh at me, daddy! I HAVE had experience, and it has aged me!"

"I'm not laughing," he said, his countenance sober.

She examined his face, doubtfully. "Well, you looked like it. I prefer the company of those chorus girls in Toronto. At least, they understand life, and the girls from school are only babies, still."

Morton left his chair and moved to the porch rail, leaning against it so that he faced her.

"Audrey," he said, "your standards are all upset. You've been running emotionally wild, these last two months and you're a social waif. Do you know it?"

"What do you mean?"

Morton drew up his knee, and clasped his hands around it.

"You used to belong to a certain crowd—a group that thought very much as you did. Nice girls, with nice families, and nice ways. You had no men friends aside from me. Now, with this idea of yours that you were in love with me—"

"I AM in love with you," she interrupted.

"All right. With this idea that you ARE in love with me, you've tried running away from home, associating with stage girls to learn how they look at life, turning your thoughts into a different channel, and presto! You don't belong to your old crowd any more at all. You're not interested in them. And yet you're not a chorus girl, or an actress, or really a dancer. What are you, then?"

The girl pondered a long while.

"I suppose I'm a girl who wants her mate, and hasn't got him," she said at last.

Morton gave a short, reminiscent laugh, and she looked at him in surprise.

He hurriedly explained. "I wasn't laughing at you. But I saw another case of an upset soul today."

He told her, with droll commentaries, of his adventure with Mr. and Mrs. Carver, and of the lady's insistence that her husband should institute divorce proceedings. Audrey listened gravely.

"At your age, and at about forty, women do wild and peculiar things," he ended.

"That isn't it." She contradicted him calmly. "She really was attracted to you, and wanted to catch your attention," she told him. "I know the feeling. If women can't get the notice of the man they like by smiling at him, they're apt to do crazy things, so he'll look at them. If she thought she could get your attention by standing on her head, she'd have done that!"

"Perhaps," he said. "Perhaps."

"I'm SURE of it," she told him. "You are a wonderfully fascinating man, you know."

"What's the reason?" he asked.

"Because you're indifferent," she said, promptly. "I think you just drive women crazy with curiosity, after you've once cast that cool, distant eye of yours on them."

He laughed. "That must be so, then. It was Nona, I think, who told me that before."

She got up and came to him.

"Daddy, are you going to marry me?" She stretched her arms out straight, with her hands upon his shoulders.

He shook his head slowly. "Audrey, dear, I wish you never would ask me that again. It hurts me. I can't marry you."

She stood, motionless, still holding to his shoulders.

"Did you love my mother?" she pursued, softly.

"Yes." He dropped his head.

She leaned against his knee, which he still held clasped in his hands.

"You said I was like my mama," she said. "If you couldn't marry her, wouldn't I do—if only as a substitute?"

He shook his head, slowly.

Dropping her hands quickly, she turned away from him.

"Then it makes no difference what I do," she said, bitterly. "I'm no good to anyone."

She ran into the house, and the door slammed behind her.

Audrey had regained her spirits the next morning, when she descended to breakfast. In a new pink and white dress, she floated into the breakfast room, and turned around so her guardian could admire her outfit.

"But why the war paint?" he inquired, after he had paid tribute to the dress.

She had employed a lipstick and rouge again, and her lashes were darkened.

"They're symbols," she explained.

"Which?"

"Symbols," she repeated. "They're symbols of a great resolution."

"Are you going out to be a wild woman and vamp men and crush them?" he inquired, dipping into his grapefruit.

She danced to her chair, and fluttered her napkin.

"No. I've decided on my proper place in society. Those old cats who came to see me about you have disgusted me with THIS crowd. And the girls from school are infants. But I like girls like Nona and the chorus girls, because they're REAL. I'm going to associate with them, hereafter."

"But," he objected, "I thought you were angry at Nona."

"That was just a spat," Audrey said, placidly. "In our circle—Nona's and mine and the chorus girls—we can fight one day and make up the next. We only fight over men."

Morton was amused.

"What do the society women fight over?" he wanted to know.

"I suppose," said Audrey, "that it is over men, too, only they get at it indirectly. They TALK about precedence, and who invites who, and what she said about what. But I guess that in the background they're thinking about the man question, all the same."

"Hmm!" responded Morton. "But what do you do next?"

"I've decided," she said. "I'm going to send for Nona and the girls, and those poor prunes of dancing men, and have them all come up here and visit me!"

He laid down his spoon and stared.

"The whole gang?"

"Absolutely," she said. "I want to show the people in this town that I'm emancipated. I don't care WHAT they think!"

"Well, I'll be darned," he commented.

After a moment's thought, he resumed. "You can't have Nona and the boys at this house, though."

"Why not?" she demanded.

"Because I'm not emancipated," he said dryly. "You may be a free soul, but I'm old-fashioned. I don't mind your having the chorus here, but I've been seen around town with Nona and she's got to stay at the hotel. And so have those dancing boys."

"Them!" Audrey's voice was filled with a fine contempt. "The boys can't do any harm! They're weak as dishwater."

Morton was firm. "I'm not going to have dishwater in my house. Not at this writing—and not with eight or ten noisy chorus girls dashing around. We're likely to be raided as it is."

Audrey laughed delightedly. "Wouldn't that be great? I'd just LIKE to see it happen!"

"See what happen?" he inquired.

"See us raided," she proclaimed. "Wouldn't that stir this o'd town up?"

"Humph," was his only comment.

It was with real pain that Parrish, at the office later in the morning, received Morton's instructions. He took, in shorthand, a telegram to Abe Sunshine, and another to Nona, asking that the entire cast of the revue be sent to Peterborough forthwith, as the guests of the Morton household. Morton included an invitation to Sunshine himself.

"Add a line to Abe's message," said Morton, as an afterthought. "Say: 'Will continue rehearsals here'."

Parrish moved his notebook away from him.

"This is a terrible thing, Mr. Morton," he said.

"It's confounded nonsense," his employer agreed. "But Audrey has made up her mind to it."

Parrish tapped his pencil on the desk. "You indulge her too much, sir," he said, with emphasis.

Morton surveyed him quizzically. "Have you ever tried combatting the young lady's wishes?"

Parrish arose, and moved to the door. "Several times," he responded, "but without much success."

Toward noon, Audrey called up to say that she had ordered several new dresses—"AWFULLY low-cut, the ones for evening," she added. "And the others are just too gay for words!"

"Your idea is to shock the public of Peterborough?" he inquired.

"You said it!" she responded, as she hung up.

Morton was laughing as he set down the telephone, but gradually his face fell. He lapsed into a brown study, his arms folded upon the table and his eyes fixed vacantly on the wall. Once, when Parrish entered, Morton waved him away with an impatient gesture.

Parrish laid a telegram on the table, and withdrew. Morton did not look at it.

With a heavy sigh, he turned at last to his desk, and opened a small drawer, that was concealed behind the upper curve of the lid. He drew from it the packet of papers that he had examined several times before in the last few weeks, and slowly untied the tape that bound it.

Laying the faded letters and photographs on the walnut table, one by one, he carefully picked two of the pictures, and several of the letters, and laid them to one side. His hands moved heavily as he restored the remainder of the package to its hiding place. The papers he had laid aside, he clipped together with a bit of wire, and left upon his desk.

Then he turned to the telephone, and called Audrey.

She responded, with excited chatter about the coming visit of the members of her revue. He listened until she was done.

"There was something else," he told her. "Can you come to the office, right away?"

He hung up, and sinking back in his chair, waited until she appeared, half an hour later.

She fluttered into the room, with a laughing inquiry.

"Sit here," he told her.

As she obeyed, he took one of the photographs and handed it to her, silently. She took it, and looked at the dimmed likeness that it bore.

"Why," she cried, "that looks exactly like me!"

(To be continued.)

CIVIL SERVICE UNDER ONE ROOF IS RECOMMENDED

Department of Interior Occupies Sixteen Rented Buildings in Ottawa.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Drastic Change in Housing Departments Proposed as Economy.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 27 (Canadian Press)—Broad recommendations for centralization of departments in the inside civil service are made in the annual report of the Civil Service Commission, tabled in the House of Commons yesterday. One department of engineering and scientific services should be formed, it is suggested, instead of these being services carried on in five different and distinct departments. This suggested central service would control surveys, resources development, physical and natural science investigations, and mining and chemical research. It would also have a design, construction and maintenance branch for water powers, public works, railways and canals and marine and fisheries. Forestry and Dominion Parks also would come under its jurisdiction.

Amalagamate Them

Central services also are recommended to perform accounting, purhasing, translating, multigraphing, distributing and blue printing for the whole government service. The radio telegraph service and the St. Lawrence signal service might be transferred to the Canadian National Railways, it is suggested. Seven branches now deal with Dominion lands. It is proposed to amalgamate all these into one. Much might also be done along other lines of centralization, such as departmental libraries, filing services, etc., the report suggests.

Widely Scattered

Such plans involve a drastic change in the manner of housing government departments. At present there are in Ottawa, besides twelve main government buildings, some fifty-three buildings leased in whole or in part to the government at a gross rental of $680,000 a year. In some cases branches of one department can be found in different buildings; the interior department occupies sixteen buildings besides a part of a government block; the Department of National Defence rents ten buildings, some for storage only. The cost of administration would be greatly reduced if these branches were assembled under one roof, the report suggests.

Search For Missing Evangelist Transferred To Mexican Border.

MISSING A WEEK.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Attention in the Aimee-Semple-McPherson case shifted Wednesday to the Mexican border after it was learned by newspapers that an El Paso, Texas, deputy sheriff and two Federal operators have been checking for the last two days on a tip that the missing Woodstock, Ontario, evangelist and another woman crossed the border at El Paso several days ago.

Mrs. MacPherson, pastor of the Angelus Temple here, disappeared a week ago Tuesday while surf bathing at Ocean Park. An extensive search of the ocean in the vicinity of where she was last seen has failed to reveal her body.

LINDSAY SEEKING BRANCH TANNERY

Show Arsenal Plant To Proprietors as Location.

OMEMEE, May 27.—While Omemee is trying to induce the Edwards Tannery Co. to erect the new tannery to replace the one recently destroyed by fire in Woodbridge, in that village, other places are making a strong bid for the industry. The firm has a branch plant in this village, and are taking steps to replace the one recently destroyed, and which employed 150 men. Yesterday, interested parties in Lindsay got busy and had a conference with a representative of the firm in the hopes that the tannery would come to that town. He was taken out to view the Arsenal plant, and seemed to be pleased with the buildings.

It is understood that the announcement was made at the conference that Peterborough was also after the tannery, and had also offered the management tempting inducements. A deputation of Lindsay citizens, it is said, is leaving for Ottawa with a view to inducing the government to lease a portion of the Arsenal plant.

Soviet Believes Conference To Regulate Arms Manufacture Insincere.

NOTIFIES LEAGUE.

GENEVA, May 27.—(Canadian Press). — Russia has notified the League of Nations that she will refuse to give the views requested on questions touching on the control of private manufacture of arms. The league hopes to convoke a conference in the near future to deal with this subject. Maxim Litvinoff, Deputy Foreign Minister of Soviet Russia, explains that his country did not attend the conference on control of the traffic in arms because she believed it was not sincere. For the same reason she will have nothing to do with the move to control private manufacture.

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 23—MISTER KNOWITALL AND HIS BIG BOOK.

When the kiwi bird had eaten the cock-chafer, spots and all, he promtly went to sleep again. So there was not the slightest use of the Twins staying there.

"Come along, Whiffet, we'll be going," said Nick, taking the little rag-bag boy by the arm. "It can't be far now to Mister Snoopsy's cave in Hidy Go Land."

Here comes somebody," said Nancy. He's got spectacles on his nose and a big book under his arm. He looks wise enough to know every thing in the world. We'd better ask him if he knows where Mister Snoopsy's cave is."

So when the learned gent'eman came quite near they stopped him.

Can you tell us where Hidy Go Land is?" asked Nick politely. We're looking for a robber by the name of Snoopsy, and he lives there."

I'll look in my big book if you'll wait a minute," said the man, whose name was Mister Knowitall, for it was printed in big letters on the back of his book and that's how the Twins knew it. Let me see—I'll look in the H's. That should give it. Here's high, hire, hind, hive, hide—yes, sir, we're coming to it, I do believe. Here it is—Hidy Go Land. A place in Fairyland where folk go when they wish to hide. There are several ways of reaching it—down through the cracks in the porch, down the drain, through the dark corner behind the sofa, down the funny little holes in the field, down the mouse-holes and rat-holes in the barn, and by the Zigzag Path through the woods."

Well, where's the Zigzag Path?" said Nick. Here's the woods."

That's just it! Where?" said Mister Knowitall, looking over his spectacles. Oh! I have it! I'll look it up in my book also. It should be among the Z's. Here we are! Zither, zealous, zone, zip, Zanzibar, Zigzag Path! My! My! This book certainly tells everything. It says, The Zigzag Path is the path that leads through the woods to that part of Fairyland called Hidy Go Land. It is extremely hard to find as it is here one day and gone the next, there the next day and gone the day after. It is not a safe path to take as it is likely to jump around while you are on it and spil you off into nowhere."

That doesn't help much, does it!" said Nancy.

I'm afraid not," said Mister Knowitall. But this much I wil say. I had a second cousin whose aunt's step-brother's son was walking along the Zigzag Path one day and suddenly—just like that—off went his shoes! He never did find his shoes and it was certainly too bad. They had only been half-soled once and as he had stopped growing, they'd have lasted quite a while. Well, I must be on my way. If I come upon any more directions in my big book, I'll mail you a letter."

Will you please look among the S's too," begged the Whiffet. Shadows and Snoopsy and stile and words like that?"

Certainly," said Mister Knowitall obligingly, shutting his big book and walking off. Suddenly he nearly lost his balance for the ground he was walking on gave a terrible jerk. Here, children, come quickly!" he called. I'm on the Zigzag Path now. This must be the road to Hidy Go Land."

New Summer Necklines Employ Individuality.

Just below this is an ecru batiste yoke finished with an odd-shaped ecru frill picotted at the lower edge.

Was In Agony With Blisters On Hands Cuticura Healed

"Eczema broke out in very small blisters on the backs of my fingers. After a few days the blisters would break and then dry up. It itched and burned terribly and scratching caused very red eruptions. I could not put my hands in water or do any work without wearing rubber gloves. I could not sleep nights on account of the irritation, and was in agony most of the time. The trouble lasted about a year.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some. After using them a short time I could see an improvement. I continued the treatment and now I am healed." (Signed) Miss Bernice Shannon, R. F. D. 2, Orleans, Vt., Sept. 13, 1925.

JUDY AGAIN TELLS HER NAME

"I was deathly afraid, Miss Dean, that I would find you selling woman's lingerie or something equally embarrassing," said Buddy Tremaine. "And you can't tell how relieved I am that it is something as universal and inoffensive as handkerchiefs.

"Now I have got to talk fast. I want you to throw your influence with Mamie on my side."

"That is a big order, Mr. Tremaine," I said unsmilingly, looking him straight in the face.

"Oh don't try to upstage me, Judy. You know all about Mamie's and my affair. She told me that you did. You know that I want to put Mamie in the way of a musical education."

"And no other?" I questioned.

Buddy Tremaine looked at me searchingly, and then he grew a little pale, but he said decisively: "And no other."

"Then I will help you. Where shall I have these handkerchiefs sent?" I said hurriedly, as I noticed Miss Cleaver sliding up to us.

"Send them to the Blackstone Hotel, Miss Dean," played up Buddy as he arose. "Where can I write the check?"

"Right here," I answered and handed him my fountain pen.

As he was signing his name he said in an undertone: 'Dine with Mamie and me tonight, won't you?"

"Certainly not," I answered.

"Well, Mamie won't come without you," he pleaded disconsolately.

"I know it," I triumphantly informed him.

And then I bowed and thanked him for the sale, and he left.

I was really so dumb and unversed what I had to do that I did not know whether I had made the sales check out right or not. And as by this time Miss Cleaver stood directly in front of me, her cold eyes scrutinizing me very carefully I handed her my book and asked her if was all right. Her eyes opened wide as she saw the check and the name of the man signed to it.

"It is perfectly all right, Miss—Miss—"

Again I supplied my name. It seemed that I had been doing nothing else all day.

HEALTH BROKE DOWN.

Could Not Get Sleep For Hours After Going To Bed.

It is not natural for me to sit down and write a letter of praise of a proprietary medicine as I had always been skeptical as to their virtues." Thus writes Mr. Arthur Sequin, Storthoaks, Sask., who further says:—"But three years ago I opened a general store here in Storthoaks and placed on my shelves a few lines of the best known proprietary medicines. Among these, naturally, were Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As there were three of my customers who were obtaining good results from taking the pills, and as I was in need of a medicine I decided to try them myself.

"I had been suffering from catarrh for years, and my inside work had completely broken down my health. I was coughing all day, suffered from indigestion, and could not sleep until three or four hours after retiring. I started the pills, not with any great confidence, but by the time I had finished the second box I marked much improvement. At the fourth box I felt quite recovered, but continued them for some further time. My cough has left me, the indigestion has disappeared and I now fall asleep almost as soon as I am in bed. In my store now I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any who are feeling run-down or without energy, as I think they are a blessing to mankind."

If others who may feel skeptical will give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial they will be convinced as was Mr. Seguin. You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FACIAL NEURALGIA.

If you have suffered from neuralgia pains you can well sympathize with the distress that called forth from the poet Burns,—

"My curse upon thy venomed stang
That shoots my tortured gums alang."

Neuralgia may be defined as a severe paroxysmal pain in the area of distribution of a nerve or along its course. However, that under discussion is the type proceeding from conditions in and about the teeth.

Perhaps the most common form of facial neuralgia, but, happily, one most readily yielding to treatment, is that resulting from an inflamed pulp. This is, generally, confined locally, and hence is quickly traced to the offending tooth.

On the other hand, the pain may be manifested throughout the whole course of the nerve in its distribution and those communicating with it which leads to that condition where a tooth or teeth other than the one involved, seems to ache sympathetically.

There are sources of neuralgia perhaps more obscure than this type; such as a root-end that has been left in, following a difficult extraction, and about which a low grade infection has been set up; deposits about the roots of teeth; and pulp stones or modules.

But perhaps the most likely cause of an obscure neuralgia is found in a tooth that lies impacted in the bony alveolus, having failed to erupt either from lack of space, or due to some disturbance that has interfered with the process of eruption.

Then, either from pressure upon a nerve, or from a diseased condition engendered through the abnormal position it occupies, a very severe type of neuralgia may result.

In this connection, the third molar or wisdom tooth is the most frequent offender; and nothing less than the removal of the impacted tooth will affect a cure.

GRACIOUS HUSBAND!

The very most gracious thing which any husband ever did or possibly could say of a lady suing him for divorce is said by William B. Kahn, being sued for divorce by the songstress, Frieda Hempel. He says, "Evidently I failed to make her happy. This I regret, as a woman who has brought such happiness to millions throughout the world, should herself be happy." Frieda, how could you?

GIRLS AND BARBED WIRE.

Girl students of Oxford University are up in arms over a lofty, spiked, barbed wire fence about their premises. School authorities erected the fence, it is rumored, after learning that a co-ed out past the curfew hour got onto home territory by climbing a fence rather than ringing the gateman's door. I can hardly see American college girls standing the barbed wire longer than two minutes. It will be interesting to see what Englands' "flaming youth" does about the matter!

GIRL AUTHOR WEDS

The fiance of young Sylvia Thompson, 22-year-old author of spring's best seller. 'Hounds of Spring," is "setting pretty" according to our neat way of putting it. His name is Peter Luling. He is an art student. He appears on the title page of his fiancee's book where she writes, "This book is dedicated to the mind of H. G. Wells and to Peter Luling." Miss Thompson sold the film rights to her book for something like $15,000, the serial rights for $10,000 and a bigger sum than either for royalties.

RHUBARB SHORTCAKE.

Different, we'll tell the world! One and one-half pint rhubarb cut in small pieces, 1 1-4 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 eggs, shortcake dough. Stew rhubarb with little water. Add sugar. Mix cornstarch with little water and add to well beaten egg yolks. Add all to rhubarb mixture. Spread one layer of shortcake dough with the rhubarb custard, make a meringue of the egg whites and 1-4 cup sugar. Spread on top and brown.

For more than 50 years Anna C. Sillas made a living and a most comfortable one by sitting in show windows, her hair down her back. Her hair was 6 feet and 1 inch long, golden, and sold thousands of dollars worth of whatever she said did it. A day or so ago "Anna C. Sillas with the lovely hair" had it cut. Aged 76, "wanting a change."

Taffeta and Georgette Join the Summer Camp of Chic

A FROCK that one of the French houses is making for the races of the Grande Semaine in June at Chantilly and the Ascot races in England is a particularly felicitous combination of taffeta and Georgette. As a race frock it is usually made of white Georgette with frayed ruches of white taffeta. To wear in town during the early Summer, pale gray, beige, bois de rose and the new water green known as vert d'eau are the smartest colors. Women who take frocks of this type to the country for Summer weddings and garden-parties order them in ash pink, china blue, parchment color and ocean green as well as in white.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

YOUR HEALTH

A few weeks ago James J. Corbett, who is known to the world of sport as "Gentleman Jim," was in Washington. One day he wandered into the Senate Chamber an hour or two before the session opened. Immediately the bright-eyed pages recognized him and begged for a speech.

Mr. Corbett gave them a splendid little talk. He pointed out the importance of good health, strong bodies, elastic muscles and perfect digestion.

What particularly pleased me was what he said about ambition. "You can have anything you want, if you have the ambition and the willingness to work for it."

A boy or a girl without ambition, a man or a woman who has had all ambition killed—such a person is in a bad way. An ardent ambition inspires the will to work and an enthusiasm for every duty which comes to hand.

To a remarkable degree health depends on individual effort. Lazy folks sit when they should walk, and let their legs grow weak from not using them. They take a street-car or a taxi to cover a few blocks. They "catch a ride" to avoid a mile walk.

You see a boy or a girl slouching along, shoulders bent, chest drawn in, and giving every evidence of lack of physical ambition. Those are signs which give warning of the poor health which is almost sure to develop.

It is a fact that a well-defined ambition fills the soul with fire and eagerness. It makes its possessor stand up, with shoulders back, the lungs deeply filled and the heart pounding away in strong and forceful action. Vigorous strides give evidence that every muscle is responding to the demands of an ambitious spirit.

If you are satisfied merely to exist, if you have no driving ambition but are content to live a quiet and aimless life, your body is not stimulated to do its best for you.

You may live out your three score years and ten, but they will not be effective years. It takes ambition to get the best out of your body and soul.

I would not have you made a slave to an unworthy ambition, but I agree with Jim Corbett that underlying every success in life is a proper and inspiring ambition. Certainly, good health is promoted by it. Mr. Corbett demonstrated in his own life that by fighting against disease he could master it. He changed his physical condition from a state of ill health and weakness to a strong, vigorous, virile manhood. What he did every frail child and young person can do by the exercise of a proper ambition.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

A poor fish is one who is down to his last fin.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.)

That if the majority of the citizens of the home city don't stand together, the city will have no standing anywhere.

That worth while citizens live in the days of today and tomorrow—not in the days of yesterday.

That in many cities there is quite a gap between what the city is and what it should be. It takes men of vision and spirit to build a city.

That a city without progressive leaders starts nowhere and gets nowhere.

That some cities have too many citizens who should be leaders, who are living only in the days of the past.

That progressive cities have leaders who live in the present and work for the future. These men are men of vision and real leaders. All citizens should co-operate with them.

You should boost your city morning, noon and night. You can't say enough in her behalf.

You should not run in a treadmill. Don't go around in a circle. Have faith in your city. Take the straigh road and boost her on her way.

THE MEN'S SOFT BALL LEAGUE OFF TO GREAT START THIS WEEK

This sport is claiming the attention of hundreds of men, old and young in active participation. Get in the thrills.

The opening of the softball season on Wednesday evening ushered in a summer sport that probably has more active players than any other sport in Ontario. Leagues are formed so as to include old and young, ladies and men, and the boys and girls in the schools.

In Peterborough the Men's Softball League is well organized and regularly conducted, and has given the opportunity to hundreds of men who would not otherwise have a chance to take active part in sport. Not only do those who participate in the sport enjoy it, but there are many enthusiastic supporters who keenly enjoy the games and are just as good fans as you will see anywhere.

Softball, instead of being a detriment to major ball should be an aid as many have become fans and know the rules and the inside plays of ball through getting into the softball game.

Any sport that can attract so many playing members and enthusiastic fans is bound to have a very successful reception with the public.

Peterborough soft ball is played evenings and already good crowds have attended.

The president of the club is Mr. J. E. Sullivan, and the secretary, Mr. Walter Fitzgerald, both having given a great deal of attention to the league, together with the other officers in order to bring it up to its present fine stage of organization.

CHOIR CONTESTS HELD BY SCHOOLS

Empire Day Celebrated in Schools By Vocal Concert.

OMEMEE, May 27.—At the second of the Empire Day concerts, held on May 18th, two more contests were held, one for junior choirs and the other for choirs of boys' voices. The boys gave an excellent exhibition of clear, bell-like tones, free from the shrillness which characterized the massed trebles of children of mixed sexes. The boys sang a setting to the familiar poem "The Lamb" and five choirs took part. The choir of the Duke of Connaught school under the leadership of Mr. C. H. Williamson, of Omemee, took second place. These choristers got a tone that had an unusual amount of vitality and substance and this reviewer cannot remember having heard a group of boys go anything better in the way of interpretation. The choir did a remarkable piece of singing."

This choir has been a hobby of Mr. Hillier Williamson for the past three years. This year it consists of about forty-five boys from Third and Fourth Book classes and ranging in ages from ten years to fourteen years. It sang on Music Day at the Canadian National Exhibition last September and also at the convention of Women's Institutes. One of its members won fiirst prize, a gold medal, in the boys' solo competition in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Friday evening the 21st.

MEXICO CITY, May 27 (Canadian Press).—C. C. Braden, a mine owner of Laredo, Texas, is being tortured by bandits, who are holding him captive in the State of Durango, according to a special despatch received by El Universal from Torreon. The despatch says that Barley F. Yost, United States Consul in Torreon, has received a letter written by Braden from the camp of the bandits. Braden is reported to have said he was ill, and had been tortured when hanged up by the thumbs. The bandits, the letter added, would hold him until they received 6,000 pesos. Braden said that he was ignorant of the whereabouts of a mining engineer, Gallagher, a United States citizen who was captured the same day as himself. He thought he was a prisoner of another band. Strong forces of Federal troops are searching for the bandits.

Dome Feature To-day In Firm Mine Session

TORONTO, May 27. Canadian Press. — Dome Mines, climbing 95c to high of 14.70, was the feature of this morning's session of the Standard mining exchange. The stock closed morning at 14.40, a net gain of 65c. Prices, particularly of gold stocks, were on the whole firmer during to-day's more active session. Kirkland Lake sold up three at 111, and Teck Hughes, 3 at 3.43, and Gold Hill was 3½ higher at 42. Noranda was the strong silver stock, advancing 30 at 15.80 and touching 16.00 during the session. The rest of the Silvers were inclined to ease gractionally.

May Wheat Price Breaks Heavy Deliveries Made

CHICAGO, May 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Wheat took an early downward course to-day after an irregular start. Rains north-west and west together with larger deliveries of wheat to-day on May contracts had a bearish effect, prices opening 5-8 cents off to 1 1-4 cents up, but later undergoing a sharp downturn. May dropped 3 1-2 cents to $1.68. Corn, oats and provisions were weaker, corn starting 1-8 cents to 3-8 cents down and afterward showing a material setback all round with July and September touching a new low price record for the season. Unusually rapid fluctuations were witnessed in prices for May delivery of wheat. The fact that more than 200,000 bushels had been handed over in settlement of May accounts and that nearly half a million bushels from Omaha would be available to-morrow tended to make the contest between the opposing forces in the market appear less one-sided and to discount the predictions of new sky-rocketing in values before the close of the week.

General selling of all deliveries of wheat accompanies breaks in the price of May.

Prices Continue To Rise In New York Exchange

NEW YORK, May 27 (Canadian Press).—The main price movement continued upward in to-day's stock market, despite rather heavy preholiday profit-taking in some sections of the list.

The revival of speculative interest in motor shares, based on predictions of record-breaking second quarter earnings by several companies, was one of the features. A rather thin market also was apparent for some of the high-priced industrial specialties, General Electric soaring nearly 5 points. American Ice, Worthington Pump and several others climbed three points or more.

Local tractions continued their advance, and were followed into higher ground by local gas stocks. Several independent steels advanced a point or so.

Most Stocks Make Gains On Toronto Market To-day

TORONTO, May 27 (Canadian Press) — A general advance took change this morning. All classes of stocks gained to some extent in active trading. Smelters, though quiet, was marked up two and one-eighth points at 207 7-8, and Brazilian a half at 96 3-4. International Nickle was about the most active stock of place on the Toronto Stock Exthe session, though no heavy turnovers were recorded. Nickel firmed 3-8 at 36. Advances of a half point were made by Arnolds at 24 1-2 and Atlantic Sugar at 22 1-2 and Barcelona improved a point at 28. Dome Mines climbed 55 cents at 14.45. Imperial Oil, the unlisted leader, was 3-8 higher at 38 3-8.

IN POLICE COURT

A local man pleaded guilty to a charge of being intoxicated in a public place. He was fined $10 and costs.

M. Abramson, a local merchant, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, on a charge of interfering with the members of the local fire department while they were performing their duties. He was fined the nominal sum of $1.00, as Fire Chief Gimblett, who was unable to be present in the court, had sent word that the man had since apologised to him.

The incident arose out of the recent fire at Sukloff's store on George street. The accused, who operates a store in the vicinity of the fire, admitted that he had lost his head in the excitement and had interfered with the fire chief. Chief Newhall stated that Chief Gimblett had told him that the accused had received a stiff lesson at the time—one that he was not likely to forget for some time—and asked His Worship to take this into consideration when dealing with the case.

Upon the accused renewing his apology and promising not to repeat the offence, His Worship inflicted the minimum fine.

ALL DISEASES TREATED

$10.00 - REWARD OFFERED - $10.00

To anyone who will give information leading to the Fine and Conviction, for trespass, of those parties who held a so-called Picnic between Saturday, May 22nd, and Tuesday, May 26th, 1926 (the presumption is that this picnic was held on May 24th, 1926) on the property commonly known as Bass Rock, Chemong Lake. This property lies in a westerly direction for a quarter of a mile along the lake shore from Tindell's Bay.

Before these rowdies used it, this place was neat in appearance. Half a dozen hogs would not make it any worse when they left. A mongrel cur with a garbage can could not equal this outfit.

On purchasing this property I had a lawyer examine the original deed, or grant, from the Government, and there is no reservation whatsoever along this shore. As soon as any person sets foot on shore they are liable to prosecution for trespass.

There is also a general regulation governing the use of foreshores by lumbermen and commercial fishermen, and for emergency. In no manner does this regulation protect these picnic vandals.

If these parties, or any other parties, persist in trespassing on property, lamaging, and leaving behind their aggregation of filth thereon, no money, within reason, will be spared to bring them (both male and female) into police court, where the law will treat them as they deserve.

Farmers may allow people to hold picnics on their places similarly situated but this place is occupied, and no such freedom will be allowed.

THE EXAMINER OPENER.

FER THE LUV O' MUD, what do you lead slingers think this is, a procession or a giddy foot-race? Thus in classical language, Roy Taylor's Yankees demanded of Max Swanston's Senators what they meant by romping around the bases thirty-four times last night in the opening game of The Examiner Inter-Shop Softball League, while the Yanks fell exhausted by the wayside and only eight of them had the stamina to cross the plate. And be it said, in all fairness to the Yankees, this historical record is written by one of the Senators. In a game like last night's it is difficult to avoid the impression of partizanship, because there is really nothing to write about one team, so we might as well come clean.

We mightn't write anything at all, but two weeks ago Swanston's team played to a 13-10 victory and the losers wrote on the score book, "Friendly Game", and Max wants to make sure this game counts in the league.

If we knew anything about softball we might learnedly criticise the pitchers and catchers—there seems to be no doubt but Roy Taylor kept his legs too far apart when he was behind the plate.

but being the rookiest of rookies, never before having played anything nearer softball than "Pussy in the four corners", we must stick to generalities and concentrate on keeping friends with the umpires. We understand that it an important part of the game. In fact, if we'd seen Alex Kay after the game we'd have offered to buy him a drink of—pop—because so much laughing must have made him thirsty. We know now why umpires wear masks. It WOULD be embarassing to the players to see the ump grinning at them. At that, we wish to go on record as protestting the quite unnecessary venom with which the umpire says—

There's no need, so far as we can see, to make a fellow so embarrassed—as though he had kissed a girl out of turn, or eaten soup with his teaspoon. After all, it seems to us that the way the fellow throws the ball at us has as much to do with our going "out" as the way we handle the willow. (Oh, We know the jargon). All the Central League players come around to the office to hold post mortems on the games, with Josh Craig presiding. We hear them talking about willows, and in-curves, and out-curves, and passed balls, and sometimes they mention the word "umpire" in the same sentence with some ungentlemanly words, though we don't see the connection, being friendly with all umpires.)

Well, anyway, Alex Kay had Josh Craig right where he could do him the most good last night, but he didn't. Josh hit the pill (Selah!) seven times out of eight times up, and romped over the plate with his easy cart-horse stride four times. Max Swanston was another whom Alex might have treated a little roughly, and Max swatted out four safe hits and made four dents in the home sack. Where he shone was on the side lines, yelling—at a fellow who was already hitting thirty m.p.h. on the curves.

Joe Beuclerc shone at second base (when the glory of the setting sun caught his spectacles); made a good safe fifty per cent average in safe hits, and completed the circuit three times. Jack Heron had a throw-back to boyhood's days when he played soccer with the ball when it got in his way between first and second, and doesn't savvy yet why they called him "out." The ball, by the way, hit his bat seven times, and he reached first safely on the rebound six times. Red Franks was a stone wall as catcher, and occasionally the ball stoped when it hit him. As a batter he scared up five hits and as a base runner, well, he sprinted around the sacks four times. Albert Stanley wasn't in the cellar for the hour and a half the game lasted. He acted as lawn keeper in right field, and on the side hit six safeties and wore a run-winning smile four times. Dorrington had five hits and five runs, and Dormer three and two. Scates' meteoric career ended with one hectic innings, wherein he had one hit, one run. George Johnston knocked stars out of the heavy hitting members of the Yanks team, garnering in half a dozen hard ones in deep left field. On the ground, off the ground, horizontal or perpendicular or upside-down, they were all the same to George.

In addition, he rapped six safe hits and reached home with a thankful sigh four times.

About the opposition; the question arises whether, with 47 hits to 25 and 34 runs to 8, there was any opposition. The players were there, and whatever else they didn't do they certainly tried hard. Maurice Dunkley was dead on as a pitcher. We don't know whether it's a compliment or not, but we know we couldn't have hit a two-inch bat at 38 feet as often as he did. And he hit a home run, which is something not many do with as good fielders on guard as the Senators had. Then Harry Clarke's three homers can't go unnoticed. Like ourselves, Harry is a novice, though if there were any scouts on hand from the big leagues The Examiner may say good-bye to him after that swatting exhibition. Wilde, being a cricketer by nature, carried his bat out four times.

Of the rest it may be said they had energy, resourcefulness, and courage, and if you want fuller particulars look at the box score. They were defeated, but not disgraced, and from the heights of our victory we can be magnanimous enough to remark, "There's another game coming."

TRIPLE LINK 13—BARACAS 7.

The Triple Link softball team won a hard contested game from the Baracas last night at the James Stevenson park by 13 to 7. The game up until the eight innings was very close with the Triple Link ahead by one run. But the Baracas team got four errors chadked up against them in the eighth and with six hits made by the Triple Link team they soon ran up a larger score. Both pitchers pitched good ball for the first six innings but after that Pacey for the Triple Link had the better of the deal. Only one man was given his base on balls and that was off Dawson. The Baracas featured a nice double play in the seventh when Butcher was got on first and Miller on third. The game was much closer than the final score indicates. The score:

BIG FIELD DAY HELD AT KEENE

Soft Ball Games the Main Attraction For a Large Crowd.

KEENE, May 27.—A large crowd attended the sixth annual field day held at Keene on Monday, May 24, which was a huge success in every way. The softball games were the chief attraction, the C.G.E. team of Peterboro opposing Keene and Sixth Line winning both games. At times there was snappy playing on both teams, but Keene and Sixth Line plainly showed lack of practice.

JONES AND OUIMET OUT OF TOURNAMENT

Bobby Jones Is Hope of U. S. Golfers in Scotland.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 27 (Canadian Press).—The paths of the British amateur golf championships continued to lead to the traps and the sidelines for stellar Britishers and Americans in the third day's play. Sir Ernest Holderness, one of threat for invaders, went down before the excellent golf of R. W. Peattie, nineteen-year-old Scotsman. The outstanding defender of the cup for the home forces is now the defending champion, Robert Harriss.

Chick Evans, of Chicago, and Francis Ouimet, of Boston, former open and amateur champions of the United States, went out of the tournament.

Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, is now considered the best bet of the trans-Atlantic golfers, following his two brilliant rounds yesterday. To-day he meets J. Birnie, Jr., of Inverness, and in the afternoon, if he is successful against the Scotsman, he will probably run into the best match of the tournament against Harriss.

JENNINGS CONVALESCENT.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 27. — (Canadian Press). — Hughie Jennings, assistant manager of the New York Giants, was discharged yesterday from Winyah Tubercular Sanitarium here. He is expected to return for treatment next winter.

Jennings said that he would not rejoin McGraw's team this season.

HELPFUL HINTS By GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

JOYCE WETHERED—DOOR-KNOB TURN OF WRIST.

As soon as the club-head begins to move, the left wrist must be allowed to start and turn gradually over towards the body. This rolling over of the left wrist is similar to the wrist action used in turning the handle of a door from left to right.

Taking it for granted that the head has been kept still, it will come naturally to the player to allow her left hip to turn slightly outwards, her left shoulder to come around until the point of it is in line with her left eye and the ball, and her left knee to bend.

At the top of the swing, if the actions have been correct, the left arm will be nearly straight, the right elbow will be close to the player's side, the toe of the club should be pointing towards the ground, and the shaft of the club should be in a horizontal position.

This last point is of vital importance, as, if the club is allowed to drop beyond this position, the swing is too full, and the player is inclined to lose control. The club must come down the way it goes up.

SECRETS of STARS on INSIDE BASEBALL

as told to BILLY EVANS

BY GROVER ALEXANDER.

Smart pitchers are the best pitchers. A majority are smart but most of them are not inclined to use their head until their arm begins to lose some of its stuff.

That has been my experience and I believe it is typical of most of the successful big league pitchers. As long as it is an easy matter to mow down the opposition with natural stuff why resort to strategy, is the usual custom.

That is a mistake that most pitchers are guilty of. A warning I want to give all pitchers is, don't wait until your stuff fails you before using your head. A mixture of brains with brawn early in every pitcher's career will add four or five years more of service.

With the lively ball that has been in vogue for several years, the task of the pitcher has been greatly increased and now more than ever must he call upon his brain to ass'st his arm.

The game of today is one of free hitting. Pitchers' battles are the exception. The big thought of every pitcher now is to win his game, regardless of the score.

Ten years ago if a pitcher managed to stagger through a game which he won, 12 to 11, he would feel no great enthusiasm over the victory. He would figure it a badly pitched game. These days a 12-11 victory is as eagerly sought as a 1-0 affair.

You must develop a change of pace. Few pitchers can get by now with speed alone. A pitcher needs a full repertoire of stuff and then must use it to advantage to win consistently.

Great batters are constantly trying to get the upper hand on the pitcher. His only chance is to outguess them and this can only be done by using his brain power.

Diamond Disputes Decided

By BILLY EVANS

What happens when batsman, in trying to dodge a wildly pitched ball, has it come into contact with his bat, a fair ball resulting?

In all such situations whatever happens is legal.

At one time, under the rules, such a play was regarded as a mere accident, the ball being dead.

Now it is considered in the same light as any other batted ball. The fact that the batter was trying to dodge a wild pitch is given no consideration.

In the play cited above it is simply a fair ball.

WIN ON SATURDAY MEANS LOT TO PETES

Manager Johnston's Crew Need Victory To Keep Ponies in Sight.

Manager Shiner Johnston's Central Ontario Leaguers should be in good shape on Saturday when they play their first home game of the season at the Stevenson Park with their old opponents Belleville as their guests. The Ponies by winning their first two games are out in front and the Petes to tie them have to take the series from Belleville and then down Joe Daley's men here a week from Saturday. Belleville of course figure on taking two games themselves so Saturday's battle should be full of action. Neither manager has announced his pitching selection for the week-end clash. Walter Gerow has both Joe Oulette and Gilly Goyer to throw in at the Petes while Shiner Johnston may use Lefty Lennox, Al Heckman or Jeff Hardill. The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp with umpire Alex Kay in charge and a big crowd will witness a peppery engagement.

CARDS TRIPLE PLAY.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—The St. Louis Cardinals made a triple play in the second inning of yesterday's game with Cincinnati. Hornsby leaped high in the air for Walker's line drive and whipped it to Thevenow at second, doubling Lucas. Thevenow then threw to Bottomley in time to get Dressed off first.

The most sensational boat race in the long series between Oxford and Cambridge universities took place in 1912, when weather conditions were terrible. Little more than half way both boats sank. Oxford managed to refloat their craft and finished the course, but the judge ordered the race to be rowed again a few days later.

BILLY EVANS Says

MORE HONORS.

What a game for Johnson to win"? Some start for Walter to make in his 20th year as a big leaguer."

What do you think of the old boy?"

These are just a few of the expressions I heard relative to Walter Johnson's 15-inning, 1-0 victory over the Athletics, in the opening clash of the season.

The baseball world seemed glad at the triumph of Walter Johnson. This feeling extended not only to the fans but players as well. There could be no greater tribute.

Working the opening game between Cleveland and Detroit, both Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker as well as other stars of the two teams made favorable comment relative to Walter.

When the Detroit-Cleveland game was over, the score board showed Washington and Philadelphia still deadlocked in a scoreless tie at the close of the tenth inning.

As I wended my way to the clubhouse, I heard at least a half dozen players remark:

Well, I hope Walter wins that one."

BOOSTS GAME

The attitude of fans and players relative to Johnson and his 15-inning victory, made it apparent to me the big part that an outstanding star plays in the success of the game.

It is really remarkable the influence for good, that a colorful player with a picturesque background, can exert.

The master performance of Johnson in blanking a slugging club like the Athletics for 15 innings, allowing only six hits and striking out 12 men, was a wonderful thing for baseball.

The night of the opening of the major league season, as well as the day following, the subject of baseball conversation everywhere was Johnson's great pitching feat.

It gave the game worth while publicity. It stirred up interest in baseball. It made the old fans marvel and the newer flock of enthusiasts gasp with astonishment.

It just seems a shame that Walter Johnson cannot go on forever.

GOOD INFLUENCE

The passing of great stars like Mathewson, Lajoie, Wagner, Johnson, Cobb, Ruth, Speaker and others of that ilk are a distinct loss to baseball.

The deeds of these players in the box, at the bat and in the field, make the fans forget the unpleasant things that often crop out.

In the dark days, such as followed the 1919 scandal, the stars of the game by their play, tided the sport over the rough spots. These players made the public realize there was nothing wrong with the sport, simply because a few individuals fell from grace.

Perhaps Babe Ruth more than any other player came to the front in this crisis. The Babe began hitting home runs shortly after some of the White Sox changed to black hose.

Ruth and his home run rampage made the fans forget all about the dishonest actions of a few. As a result all previous attendance records were broken the year following the scandal.

This in view of the fact that the pessimists had predicted dire things.

Too bad there must be an end to star.

MOVIGRAPHS

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—Temporarily at least, a man may be whatever man his imagination can build for him. And so Edmund Lowe, dapper, romantic lead of many pictures, has transformed himself for "What Price Glory" into Sergeant Quirt," perhaps the hardest" soldier ever presented for entertainment purposes.

Now Lowe, cultured, suave, considerate, and trained to the stage from college days, looks about as tough as, let's say, the sculptured Apollo Belvedere. Which fact coupled with his long screen identification in bland, heroic roles led Hollywood to question the Fox company's judgment in selecting him for Quirt."

When a man's ability to be tough is challenged, the primitive ego is offended, and so it was with more than usual professional pride that Lowe threw himself into the character of the sardonic Marine sergeant.

Without previous military experience, he quickly acquired the drill proficiency, the barracks manner and the soldier swagger, under tutelage of a regular Army 'top cutter." And now he's in fighting trim and fighting mood—so captivated by the military lure that he intends joining a citizens' training camp upon the first opportunity.

Quirt' is not a ruffian," explains Lowe. He's a hard-boiled slicker. He takes a devilish delight in outsmarting his fellow-in-arms, Captain Flagg.' And he can look most angelic when he's most satanic—as some of our modern city gunmen look when they are bumping off a victim."

In the evening schedule, the Marigolds (Miss Norah Shevlin, captain) won two games out of three from the Wrens (Miss Myra Moloney, captain). Wrens' players with good scores were Miss Helen McCarthy 184 and Miss Helen Hennessey 173. Marigolds: Mrs. Ted Crowe 205, 155 and 247, and Miss Catheleen McCarthy 161.

NEW GOLD FIELD LOW GRADE AREA

Special Report on Red Lake District—Many Claims Staked.

PRICES ARE HIGH.

TORONTO, May 27—A Toronto newspaper prints a story from a special correspondent at Red Lake which declares that a big low grade area is believed to exist in the Red Lake district. The article says in part:

"Dome-Howie have three drills working actively. McIntyre is working two drills.

"About a hundred and thirty men are in camp proper around Burntwood Bay, and hundreds more are scattered through the district. Mining Recorder Holland says that over 3,500 claims have been staked in the Red Lake area, some west, near the Manitoba border. The big rush is on into Woman and Birch Lake areas, to the east of here.

"Present indications are that the area will be a big low grade gold proposition, but surface exploration during the next month may change this.

"Flour is selling at $15 a hundredweight; sugar, $25; bacon, 75 cents a pound; a restaurant is serving good meals at 75 cents.

"Prospectors tents are now springing up all over the shores of Red Lake. Dr. Skeyyl reports the health of the camp 100 percent."

COMMITTEE TO STUDY FRANC

Problem of Stabilization Referred To Independent Board.

OTHER MEASURES.

PARIS, May 27 (Canadian Press)—The appointment of a technical financial advisory committee to study the monetary situation in France is the first step toward stabilization of the franc, Minister of Finance Peret said last evening.

"We have a sinking fund organized with voluntary contributions flowing into it with encouraging liberality," M. Peret said. "The budget is balanced and measures are in preparation for a full and complete renovation of French finances.

"The time accordingly has come for the study of stabilization. We have decided that this must be done independently of all political considerations and outside of the routine of government administration. Hence there will not be a politician or a government functionary on the committee. Eminent specialists, most of whom are yet to be chosen, will examine the situation from a purely technical point of view and will recommend measures to prepare for stabilization."

M. Peret's plans, which he explained in person to a group of bankers, have made an excellent impression. The opinion was expressed that the French government finally has struck a trial that is likely to lead to real financial restoration and monetary stabilization.

The finance ministry also announced that measures will be taken against French exporters who leave the proceeds of their sales abroad beyond the legal time limit of three months. The ministry warned that if the proceeds were not brought back to France, the full penalties, which may amount to confiscation of the amounts involved, will be applied.

MORE CARE NEEDED SELECTING PEOPLE

Doctor Says Mentality of Prospective Immigrants Should Be Examined.

LONDON, Ont., May 27 (Canadian Press).—The need of selective immigration for Canada was stressed in an address yesterday afternoon of Dr. John A. McGregor, retiring president of the Ontario Medical Association.

"The medical profession can perform a lasting public service by bringing the matter to the attention of the Immigration Department and impressing on them the necessity of more carefully investigating, particularly, the assisted immigrant as to his mental status before he leaves his native country," said Dr. McGregor.

THEATRE AT THE CAPITOL

HAROLD LLOYD IN "FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE."

The premier fun-maker, Harold Lloyd, is featured in the picture showing at the Capitol Theatre for the last four days of this week, "For Heaven's Sake," with the spectacled comedian as the chief character. Harold Lloyd proves his real cleverness in this picture by taking a role that is a little different to his ordinary methods. Instead of demanding the limelight at all times, he enacts more of the part of a spectator, while his bevy of tough friends do the funny stunts that arouse so much merriment. The hapless companion of their larks, trying to save them from the consequences of a misplaced jag, looks on in consternation while they have a wild and merry time of it.

Harold Lloyd is J. Harold Manners in this picture, a millionaire clubman with an absent-minded air and an ingenuous countenance. He becomes involved, through certain mischances of a humorous nature, with the slum mission of Evangelist Paul and falls madly in love with the evangelist's daughter, a part taken by the dainty Jobyna Ralston. His adventures with the tough denizens of a very tough neighborhood and the manner in which he saves them from the clutches of the law, provide some exhilarating scenes, but the wild and woolly part of the picture is supplied by the episodes in a runaway 'bus, steered by his inebriated friends.

It is a mirth-provoking picture, full of fun and laughs from start to finish, and with a cleverness in the situations and the sub-titles which add immensely to its interest. —Jeanette.

GENUINE IS TRAIN WRECK YOU SEE IN THIS NEW PICTURE

No Studio Smash-Up Employed in Filming of "Whispering Smith" Real Thing Shown

The difference between a freight train wreck prepared in a studio and a regulation railway freight train wreck is graphically shown in "Whispering Smith," a smashing dramatic Metropolitan production, which will be on view at the Regent Theatre today.

As the wrecking of the freight train is one of the thrills in this production, Director George Melford arranged with the Union Pacific Railroad to advise him of any wreck that might happen while he was engaged in making the production.

One week passed and no word of a wreck; two weeks passed, and the picture continued to find its way into the camera; three—four—five, and Melford had almost given up hope of securing a real honest-to-goodness train wreck for his picture.

On the second day of the sixth weeks' filming, and when the picture was nearing its finish, Director Melford was notified by the Union Pacific officials that they had a wreck at the edge of the Mojave desert.

Camerman, director and players were rushed to the scene almost two hundred miles away and photographed.

It was the first time in motion picture production that such a thing had occurred and while the company and shippers suffered a loss of many thousands of dollars in merchandise, nothing was salvaged.

H. B. Warner, Lilyan Tashman, John Bowers and Lillian Rich are featured. In the cast also are Will Walling, Robert Edeson and others

BIG VEIN STRUCK AT RED LAKE MINE

Rich Deposit Found on Howley Gold Claims.

TORONTO, May 27 (Canadian Press) — A special despatch from Red Lake says that the Mowey gold claims recently acquired by the Dome Mines Company are standing the test of actual development and that three holes have been diamond drilled to a vertical depth of 300 feet. "At one point across a width of 66 feet, the channel samples show an average of $7.40 per ton, one section of this across 22 feet averages $16 per ton. At other points across width of 15 to 25 feet or more, the results are much higher. For instance, at west end, where deposit runs into adjoining McIntyre, it has total width of at least 20 feet and with one section of a foot or two in width carrying values of over $100 to ton. These details are official."

HOSTILE ATTITUDE.

Between Two American Women's Organizations Amuses Foreign Delegates.

PARIS, May 26.— (Canadian Press).—A rather tense situation has arisen in the International Suffrage Alliance through a hostile attitude of the American League of women voters toward the American National Woman's party (feminists). The former organization is already a member of the International Alliance. Representatives of the woman's party have just arrived here.

The women voters intend to oppose the request of the woman's party for admission and the split among the American women is regarded with amusement by the delegates of some forty nations. Congress begins next Monday.

ATTORNEY KEYES TO JOIN SEARCH FOR EVANGELIST

Will Conduct Vigorous Investigation, Says District Attorney.

TO LOOK FOR FRIEND.

Kenneth Ormiston, Formerly Radio Operator, Now Missing, Will Be Sought

LOS ANGELES, May 27 (Canadian Press).—District Attorney Asa Keyes announced yesterday that if the body of Aimee Semple McPherson, missing Woodstock, Ontario, evangelist, who disappeared at Ocean Park Beach last Tuesday, did not come ashore by to-day, he would start a vigorous investigation of the case.

Kenneth G. Ormiston, formerly radio operator at Mrs. McPherson's temple, and one of her closest friends, would be sought for questioning as one of the first moves, Keyes said. Ormiston superintended the installation of the Angelus Temple Radio Station in 1923 and operated it until a few months ago. On January 23 he disappeared, according to his wife. His automobile was traced to Pasadena, where it was abandoned.

The District Attorney declared he could not overlook the fact that Ormiston had been a close friend of the lost preacher. He said that he felt their close association might prove a valuable lead in tracing the woman.

Delivering a speech here which has been eagerly anticipated, Mr. Lloyd George again condemned general strike and declared that it was no excuse for the government to break off coal negotiations when there was still a chance to prevent a great industrial tie up.

glaring cases he mentioned was that of a farmer who admitted to him that his practice was to start his animals off on three meals a day and reduce the number of meals by degrees until in the end they were receiving only four meals a week.

"The public interest in the work of the human society is slowly but surely increasing," he said, "and the work of your local society in this respect is head and shoulders above any other in the Province."

Commenting on the work of the Toronto society, Mr. Wilson stated that in Toronto last year they examined 21,000 individual horses in addition to 2,00 stables. The stables, he said, presented serious problems. Some terrible conditions have been uncovered," he said. "In some cases we have found them without roofs and have discovered horses standing in them with five inches of snow upon their backs," and he described another case where they found a number of horses packed into a stable twelve feet square with manure eighteen inches deep upon the floor. "What would these beasts do without the Humane Society?" asked Mr. Wilson.

Blinders that flap are a big fault in the harnessing of a horse, Mr. Wilson said, as they cause abscesses over their eyes.

"There is no animal in God's earth that deserve the sympathy of mankind more than the decrepit city horse," said Mr. Wilson. "After the animals have given years of service they are turned over to junk dealers and usually end their days in misery." He told of a case that had come to his attention where a thoroughbred horse that had brought its owner the sum of $80,000 in prize money as a race horse had been picked up by one of the society's officers on the streets of Toronto. The animal was bleeding from the nose and mouth and was in such bad shape that when the doctor attempted to remove one of its shoes the entire foot came off.

Mr. Wilson told of the conditions that exist in connection with the transportation of shep and hogs in freight cars. In some cases, he said, the board used for partitions are so rotten that they break easily, with the result that the sheep and the hogs become mixed, and the hogs immediately start in to eat the sheep. Suggestions in this connection are now in front of the railway board for their approval.

Steel traps he termed as "the most damnable invention of man as regards cruelty to animals," and all societies are taking his matter up vigorously, he said. Mr. Wilson drew a vivid picture of the sufferings of animals that are caught in these traps. Where a trapper has a large number of them and covers a big area which in all probability he covers about once a week, and perhaps just shortly after he sets one an animal is caught, the sufferings of the creature can be readily imagined, he said.

He stated that his friend, Jack Miner, had told him that in his opinion traps for muskrats were all right as they were usually set so that the rats fall into the water and drown in a few minutes, but in all other cases he was of the opinion that the humane societies should get together and make trappers obtain something that will will immediately.

In conclusion, Mr. Wilson said "If you can teach the boys to be kind to animals, it will not be long until we can close the doors of the humane societies, as it is through education that knowledge will come."

Mrs. E. S. Martin and George Boucher moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Ex-Crown Princess Faces False Pretenses Charge Obtained Vases From Museum; Refuses To Return Them

BERLIN, May 28 (United Press). — A formal charge of obtaining goods under false pretences, has been proffered against ex-Crown Princess Cecilie in connection with highly valuable Sevres vases, recently in a museum and now in the Princess' possession. A Republican organization making the charge does not expect the public prosecutor to press the accusation, however.

The former Crown Princess claimed recently that the vases were her property. The Prussian Government disputed it, but offered to present her with a Remembrandt masterpiece instead of the vases.

Complying with the ex-Crown Princess' request, the Government sent the vases to her home "for a last view."

But Cecilie refused to return them. The vases are now in her castle a Oels.

GREY STANDS WITH ASQUITH

Says Leader is Not Responsible For Difficulties in Party.

DELAY A SURPRISE.

LONDON, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Viscount Grey added another sensation to the Liberal party dispute to-day by announcing that he stands with Lord Oxford and Asquith in the controversy between the latter and Mr. Lloyd George. Speaking at a luncheon at the National Liberal Club, Lord Grey said: "I stand entirely with and behind Lord Oxford. If there have been difficulties inside the Liberal party, they are not difficulties of his making. Those of us who have been closely associated with him feel that the surprise is not that something should have appeared now, but that it has been so long delayed."

"HICKS" ARE PROUD.

Citizens Vote Against Changing Name.

HICKSVILLE, N. Y., May 28. — It's still Hicksville.

Proud residents of this Long Island village told the world so on Thursday. The feud over changing the time-honored name because a minority cringed when scoffers scoffed was settled Wednesday night when votes were counted in the municipal referendum. The loyal Hicksites won, 994 to 317.

"We're still Hicks," the crowd exulted, as they surged from the fire hall after the votes were counted.

The agitation was started by the Chamber of Commerce when a realty firm was unable to dispose of a large development because of the name. The village was named for Elias Hicks, noted Quaker leader, long ago.

Labor Member Enquires About Arms Conference

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28. — (Canadian Press)—The League of Nations meeting being held in Geneva this week is merely a gathering of the preparatory commission, with respect to disarmament, Premier King stated in the House of Commons yesterday in answering a question by J. S. Woodworth (Labor Winnipeg North Centre). Mr. Woodsworth asked if Canada was being represented at the coming disarmament conference of the League of Nations.

The Prime Minister further stated that if it were found feasible to hold a disarmament conference in 1927, Canada and other members of the League would doubtless attend, when the views of the Dominion on the question would be fully expressed.

INCOME TAX TALK

Exemptions for Married Persons Advocated in Resolutions Discussion.

OTTAWA, May 28 (Canadian Press).—The budget resolutions respecting reductions in the income tax were before the House of Commons Thursday.

When the clause increasing the exemption for a married person to $3,000 was under discussion, R. S. White (Conservative, Mount Royal) drew attention to the case of an incapacitated daughter, twenty years of age, on whose account her father was not allowed exemption under the Act. Although this girl was over eighteen years of age, her father had to support her.

Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs and Excise, said that it had been found impossible to give additional exemptions to married persons for dependant children over eighteen years. While there were some meritorious cases, to allow exemption in these instances would afford an opportunity for fraud.

In the opinion of Hon. Dr. Edwards of Frontenac, exemption should be granted not only in the case of children up to the age of 18 but in the case of those who were physically or mentally defective of any age. "I want," he said, "to make a plea for those who remain children all their lives."

This contention was upheld by W. D. Euler of Waterloo, who declared that very frequently it cost more to keep a grown-up, physically or mentally unfit person that it did to keep a healthy child under 18 years.

"This matter," finally said Mr. Boivin, "will receive consideration and will be referred to the experts of the department. If it is decided to provide for such cases it can be done without a resolution because it will be in the nature of a decrease."

T. L. Church (Conservative, Toronto North-West) complained that an exemption to $3,000 only was an injustice to workingmen and many returned soldiers with famliies. He also asked that a simplified form of return be provided.

Mr. Boivin estimated that thirty-five to forty per cent. of those who paid taxes last year would not pay under the new provisions. On incomes under $6,000, the reduction would amount to approximately $5,113,882.19.

Evasion of Tax.

Mr Church said that the Minister should make everyone a Canadian under the law until proven otherwise in order to catch those wealthy Canadians who lived in Great Britain and avoided the taxes in both countries.

Bandit Secures $2,000 From Branch Bank in Winnipeg.

KILLS EMPLOYEE.

WINNIPEG, May 28 (Canadian Press).—A 19-year-old boy was shot to death and $2,000 in currency stolen when a bandit raided a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here to-day.

Maurice Garvie, employed by the collections department of the bank, was shot and instantly killed.

Driving to the bank, which is located at the corner of Sherbrooke and Logan Avenue, in a taxi cab, the bandit, who was well dressed, walked into the building and immediately drew an automatic revolver, shouting: "Put 'em up."

Garvie was in the back of the small structure, and when the teller, M. P. Johnson, in the cage, refused to comply with the command, the gunman fired, the youth falling to the floor dead.

"That's what you'll get if you don't shove them up!" he told the teller.

Gaining entrance to the cage, the bandit scooped up the $2000 in bills, and then made his escape.

The bandit was captured after barricading himself in a house, and in a gun battle two policemen were wounded, one believed seriously.

ALBERTA ELECTION DATE JUNE 28; BROWNLEE HAS OPENED CAMPAIGN

Nominations for Legislature Seats on June 18—Premier Omits Reference to Natur al Resources Question in First Speech.

GOVERNMENT ELECTED IN JULY, 1921

EDMONTON, Alta., May 28 (Canadian Press) — General election date in Alberta will be Monday, June 28, with nominations on Friday, June 18. The writs have been issued for those dates.

Seventeen advance polls will be opened in the leading cities and towns of the province on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday preceding the general election day. Ballot papers will not be sent out until after the nominations, except in the case of the more remote polls.

Parcels of election material and working supplies will be sent to the outlying polls at once, and returning officers all over the province will get their proclamations and appoint their enumerators, of whom there will be a total force of about 3000.

Premier J. E. Brownlee, already has opened his election campaign. He is at present in the south of the province. Speaking at Cardston Wednesday night Premier Brownlee defended his administration and declared that the government was the first co-operative government Alberta had ever had. He claimed it should be returned to power on its record. He made no mention of the natural resources question.

Elected in 1921

The Government that is about to try conclusions at the polls in Alberta came into office in July 1921, when a ticket nominated by the United Farmers won in a landslide majority over the former Liberal government. A cabinet of farmer members was struck, with Herbert Greenfield for premier, and one lawyer member for attorney-general in the person of John E. Brownlee. After a few years of the Greenfield administration some dissatisfaction arose within the government ranks and last fall a change was made at the instigation of the U. F. A. members, as a result of which Mr. Brownlee became premier in place of Mr. Greenfield. A policy of co-operation with Labor has obtained from the first, and four of the memebrs elected were Labor nominees, including one of the ministers.

Only a Bookkeeper, They Said Of Elderly Tenant Columbia Professor Dies Where He Sought Solitude

NEW YORK, May 28 (United Press).—Hidden among the tall buildings is a little frame building on Mount Eden Avenue, The Bronx, up whose stairs passed every day for two years an elderly man whom no one knew much about.

"He was just a book-keeper. He did not amount to anything," the owner of the house said yesterday, as they were carrying away her tenant's body.

But Dr. Frank Nelson Cole, Professor of Mathematics at Columbia University since 1895, had kept his secret hidden well.

For two years he had lived as Edward Mitchell, "just an ordinary book-keeper."

From his class room he had escaped into the invisible cloak that a great city flings over those who wish its shelter.

Daily he was the scholar, the professor. Each night, a tired plain-looking clerk.

Death alone flung the invisible cloak aside. He was graduated from Harvard in 1882, and received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees there later. For twenty-five years he was secretary of the American Mathematical Society.

FRENCH LOSSES ARE VERY LIGHT

Not More Than 100 Killed in Recent Fighting Against Riffs.

TO PENSION KRIM.

PARIS, May 28 (Canadian Press) —The Fez correspondent of the Havas agency quotes official sources as announcing that the French losses in the recent offensive against the Riffians did not exceed 100 killed, including native troops and friendly tribesmen.

Though he failed to make good his pretensions to the Moroccan sultanate, Abd-el-Krim will get the usual pension awarded to ex-sultans, in the opinion of French official circles.

It is for the Sultan of Morocco to decide what punishment shall be meted out to the rebellious Cadi, but he will probably be advised by the French and Spanish and will use clemency in order to placate the tribes still sympathizing with the Riffian leader.

The first discovery of coal in the present State of Washington was made in 1852 and the first mine was opened in Bellingham Bay in 1854.

TREATY MOTION TO BE DEBATED

Premier's Bill Will Require All Treaties To Be Submitted To House.

IS PRACTICE NOW.

OTTAWA, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Premier King is bringing down a motion in the House which will recognize the principle that before the ratification of a treaty is advised by the Canadian Government such ratification must first receive the approval of the Canadian Parliament. The motion is likely to precipitate an important debate on the whole question of international relations. It has been the practice in the last few years for the Canadian Government to submit treaties to Parliament before ratification, but, so far, there has been no formal motion adopted by the House expressing the view that such a course should be followed.

"BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES"

RADIO OPERATOR KNOWS NOTHING ABOUT MYSTERY

Ormiston, Sought For Questioning on McPherson Disappearance, Turns Up.

DENIES KNOWLEDGE.

Reward Offered By Evangelist's Mother For Her Safe Return.

LOS ANGELES, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Kenneth G. Ormiston, sought for questioning in connection with the disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, who dropped from sight on May 18 while bathing at Santa Monica, turned up late yesterday at Santa Monica, and denied any knowledge of the mystery.

Ormiston, former operator in the radio broadcasting station at Angelus Temple, of which Mrs. McPherson was pastor, said he felt confident that she had been drowned and that her body would be recovered soon. He said he first learned of the evangelist's disappearance through the newspapers.

His wife, from whom he is estranged, had threatened a divorce action against him, intimating that she would name Mrs. McPherson as co-respondent, Ormiston said.

Mrs. W. G. Ormiston, the radio operator's mother, said in San Francisco, that her son separated from his wife three months ago "following a quarrel over Mrs. McPherson."

Reward Offered

For the first time since Aimee Semple McPherson, Woodstock evangelist, disappeared while surf bathing at Ocean Park, May 18, those who believe that she did not drown, had a substantial reward to spur them on to-day in the search for her.

Declaring that she wanted to call the bluff of those who have broadcasted rumors concerning her daughter, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, has offered a reward of $25,000 for her safe return.

Mrs. Kennedy said that she had not the slightest belief that the reward would ever be claimed.

"Never for one moment since her departure that Tuesday afternoon have we had doubt but that she was drowned," Mrs. Kennedy said.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

John Shaughnessy Falls Into River When Raft Pole Breaks.

HELP AT HAND.

John Shaughnessy, River Road, had a narrow escape from drowning while poling his raft in the Otonabee river. He had been fishing and on the way home he was propelling his raft by means of a pole.

The pole which he was using broke and he was thrown into the water and was in dire straits when James McMartin, senior, who happened to be in the neighborhood, saw his predicament and managed to get him to the shore.

Fortunately Mr. Shaughnessy was none the worse for his thrilling adventure and was able to proceed home shortly afterwards.

the injustice of the income tax borne by public utilities in the Province of Quebec. This was unfair, as in Ontario the Hydro-Electric did not pay income tax.

Sir Henry Drayton raised the point of double taxation on dividends, and in reply Mr. Boivin said that the bill would provide that there would be no duplication of taxes on dividends passing from the original company through a holding company to the shareholders. Thus a holding company would not in itself have to pay tax on dividends.

Church Defends Hydro.

Mr Church said that he had observed that any person who represented St. Lawrence-St. George was "very glad to get up in this House and attack public ownership of the people of Ontario.'' He resented the attack of Mr. Cahan on public ownership in this province. Mr. Cahan had been making a number of speeches in the House. "Every time he makes a speech, I am going to make a speech too," said Mr. Church.

There was no politics in the Hydro Electric Commission, "as there is in the Canadian National Railways." The Hydro-Electric Commission paid all taxes that were paid by private concerns. No province was receiving less than Ontario obtained for the taxes it paid. "I represent a public ownership city, and every time the honorable gentleman makes a speech I am going to make a speech too," reiterated Mr. Church.

"As a matter of privilege I may say," Mr. Cahan began, when Mr. Church pointed out that he had not completed his speech.

Finally, Mr. Cahan was allowed to proceed on a question of privilege. The member for North-West Toronto (Mr. Church) had not understood his speech, said Mr. Cahan. Mr. Cahan said he had made no attack on the Hydro-Electric Commission. The people of Ontario were at perfect liberty to have any public ownership they desired. He hoped that when Mr. Church read his (Mr. Cahan's) speech from Hansard he would see fit to apologize.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) objected to a provision to tax the dividends from private corporations. This would amount to "multiplied taxation," by first taking the income of the companies and again as distributed in the form of dividends. He read a telegram protesting against the clause.

Protect Small Corporation.

When the income tax bill is before the House next week, it will have included a clause to protect the small industrial corporation from double taxation. Hon. G. H. Boivin announced this in the House last night. "The clause," he said, "would give to these corporations the opportunity of making their own option of paying their taxation as joint stock companies or as individual partnerships." "That will meet my objection to a very great extent," observed G. H. Cahan of St. Lawrence-St. George. Mr. Boivin intimated that the Government was endeavoring, however, to reach with taxation the man who incorporated himself as an investment corporation, evaded taxation by withdrawing from the corporation only what he required to pay for his living expenses, paid nine per cent. on the balance and left the entire amount of his surplus to accumulate from year to year in the corporation.

"We have protected the small industrial investor," he added, "by placing in the bill a clause to the effect that partners going into business, or people entering what may be called a family industrial corporation shall have the option of paying either as a partnership or as a company as they desire." The resolutions carried and a bill based upon them was given first reading.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from her late residence to Longwell Cemetery, Foxboro. Mr. and Mrs. F. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. James Hannon, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheatley, Mrs. Joe Metcalfe and Mrs. Gerald Andrews, Norwood attended the funeral.

WILLIAM RIDGE.

MILLBROOK, May 28.—William Ridge, whose death occurred on Thursday, May 20, following a brief illness, was born in Clarke township 79 years ago.

His parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Ridge, came to Canada from Yorkshire, England, on their wedding trip, the voyage, by sailing vessel, occupying several weeks. After a brief residence in Clarke, they lived for a time at Welcome, then known as "The Guide-Post", moving from there to Manvers and locating near what is now Pontypool, being pioneer settlers of that township. Their home was hewed from the virgin forest, and besides farming the land as he cleared it, Mr. Ridge operated a shingle-mill and a [illegible], at one time owning about 700 acres.

The land for the cemetery at Pontypool was donated by the late Mr. Ridge's father, and he also gave the ground upon which the first Methodist church was built, including with the gift the lumber for the building, which was a frame one. Hospitality was the key-note of their home, the minister, whose visits for the purpose of holding service was three or four weeks apart, always finding a warm welcome in the pioneer household. Rev. Joseph Wilks, in the early years of his ministry, served this locality and many times had personal experience of the hospitable spirit which characterized the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ridge.

Deceased was one of a family of eight children, five sons and three daughters; two of the latter, Mrs. Sayles, and Mrs. S. Cain of Toronto, and one brother, Richard, had previously died and the surviving members of the family are: Mr. George Ridge, of Lotus, Mr. Hiram Ridge, of Winnipeg, Mr. Thomas Ridge, of Shavering Falls, Ohio, and Mrs. G. Kerr, of Winnipeg.

Thirty-five years ago Mr. Ridge was united in marriage to Miss Mary Thompson, the ceremony being performed at Frazerville by the Rev. C. McKee, their home was on a farm near Pontypool until about four years ago when they moved to Millbrook, purchasing the house just east of King street bridge from the late Mr. George Locke, and residing there until his death.

Deceased was twice married, and of the three children born to his first union two sons, John, of Sarnia, and Wilbert, of Oshawa, still survive; the third boy, Joseph, died at Pontypool when only in his 19th year. His widow is the other immediate surviving relative.

The late Mr. Ridge had a life-long connection with the Methodist church, and was a Liberal in politics.

The funeral took place from his late residence, King street, on Saturday, May 22, at 1.30 p.m., Rev. F. H. Howard, and Rev. Joseph Wilks having charge of the services at the house and graveside.

The pall-bearers were six nephews: Messrs. Walter and Fred Thompson, of Bethany; Harold Thompson, of Manvers; James and Thomas Ridge, of Toronto; and G. W. Sayles of Millbrook.

There was a large gathering at the house for the funeral service, and many beautiful floral tributes were laid upon the casket. Interment was in the family burial plot in the Pontypool cemetery.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Irvine, Toronto; Mrs. Chas. Irvine, Toronto; Mrs. Cook, of Newcastle, a niece; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ridge, and Mr. Thos. Ridge, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and Miss Church, of Orono; Mr. Walker Melson, of Newtonville; Mrs. G. Forder, of Blackstock; Mrs. Lindsay, of Hamilton; Mrs. W. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gibson, Mr. George Jemison, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. R. Patton, and family, of Bethany; Miss Lillie Thompson, and Mr. F. Thompson of Bethany; Mr. Jas. Thompson, of Newcastle; Mr. George Ridge, of Lotus; Mrs. Richard Ridge, of Pontypool; Mrs. Wilbert Ridge, and daughter, Miss Margaret, of Oshawa; Mr. John Ridge of Sarnia; Mr. Leslie Graham, of Hayden.

MRS. JAMES JACKSON.

EAST EMILY, May 28. — The death occurred on Saturday afternoon of the late Mrs. James Jackson in her sixty-second year. Her death cast a gloom over the entire community as her cheerful disposition made it pleasant for anyone who came in touch with her.

Mrs. Jackson was ill but a short time and was taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Vincent Franks, just one week previous to her death.

The deceased was a member of St. John's Anglican Church and a member of the Women's Auxiliary of that church, from which she will be greatly missed.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother her sorrowing husband, two daughters and two sons, Mrs. Vincent Franks and Mrs. Lloyd Boate of East Emily, George in the West and Arthur on the homestead.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Vincent Franks. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Weir of Omemee and Rev. Mr. James of Newcastle.

The funeral thence proceeded to Emily Cemetery for interment.

The bearers were Messrs. John Darling, Herbert Jackson, Wilfred Jackson, Elmer Henry, Walter Magee and Robert Nurse.

The many floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which Mrs. Jackson was held by her many friends.

CIRCLING WORLD WHEELING BARROW

South African and Wife Reach Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 28. — Canadian Press. — Guiding a wheelbarrow which contained his worldly possessions, D. J. LeRoux, of Johannesborough, South Africa, reached Winnipeg on Thursday on a world-circling hike. He was accompanied by his wife. The couple left their native land on December 22, 1922, and since that time have walked 10,000 miles. They will proceed west on Monday next.

PLAY PRESENTED.

Fine Little Play Given By Young People of United Church.

APSLEY, May 27. — A very successful play, "Nothing to do," was presented in St. George's Institute on Monday evening, under the auspices of the United Church before a crowded house, and gave unqualified satisfaction. The performers acquitted themselves most creditably, and are to be congratulated upon the presentation, George Carr and Miss Ella Brown particularly filling the roles of colored milkman and housemaid respectively decidedly well, while Herb Tucker as a retired business man acted the part splendidly. The proceeds which are to be used for the renovation of the church, amounted to the substantial sum of $29.30.

The Rev. J. W. Ogden, at the close of the entertainment, expressed his apreciation of the services of Mrs. Spence, who arranged the scenery, and of Mr. Spence, for the use of the hall, and expressed the hope that the people generally would combine in making the hall even more adaptable for these functions and a greater benefit to the community.

The cast of characters was as follows: Mr. Robins, retired business man; Herb Tucker; Mrs. Robins, his wife, Mrs. F. McFadden, Mr. Johnson, carpenter, newly-rich, Walter Tucker; Mrs. Johnson, his wife, Miss Phyllis Spence; Maria Antony, a maiden lady of refined taste, Amy Lean; Sophie Meakins, a colored maid, Miss Ella Brown; Deacon Sparkins, colored preacher, Roy Brown; Rustus Snowball, colored milkman, George Carr; Officer, officer of the law Gordon Earnslaw; Ernie Hildrake or Baldo, tramp, W. TAKING A CHANCE.

Two terrible level crossing accidents in Western Ontario during the past few days add a tragic emphasis to the appeal made by the Ontario Safety League for greater care on the part of all motorists.

In one case the accident took place in daylight at a crossing where trains approaching in either direction can be seen for a long distance down the track.

Yet five lives were snuffed out.

The scene of the other fatality was a crossing protected by a warning bell that was ringing at the time of the accident.

Nobody can say definitely what was the cause of either accident; yet the evidence seems to suggest that both drivers failed to correctly estimate the speed of the train.

The only safe policy in such cases is not to attempt to judge the rate at which the train is moving, but to stop the car and wait until the crossing is clear again.

Unfortunately many people begrudge the minute or two that may be lost in this way and take a chance —with tragic results.

THE DETOUR NUISANCE.

The announcement that the Highway Department of the Ontario Government is to take care of detours made necessary by road-building operations this season will be most welcome to all motorists.

This is a policy that the Examiner has consistently advocated for the past three or four years.

We have argued that the chief desire of the contractors was to see that the traffic was diverted out of their way, and that apparently they did not care how it fared once it left the main highway.

With the Highways Department assuming the responsibility of looking after the detours, the conditions should be materially improved.

The department will be expected to see that the best possible detour roads are chosen, that the selected roads are put in shape and kept in shape for a heavy volume of traffic, and that the detours are plainly and adequately marked.

Unfortunately, road-making has to be done in the midst of the tourist season, and for the sake of the thousands of visitors, as well as for the benefit of Ontario motorists, every care should be taken to mitigate the nuisance of torn-up highways in all parts of the Province.

Not enough attention has been paid to this matter hitherto, and the decision of the Highways Department to take hold is a decided step in advance.

NEED OUR CREAM AND MILK.

It appears as though the American dairy interests seeking to bar Canadian cream and milk from the United States will not be able to achieve their object at the present session of Congress, says the Globe. Owing to the evidence of Canadian experts and of certain New England importers they have not been able to make good either in their campaign of abuse directed against Canadian dairies or in their contention that they could not stand the competition.

The United States has shown that it needs Canadian dairy products. In spite of the increases in duty made under the flexible tariff provisions, imports have steadily gained. Cream and milk were admitted free of duty prior to May 27, 1921, and during the seven months ending April 30, 1921, the United States imported from this country 434,542 gallons of the former and 584,797 gallons of the latter. During the similar period of the year following, with an import duty of 5 cents per gallon, cream imports were nearly doubled, and milk imports, with an import duty of 2 cents per gallon, increased to 672,462 gallons. After Sept. 21, 1922, the duty on cream was 20 cents per gallon, and on milk 2 1-2 cents, yet for the seven months' period of 1925 the imports of the former reached 1,280,149 gallons, and of the latter 1,566,480 gallons. For the same period ending April 30 this year there were 1,581,705 gallons of cream imported and 2,281,862 of milk.

These facts should of themselves dispose of the charges that Canadian dairies are not maintained in a sanitary condition. They may also help to explain why United States butter and cheese imports from this country have declined very materially.

LOOKING FOR PUBLICITY?

Most people will agree that Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Chairman of the Tariff Advisory Board, was right in refusing to yield to a preposterous demand from the representative of George Spence, member for Maple Creek, Saskatchewan.

Mr. Spence is the self-constituted champion of the consumers of Canada, and the spokesman who represented him at the first hearing of the board argued that before the letter stating the case of the Algoma Steel Corporation was made public Mr. Spence should be given the opportunity of reading it and preparing a reply to be broadcasted at the same time as the steel company's communication.

If this request had been granted the member for Maple Creek would be expected to bob up every time an application for tariff revision came before the board with a similar demand.

As the Chairman pointed out, all statements made before the board are to be thoroughly investigated and scrutinized by experts from within and without the Government departments, and that scrutiny should be enough to satisfy Mr. Spence.

Like every other citizen, the member for Maple Creek has an opportunity to appear before the Advisory Board and give his views, and it would be making a farce out of the whole proceedings if every application were held up until Mr. Spence had an opportunity of digesting it and preparing a reply.

It looks very much as if the Saskatchewan member is suffering from an itch for advertising.

The trouble with [illegible] is apparent, too much lipstick and too little broomstick.—Border Cities Star.

THE RIGHTS OF OTHERS.

The Toronto Home and School Council is to inaugurate an educational campaign to teach children to respect the property of others.

While it is by no means certain that the youngsters of today are any worse than those of earlier generations in this respect—in fact, they are perhaps a good deal better—yet they are far from perfect, and the Home and School Association may be able to effect a marked improvement.

Perhaps the most effective means of teaching the youngsters would be by setting them a good example, and it is here that there is the greatest falling down.

If their elders disregard the property rights of others, it is idle to attempt to persuade the children to respect such rights.

And, unfortunately, many of their elders are not setting a very good example.

Certainly those who drive out into the country and treat the property of the farmers as if it were their own are failing to follow the course along which an attempt is being made to steer the footsteps of the children.

The Home and School Associations have done excellent work along many lines, and success in the present undertaking can be looked for, although, as a contemporary points out, such a campaign need not necessarily be directed solely to those of tender years, and it adds:

"The destruction of orchards, flower gardens and shrubberies, the carelessness with which smokers strike matches on decorated interiors, as well as on newly-painted ornamented exteriors of public buildings, the almost criminal mishandling of books and magazines in the public libraries, are all evidences of gross carelessness, which can scarcely be blamed on the children alone."

NATIONAL SPIRIT.

It is generally admitted that Canada has never had a more popular governor general than Lord Byng. His work at Ottawa has been marked by a delicacy, a tact, an understanding and a sympathetic attitude that have added a deep measure to the brilliant reputation he enjoyed prior to his appointment.

Lord Byng will not be with us much longer. His term of office expires a few months hence and though he has been urged to accept re-appointment— this, in itself, being a signal mark of honor and appreciation— he believes it is best that he should decline.

During his years in Canada, His Excellency has given manay proofs of his affection for the Dominion and its people. While carefully preserving the high dignity of his office, he has travelled extensively and has come into frequent contact with the people. In addition, His Excellency commanded the Canadian Corps for a time during the Great War and therefore was a particularly intimate figure to thousands of men from this country. These circumstances combined to endear Lord Byng to the Canadian people in an unusual degree, and because of them his coming departure from the country is very deeply regretted.

That Lord Byng has enjoyed his stay in this country is very evident. In Victoria, the other day, he used these words: "Although I am not a Canadian by birth or heritage, I am an 18-carat Canadian in affection. When I go home I am going to talk to some of the cynics there and I am going to say: "I have seen a country about whose future I am full of optimism. Here you hit a country where a good God has given you a most wonderful soil, a most wonderful fertility. Out of this soil 90 per cent. of your exports come. Out of that soil your boys become men, your girls women, and both become Canadians. What room is there for pessimism when you have that basis for a great future? What is there to cavil at or to be cynical about?'"

At Vancouver, His Excellency tendered an excellent piece of advice to the Canadian people when he said: "You have the virility of youth and that quality you call 'pep,' which is so good. Is there any fly in the ointment? None that I can see if you will be Canadian. Drop petty parochial schemes, for the benefit of the whole of your country. I have tried in my visit to Canada to talk unity because I feel it so strongly—more even, perhaps, than you, because I see all the Provinces."

Far-sighted men have preached for years that Canada should ever fight to avoid the evils of sectionalism. Yet we still have them with us, not, perhaps, to the degree that existed in the past, but still in too great a degree. Sometimes the presence of sectionalism looks inevitable. The country is so vast and conditions so varied that it seems almost impossible to eradicate sectionalism, with all its cries, all its hard feeling, all its injury to the national ideal. It may not be possible, for many years, to eliminate it, but men of good will can do much to reduce it and to minimize its effects. Real progress has been made in this direction and more will come.

Continual development of a strong national spirit is, of course, the best way to eliminate the sectional attitude. Speaking before a group of young lawyers in Montreal, Sir James Aitkins pleaded for this course of action, "in order that Canada might take advantage of her opportunities and become a leader in the coterie of nations which make up the British Empire."

Canadians are proud of Canada. There is every reason why they should be. The fact remains, however, that we have not gone far enough in the development of the national spirit to which Sir James Aitkins refers. Perhaps, in this respect as in others, we can learn something from our friends to the south.—Border Cities Star.

STATE-OWNERSHIP—A MENACE.

Sir.—Lest some should suddenly be stricken with the bright idea that if it had not been for Hydro there would have been no magnificent development at Niagara, it is only necessary to say that go less than three great companies, the Ontario Power Co., the Niagara Power Co. and the Electrical Development Co. were hard at work, developing Niagara Power (and at Chippewa also), when Hydro got its expropriation bill through the legislature and absorbed all these enterprises. There was no complaint that these companies were charging too much. They were acting under Ontario government charters and control, and could not charge too much, even if so inclined, and they were otherwise bound to carry out all contracts faithfully, with the danger of seizure of their property in case of default. But the Hydro idea, which had originally been merely an investigating and encouraging idea, suddenly developed into a great government-ruled political machine and monopoly, anxious to crush out all private enterprise. Now, citizens of Peterborough and the surrounding country, has Hydro made you rich? Is it furnishing to you such encouragement and cheap power that you can hardly keep the factories from springing up and the farmer from rejoicing?

All these grand schemes of state-ownership and development of power, industry, education, roads, etc., have left you with an immensely-increased burden of taxation. Think of the farmer, paying from $2 to $3 an acre taxes for education, that even the Education Convention itself condemns as a failure, for dear power and no way to use it, and for roads that cost as much as a railway to build and that must be kept up at a terrific up-keeping expense. Hadn't both city and country better call a halt on all this ruinous expenditure, this taxation without recompense and do its own school, power and roadwork, except where the province wishes to do it alone, and to pay for it? If we have made a mistake, let us try and set things right. This is the age of the "Ballyhoo", and surely Ontario is being ballyhooed to death and chiefly, however, by the people themselves. The best of men make mistakes, but where a company or an individual or even a municipality makes a mistake, only those concerned suffer. In the case of state-ownership, however, a big mistake is irreparable. It concerns the whole state and involves it in a general ruin. We have had a taste of this sort of thing in Ontario already. Let us conclude with a picture of Ontario under the ideal state-ownership, which the Methodist Church and, I am informed, so great a body also, as the United Church of Canada, has declared for.—

1. All sources of energy, whether water, coal or forest and therefore, electricity, under the absolute ownership, power and management of the government as is largely the case at present with respect to water-power.
2. All materials, such as stone, wood, iron, copper, silver, etc.
3. All lands, including agricultural or farm and grazing lands, forests, mining lands, etc.
4. All industry under supervision, in order to see that labour and capital work in the partnership suggested and that the excess profits go to the state, i.e., to the government, and not to the workers.
5. All through-roads and means of communication (and ways of escape).
6. Laws governing the morals, habits and health of the people, such as prohibitory laws, etc.
7. All the police, military and constabulary, to enforce these laws and all the goals, prisons, penetentiaries, houses of detention, magistrates, government overseers, inspectors, to arrest, sentence and receive the "individual" taxpayer when necessary, or advisable.
8. With different political parties struggling for the seats of power and government, and with the removing of all opposition to the "good government, peace and order" of the state with an iron hand by the government. With a state whose people have become the slaves, moral and industrial of cliques and claques and chiefly, of the greatest clique of all, a political party government.

It was said that this was the reason why the vast private or company enterprises at Niagara and elsewhere were without cause or excuse, or popular demand, gobbled up by a vast governmental machine, known as Hydro, which, if enlarged, as we have indicated, and as a great Church has suggested, will embrace not only our chief source of power, as at present, but all else—moral and industrial—which it can get hold of. We see such a government a perfect carnival of corruption, tyranny and rottenness, with even the liberty to work taken from the workers and the thieves revelling in the vastness of their power and plunder.

It seems incredible, yet we know it to be true, that people who proclaim in their "profound humility" that they are the chief of sinners, nevertheless would place themselves over us; and it is no less unbelievable that with our experience of the fallibility of governments which we so often condemn, we get would place our bodies, as our souls, at their disposal in state-ownership.

OMEMEE NEWS

OMEMEE, May 28.—Many from Lindsay attended the holiday sports and activities on the 24th.

The Kiwanis quartet of Lindsay presented a splendid programme in Coronation Hall previous to the presenting of the amateur play. The quartet and accompanying party comprised Mr. W. F. Maunder, Mr. A. A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A GROUCH PAID.

A grouchy manager took a trip down to the basement and there discovered a boy sitting on a packing-box knocking his heel against the cover and humming a popular song.

"What are you getting a week?" demanded the grouchy manager with characteristic abruptness.

"Thirteen dollars," replied the meek little man.

First the boy was dazed, then he pocketed the lucky "thirteen," smiled and departed.

"Why in the world do you have such help around?" asked the manager to the chief shipping clerk.

"Because," replied the boss of the boxing department, "we can't help it. That boy was over here, waiting for a package that our biggest and best customer had just bought."

Mention "thirteen dollars" to that hair-trigger discharger and you will hear a report like that of a double-barrel shotgun. Mention "thirteen dollars" and that manager will go "mad."

Temper is the most ticklish thing a manager has to contend with, and when it is his own ill-temper it is doubly dangerous.

A man who cannot control himself better remain out of the basement and keep in his own little cage.

A manager who fails first to inquire, invites trouble.

When "hot", walk away and get cool.

This manager would give thirteen hundred dollars to down the experience, but it will never down.

UNITED CHURCH WOULD TEACH RELIGION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Take Advantage of Opportunty Provided By Manitoba Government.

OTHER MEETINGS.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 28. Canadian Press. — An effort to have religion taught in the public schools of the province, wherever such action will not arouse controversy, will be made by the United Church, it was decided at to-day's session of the Manitoba conference.

Professor F. W. Kerr, who presented a report by the committee on religious education, declared that the church had no grievance in the matter of the lack of teaching of religion in the public schools, as the government provided a daily half hour for this purpose, and it was for the church to see that it was taken advantage of.

The resolution urged that the ministers in districts where such action was not likely to precipitate controversy, form a committee and in co-operation with the trustees of the schools arrange to provide a grade course of religious instructions.

A shifting of the four-fold programme in the training of boys and girls to a basis centreing around social institutions such as the home, the school and the church, was forecast by Prof. Kerr in his report. He recommended standard training schools for the preparation of leaders in young people's work. The report was adopted.

A recommendation that the superannuation funds, which amount to some $6,000,000, ge kept separate for a time, and be not merged under the funds of the United Church as a whole, was referred to a committee for consideration

Maritime Conference.

SACKVILLE, N. B., May 28. — Canadian Press. — The Maritime Conference of the United Church of Canada yesterday pledged its support to the League of Nations.

The General Council of the United Church was memorialized to prepare a course of study for probationers on citize ship and church law.

An overture from the Miramichi, N. B., Presbytery, favoring the establishment of three theological colleges was sent forward to the general council without comment.

The conference decided to form a historical society and an executive was appointed to go ahead with its organization.

Revenues for the regular work of the three uniting churches in 1924-25 totalled $3,500,000 of which $2,750,000 was given by congregations and circuits, and $750,000 was received from other sources. The donations of congregations are subject to a reduction of $300,000 given by non-concurring Presbyteries, and the revenue from other sources for 1926-27 is estimated at less than $400,000 chiefly because the boards will be unable to draw upon reserves for maintenance account.

Stratford, Ont., Canadian Press. —The installation of Rev. Dr. D. C. McGregor, D.D., London, new president, and Rev. R. C. Copeland, B.A., Thamesford, secretary, featured the afternoon session of the London United Church Conference Thursday.

Mr. W. R. McIntosh London, was elected chairman of a special committee to look after superannuation matters.

ROYAL BANK BUYS WINNIPEG BONDS

City Pays $4.95 Per Cent. For $2,500,000.

WINNIPEG, May 28 (Canadian Press).—The Royal Bank's bid of 94.3571 took the City of Winnipeg's bond issue of $2,500,000, 4½ per cent. 20-year debentures, when the tenders were opened at the office of H. C. Thompson, city treasurer, on Thursday afternoon.

There were seven bids from 28 local, Eastern and New York firms. The Winnipeg bank represented itself, the Guaranty Trust Company, and A. E. Ames and Company of New York.

The price of 94.3571 is for Winnipeg payment and delivery, and means that the city will pay 4.95 for its money, Mr. Thompson announced. The city treasurer added that, considering the present condition of the money market, this was a highly satisfactory price.

Special meetings of the Finance Committee and the City Council yesterday afternoon ratified the sale.

CUSTOMS COMMITTEE CALLS FOR BOOKS OF TORONTO CLOTHIERS

Six Firms Requested to Produce Documents for Scrutiny.

ADJOURNED EARLY

Release of Rum Ship Off Prince Edward Island Coast Told.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28.—(Canadian Press.)—The schooner Jeanne D'Arc with one hundred and eighty-three packages of liquor on board was seized off the coast of Prince Edward Island in the month of September 1923 by the preventive cruiser Margaret. Later, on a ruling from the Customs Department approved by Hon. Jacques Bureau, then Minister, the cargo was released. The reason given for release was that the vessel had been seized when she was outside the three mile limit.

C. P. Blair, chief executive assistant of the department of customs, told the customs enquiry committee Thursday that the distance of the vessel from shore had been measured in land miles. Had the nautical mile been used as the unit of measurement the schooner would have been within the three mile limit when the seizure was effected. He gave his opinion that the seizure should not have been made at the time in any case because the vessel was not "hovering."

The captain of the vessel, it was stated, gave an affidavit that his cargo was to be landed on the north coast of New Brunswick, although it had cleared from St. Pierre and Miquelon for Nassau. Mr. Blair said he had no doubt that the intention was to land the liquor in New Brunswick, but unless a vessel was "hovering" under the Act she could not be seized until an attempt at landing was made. The value of the liquor seized and later released was estimated at $4,020.

The committee adjourned early through lack of witnesses. Just before adjournment, W. T. Goodison, M.P., one of the members, moved that the following firms be requested to furnish books and documents required by the committee: A. E. Rea & Company, Staples, Ledger & Co., Doherty Manufacturing Company, Limited, Prince Manufacturing Company, Silks Limited, all of Toronto.

COMMONS PLANS TO ACCELERATE SESSON'S WORK

Government Proposes to Suspend Private Members' Day.

HOUSE IMPATIENT

Hon. H. H. Stevens Facilitates Business by Withdrawing Seven Motions.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28 (Canadian Press).—There were indications of "speeding up" in the House of Commons Thursday. A Government motion which would abolish private members' days and give precedence to Government business was formally introduced by Premier Mackenzie King. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen thought that at least one more Monday might be devoted to the discussion of private members' resolutions. The Prime Minister said that he understood that all sides of the House were anxious to get public business done. He acceded, however, to the request from Mr. Meighen that the motion stand until to-day.

Following this, Hon. H. H. Stevens removed from the order paper seven motions which have stood in his name since practically the beginning of the session. They dealt chiefly with matters which he wished to bring up at the Customs probe. Some of them have been brought up already. Mr. Stevens remarked that it was no use cluttering up the order paper with resolutions which there was no chance of reaching this session, and he ironically congratulated the Minister of Customs on having prevented their being reached in the business of the House.

On a motion that the Committee on Agriculture be added to the list of committees which have permission to sit while the House is in session, Mr. Meighen expressed hope that "this thing would not be carried too far." There were too many committees already sitting while the House was in session, and it was rapidly getting to the point where there was more committee than House, he thought. The motion carried.

ENGLAND FEELS STRIKE'S PINCH

LONDON, May 28. — England yesterday felt a new pinch from the coal strike which has tied up her mines for a month. The department of mines announced that after to-day householders could secure no coal except by official permit.

The permits will limit purchases to 100 pounds each two weeks.

Industries and business houses will continue on half rations of coal.

Satuation Grave

The effect of the continued coal strike upon the industries of the country is becoming so grave and the general commercial outlook so black that the greatest pressure is being brought to bear upon Premier Baldwin to ignore the attitude of both the mine owners and the leaders of the striking miners, and take drastic action to enforce peace.

It is understood that the cabinet is now considering various plans submitted by the leading industrialists and others for the settlement of the difficulty. One proposition is that mining experts should be called in from other countries to draw up what they consider fair terms for both the mine owners and the miners, and that this report should be submitted by a secret ballot to the miners for their approval, the leaders being directly ignored.

Minimum Wage

Those advocating this plan believe it would lead to a seven and a half-hour working day for the miners instead of the present seven-hour day and would guarantee a minimum wage which would roughly correspond with that existing before the present stoppage of work.

Any such proposal has now the violent opposition of the miners' leaders, whose cry is "Not a minute on the day, not a penny off the pay." The idea of those supporting the proposal is that the government, following the adoption of such a report, would make a temporary loan to the industry while the necessary reoraginzation is being carried out. Whether Mr. Baldwin could carry his cabinet on such a scheme is rather dougbtful, as the mine owners have many friends in the ministry, and the recent stubbornness of the leaders of the miners has alienated much of the sympathy which the men enjoyed at the beginning of the trouble.

Heavy Loss

From information to hand, 20 per cent. of the export coal trade is believed to be lost beyond recall. For lack of coal for transportation purposes, the train services of the country have been cut 50 per cent., leading to disastrous delays in freight handling and the consequent loss of many foreign orders. The cotton industry is now threatened with discontinuance owing to a shortage of coal, and every day the situation is getting worse.

The people of London are inclined to think the crisis passed with the calling off of the general strike, but the industrialists of the north know the true effect of the coal stoppage, and they will be continually pressing the government to force a settlement at any cost.

PRIME MINISTER IS ASSURED SUPPORT

Eighteen Members With Newfoundland Premier.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 28.—(Canadian Press.) — "We had a most enthusiastic party meeting, and the political situation is distinctly clarified," Premier W. S. Monroe told newspapermen prior to Thursday's meeting of the House of Assembly.

The Prime Minister stated that each of the eighteen members of his party had expressed his determination to prevent the Government falling, and that "no bribes would induce them to depart from their principles." Many of them, Premier Monroe declared, admitted "that they had been approached."

Expressing the opinion that the members on the opposite side of the House did not approve of the "attempted disruption in outside influences," and that whilst they might not like to cross the floor at the present time, the Premier said he felt that if a vote of want of confidence was proposed they would vote against it.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 28. — (Canadian Press). — Notice of the abandonment of appeals from convictions and fines aggregating $200,000, has been filed in the Court of Appeal Registry here on behalf of J. A. Simington, S. P. Lloyd, M. W. Colquhoun, W. E. Carruthers of the Mutual Vancouver, Limited, Mutual Brokers, Limited, Calgary, Mutual Brokers, Limited, Regina, and Mutual Brokers, Limited, Winnipeg.

The notice is signed by appellants' counsel, E. P. Davis, K.C., H. B. Robertson, K.C., A. McLeod Sinclair, K.C., and J. D. McPhee.

The appeal was to have been heard in Victoria in June.

With the abandonment of the appeal, the Crown has arranged to drop its cross appeal for prison terms for the convicted Nash officials, found guilty of conspiracy.

Fined $25,000 Each.

They had been fined $25,000 each by Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald, who, in addition, imposed nominal imprisonment of one day. Similar fines were assessed against the guilty corporations.

Following payment of $200,000 for the fines, the defendants gave notice of appeal but did not pursue the matter after the Crown cross-appealed.

Defrauded Growers.

The trial, known as the "Nash combine case," was one of the longest ever recorded in British Columbia courts, occupying almost forty days, and involved 11 individuals and 42 firms. The jury returned a verdict against the four individuals and four companies on March 13 on four counts charging conspiracy to make secret profits, rebates and commissions; to cheat and defraud produce growers; to render false returns under the Secret Commissions Act and to wrong produce growers.

One of the greatest strength givers and producers of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Extract—it's full of vitamines.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays medical men who keep up with the times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet—and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped off their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on five pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward and run-down children too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. McDermid and Jury, James Lynch and Bond's Drug Store, and druggists everywhere have a big demand for them, and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar-coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

CONDITIONS GOOD ON WEST COAST

Mrs. J. Pope Has Returned to Chemong From Visit to West.

PLENTY OF MONEY

Mrs. J. Pope, who has returned to her home in Chemong Park after spending the winter in British Columbia and Southern California, was yesterday interviewed by The Examiner on the subject of conditions prevailing in the Western areas of North America.

"Vancouver had this year one of the mildest winters on record," remarked Mrs. Pope, who was very favorably impressed by the climate along the B.C. coast. "The result of this was seen in the advanced stage of all kinds of vegetation at a time when the fields of Ontario were frost bound."

Mrs. Pope stated there was some unemployment in Vancouver, but not in excess of previous years. In this connection, she pointed out that every year large numbers from the Prairie Provinces, harvesters and others drift into Vancouver to spend the winter. Many of them remain unemployed during the winter, but at least a fair proportion have funds sufficient to tide them over the dull season. It was noticeable, she said, that some occupations, particularly fruit and vegetable trades were monopolized by Orientals, many of whom became very prosperous.

Southern California, she said, presented a spectacle of feverish activity and mushroom growth. In the neighborhood of Los Angeles, wealthy people are building houses on the slopes of the mountains. Real estate agents are in evidence everywhere. They are in all main streets offering free motor trips "with no obligation to buy" to all and sundry. Needless to say all who accept the invitation to make a tour of inspection over the land offered for sale are subject to every legitimate device to induce them to make a purchase. Women are employed by the real estate dealers solely for the purpose of persuading visitors to accept a free trip and are paid $1 per head. Money is very much in evidence, thinks Mrs. Pope and large fortunes are being made at present.

A natural attraction which is being exploited to the full by Southern California is that portion of the ocean around Los Angeles where are found the submarine gardens. Along this part ply flat-bottomed boats fitted with large glazed portholes on the keel through which the tourists can look down into the ocean bed and study the plants and fishes directly under the ship.

Californians make the most of the advantages of their state. The commercial possibilities of its equable climate, its wonderful vegetation, and its old buildings such as the ruins of the Jesuit Missions, and the Spanish towers of pre-American occupation days are used to the limit. But so far as the cities are concerned, Mrs. Pope thinks life is set at too rapid a pace to permit of one enjoying nature's charms to the fullest extent.

The Bicycle that Grows with Your Boy

(Boys—get your dad to read this ad.)

NOTICE that curved bar. It might be called the economy curve, because Billy, aged twelve, can now ride the bicycle comfortably. And when Billy is seventeen, he will be able to use the same bicycle with equal comfort. Billy cannot outgrow the C·C·M· curved bar bicycle. By raising the saddle and handle bars it grows with him.

The chances are your twelve-year-old Billy knows all about C·C·M· bicycles. He can tell you how they're built of English seamless tubing, how the nickeled and enameled parts stand years of wear and how the C·C·M· Triplex hanger gives easy pedalling.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

AUDREY MORTON has been doing wild and hysterical things since her handsome, middle-aged, wealthy guardian, HARRY MORTON, has told her he will not marry her. They live in Peterborough, but maintain an expensive apartment in Toronto. Finally Audrey goes into rehearsal as a member of a Toronto cabaret revue, to learn how stage girls, manage to charm Morton. NONA, a Toronto stage girl, who also loves Morton, becomes Audrey's dancing partner, but Audrey becomes angry at her, and goes back with Morton to Peterborough.

Because of the hostile attitude of her friends there toward Morton's association with Nona, Audrey decides to have the chorus and cast of the cabaret show come to Peterborough as her guests.

Morton, worried, sends for Audrey to come to his office, and shows her an old picture. "It looks like me!" she cries.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The girl held the picture from her, and then drew it close to her eyes.

"It's my mama!" she cried.

"It is," Morton said, gravely.

He reached behind him, and drew the other photograph, and the letters, from the desk. She watched him with excited interest as he slowly extended the second picture to her.

"My mama again!" she said. There was another figure in the photograph, and as her eye fell upon this an expression of amazement came into her face.

"That's Mr. Smith—the man you threw out of the house and sent to South America!"

She looked at the picture again. At last she dropped it, as if there was in it something unclean.

"Don't drop it," he said. "Look at the background."

She bent over the photograph, without touching it. Straining her eyes, she traced the faded outlines that showed behind the two figures.

"There's a little house—a queer one," she said. "Is it an adobe house, daddy?"

He nodded. "In Arizona," he said.

"Yes." She was intent on the picture again. "There's a cactus in the distance!"

"The Arizona desert," he told her.

"Was that where I was born?" Her big blue eyes were rounded as she waited for an answer.

"Not there," he said. He was speaking with difficulty. Reaching out he took the picture, and looked at it a long time.

"It's the end of a trail, Audrey," he said at last.

He passed his hand across his eyes before he continued, as if to wipe from them an unpleasant vision.

"I called you down here to show you that picture," he resumed, his voice dull and lifeless. "You are your mother's daughter. I told you, you know, that you have been running emotionally wild. You've left the highway. You are plunging into uncharted ways."

He lifted the photograph and held it before her. "Your mother did the same thing, and here was where her path ended."

"With Smith?" she asked, in a small frightened voice.

"Not with Smith," he said. "He left her there. And there—"

He started to his feet, and flung his arms wide. His face was uplifted, with such a look of anguish as she never had seen. His remaining words were jerked out one by one, as if they brought with them the living fibers of his heart.

"It was there," he choked, "that I found her, and buried her! She was lying dead, alone, upon the spot where they are standing in that cursed photograph!"

He collapsed into his chair, and buried his face in his arms.

Running to him, she encircled him in her arm, with little tender sounds. Then she ran to the hand basin in the corner, and wetting her handkerchief, sped back to him. Lifting his head gently, she bathed his flushed forehead and his hot eyes.

"Don't talk any more, daddy! Don't!" she cried. She was weeping, and she touched her own eyes with the wet handkerchief.

He shook himself and sat erect.

"I'm not through," he said, in his leaden voice.

Turning the photograph face down, he took up the letters, and looked at them vacantly as he continued.

"I loved your mother," he said. "I had loved her since she was a little, slim thing of fifteen. Her hair was fair like yours, and her eyes were wide and blue, and her laugh was the merriest I ever have heard—except your own, dear heart."

He paused. "She was a flower of a girl. Her parents died, and left her with a little money. She hated restraint—she rebelled when she was given instructions—just as you do, Audrey. Her old aunt was severe. So, with part of her patrimony, she went to Europe, to study art. I was there, too—trying to be an artist. I saw her sometimes.

"She came back to America. I was wildly in love with her, but I had no money.

"A year went by. She was at home again. And she made—she made a marriage that turned out unfortunately."

He turned his face from the watching girl, and swallowed a lump that was in his throat.

"Her husband did not understand. He tried to curb her impulses. She rebelled. You were born, Audrey, child, but that failed to hold her." His fist was clenched, as he went on with difficulty. "She ran away with Smith."

He handed her the paper.

"Read this letter. I found it, there in the Arizona desert, when I found—her."

The penmanship was clear and precise; the selfsame writing that Audrey had seen in the letter that Smith had written to her not long ago.

"Audrey, my love," she began, and looked up quickly.

"Was her name Audrey, too?" He nodded.

"There is nothin real in life except happiness," she read on. "That is the reason for all the things we do—the search for happiness. And I know, Audrey darling, that you love me and I—it is impossible for me to tell you what you mean to me.

"Come with me! Your heart is chilled where you are. He is selfish, immersed in his own affairs. You were born for love, and riches, and high adventure.

"I am only a mining engineer! Only? I'm a god, Audrey, beloved, if I am sure I have you! Come with me, while I make sure of this mine I'm looking for. It will mean wealth for us both. Europe, the sea, leisure, happiness—happiness together!

"Take your money from the bank—don't leave it for him to spend! And I'll meet you, and we'll go together to the Garden of Dreams, sweetest of all women."

Her voice died, as she came to the end, and her hand relaxed.

The man's sorrowful voice went on. "So she took her money, and went with him to that shack in the desert. And with her money he went away, at the end. He had not found his mine.

"There was a baby. It died when she did."

He went to the window, and looked out of it a long, long time. The girl, huddled in her chair, looked at him with yearning, but she did not dare to break his silence.

"I heard about it," he said, turning toward her, at length. "I had come back to this country. Her husband was crushed. He stayed for days, speechless, in the room that had been their's together.

"I had always loved her. I took up the search. It was many months before I came to that 'dobe house, there." He pointed to the picture that lay face down on the table. "I've told you what I found."

His voice stopped.

"But what—what became of my father?" She clasped her hands as if she were in prayer.

"He vanished—his heart, I suppose, was broken. He never was seen again in the little town where they lived, nad where you were born.

"And so I took you, darling, with me. And you've been with me ever since."

She ran to him and embraced him. He put his own arms around her, and rested his cheek on her hair. "Dearest, kindest, daddy in the world!" she wept. "And I've made you suffer so!"

He stroked her shoulder. "I only wanted to tell you," he said, gently. "I wanted you to know that you must—you must beware!"

He turned, still holding to the girl, and with his free hand tossed the pictures, the letter she had read, and the two others that remained, into a drawer.

"There were some other letters," he said, "but never mind. They add nothing to the story, really."

To cheer him, she began to talk eagerly, inconsequentially, about other things. At last he relaxed, and sat listening to her chatter. The accustomed composure returned to his expression, and finally he laughed at one of her sallies.

"Audrey," he said, "do you want to go ahead with this fool idea of bringing those chorus girls and men here to Peterborough?"

"Not if you don't want me to," she said, seriously.

He made little circles on a pad of paper, with his pen. He was smiling, and she smiled with him.

"I think it will be all right," he said. "As a matter of fact, it will be fun. It depends on what you want to accomplish by the house party. If it is simply to have a good time, and laugh, we'll go ahead with the plan. If it's to become an emancipated woman, and raise the devil, I'm against it."

She made a quick movement of protest.

"I don't want to be emancipated," she told him. "I'm—I'm scared!"

Both were serious for a moment, and their eyes involuntarily sought the drawer where the pictures and the letters lay.

"All right," he told her. "If that's the case, we'll let them come. I have an idea we're in for some lively experiences."

"What's the idea sending revue to Peterborough I can't come have too much to do here how can I make arrangements to present revue if it is off on the road visiting, A Sunshine."

It was a night letter telegram from Toronto, that came to the Morton home at breakfast time. Morton tossed it across the table to Audrey, who read it with delight.

"But it doesn't say if they are coming or not," she said, reading it again.

"I think they'll come, all right," Morton told her. "I staked Abe so heavily that he will send them along, surely. As a matter of fact, I think they will be in on the noon train."

"How about Nona and the boys?" she asked.

Morton told her that he had engaged rooms for them at the hotel. As they ate, Audrey explained volubly how she was going to arrange sleeping accommodations.

"Ten girls all at once are hard to take care of," she confessed, "but I've got it all worked out. By using my dressing room, and your dressing room, we can fix them up."

"But Great Caesar, you can't put girls to sleep in my dressing room," he protested.

"Yes we can," she said, placidly. "You will go to sleep in that little guest room at the west end of the house, and three girls can sleep in your room."

"Ousted from my quarters," he sighed, good-humoredly. "But have it your own way."

He was at the door, ready to start down town, when there came the sound of many voices outside. He looked through the glass.

Up the walk, outside, was trouping the cast of the revue, a bevy of noisy chorus girls, Nona, and several young men, all with handbags.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 27 (Canadian Press).—Wheat for May delivery plunged wildly downward 9 cents a bushel today. Arrival of a liberal amount of wheat here from Kansas City with more due in Chicago tomorrow both from Kansas City and from Omaha revealed that urgency of buyers seeking wheat to fill May contracts here had come to a sudden halt, for at least the time being. Widespread rains affording relief from drought weakened wheat prices for deliveries other than May. Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2 5-8 to 7 cents net lower. Corn finished 3-8 to 1 1-8c down; oats unchanged to 3-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, May 27 (Canadian Press). — Under pressure from "longs," and influenced by weakness at Chicago, the wheat market here today recorded sharp recessions, closing 3c to 3 3-8c lower. The May future showed the heaviest loss, closing at $1.52 3-8, July closed at $1.49 1-2, and October at $1.31 1-8.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 27 (Canadian Press).—A car of Prince Edward Island eggs arrived in Montreal today costing delivered extras 32 1-2, firsts 30, seconds 25. A car of frozen fowl has been received in Toronto at 32 f.o.b. Winnipeg.

Toronto — Country dealers are making sales, extras 34, firsts 32, seconds 25 to 26. Prices to retailers, extras 35 to 36, firsts 32 to 33, seconds 29. Retailing, extras 40, firsts 35 to 36, seconds 33.

Montreal—Dealers are paying delivered extras 33 to 35, firsts 31 to 32, seconds 25 to 28. Prices to retailers, extras 35 to 38, firsts 34 to 35, seconds 31 to 32. Retail, extras 43 to 45, firsts 38 to 40, seconds 32 to 35.

Winnipeg—Firm, receipts steady. Dealers quoting country shippers, extras 28 to 29, firsts 26 to 27, seconds 22, cases returned.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, May 27 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows: Sterling demand $4.85 1-2. Sterling cables $4.86.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 27 (Canadian Press). — Owing to the decline in wheat prices at Winnipeg today, Montreal exporters were in a position to accept orders from foreign buyers for Manitoba Spring wheat and Canadian Western oats and a fair amount of business was transacted. Sales of No. 2 Northern wheat were made at 13 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg July option, and No. 3 Northern at 5 1-2 cents per bushel over the May option, and Canadian Western No. 2 feed oats at 1-2 cent per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The spot market for car lots of grain was easier and prices were reduced 1-2 cent per bushel. Cheese trade dull but firm.

CELEBRATION ENDS WITH BIG CONCERT

Lindsay Quartette Entertain Big Audience in Coronation Hall.

OMEMEE, May 28.—The annual celebration of Victoria Day in Omemee would not be fittingly ended without a concert in the evening in Coronation Hall. The Oakwood Band, who supplied the music on the grounds in the afternoon, were generous in their numbers on the park in front of the hall in the early evening, and many citizens were lured to the streets and later a capacity house greeted the performers in Coronation Hall, still eager to be entertained.

Mr. Harry Lamb, the President of the Athletic Association, welcomed the gathering, and on behalf of the association thanked one and all for their patronage and co-operation throughout the day, after which he briefly introduced the Lindsay Male Quartette, who provided the first part of the programme, namely, Messrs. Maunder, Allin, McBride and Claxton, with Mr. Hopkins as pianist. The Lindsay Male Quartette need no introduction to the music-lovers of Omemee, having appeared here on previous occasions. Each number was received with applause and a varied programme of violin selections by Mr. Claxton, solos by Messrs. Maunder and Allin, with several splendid quartettes, was much enjoyed by all. Special mention must be given to Mr. Hopkins for his splendid piano selections. Mr. Hopkins resided in Omemee for several months a few years ago, having been on the Bank of Toronto staff, and while here was the very efficient organist of the former Methodist Church, and many Omemee people were glad to welcome him here once again. His selections given in Coronation Hall met with tumultuous applause and he was forced to respond to a double encore.

The second part of the programme was a sketch, entitled "The Bachelors' Banquet," given by local talent under the supervision of Mrs. E. W. Rowland, with such well-known favorites taking part as Violet McBain, Marion Dickson, Katie Weir, Jack Bent, Horace Hill and Roy Mahood. The sketch revealed an untidy bachelor apartment with the fiancee and her mother arriving for dinner, along with Major Townsend and his niece. The soup is scorched, the frozen pudding stolen, and much hilarity ensues as the ladies set to make right the general mix-up.

The proceeds of the entertainment amounted to $180, and the Athletic Association are to be congratulated on the outcome of a well arranged Victoria Day celebration.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE OFFICERS ELECTED

Annual Meeting of Millbrook Branch Held Recently.

MILLBROOK, May 28.—The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. T. H. Aiken on Saturday evening, the president, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, in the chair.

Though the attendance was smaller than the importance of the occasion warranted, the business of the evening was proceeded with as May is the month when all elections must be held.

The secretary, Mrs. Wilbert Thorne, read the annual report showing 65 members on the roll for the past year, and nine regular meetings held. A generous quantity of fruit was sent to the Sick Children's Hospital, $5.00 donated to the Navy League, $6.00 donated for prizes at the fall fair in October, flowers were placed round the soldiers' cenotaph at an expense of $11.00, seals were sold to assist the Muskoka Sanitarium, and a play given at Millbrook, and repeated at Centreville, which netted $80.00.

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. Aiken, showed a balance in the bank of $695.20, and over $12.00 not deposited as it is needed for expenses of the immediate future.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke.

Vice-President—Mrs. Thos. Harkness.

Secretary—Mrs. Wilbert Thorne.

Treasurer—Mrs. T. H. Aiken.

District Director—Mrs. R. J. McKnight.

Auditors—Mrs. H. A. Earle, Mrs. W. Armstrong.

District Representatives — Mrs. Aiken, Mrs. Thorne, Mrs. R. Brown, Miss E. Grandy, Mrs. McKnight, Miss Burnham.

Under the head of new business, Mrs. Thorndyke and Mrs. Harkness were apointed a committee to interview the Reeve regarding the placing of sign-boards at the outskirts of the Municipality for the guidance of tourists; they were also commissioned to find out what financial assistance would be required for the erection of a band-stand in the village.

On motion it was decided that the Institute will again purchase the flowers for the soldiers' memorial in the town hall square, and see to the planting of the same.

Overworked? Avoid Constipation

Long hours at the desk, shortened hours of sleep, hasty and irregular meals, lack of exercise—these sap the vitality of the strongest body.

At such times the danger of constipation is more common and more serious.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

SUPERTWIST Puts This Mileage into Balloon Tires

And Only Goodyears are Made With SUPERTWIST

THE first balloon tires sold in Canada something over two years ago are now really showing their quality—or lack of it.

The roads of the country have put them to the test of tests.

So far as Goodyear Balloon Tires are concerned, the result is one to make any tire-maker proud.

One important reason why Goodyear Balloons have given so splendid an account of themselves is the remarkable Goodyear-developed SUPERTWIST cord.

Conceived and perfected in Goodyear's own cotton mills, SUPERTWIST was designed to give longer life to low-pressure tires by virtue of its greater elasticity—its greater ability to absorb road-shocks without injury.

If you want in the balloons you buy that pronounced durability and economy which Goodyear users enjoy, go to your Goodyear Selected Dealer.

Goodyear means Good Wear

One year ago last June I equipped with Goodyear Balloons and have driven the car a mileage of more than 18,000. The tires look good for 25,000. I consider this excellent service and can strongly recommend Goodyear Balloons.

J. H. Tripoh.

Sherbrooke, Que.

My Goodyear Cord Tires have been used for three seasons and I am still using the original front tires at 18,500 miles. The rear ones were discarded at 15,000. Have not had a blowout.

M. T. Armitage.

Midland, Ont.

My Goodyear Balloons have been in service more than a year. We changed the rear tires last week. Mileage was then 27,000. This car has been used on perhaps the roughest roads in Ontario and this is the best tire record I know of.

DELEGATE SPEAKS AT MOUNT PLEASANT

Mrs. Gordon Cooke Addressed Members of Women's Institute.

MOUNT PLEASANT, May 28.—On Tuesday afternoon, May 18, the Mount Pleasant branch of the East Durham Women's Institute held its annual summer meeting in the Temperance Hall. The attendance was not as large as in former years owing to the late season of the year, the majority of ladies being too busily engaged in housecleaning to attend the meeting.

The president, Mrs. Ira Lowes, was in the chair and after a few brief remarks called on Mrs. John Eakins of Millbrook, the district secretary, who was present and gave a most helpful address to the ladies regarding Institute work.

The secretary of the local branch Mrs. Garnet Shield, was then asked to give a report of the past year's work which was a splendid report giving in detail the numerous activities of the branch during the past year.

Mrs. Gordon Cooke of Beamsville then gave a most interesting and educative lecture. In the beginning of her address Mrs. Cooke touched on Institute work after which she spoke on both the following subjects "Customs and Conventions" and "Balancing Our Lives"

Two junior members of the Institute, the Misses Kathleen Sisson and Helen McLean then played an instrumental duet on the piano which was much enjoyed. A vote of thanks on behalf of the Institute members was tendered to Mrs. Cooke by Mrs. Thomas Graham and Miss Hannah Rutherford.

At the conclusion of the meeting the president invited all present to remain while refreshments were served in abundance and a social time enjoyed.

Flo-glaze Paint!

"The Finish that Endures"

How Value, Service and Proper Protection Are Obtained

YOU MUST HAVE:—A solid, unbroken paint film over the surface of your property that adheres solidly, and will remain unbroken for at least four years.

Linseed Oil, in combination with a properly balanced pigment formula, is the mainstay of such a film for exterior paints. It is used to give paint flowing properties, to insure uniform distribution of pigment on the surface, to form a firmly adherent and coherent film, and to produce the necessary lustre.

Value, service and proper protection are, therefore, greatly dependent on the quality of linseed oil used. In buying raw linseed oil for Flo-glaze Paint we specify a standard of quality higher than the regular commercial product commonly used in paint making. And every tank car is tested and must conform to our standard.

This oil is then subjected to a special scientific mechanical treatment we have developed and control, which gives to its flowing properties a self-levelling quality that entirely eliminates brush marks; distribution of pigments is perfectly uniform; greater covering density and hiding power are produced; the film is denser and enamel-like in its appearance, giving greater lustre and life. But, above all, we have been enabled to produce 25% greater covering capacity than paints made with ordinary commercial raw linseed oil.

These Diagrams, Magnified Several Diameters, Show How Flo-Glaze Gives 25% Greater Value, Service and Protection.

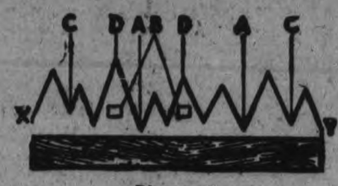

Diagram 1.

This diagram illustrates the faults of brush marks in lead and oil paint and other mixed paints. Points A are weak spots in the film. Points B indicate where an excess of paint gives only surface drying, leaving a soft centre producing surface cracking. Dirt and destructive fungi collect in the dales at points C, giving a dirty appearance and early destruction of the film. Light does not reflect a good gloss from such a rough surface. Too much paint is piled up at points D, which lessens its covering capacity.

Diagram 2.

The above diagram illustrates a typical Flo-glaze surface. There are no weak hollows to destroy the film. Its self-levelling qualities produce a level, unbroken surface. There are no brush marks. Dirt and fungi cannot collect to mar or destroy the film. Light is clearly reflected, giving a glossy enamel finish on both interior and exterior surfaces. Less Flo-glaze is used to cover a given area, giving better wear-resisting protection to the surface. It gives greater annual service value per thousand square feet, and covers 25% greater than any other form of paint.

Scientific and Practical Experience are also essential in producing value, service and proper protection. The raw materials used by paint manufacturers are available to any one who sets himself about to obtain them; even paint formulae of many varieties are available. But the preliminary inspection and treatment of these raw materials, modern facilities for thorough grinding, methods of compounding to avoid harmful chemical action, obtaining balanced proportions for long life and wear are factors that only an experienced organization can undertake in a scientific and practical manner. These problems have engaged the entire attention of our Color, Varnish and Dry Pigment laboratories for over twelve years, in controlling and improving the manufacture of Flo-glaze Paints, Enamels and Varnish Stains. The immediate success of our FLO-GLAZE THIRTY MINUTE LACQUER-ENAMELS is a result of our experienced research in these laboratories.

HEROIC MINER SAVES FELLOWS

Robert Hislop, Assistant Foreman, Rushes Through Flames To Close Doors.

AIDED BY SON.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 28 (Canadian Press). — Sixty-three men, trapped in an eleven-foot vein of the Mount Lookout Colliery of the Temple Anthracite Coal Company at Wyoming, near here, were saved from death by suffocation yesterday by the heroism of Thomas Hislop, assistant mine foreman. The fire broke out in the timbering about twenty feet from the mouth of the shaft.

Hislop was outside when the fire was reported. His son, Robert, employed at the foot of the shaft, was fighting the blaze when the father rushed through the flames. Hislop and his son battled their way through until they reached the doors leading from the main tunnel to the chambers. They threw open these doors, on the right and left, diverting the air current and causing it to carry the smoke back to the shaft. Hislop then rushed from chamber to chamber on each side, covering a distance of almost 3,000 feet, warning the workers.

Our Undeveloped Resources

The regular summer invasion by our American friends of the "Playground" sections of the Province of Ontario, has so developed during recent years, until now what is known as the "Tourist Traffic" is of such tremendous volume and value as to make of it a most important asset to the Province.

During the season of 1925, over $40,000,000.00 was conservatively estimated to have been the amount so spent in Ontario alone, and the "Traffic" is growing fast.

Only a very few years ago, especially during that period when Muskoka was being opened up, visitors from the U.S.A. used to come by rail and water, and it was their custom to put up at hotel and boarding houses throughout the district. Since the enormous multiplication of the automobile, and more particularly during the past few years, with Americans owning upwards of 20,000,000 pleasure cars, there has come a very great change in every department of our Tourist trade.

During the season just past, for every one U. S. visitor who came by rail, hundreds came by motor, and for every one U.S. visitor who put up at an hotel or boarding house in our "Playground Districts", at least one hundred camped in the woods, and by the shores of the innumerable lakes throughout our entire Northland.

No longer is it necessary that a place should be easily accessable by rail in order to enjoy its full quota of summer visitors,—in fact the very reverse is the case. Places throughout our lakeland country, so remote as to be practically unknown to the majority of Ontario people, now fairly teem with life while the tourist season is on. Not a backwoods village within hundreds of miles of Toronto, but what has its gas and service stations, and its stores with shelves laden with the things that Americans want.

The American when on pleasure bent, as also in his business, is a most aggressive and resourceful individual. He comes to our Northland because it is rough and rugged. He revels in the winding, hilly roads, and its ever changing vistas. He has come for rest; the peace and quiet of our northern wilds are as balm to his jaded nerves, and he glories in the opportunity to be alone.

His own very numbers and the competition for the most attractive camping places that has arisen among them, have brought the American tourist to the point where he desires to secure for himself, it may be a place to build on; often it is just a place to pitch tent for a few weeks or perhaps a month or two. He wants a place that he can call his own. He is a yearly visitor, and having found the spot he likes best of all; having come to know with more or less intimacy,—the path to the drinking water spring,—the forest trail that leads to the farm house where he buys his butter, milk, eggs, and garden produce,—the stepping stones to the bathing beach, and the very best fishing places, it both disturbs and annoys him, to find on his return at the beginning of a new season, that all these things have been pre-empted and are being enjoyed by another. There is no redress; he has no prior rights; no ownership in any of it, and often his entire summer is spoiled in his attempts to find another place that will suit him as well.

Buying a camping site, has for the U.S. visitor always presented difficulties of varying degree. He knows little of our laws, and the back country settlers who own much of the land are often equally poorly informed. The Northland villages are not able to support lawyers, or even conveyancers or notaries, and the buying of a camping site under such conditions often proves to be too difficult for consideration. There is of course always the occasional American, who in order to overcome the trouble, and serve his purpose, if only for a time, will buy a camping site, with nothing more than a simple verbal understanding between himself and the seller, and a receint for the money that he has paid. He knows that in the event of any difficulty of any kind, that he has no legal claim or right to the land, but as there does not seem to be any other way out, he is willing to take his chances.

To legally buy a camping site, necessitates a survey and a registered plan, and even for those who know exactly how to go about it, the expense involved becomes a barrier to both buyer and seller, and out of all proportion as compared to the value of a small piece of land.

A company, so organized as to be in a position to supply all kinds of properties, and give good titles to them, is a very present need. The demand for sites is already very considerable, and the area suitable to the purpose, and available to such an organization is practically inexhaustable. While it is fuly realized that the possibilities of such a business are very considerable indeed, the real need is for an organization who will operate on a scale sufficiently large to amply prove the possibilities of such an undertaking, and at the same time produce returns worthy of the effort.

To meet this condition and supply an ever increasing demand, Kawartha Lakes Association is now formed. The circumstances and requirements are of sufficient importance and magnitude as to present a most ususual opportunity for making money.

It is proposed, as soon as financial arrangements have been completed, to employ an Ontario Land Surveyor, and have the properties, which the Association have acquired, suitably subdivided. These subdivision plans will be registered, and they will show on them all measurements, prices, and such other particulars of each lot, and each subdivision, as may be necessary in the sale of the lots to Americans and others.

It is proposed to provide a supply of good drinking water on each subdivision, also to create good landing facilities at the water's edge, and make any further improvements to the properties which when taken altogether will add much to the value of the properties, while amounting in any case to but a very few dollars on the selling price of each individual lot.

The Association will enjoy a very great advantage in the sale of tourist lots in that their properties are situated in section, and on the shores of lakes that are already well and favorably known to many hundreds of Americans, who have frequently visited them, and as the Association will also have a considerable list of U.S. citizens, who know this north country well, generally, and who are much interested in these lakes in particular, it will be possible to get early action.

The sizes of the lots in each of the subdivisions will no doubt vary; and governed by the topography and general character of the surface will run all the way from one eighth of an acre to over one acre each. Prices of tourist lots in subdivisions so improved, will be fixed according to the size and postion of the lot.

Every aid and co-operation will be given the Association's salesmen. The Association will engage salesmen, who have had experience in the sale of subdivision properties, and who have had knowledge of this district in particular. By the employment of several salesmen, and covering several centres at the same time it is felt that a good sale of tourist lots can be achieved before the end of the 1926 tourist season.

PEOPLE ARE ALL TALKING ABOUT IT

"My experience as a salesman has taught me what people think but personal experience qualifies me to speak about another matter. For years I suffered with a chronic case of indigestion and constipation. The gas on my stomach was something terrible. I did not have any appetite and could not sleep. I heard however, so many people talking about what HERB JUICE had done for them I decided to try it and I can never be too thankful for what it did for me. After taking only two bottles I felt like a different person. I could sleep the night through and was not bothered with constipation or indigestion. The gas on my stomach has entirely gone away. The relief has been permanent. I want everyone to know what it has done for me and wish to recommend it to all. I am so enthusiastic over HERB JUICE it gives me pleasure to give this statement."

The above remarks were made by Mr. Thos. Leavitt, automobile salesman for the Reliance Garage, London, Ont.

Smart Frocks Display a Preference For Jabots

Fashion is very fond of jabots this season, and you must admit their subtle grace. As arranged on the frock shown here, their outlook on the smart world is altogether one-sided, but one is rather charmed, than otherwise, with their determination to present a narrow silhouette. The batteau neckline has endeared itself to women, and is a becoming feature of the dress. The shoulders are kimono and end in long full sleeves which are gathered into narrow wristbands. The diagram pictures the simple design of the frock, which opens at the left side under the jabots. NO. 1183 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 3 yards 36-inch figured material; ¼ yard contrasting for jabots and sleeves. Price 20 cents.

The garments illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I wish I were able to convey to every weak and ailing woman the value of Dr. Pierce's wonderful medicines and what they have done for me. I am the mother of six children and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the only medicine I ever took during expectancy. I always got along fine, it kept me so well and strong that I was able to do my work right up to the last and I did not suffer with any of the troubles that come to most women at that time. Also I had very little suffering. My children were all healthy and strong and I regained my strength very quickly afterwards. The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton

MOST ANY DAY CAN BE FISH DAY.

Eat fish and boost the budget. Three fish dinners a week will be found a great saving. Fish dishes are a bit troublesome to wash but if a handful of salt is put over them it will destroy all the odor, plenty of hot sudsy water and a little wire wool will complete the job. We need not select the most expensive fish in market, but that which is most plentiful is sure to sell at normal prices.

Stuffed Fillet of Sole.

Have a good sized flounder cut in four or six fillets. Take a tablespoonful of butter and work to a soft paste, then work into it six sardines that have been freed from skin and bone. Add red pepper, a teaspoonful of onion juice a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, and a finely minced hard boiled egg. Spread the fillets with the paste and then roll each one and pin with a wooden toothpick. Dip the rolls in beaten eggs roll in crumbs, then fry a delicate brown in deep fat. Serve on a hot dish garnished with sprays of watercress, and half lemon skins filled with tartar sauce.

Fish Chips.

Free cold boiled fish from skin and bone, and flake enough to make two cupfuls. Heat a cupful of fish stock then add to it a quarter cupful of hot milk, salt, pepper, a half teaspoonful of sugar and a teaspoonful each of onion juice and Worcestershire sauce. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter and stir in four tablespoonfuls of flour, cook until smooth and add slowly the hot liquid, stirring until smooth, then add the fish. Set aside to get cool and stiffen. When cold, shape into chops, adding a few crumbs, then dip into a beaten egg and roll in fine crumbs. Lay on a buttered baking dish, dot with butter and bake ten to fifteen minutes until a delicate brown. Serve garnished with parsley. A cream sauce may be served with the chops if desired.

Skate Soup.

Select a fresh skate weighing two pounds. Skin the fish and divide the thickest of the flesh into fillets. Put all bones and trimmings into a saucepan with three pints of water, a sliced onion, a little chopped celery, a chopped pepper, half a bay leaf, and a little chopped parsley. Boil gently for an hour, then strain. Return the stock to the saucepan and bring to boiling point. Add the fillets, cook gently ten minutes, add two ounces of vermicelli, boil five minutes more, then add the beaten yolks of two eggs stirred into a half cupful of cream. Stir until the soup is thickened slightly, then serve.

Summer Puts Its Prints On Bags as Well as Dresses

In these motor days when we circulate so freely from shore to country, when we drive ten miles to town for a chop and another ten to a farm for fresh eggs and honey, the carryall bag is extremely important. It must be large enough to hold small bundles when you are shopping, your bathing-suit, lunch and knitting when you go to the beach. Matching your bag to your frock is a Summer thought on ensembles that is quite delightful. It is as easy to make the one (including its fringe) as the other, and both are smart in chintz, cotton prints, checked gingham and linen. In town, for a long-sleeved frock, rayon alpaca is light and new.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy simply by saying "KOTEX" at any drug or department store. Costs only a few cents. Proves risky old ways a folly.

A STORY OF A GIRL TO-DAY

A KITTY CAT.

"Do you know Mr. Tremaine personally, Miss Dean?" Miss Cleaver asked me as Buddy left the store.

"I never saw him in my life until this morning," I answered airily, rather glad to mix her up a bit.

"Well, he is evidently very generous with his money," she said grudgingly.

"That was a very good sale, but it puts you in rather a hard position, Miss Dean, being your first in the store. You will be expected to keep up the standard."

"I should worry," I answered.

Miss Cleaver seemed to put a different meaning to my last speech than I intended. But I let it go at that, especially since at that moment Mr. Robinson sauntered by.

He frowned as he saw me behind the handkerchief counter.

"What are you doing here? Why did Smith put you here?" he asked abruptly, without bidding me good morning or acting as though he had interested himself in me in the slightest manner.

"I asked him to put me here, Mr. Robinson."

"And in doing so I believe Miss Dean knows her business," put in Miss Cleaver. "She has just been showing me her sales check for two hundred dollars' worth of handkerchiefs."

Mr. Robinson fairly snatched the book from me.

"Who OK'd this?" he demanded.

"No one, sir. I did not think it had to be OK'd in a cash sale."

"It was paid for by check and no one knows if it is good or not."

This got my goat.

"The alleged Mr. Tremaine did not take the goods with him," I said pertly. "It will be very easy to have the check certified at the hotel when the goods are delivered."

"Do you know Mr. Tremaine personally, Miss Dean?" asked Mr. Robinson.

"No, sir," I answered, "but I know there is a Mr. Robert Tremaine visiting in Chicago.

"Nice pleasant party," I observed to Miss Cleaver as the manager walked away.

To my surprise she answered: "I am sure that you are going to find him so!"

SEPTIC TEETH.

You are hearing much these days about focal infections, particularly relating to diseased or septic teeth.

Now, focal infection is what?

An authority states—"An infection by some disease-producing organism at some point from which poisonous matter or disease germs are constantly being fed into the body fluids, and by far the greater number of focal infections," he adds "are found associated with the teeth."

Then as to sources of infection about the teeth themselves:

We have first, diseased pulps, which offer ideal conditions of heat and moisture for bacterial growth—these organisms and their poisons are being fed continually into the blood stream where such a condition exists.

Next, we have the acute and chronic abscesses of which the diseased pulp is invariably a forerunner; here, pus is present and is either being mixed with the food and swallowed or absorbed directly into the body at large through the blood, and lymph streams.

Lastly, there are the so-called 'pyorrhea pockets' where bacteria are harbored free from disturbance by the oral fluids, and under ideal conditions of heat and moisture for propogation and growth.

Having thus gained access, the bacteria and their poisons are free to set up a localized infection in different areas, or to cause a general septic intoxication or poisoning.

Also it is generally accepted that the absorption of the products of putrefactive material from decayed teeth and diseased gums, tends to lower the resistance of the body to communicable diseases of various kinds.

So it is that affections of the joint, of the heart, kidney, etc., are in many cases attributable to the presence of septic foci around the roots of one or more teeth.

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

They loved one another some 40 years ago. Circum stances. Each married another. A day or so ago, the two, now widow and widower, married one another. Day after day one sees a story similar to this one of James Winning and Mrs. Buchanan Brice, and the answer to its meaning would solve much of the mystery in this thing called love and marriage.

Is there really but one right man for every woman, one right woman for every man? Does Nature distill curious chemical affinity between a certain two which defies time itself? Or is it true that, given proximity, most any man can marry most any woman, or any woman any man with average chances for happiness?

"I HAVEN'T TIME!"

"How I want to do something besides just raise a family and look after a house—I always did think I could write or paint or—!" How many boresome times a day we all hear that! It's a truism to say that anyone can do the thing she really wants to do badly enough, but like most truisms true! If you "just can't," what about Elinor Mordaunt, author of "The Venture Book?"

HOW SHE DID IT!

"When I was 20 I went as my cousin's companion to the island of Mauritius, 500 miles east of Madagascar. I married there. Malaria and other plagues followed, and I buried two of my children there. I was ordered back to England to die. Paralyzed all down one side. Two years in bed, unable to move. Doctors said I could never live.

WOULD NOT DIE IN BED.

"I would not die in bed. I wanted the feel of a ship again, the clean salt winds of the sea. Throwing away my brief hope of life, so the doctors said, I shipped off on board a little sailing vessel for Australia. I left Glasgow the second week in February. We did not sight land until July.

MORE DEATH!

"In Melbourne my son was born. In Melbourne my husband died. I was not yet dead but was lame and had to earn a living for myself and boy. I gardened, did anything. There was no relief from the constant work to earn the bare needs of existence. Physical break-downs. Seven years there in Australia away from everyone I knew and never one penny ahead in the bank. I broke my leg. Somehow we managed to scrape together money to go back to England. I broke my leg a second time on ship and it could not be set for five weeks."

HOW IT ENDED.

But pink rosy cloud linings at last! Back in England, an editorial job for her! A successful book. Years of roving to feed the wanderlust. Comforts that money could buy. She "didn't have time" either. The difference is that she had to!

IS SHE RIGHT!

"A good complexion gets a woman further than a good education, and women are smart enough to know it. More money is spent on woman's personal beauty today than on public education," says Mrs. Ruth Maurer, beauty expert. She adds that something like $5,000,000 is spent.

IF SHE IS!

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A SMART NEW BATHING SUIT.

Madame does not usually do bathing suits, but this season she has been so strongly urged by numbers of her smart clients that she finally gave in.

"After all, most of them spend their Summers by the water, where they wear bathing things almost as much as they do frocks, so I might as well do a few bathing costumes instead of so many Summer frocks," Madame remarked to the assembled roomful of manikins.

"Oh, Madame, when the collection is finished, do let us have a small fashion show, so we can show the bathing things all at one time. They'll be awfully impressive that way," Gaby urged.

"Capital idea," Madame said.

This was ten days ago, and this afternoon dozens of the smartest clients came in to see what Madame was showing.

The clients found seats, for rows of chairs had been arranged for them. Madame had asked them by phone, and said she was serving tea afterward, so there was a good collection of people.

When three o'clock came, we began the parade. Eight of the manikins burst forth at once, all clad in complete bathing costumes, from rubber caps and gay head kerchiefs, to beach shoes.

We wandered about so that all could see until everyone's curiosity had been satisfied, then we went back to the manikins' room and changed into bathing costumes for the second showing, for Madame was exploiting sixteen models in all.

The second model I appeared in made such a hit that I am showing a sketch of it here. It is of vivid green silk. Over the straight trunks is worn a long tunic, gaily hand-painted in bright yellow and purple and cerise. Then there is a matching cape, and a tiny green rubberized silk cap, with the front part hand-painted to match.

There were several orders on this model immediately, some in the original colors, and some to be executed in colors, especially becoming to the client, such as a lightish blue, with yellow and black flowers to be painted on it.

The manikins also wore silk jersey suits, for real swimming, fashioned just like men's suits, with a tiny skirt attached, and with a narrow light colored belt. Green seems to be a particular favorite this season, for green jersey silks with white belts sold well.

SATURDAY, MAY 29.

Judging by the conflicting planetary activities this may prove to be a day of complications and perplexities. While the financial planet is well fortified and kindly disposed, yet the malefic positions point to certain hazards, especially in the matter of change and new projects. There may be a strong leaning toward the adventurous and the realm of experiment, and the mind should be found splendidly equipped for fresh insight in novel directions; but be prepared for slight setbacks or delays.

Those whose birthday it is are entering a year of new prospects and unusual adventures, with the financial outlook well fortified; but there may be some hazard or complications through false moves, and slight obstacles may be encountered. The mind may be found keen for experiment and novelties. A child born on this day may have a fine mind, leaning toward research and experiment with all manner of novel ideas, in which it should make its best success.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BESSIE HELPS MAMA WEE MOUSIE MOVE.

When Bessie went into her Grandpa's barn and saw the wee little reddish-brown mousie sitting up on his hind legs eating a grain of corn that was almost as large as his head, she gave a squeal.

"Now, what's the idea?" exclaimed the Wee Mousie. "Do you want to tell Pussy Gray that I'm here so she'll come out and get me? Don't be frightened. I wouldn't harm you."

"Why, you dear little thing," laughed Bessie softly. "I wouldn't harm you for the world and I'm certainly not afraid of you, either. You certainly are cunning. All the mice I've ever seen have been gray ones. I adore your neat reddish-brown coat and that spotless white vest you have on. May I ask to what family you belong?"

"Certainly," squeaked Wee Mousie. "I'm Mrs. Field Mousie. Some folks say I belong to the Dwarf Field Mice."

"You must," answered Bessie, "for you're not more than two inches long. That's not counting your tail, of course. It's as long as your whole body. Do you live in Grandpa's barn?"

"I have lived here all this last Winter," replied Mrs. Field Mousie.

"I'm Moving Today."

"But I'm moving back into my Summer home today."

"Into your Summer home," said Bessie. "May I ask where that is?"

"Certainly, if you'll promise not to tell. Come along and I'll show you one of the prettiest homes."

Bessie followed Mrs. Field Mousie out of the barn and back into the meadows. She looked all around for a hole in the ground when Mrs. Field Mousie stopped, but she couldn't find any.

"Of course, you don't find my doorway in the ground," stated Mrs. Field Mousie. "I don't build a burrow as some mice do. Here's my house."

She ran up among the weeds to a ball of tangled grasses swung between the tall weeds, like a little bird's nest. It wasn't more than a foot from the ground; so Bessie could see it quite plainly, after Mrs. Field Mousie had pointed it out. She pulled the grasses away from a tiny hole used for a doorway and let the little girl peek inside.

Bessie gave a happy squeal when she spied the nine wee baby mice, no larger than the end of her grandpa's thumb.

"What darlings!" the child cried.

"No wonder you moved from the barn. Pussy Gray would have made short work of these babies. What a dear comfy nest! Did you bring all your things out?"

"Well, I would like to get some more corn and a few more seeds that I have stored in the barn," replied Mrs. Field Mousie. "But I can get them later."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," answered Bessie. "You stay here. I'll go and get you some corn."

Away she ran, soon returning with a pocket full of corn, some bits of bread, cake and a piece of cheese.

"Nothing like help on moving day," laughed Mrs. Field Mousie. "My, such a feed! Better stay and have a bite."

Bessie shook her head. Then promising to come and see Mrs. Field Mousie again some day, she bade her new friends good-bye and ran back to the house.

ACIDS IN STOMACH ACIDS INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Today I want to say something about the preparation of the baby's food. It will not hurt the grown-ups to read and follow the same advice.

Food must be prepared so that the essential mineral substances are preserved. These minerals have to do with the development of the body and bones, the teeth, the fingernails and the hair. Babies and adults, too, cannot thrive without these substances.

The vegetables should be cooked in such a manner that the water in which they are boiled will not be thrown away. It is a mistaken practice in many kitchens to drain off the water which has absorbed the minerals from the skin and fiber of the vegetables.

This is wrong. The "pot likker" is essential to health.

The proper way to cook food for the child is to prepare it with the smallest amount of water possible. When the boiling has been sufficient the cover of the dish is lifted and the water evaporated. By this method of preparation, the minerals will be left in the food, where they belong.

Proper attention given to the feeding and care of the infant will guarantee a foundation of health. Upon this will be built a strong and vigorous manhood. Without proper feeding he will be weak and puny as an infant and frail and feeble as an adult.

No task to which she can lay her hand is more important for the mother than proper feeding of the baby. I have told you on other occasions about the preparation of the bottle feedings, but the meals I have in mind now are for a baby between the ages of eighteen months and three years.

This is the period we call the second half of babyhood. It is a vital time in the child's life, second only to the first year or year and a half.

Now begin the regular eating habits of a member of the family who, from this time forward, is to sit at the family table. The child is now to form eating habits which will decide his future welfare. The mother and father must be watchful. They must help to guide the appetite and manners into proper channels. What the child learns now means everything to him and to the next generation.

I am more and more amazed that matters of such consequence should be neglected in some homes. The preparation of the food and the way the child eats it are vital to his future. They must not be overlooked.

At another time I shall give in more or less detail the particular food and their quantities which are required at this age. In the meantime teach the child to eat slowly, to chew the food well and to enjoy a glass of milk with every meal.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma.)

Brainard Platt, A. V. P. of The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, says:

That honest advertising is the lodestar of better business holding the advertiser straight in his course, directing the client in the way of true values.

It acclaims the better mousetrap.

It builds a great manufacturing community out of a shack.

It proclaims the religion of progress.

It takes a sprawling village and erects a shining city.

It takes the light from under a bushel and sets it upon a hill where it grows and spreads till millions come to glow in its incandescence.

It is the faith of the master in his product, the servant of the genius in focusing attention, the modern world's spot light directed from a million points in hundreds of different ways.

It fills the streets with rushing people, it fills the offices with busy clerks, it fills the stores with satisfied customers, it fills the factories with efficient workers.

Railroad trains in added lengths and multiplied sections respond to its pleas, the arteries of trade flow with the traffic stimulated by its directing power.

In short, advertising is the goods.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

DRESSING UP THE PORCH.

It is easy to prepare the porch to take all our meals there if we plan carefully. The all-paper service and the tea wagon are first aids. Electric appliances with convenient sockets do the rest.

One charming porch is done in orange Venetian sail cloth. The awnings are of the cloth and the porch furniture is slipped in it. The furniture frames and legs are painted black, the Chinese slat blinds are black and the floor of the porch is black. This brings out the orange coloring in the slips. On the porch there is a round rug in natural fiber color. Scattered about are muffin pillows covered with orange and black fiber material with gay medallions as decorations in round motifs on top of each. The material looks almost like raffia.

The oilcloth porch is not quite as new, but it is very attractive. This porch is also painted black, but it has a large plaided effect made by painted discs twelve inches in diameter, a yellow circle with a gaily-colored center in futurist fashion. The chair cushions are black, decorated in the same way as the floor, with the painted discs in smaller sizes. The furniture, painted black with yellow seats and decorations. The fiber muffin pillows, in black with gaily-colored centers, are featured here also. Small black fiber rugs are used over the porch in places where they are needed. On the table an oilcloth mat set is used, with black and yellow pottery dishes.

If the porch rail is wide enough to allow outdoor window or border boxes of wood, cement or rustic finish, they may be filled with tall-growing ferns that form a screen, insuring more privacy for us from passers-by.

Because of the Egyptian women's inordinate fondness for jewelry there are more jewelery shops in Cairo than in any other city of its size in the world.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE FAIRY ON THE MOONBEAM

"Nancy, Nancy! Quick—wake up," cried Nick. "Flops and Inco have run off!"

"What!" cried Nancy, sitting up in bed and rubbing her eyes. "What's wrong?"

"I just saw Inco, our china elephant door-stop with the roses painted all over him, and Flops, my circus clown, jump out of the window. It's as light as day outside with the moon and I saw everything. They've gone."

"I suppose," said a tiny person, who appeared suddenly on a moon-beam, "that they have gone to Drowsy Land."

"Drowsy Land!" cried both Twins together. "Where is it and how do you get there?"

"On a moonbeam," said the Fairy Queen, for that is who it was, this tiny creature sitting there in the air so comfortably on nothing at all but a streak of light. "You get there on a moonbeam, for Drowsy Land is on the moon."

"Why do you think Inco and Flops went there?" asked Nick.

"Well, it's a secret," said the Fairy Queen. "But I don't mind telling you as you are sure to find out anyhow. Inco got tired of being called "queer" because he was sprigged all over like wallpaper. So he decided to go to a place where nothing is queer. Nothing is queer in Drowsy Land. It is the queerest place on earth, I mean on the moon."

"Oh dear! I guess we weren't very kind to the poor darling," said Nancy. "I never noticed him at all lately. I didn't think he had any feelings and here he had all the time."

"He mentioned it," said the Fairy Queen. "He said it was trying, to be neither a toy nor a real animal—that no one cared for a door-stop!"

"Why, I just loved him so I did!" wailed Nancy. "But I never knew it until now. I'm so sorry, so I am!"

"So am I," said Nick, hugging his knees and looking at the empty place in the floor where Inco had stood.

"That's the way!" sighed the Fairy Queen. "We never know how much we love people or things until they're gone. How about Flops?"

"I liked Flops better than any of my toys," said Nick. "I do wish he hadn't gone."

"I suppose he felt sorry for Inco" said the Fairy Queen. "He has a kind heart, Flops has, and no doubt he didn't want the elephant to run off by himself. But now I shall tell you why I am here, children. I decided to let you go after the runaways, if you wish. If Inco finds out how much you really and truly care for him, he will come back, I know."

Suddenly a wallpaper bunny spoke up. "If he'll just come back and stand by the door as he used to, I'll be more friendly, too! I'll wiggle my ears at him six times a day."

"And I'll wiggle my tail," said a wallpaper duck.

"And I'll blink my eyes at him in my friendliest fashion," said a wallpaper squirrel.

"And I'll sing him a song," said a painted bird on the bureau.

"And I'll flutter my wings," said a butterfly.

"Very well," said the Fairy Queen, sliding two pairs of magic shoes down the moonbeam so that they landed on the floor between the two little beds. Get up and dress yourselves quickly children, and put on these shoes. If you wish to go to Drowsy Land, it must be done before moondown."

A Summer Holiday for Mother

WHY shouldn't mother share the holiday at the summer cottage? Why should her work be heavier in vacation time, just because her usual kitchen conveniences are lacking?

If there's an electric wire near your cottage, the installation of a Canadian Beauty Rangette will help more than anything else in giving mother a real holiday. Let her cook with electricity. No fussing with coal or wood fires, no smell from oil burners, no danger, no heated kitchen, no ashes, no dirt—think what it means to mother in the summer home!

The Canadian Beauty Rangette, including installation, costs about only half the ordinary electric range.

While we have especially mentioned mother's problems in the summer cottage, do not overlook how well these Canadian Beauty Rangettes fit into apartments or small homes for all the year round work.

Every Rangette is strongly built and all parts thoroughly tested. The Rangettes, though smaller than the large cabinet ranges, have cooking elements of the same style and capacity. Each element is equipped with the latest improved reciprocating switch. The top or cooking surface is of genuine pearl grey vitreous porcelain.

OTTAWA, May 28. Canadian Press. — The Dominion Distillery Products Limited, of Montreal, engaged in the shipment of large quantities of liquor to Mexico, which was never intended to get farther than the United States. Futhermore it "camouflaged" liquor in order to ship it into prohibition districts.

This was admitted before the customs inquiry committee this morning by Leo George, former president of the company, and the holder of approximately 100 shares of its stock.

Mr. George was called to tell the committee about the operations of his company, but he was unable to furnish many details of its business. Even though president for a time he claimed that he had not taken an active part in the business transactions of the company, which were of such proportions that 137 cars of liquor were shipped to one man alone, supposed to reside in the United States. This man is the mysterious "Mr. Scherer" for whom the committee has been searching for some time.

The man who knew all about the business was Gregory George, his brother, the witness told the committee. R. L. Calder, K.C., committee's cousel, remarked at this point that he expected most of his questions would be referred to Gregory George, who has been travelling in Europe since the early days of the inquiry. Mr. George took with him a number of documents, etc., which the committee has been anxious to obtain, because, it is expected, they will throw some light on the operations of the company. He is expected in Canada about June 15th.

C. G. M. M. SHOWS PROFIT IN 1926 SAYS THORNTON

Is Ahead $62,000 on Operations For Five Months.

NO CATTLE PROFIT.

Cheaper To Tie Up Vessels Than Handle Cattle Less Than $20.

OTTAWA, May 28 (Canadian Press).—The operating deficit in the Canadian Government Merchant Marine has been changed into a profit in 1926, Sir Henry Thornton stated to-day. The president of the C.N.R. was speaking before the special committee of the House of Commons on National Railways and the affairs of the C.G.M.M. were under discussion. In the first five months of this year, said Sir Henry, the Merchant Marine had made an operating profit of $62,000, compared with a loss of $593,000 in the same period last year.

There was nothing abnormal in these improvements, he thought. They were due to steady improvement in world trade conditions.

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine cannot profitably go into the cattle carrying business at less than the $20 rate. This statement was made positively by R. B. Teakle, head of the line at to-day's meeting of the Commons committee on National Railways.

Mr. Teakle explained that because of the lack of return cargo for cattle carrying vessels, the cost of equipment and lower profit on cattle space as compared with general cargo space, it would never be possible to cut the cattle rate by putting the Merchant Marine into the trade, unless the loss was to be regularly absorbed. Canada would lose less money by letting the boats remain idle in port, he thought.

JEWELS PRESENTED.

Queen Alexandra Circle A. O.F. Has Pleasing Function.

In the Sons of England Hall on Thursday evening the regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Circle, No. 136, A.O.F., was held, there being a good attendance of companions and juvenile girls.

After the business of the evening was transacted, Companion Miss Martin presented the Chief Companion's jewel to P.C.C. Mrs. Adlam in honor of her three years' services as Chief Companion. P.C.C. Mrs. Adlam spoke a few words expressing her thanks to the members. Chief Companions' jewels were then presented to three juvenile girls of the Sunbeam Circle who had passed through the chief companion's chair, Comp. Miss E. Simmons, Comp. Miss F. Record and Comp. Miss J. Thorne.

The evening was then concluded with games and music and the social committee served refreshments.

The Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's professional hockey championship, has been in existence for 33 years. Previous to 1912 the contestants for the trophy were confined to amateur teams.

FAREWELL PARTY.

St. John's W.F.B.C. Makes Presentation To Member Leaving City.

A very pleasant evening was spent on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Collis, 785 George Street, when about twenty-five members of St. John's Women's Friendly Bible Class gathered there for a farewell party to Mrs. McFarlane, who is leaving shortly to reside in England, and to present her with a beautiful signet ring and the following address:

Mrs. McFarlane;

Dear Friend. — We have heard with regret that you are very shortly leaving Peterborough, and we hasten to assure you that we, as well as all the other organizations in which you are interested, will surely miss you. We have always found you a willing worker in every good cause and also ready with lots of fun when it was jollity we were looking for. Our warmest wishes go with you and yours, and we trust all your hopes and wishes will be gratified. We ask you to accept this small gift with our love, hoping it will sometimes remind you of some of the friends you have left in Peterboro.

May the Lord bless you and keep you in all your ways, is the prayer of all the members of St. John's W.F.B.C."

The presentation was made by Mrs. Collis, the president, and the address was read by Mrs. Hake, the secretary. Mrs. McFarlane then made a very suitable reply, thanking the Class for the kind thoughts and expressions of goodwill after which everybody joined in singing "For she's a jolly good fellow."

After music and games, dainty refreshments were served. A very hearty vote of thanks was then given to the host and hostess for the use of their home.

DISCUSS STREET RAILWAY

Hydro Electric Representatives Wait on City Council Committee

Messrs. F. A. Gaby, chief engineer, R. T. Jeffrey, W. R. Robertson, and T. U. Fairley, of the Hydro Electric Power Commission's head office staff, with J. L. Clifford and J. McCann, of the local street railway, waited on the committee of the whole council last night with regard to street railway matters. Mr. Gaby reviewed the whole situation, both with regard to the purchase of the railway and gas plant by the city and to the competition given by private buses. No steps were taken by the council, which will consider the matter at another meeting.

At the request of Mr. Gaby the press was excluded from the meeting, information as to what transpired being given out to-day.

TOURIST TRADE IS LAUDED AT KIWANIS CLUB

Rotarian Fred Roy Gives Entertaining and Informative Address.

FISH NEEDED.

Advertising Must Be First Of All Thoughtful and Accurate.

The attractions, and possibilities, of Peterboro County's lake district, was the topic discussed by Rotarian Fred Roy, the speaker at to-day's luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the Empress Hotel. Mr. Roy's address was accompanied by a number of lantern illustrations, showing some of the beauty spots of the lakes.

Mr Roy said the tourist traffic had now assumed large dimensions. Last year, he said, the influx of tourists brought $252,452 into the city between June 15th and September 15th. These figures were those shown by the bank clearings, and did not tell the whole story, as they took, no account of the visitors coming before and after the dates cited.

What were the attractions? he asked. Good advertising, no doubt, had a good deal to do it, the first stage. Then came good roads, good hotels, and above all, good hunting, and good fishing.

The real fisherman would put up with a great deal provided he could catch fish; but he could not always catch fish here. "I have had twenty-five years' experience of fishing around here," said Mr. Roy, "and I can say that fishing is not so good today as it was ten years ago. The waters are steadily being depleted."

Illicit Fishing.

The causes of this state of affairs were too many to be enumerated, but the chief was illicit fishing: The spearing of fish in the spawning beds. The Fish and Game Association was doing everything possible to bring offenders to book, but it was realized that it was necessary to arouse public opinion. If there was no market for poached fish in Peterboro there would be very little poaching in the neighborhood. He knew that everybody liked a nice bit of 'lunge in the spring—it tasted good—but he appealed to his hearers to remember that in buying illegally caught fish, they were ruining a very valuable asset to the community.

While advertising was important, it was essential that it should be advertising of the right kind. The Kawartha Lakes had been advertised as the "Fisherman's Paradise." His conception of a fisherman's paradise was a place where one could go out anywhere at any time and make a catch. Judged by this standard, the lakes were not a fisherman's paradise. But what was really wanted was merely a place where enough fish could be caught to satisfy any reasonable sportsman. To make claims unwarranted by fact was harmful advertising. In this connection he read an extract from an article in an American sporting journal, in which the Kawartha Lakes were described as being splendid fishing grounds for brook and salmon trout. This statement was untrue. He got into communication with the paper and pointed this out, adding that this district had attractions sufficient to lure visitors without the aid of misrepresentation or exaggeration. He thought the editorial in The Examiner of some weeks back, entitled "Tell the Truth" as to the real fishing situation, hit the nail on the head.

He showed a number of views of the lakes all taken within a radius of 30 or 40 miles from Peterborough. The pictures included contrasting views of modern transportation with that of 25 years ago; showed some of the more spectacular catches; and exhibited some splendid snaps of the wild life around the lakes.

In conclusion, he urged all to get after the Government until the lakes were restocked, and when this was accomplished, to take steps to see that there was no further depletion by illicit fishing.

The thanks of the club were voiced by Harry Dickin. Kiwanian Joseph Wearing was the booster. The prize-winners were Kiwanians Doug. Grant, John McKone and Art Reynolds. Kiwanian Doug. Paterson managed the lantern.

Scarcity Of May Wheat Sends Prices Up Again

CHICAGO, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Rapid fresh upturns in May wheat quotations took place early today owing to a renewed scarcity of offerings. Most of the gains, however, were wiped out when an opening rush to buy had been satisfied. Other deliveries were inclined to sag owing to rains in the northwest. Starting 7-8 cents off to 3 3-4 cents up, wheat fluctuated nervously at near to initial limits. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, corn opening unchanged to 3-8 cents lower, and showing but little power to rally.

Among the disturbing factors in to-day's wheat market was the notice taken of assertions that cash wheat in June wuld be scarcer than in May. It was pointed out that mills have bought as sparingly as possible of late and that the domestic visible supply has dropped to below half the total of a year ago.

Dull Session In Mines Price Changes Are Small

TORONTO, May 28 (Canadian Press)—The morning's session of the Standard Mining Exchange was a dull affair compared with the preceding ones. The trading was light in volume and price changes small. Teck Hughes was one of the few features, climbing three cents at 3.49 in active trading. Vipond improved one at 162, McIntyre ten at 25.25, and Castle Tretheway two at 137. Amulet, an unlisted silver stock gained four at 118. Tough Oakes eased one at 38 and a few other stocks receded very slightly.

Active Opening In Toronto Followed By Dull Trading

TORONTO, May 28.—(Canadian Press.) — Changes were small in comparatively light trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. After an active opening, the session became dull. The general tone was firm, but a number of small recessions were recorded. Arnolds Common, the active leader, eased a half point at 24, and Brazilian was unchanged at 97. British Columbia Fishing advanced a point at 66 1-2 and C. P.R. firmed a quarter at 162. Massey Harris at 52 1-2 was 3-8 stronger. In the unlisted section Tech Hughes climbed four cents at 3.49.

ST. Two men in one of the cars, Walter Crawford and Andrew Cathcart, both of Hamilton, were placed under arrest. They appeared in police court here to-day and were remanded until Monday.

CANADIAN CATTLE TRADE DISCUSSED

Marquette Member Asks If Departments Are Aiding Development.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Colonel H. A. Mullins (Conservative, Marquette) said in the House yesterday that he had received a letter from Lord Bledisloe, under secretary of state for agriculture in the British government, stating that he had received one hundred Canadian steers and that he was very much pleased with them. Lord Bledisloe was formerly an enemy of the cattle trade. Colonel Mullins asked if the Minister of Agriculture or the Minister of Railways was doing anything to facilitate the transportation of Canadian cattle.

Mr. Motherwell said that everything possible was being done. New plans were now afoot and later developments might be expected.

Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways, pointed out that the Canadian National Railway Committee met for the first time this morning on the estimates of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, where officials of the company were present and questioned.

When Is A Superior Product Inferior?

THIS may sound like a riddle, but perhaps you can answer it.

Here is how a leading American jobber answers it in Printers' Ink magazine:

"A superior product may be inferior, without the inferiority being in the quality at all

"It may be an inferiority in service or in consumer demand.

"And inferiority in consumer demand is, in many ways, as great an inferiority as quality inferiority."

How true that is. And what a handicap a product labors under that has an inferiority in consumer demand!

No matter how well-made it is, no matter how conscientious the manufacturer, no matter how much quality he puts into it, it will always remain an inferior product until there is a strong consumer demand for it.

Do you make a superior product of inferior saleability? Few manufacturers like to admit that they do. But if it is true in your case, why not face it squarely, then proceed to remedy it?

The best, quickest, most economical way to win strong consumer demand for your product is to advertise it to the consumer.

Tell the public about it. Explain its good qualities. Tell consumers what it will do for them. Tell them why they should buy it. If it has an exclusive feature, or an outstanding superiority, centralize the advertising on that point.

Good, sound, vigorous advertising will remove the inferiority of consumer demand and replace it with a superior saleability.

It may not remove the selling inferiority over night—or next week—or next month. Advertising isn't a miracle worker. It is simply salesmanship-in-print, a method of reaching and selling consumers efficiently and economically.

Advertising is personal salesmanship multiplied. It sells the multitude where personal salesmanship sells the individual.

If you will look upon advertising as a sound selling proposition and place your advertising in charge of an experienced, commonsense advertising organization, you can reasonably expect your advertising to prove profitable to you and to give your product a superiority in consumer demand.

If this advertisement appeals to your good judgment, we would appreciate an interview with you.

SECRETS of STARS on INSIDE BASEBALL

as told to BILLY EVANS

BY BABE RUTH.

"You can't make base hits with your bat on your shoulder," is the remark credited to some umpire when the batsman kicked after being called out on a third strike.

That is the best bit of advice I could possibly give on how to make base hits. In other words, you must keep swinging.

I have no pet theories on how to bat, except that I like to pick my ball. There are certain type pitches that I hit better than others. Often I am content to take a strike or two in the hope the pitcher will finally get one in my "groove."

But don't take the third one. Any time a batter gets two strikes on him he should be on the alert. I make it a point to have a healthy swing at every ball that is close to the plate. It may impress the umpire as being a strike and you only have three.

Of course I am often called out on a third strike. My failure to take my swing is either due to being crossed up by the pitcher or because I figured the ball wasn't over. However, if the umpire says it is there is nothing for you to do but take a walk back to the bench.

Being fooled into taking the third strike is the result of the pitcher out-guessing you. A fast-breaking curve with the count three and two, or a slow ball in the same situation, often upsets you entirely when you are looking for the pitcher to groove a fast one.

Pitcher Shocker, now with our club, often fooled me on the slow one when he was pitching for St. Louis. The ball would come up as big as a balloon but somehow I just seemed hypnotized. In a majority of cases the third one would be called. Occasionally I would try to shift my stance and slow up on my swing but I would look more foolish than standing with my bat on my shoulder.

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK—TEE AND PITCH SHOT.

The height of the tee should be determined by the style of play of the individual, the lay of the land, and kind of ball to be used, and the wind. In driving where there are few, or no obstacles, a player should use a medium-sized tee. On a windy day, playing with the wind, he should use a high tee and stand slightly behind the ball, this enabling him to hit the ball well into the air where it will receive all the benefit of the wind.

Against the wind, a low tee should be used so that the trajectory of the ball will be on a straight low line.

The pitch shot is always a safe way to a green but the run-up is often better if you have a clear space to the green. It is also easier.

In playing a run-up, a straight-faced club should be used, and throughout the back-swing and down-swing the club-head should be kept low.

The pitch and run, a combination of both, is also a very useful shot but rather difficult.

MOVIGRAPHS

BY JACK JUNGMEYER.
NEA Service Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, May 28.—Across a span of five years Rudolph Valentino is returning to the type of role which labeled him and gave him initial fame—the ardent desert hero.

"Son of the Sheiks," an opus of burning loves and bitter hates now being filmed, is a sequel to "The Sheik," by which Valentino added a new word to the romantic vocabulary of the day and by which he established for himself an apparently ineradicable theatrical identity.

The cycle between the two closely kindred roles has seen Rudolph in sex dramas, costume plays, under-world stories and emotional essays of all kind.

During that interval he has been up and down, liked and disliked, acclaimed and all but ignored. In that time he has been married and divorced, elated and dejected, for reasons personal and professional; a "sheik" lashed by temperamental siroccos.

A marked change in demeanor was evident in his devotion to the new picture. He tackled it with zest. He appeared much younger and more carefree. And it may be apropos that he refers to his recently divorced wife, Natacha Rambova, even by inference.

Valentino's return to the desert character tends to confirm a Hollywood contention, namely that a picture player is best fitted for that type of role which first brought him outstanding success.

It may be more apt to say that the player so stamps himself with his first triumph that a stolid public forever after tends to hold him to that model.

At any rate, it is undoubtedly true that masses of Valentino's admirers think of him as actually a son of Araby, rather than an Italian, and that throughout his diverse picture aliases they have awaited his reappearance in the desert guise.

Of his new role he says: "This picture will be absolutely true to life. Five years ago I knew nothing of sheiks, and little more about the art of the screen. Today I can at least claim an authentic knowledge of the life and customs of the Arab chiefs."

However—he is wearing a regalia beyond your genuine sheik's fondest dreams of magnificence. So much by way of concession to romantic idealism of one of the two well-known sexes.

SCORING LIGHT IN LEAGUE GAME

Post Office Loses To the Firemen By Score of 6-4.

AT KING EDWARD.

Last night the best softball game of the season so far was played at King Edward School grounds between the Post Office team and the Firemen. The Firemen won the game 6 to 4. The Post Office men allowed the other team to get four runs in the 3rd innings but the game outside of this innings was very close. This was the first time these teams have met and both are certainly looked upon as contenders for the softball championship. Tonight the C.G.E. meet the Quakers in Central Park at 6.30.

The Line-up

Post Office.—Baker, c; Nicholls, p; McGee, 1b; Dodson, 2b; Graham, 3b; White, ss; Fallin, rf; Wolfe, cf; Devel lf.

JUVENILE BALL LEAGUE STRONG

Local Teams Will Have Keen Competition From Lakefield Club.

THREE TEAM LEAGUE.

Jack Deannard and his Kiwanis baseball teams had a workout at Riverside park last night, and the genial manager is confident that he has gathered together two strong teams, one for the juvenile and one for the midget series. However he has still openings for a few players on the midget team and any player who was under 17 on May 1 will be welcomed at the King Edward school grounds to-night at 6 o'clock, when another practice will be held.

Indications are at present that the juvenile series will be strong. Doc Smith of Lakefield is organizing a team in the village and is confident that he can get both players and supporters for a good strong club. With two Peterborough teams, the three- cornered circuit should provide good juvenile ball both in the city and in Lakefield.

Diamond Disputes Decided

By BILLY EVANS

What is the proper way to retire a runner who, after reaching second, for some reason runs back to first and is standing on the bag?

The bases are not to be run in the reverse order.

When a baserunner does such a thing his thought is to confuse the fielders and in so doing he is making a travesty of the game.

In the minds of many players and fans there is some doubt as to the proper way to retire a player who, after reaching second, elects to run back to first.

The doubt largely exists around whether or not the fact he is standing on first base makes him immune from being retired.

When a runner violates the proper order of running the bases, he can be retired by holding the ball on the base to which he was entitled, which in this case was second, or touching him with the ball.

BELLEVILLE STRONG SAYS PRESS DOPE

Walter Gerow Driving His Men Hard For To-morrow's Game.

Everything is set for the Central Ontario League opening at the Stevenson Park to-morrow, with Belleville and the Petes providing the fireworks, in the initial League clash of the season. Belleville reports are to the effect that Walter Gerow has been drilling his men hard this week and they will be right on edge for to-morrow's struggle. The Easterners battery will be Oulette or Goyer and Mills. An infield shake up is announced with Weir going to second base instead of Meagher, and "Hoot" Gibson, the Cobourg recruit, taking Weir's place at third. Blakely, the Tweed infielder, who improved so rapidly last season, will be at short stop for the invaders, and Ross, Hagerman, Meagher or Palmer in the outfield.

Manager Shiner Johnston has not given out his line up and is keeping his pitching selection under his hat as well, but either Lennox or Heckman will likely get the call.

The game will get under way at 3 o'clock sharp and with good weather promised a big crowd should see the old rivals hook up for the first time this season.

MAIL CLERK STOLE LETTERS 10 YEARS

Seven a Day Was Trusted Employee's Average.

BUFFALO, May 28.—George C. Riddell, aged 50, of Rome, N.Y., trusted Government railway mail clerk for the past 27 years, is in custody here, charged with rifling the mails.

Many of these were letters containing contributions to the orphan asylum at Lackawanna.

A RESORT-LAND OF RARE CHARM

This is the time of year we all begin to think of exchanging the routine of city life for the peace of silent hills, the quiet of the forests and the murmur of rippling streams—in other words we want to get back to nature for a real rest.

Come, then, to the Lake of Bays in the Highlands of Ontario, for the most restful vacation imaginable. A rest 1,000 feet above sea-level, a rest among thick green woodlands and shimmering lakes, where the pine-laden air soothes your lungs and imparts health and vigor to your whole being. Here, every day will be a day of keen enjoyment. There are splendid golf courses and every facility for tennis, bowling, hiking, dancing, swimming, boating or fishing. Bigwig Inn (in the heart of the Lake of Bays district) is one of the most luxurious summer hotels in all Canada. Many other hotels provide delightful accommodation if you prefer hotel life to cottage or camp.

BYNG'S FAREWELL TO WESTERN CITY

Living Proof of Britain's Love For Canada.

SASKATOON, Sask., May 28.—"After all Governor-Generals of Canada are but fleeting shadows that haunt your history. Should we leave behind us a single kindly memory, or in any way mark a date or be identified with a period, it is the most we can aspire to. But transient and impersonal as we be individually, we symbolize in our uninterrupted succession one of the most solid realities of which the modern world can boast, for we are the living proofs of the love of the Old Country for this Dominion. We form a link between two great and chivalrous nations who share in a mighty fellowship and profess an unswerving loyalty to the most duty-loving sovereign who ever wore a crown."

In these impressive words Baron Byng of Vimy, for himself and Lady Byng, epitomized his official farewell as Governor-General to the citizens of Saskatoon. His Excellency dwelt in particular on the topics of national unity and the importance of the task of training the rising generation to its ideals. Lady Byng endorsed her husband's message with an added word of encouragement to the mothers of Canada, voicing the hope that the occasion was one for au revoir but not goodbye.

GANGSTERS HELD.

To Be Questioned Regarding Slaying of Assistant State Attorney.

CHICAGO, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Miles and William O'Donnell, gangsters, sought as companions of Assistant States Attorney William H. McSwiggin, James Doherty and Thomas Duffy, slain by machine gun bullets a month ago, were arrested yesterday and held for questioning.

The present holder of the bicycle speed record is Jean Brunier, a Frenchman, who has ridden 75 miles 280 yds in an hour. His racing bicycle was geared to 181, and although this seems very high in comparison with ordinary gears, which are usually 70, it is really low in relation to the speed attained.

The Grand National Steeplechase, the first big event of the racing season in England, will be run this year on March 26. This race was first run more than eighty-five years ago at Aintree, near Liverpool. It has been run there every year since then, except for three years in the war when a substitute race was run at Gatwick.

THEATRE

CAPABLE IS CAST IN GREAT MELFORD RAILROAD PICTURE.

Four Players of Prominence Are Featured in "Whispering Smith."

George Melford, director of "Whispering Smith," the new Metropolitan picture production, now showing at the Regent Theatre, was fortunate in obtaining some of the best players in the industry for the leading roles in that important screen feature.

H. B. Warner in the title role, Lillian Rich, John Bowers and Lilyan Tashman are featured. Eugene Pallette, Will Walling, James Mason, Robert Edeson, Nelson McDowell, Warren Rodgers and Richard Neill comprise the supporting cast.

Aside from the capable assistance rendered by the players named, Frank Hamilton Spearman, author of the story, and Joe Le Fors, from whom Spearman drew his chief character, also assisted in making the production notable.

Spearman and Le Fors were in the employ of the Union Pacific Railway in the early days when that railway blazed its trail westward. When Spearman left railroading to enter upon his literary career, Le Fors was made Deputy U.S. Marshal covering Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona.

Much of the action in this picture is true to life—while a few names and locations desired in the story and production clearly are fictitious, nevertheless, the story in the main, is part of the history of the winning of the West.

The Union Pacific Railroad was used in all of the railroad scenes and particularly those of the shooting and hold-up at Tower "W." The picture is romantic and thrilling.

BIG SOCCER GAME AT OVAL TOMORROW

Quaker Oats and Thistle Meet in League Match at 3 O'clock.

An important soccer league game takes place on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval between the Thistle (last year league champions) and the Quaker Oats. This is the first time that these two elevens have met this season in a match of any consideration, and the fans, who may wish to witness a real good soccer encounter, will not be disappointed in any respect whatsoever.

The Porridge boys expect to continue their success to-morrow at the 'Jags' ' expense, while the latter anticipate a lively tussel for a brace of points, if not, they will make their opponents earn the decision all the way.

From a goal scoring standpoint, the big mill fellows have eight goals to their credit and the nil column lying vacant. In the "Jags" scoring list, they record nine goals in their favour to four against them, which speaks in favour of Wm. Curtis, Quakers' custodian, who had a bad spell last season, while Charlie Griffine had the best gaol average, but to-morrow's decision may alter this data considerably.

Kick-off is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The Thistle executive request the following players to be at the Oval no later than 2.45 p.m., so as to pick the team: Gore, Lamb, Bellamy, Mayette, W. Hutton, McPhate, Ward, Buchan, Griffine, Scott, Bromley, Wade and Anderson.

Quaker Oats will be represented by Wm. Curtis, H. Curtis, S. Maker, W. Logan, J. Carmichael, A. Maker, Reynolds, Geo. Logan, A. Mitchell, Wilson and Burgess. Reserves, J. Mitchell and T. Williams.

BOBBY JONES DEFEATS BRITISH CHAMPION IN BRILLIANT GOLF

Young U. S. Star Sensation of Tournament in Scotland.

DEFEATED TO-DAY.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 28 (Canadian Press).—The British amateur champion, Robert Harris, went down before the quarter finals of the title event here, and there remain to fight for this year's laurels six British golfers and two from the United States. Of these latter, Bobby Jones, whose astonishing golf against Harris Thursday was the sensation of the tournament thus far, is favored for the semi-finals.

The pairings for the sixth round follow, with winners of the first two and last two to meet in the semi-finals:

Hon. W. G. Brownlow vs. W. A. Murray.

Jess Sweetser vs. Robert Scott, Jr.

G. C. Killey vs. S. F. Simpson.

Bobby Jones vs. A. Jamieson, Jr.

That at least one finalist will be an invader is conceded by the British experts, for they doubt that the mysterious vagaries of the ancient game can head off Bobby Jones. There is a good chance of stopping Sweetser ,because in Robert Scott of Glasgow, the New Yorker meets one of Great Britain's finest players.

Scotland, land of golf and golfers, last night rang with the story of the Jones-Harris match which carried the largest gallery of the tournament surging over the banks and braes of the long Muirfield course.

Jones Brilliant.

Harris was a fine, upstanding opponent, reputed one of the steadiest golfers in the land, but he crumbled before Jones' youthful brilliance which started with the third stroke of the match. At the first hole Jones sank a 25-yard cleek shot for a birdie three and continued his sensational play to the twelfth, where Harris picked up hopelessly and congratulated his conqueror.

Jones, having given the British champion the worst drubbing of his competitive career, accepted the gallery's tribute modestly and walked off the green remarking:

"My opponent was good to me and I had a little luck."

His luck was six well-earned birdies in twelve holes. He made the turn six up and three under par, while he played the next three in 11 strokes. Jones' crashing drives generally bettered those of Harris by ten to thirty yards, he punched his iron shots viciously and putted with phenomenal accuracy.

Bobby took the first three holes and the fourth was the only one he lost, being bunkered at the left. After sending his niblick to the green, he missed a long putt and picked up. Harris' last opportunity to make anything of the match came at the sixth, where Jones again found a bunker. But the latter recovered well, banged his third to the green and sank a 30-foot putt to win with a four. Harris reached in two but required three putts.

Scots in Despair.

After that it was only a question of how long the British champion could keep the match alive against such marvellous execution. Harris managed to get a half with five at the ninth, but here many of his countrymen retreated to the clubhouse in despair.

"Never since the days of Harry Vardon was such golf played in the amateur," was the concensus of the critics.

Throughout the match the crowd surged upon the ropes to get a close view of the American's play and there were only exclamations of admiration for the wonderful skill with which he plied putter and wood and manoeuvred irons.

Two champions were beaten by Scotchmen yesterday, Vagliano of France bowing to Michael Scott, 5 and 4, and H. R. Sinclair, of Australia, losing to Robert Scott, 2 and 1.

Beaten Today

Bobby Jones, United States champion, was eliminated from the British Amateur Golf Championship today by A. Jamieson Jr. by the score of 4 up and three to play.

Hon. W. G. Brownlow defeated W. A. Murray, 5 and 4.

Jess Sweetser defeated Robert Scott Jr. two up.

S. F. Simpson defeated G. C. Killey by two up.

This leaves one American, Sweetser, still in the game.

TOURISTS SHOW ABILITY AT BAT

Australians Saved From a Slump By Work of "Tail Ender."

A STEADY PAIR.

BRISTOL, England, May 28.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Ten thousand spectators Thursday saw the touring Australian cricket team make a sensational recovery from a threatening clump, and demonstrate that run-getting ability extends right throughout the team, with the "tail" equally as good as—and in this case considerably better than—the head. Playing against the South of England here, the Antipodeans had dismissed the Englishmen in the first innings for 211 runs Wednesday. Of this score, A. P. F. Chapman of Kent had contributed 89, and Hendren, the famous heavy hitter of Middlesex, made 62. With these figures added to the 28 obtained by K. S. Duleepsinghi (Sussex and Cambridge), there was left only 32 divided among the remaining eight batsmen of the English side. Gibson and R. J. O. Meyer of Cambridge were retired at zero, while Strudwick, Surrey's wicket-keeper, and Parker, of Gloucester, had just managed to break their "duck."

When play closed Wednesday, H. L. Collins, the Australian skipper, had fallen to P. J. H. Fender for nine runs. Woodfull was his partner at bat, and had reached 22.

Yesterday, Macartney went in to keep company with Woodfull. The weather was dull and the wicket easy. It was expected that the stand of these two stars would be long and profitable. Macartney fell to Parker at 7.

Taylor followed and aroused Australian hopes when he batted steadily for a brief period along with Woodfull, but Meyer snapped him up off Fender at 16. Taylor's previous best was 76 against Surrey, and he had also a 73 against Hampshire.

Ponsford, a strong driver and subtle batsman from every point of view, was the next man up. He looked like pulling the game out of the slough, but Strudwick caught him at 23.

The outlook was bad for the Australians. When play was suspended for lunch, the Australians were 131 for four wickets. Woodfull's fall, immediately after lunch, saw them at the same figure for five men out. Andrews and Gregory were at bat.

The visitors' cup of bitterness was not yet full, however, for when Gregory had reached the unlucky number of 13, Sandham caught him off Gibson, and the Australian score stood at 151 for six wickets. Never since they had opened the season against the minor counties at Maiden head, when their figure was 179 all out, had the Australians' future appeared so gloomy. To all appearances, the South of England were well on the way to a first innings lead.

Ryder went to bat, in partnership with Andrews. It was there that the tables were turned, and to Ryder and Andrews goes all the credit for one of the most magnificent exhibitions of the tour. They played with consummate steadiness, and defied all the bowlers that the Englishmen could bring against them. From 151, these players carried the score up to 328, and when rain stopped the game at 5.30 p.m., they were still holding their wickets intact.

FRENCH TENNIS CLASH WITH U.S.

Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey the Pick of Americans.

SEASON OPENING.

PARIS, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Europe's major tennis season starts here to-day, when mixed teams representing France and the United States meet on the hard courts of the Racing Club. This tournament will be followed by a similar Franco-British match, after which the international hard court championships will be played.

The entry list for the internationals is one of the most cosmopolitan in the history of the event. Coming just before the golden jubilee meet at Wimbledon, England, the competition has attracted keenest attention, for most of the participants will go to the championships across the Channel.

Performances at the Racing Club this week are expected to give some indication of what will happen at Wimbledon, and there should be further developments in the internationals where the temperamental Suzanne Lenglen is likely to encounter the United States champion, Helen Wills, once more.

The Franco-American clash derives most of its attraction from the fact that both Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, male members of the United States team, meet Rene Lacoste in singles. While an American victory is predicted from the weakness of the French women players, much spectacular play is expected in the men's events, wherein the American stars face Lacoste, Jacques Brugnon and Paul Feret. Jean Borotra had hoped to give Ricards a chance for revenge for an indoor defeat suffered in the United States last winter, but a recently injured spine will compel him to stay away from the courts for at least another fortnight.

PLANS HOCKEY TOUR.

MONTREAL, Que., May 28.—(Canadian Press.)—James Strachan, President of the Montreal Maroons, hockey champions of North America, sailed for Europe last night, where he will try to arrange a professional hockey tour for next season.

NO RESIN FOR GROVER

"None of that resin stuff for me," says Pitcher Grover Alexander of the Chicago Cubs.

"When I am unable to get by using my natural stuff I am going to quit.

"Resin may help some of the pitchers who like to experiment, but I am satisfied to stick to the curve, fast ball and a change of pace."

The opinion of Alexander is rather interesting, since the National League is responsible for the return of resin as a pitching asset.

Walter Johnson of the American League is just as opposed to the use of resin. Johnson is of the opinion that in warm weather resin will handicap rather than help the pitcher, since it has a tendency to make the ball sticky. He believes it will make for wildness rather than control.

Walter Johnson and Grover Alexander are the two outstanding right-handed pitchers in the major leagues.

Alexander alone vies with Johnson for supremacy. He has been a star since 1911, when he joined the Philadelphia Nationals and is still one.

BELMONTS WIN FROM K. OF C.

Game Close For Six Innings, and Then Winners Pull Out.

FINAL SCORE 18-5.

The Belmonts met the Knights of Columbus at the Oval last night in a softball fixture. The Knights tried hard to hold their own against the Belmonts for the first six innings and succeeded in holding the score very close but after that the Belmonts broke loose and tucked the game away nicely. Bert McLeod appeared on the Belmont team in the roll of a graduate from hockey to softball. McCarney and Wolfe distinguished themselves for the Knights and Stuart and Haskill for the Belmonts. The final score was 18 to 5. The line-up:

Belmonts — M[illegible]an, Haskill, Lowe, Stuart, Jobbit, Holyman, Fanning, Green, Batten and McLeod.

K. of C.—Murphy, Milloy, LeBarr, Rutherford, R. Sheehy, M. Sheehy, McKinnon, McCarney and Wolfe.

Umpires—Kay and Swanson.

Take Opening Game From Homesters on New Ball Ground.

SCORE 15-5.

BELLEVILLE, May 28 (Special) Deloro opened the season with Point Anne on the latter's new field. The Smelters showed more finished baseball and defeated the Pointers by 15 to 5. Point Anne started well while Deloro was slow in getting started. It was plainly any body's game until the fourth inning and from then on the Smelters hammered the cement pitchers very hard. Ralph pitched good ball for Deloro and had air tight support all the way through. The Smelters went the whole stretch without an error. The line-up:

Deloro		Point Anne

EARL CARROLL TO APPEAL VERDICT

Guilty of Perjury in "Bath Tub Party" Case.

NEW YORK, May 28.—After being found guilty on two counts of perjury as a result of the grand jury investigation of the "bath tub party," at which Joyce Hawley, a nude show girl, served drinks, and following bail arrangements, Earl Carroll and his wife left the federal court building. A large group of photographers followed and the theatrical producer showed openly that he did not relish their attention.

Later, Herbert C. Smythe, Carroll's attorney, indicated in a statement that an appeal would be taken. His statement follows:

"This is a 50-50 verdict, as the jury on the second and fifth counts has demonstrated that there was no violation of the Volstead act, with the last fifty not understandable for the following reasons:

"'In defence charge 18, the court charged that in order to convict the defendent under counts 3 and 6, (the bath tub counts) the jury must show beyond reasonable doubt the defendant wilfully testified falsely for the purpose of concealing a violation of the national prohibition act."

"And the jury found there was no violation.

"I feel confident that it all will be straightened out by a higher court."

The jury, when it retired, had been instructed that only the question of perjury was before it, and not any violation of the National Prohibition Act.

Federal Judge Goddard, in his charge, said the sole questions to be considered were:

1. Did Carroll serve intoxicating liquor at the party?
2. Did anyone get into the bathtub in which Joyce Hawley was alleged to have bathed?

It was immaterial, Judge Goddard said, whether the party was public or private, as Carroll was not being tried under the dry law, but for perjury in connection with his version of the party as given to the Grand Jury.

Aftermath of Party

The conviction brought to an end the aftermath of a party which startled Broadway last February. Carroll entertained about 500 persons—many of them prominent—at his theatre. As the climax Joyce Hawley was alleged to have disrobed behind a cloak held by Carrall and to have bathed in a tub alleged to contain champagne.

The grand jury investigated and Carroll was called. He testified no liquor was served and denied the story of the girl in the bath tub.

His indictment for perjury followed, after several guests at the party had given evidence which conflicted with that of Carroll.

Lied Like Gentleman

The defence maintained no liquor was served at the party; that the matter of the girl in the bath tub was not material, and arguments to the jury contended that if Carroll did deviate from the truth, he "lied like a gentleman" to protect his friends.

Carroll is liable to a five-year sentence and a $5,000 fine as a result of conviction.

BELLEVILLE LODGE COMES TO STIRLING

Patriarchs' Degree Team Exemplifies One Degree — Stirling News.

STIRLING, May 28.—Those who expected to hear Peterboro's Male Choir last Wednesday night were disappointed, as it was impossible to get Toronto by radio, that night.

Stirling Encampment No. 80 I.O.O.F. was visited by Moira Encampment No. 59 of Belleville last Friday night. After the visitors had exemplified the Patriarchal degree, lunch was served, and a pleasant social time spent.

The village has opened a new street north of the C.N.R. from the Marmora road west to the station. This will be a great convenience to those coming in with stock or anything to ship, as they will not need to cross the railway to gain access to the stock yards or to cars when shipping cheese.

Mrs. L. Halliwell has sold her house and lot on Gore street to Mr. Ray Atkin, district representative of Agriculture, and wil move to Toronto in the near future.

Mrs. John Burke passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. Fitzpatrick, on May 17. She was in her 83rd year. Born in Limerick, Ireland, she came to Canada with her parents when six years of age and had always resided in Hastings county. The funeral service was held in St. James Church where a solemn requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Corrigan. Interment took place in the St. James cemetery.

The body of Mrs. James Vanderwoort, who died in Buffalo, was brought here for interment on Saturday morning. She was formerly Mary E. Norris and was born in Sidney over 70 years ago. After marriage she and her husband lived on a farm near River valley, until they moved into Stirling where they lived for some years on Henry street. Of late years they had resided with their son near Belleville.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church is being newly roofed this week. B.C. cedar shingles is the material and Mr. Robert Eggleton and sons are the contractors.

Messrs. Jetty Thompson and Karl I. Sine motored to Kingston last Friday night and attended the opening of the new Oddfellows Building there.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hough and son of Madoc were week end visitors at the home of Mrs. Hough's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Linn.

Mr. W. Sinclair of Madoc and Miss Alice Sinclair, school nurse, of Belleville, were Sunday visitors with their sister, Mrs. M. W. Sine.

Mrs. D. V. Sinclair, accompanied by her daughters, Ruth and Helen, of Belleville, and Mr. George Pearce of Toronto, called for a short time on Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Sine on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Bissonnette and her sister, Miss Hume are visiting relatives in Seymour township.

Mrs. F. A. MacDonnel entertained a number of her friends Tuesday afternoon, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Harry Morrison of Peterboro.

Mr. Donald Bird of Picton, who has been visiting his father, Mr. Morden Bird, assisted the choir of St. Andrew's church on Sunday and at the evening service sang a solo entitled, "Teach Me To Pray."

Misses Edna Spry and Chrissie Simpson, who were home for the holiday, returned to their studies at Peterboro Normal school on Tuesday morning.

FRISCH LEARNS PROPER SLIDE

Frankie Frisch, one of baseball's greatest stars, has a glaring weakness, inability to develop a deceptive feet-first slide.

Frisch, a very fast runner, invariably slides head first into a base. That method of sliding gives the fielder all the best of it, for he has no spikes to fear. The baserunner is at a decided disadvantage.

Hardly a year passes but that the Giants are deprived of Frisch's services for a week or more because of an injury suffered in a head-first slide. One year a badly broken finger by Frisch because of a head-first collision greatly handicapped McGraw's club.

This spring Manager McGraw has made every effort to perfect Frisch in the art of sliding feet first. Hitting the dirt was Frisch's favorite pastime. Sliding feet first isn't natural for Frisch and it bothers him, yet he has greatly improved his style in the spring training at Sarasota, Fla.

The first city to have women police was London, in 1883.

IN POLICE COURT

After being fined $1 and costs in the Police Court this morning for failure to comply with an order from the Fire Marshal, G. Stevens informed Magistrate O. A. Langley, who occupied the bench, that he intended to leave the city. "I will pay just now," he said, "for I intend to catch the first train out of Peterborough." The fine imposed was a nominal one, in view of the fact that accused had executed the order since the institution of proceedings.

A case against G. Welsh, charged with cruelty to an animal, was dismissed, the Crown being unable to locate a material witness.

A sequel to the stealing of tulips from a flower bed in Victoria Park was the appearance in the juvenile court this morning before Magistrate O. A. Langley, of two girls, both about 14 years old, who, after a consultation with John Edgar, of the Children's Aid Society, pleaded guilty to the charge, and were sentenced to three days' detention in the Children's Shelter.

Police Chief S. Newhall stated that many complaints had been received of late, concerning thefts of flowers from various parts of the city, especially Victoria Park. A watch was set and the two girls were caught red-handed at 10.15 p.m. on Wednesday. One of the girls, when questioned by the detective, gave a name which was subsequently proved to be false. The Chief stated that the girl's father, a hard working man, had probably paid into court on behalf of his family, more money in fines than any other man in the city.

The Magistrate, in imposing sentence, said he felt that merely to reprimand the girls would fail of the desired effect.

NEW METAL REPLACES PLATINUM

For years chemists have been looking for a metal to replace the costly platinum and its alloy, platinum-iridium, in engineering and research. At last they have found a new material called tantalum which says Popular Science Monthly, promises a new era in electric work and chemical engineering where great resistance to heat and acids is required.

Tantalum has many astonishing properties, according to Professor James R. Withrow of Ohio State University, and not the least of these is that it lasts 1,600 times longer than platinum and is twenty times cheaper.

LIQUOR SHIPMENTS FROM CANADA TO THE EARTH'S ENDS WERE SENT TO U.S.A. BY DEVIOUS, SHORT ROUTE

Consignment to Japan or Mexico Camouflage, Exporter Says.

NEED U. S. DOLLARS.

James Cooper Tells Customs Enquiry No Canadian Law Broken.

OTTAWA, May 29 (Canadian Press).—The customs inquiry committee was given further information Friday in regard to the extensive business of shipping Canadian whiskey into the United States of America. James Cooper, of Walkerville, a shareholder and one of the chief selling agents for the Dominion Distilleries Products, Limited, Montreal, and subsidiary companies, was on the stand throughout practically the entire afternoon. Mr. Cooper explained how whiskey manufactured at Hiram Walker & Sons, Walkerville, was sent to the Dominion Distilleries at Montreal, and re-shipped from there to such places at Mexico, Havana and Japan. All this liquor was sold to persons in the United States.

Another phase of the business, the shipment of liquor to the American rum row, was touched on by the witness. He was asked about the shipment of liquor to St. Pierre and Miquelon by his company. In the auditors' report, tabled some days ago, reference was made to the fact that liquor snipped by the Dominion Distillery Products, Limited, was insured from Halifax to St. Pierre and thence to Halifax.

Customs Not Defrauded

"The importance of these facts is that if the liquor included in these shipments is dutiable the amount of excise duty at $9 per gallon would be approximately $235,000. We have not seen any record of duty being paid on this shipment."

The above extract from the auditors' report was strongly resented. The liquor was insured from Halifax to St. Pierre and back to Halifax was in reality shipped from the latter port to rum row. Halifax was merely a port of call where coal and food were obtained, but not a quart of liquor was landed in Canada, Mr. Cooper maintained. The goods had been reinsured to Halifax because insurance could not be obtained to rum row. There was no intention of defrauding the Canadian customs, nor had this been done.

Obeys Canadian Laws

"Nine-tenths of the auditors' report is wrong," Mr. Cooper said, with some heat, at one point in his testimony. "I should have been called before this committee three months ago and I could have cleared up a great many of the points touched on in that report. Now, it has been broadcast around the country in the newspapers that the Government was defrauded to the extent of $235,000, which is absolutely untrue." He maintained that the Dominion Distilleries and subsidiary companies had never defrauded the Dominion of a single cent. They had scrupulously obeyed the laws of Canada.

Mr. Cooper told the committee that it was a common practice among Canadian distilling firms to consign goods intended for consumption in the United States to Mexico, Japan, or Cuba.

"We were after good American dollars—bringing them over to Canada. God knows we need them," he said, at one point. "We weren't working for love, we were working for dollars and cents."

"You are prompter of and party to the deliberate deceit of the United States by Canada" asked Mr. Stevens. "You are shipping this liquor in direct violation of a solemn treaty between Canada and the United States."

Mr. Donaghy intervened. There was no treaty between the two countries which prevented the clearance of liquor to Detroit, he said.

Mr. Stevens said that nevertheless the railways had given an undertaking that they would not accept liquor billed to the U. S.

Mr. Donaghy said the railways gave no such undertaking and they were accepting liquor consigned to the United States.

Mr. Stevens finally asked "As a matter of fact none of this liquor was intended for Mexico?"

All Sold in U.S.A.

Mr. Cooper: "I sold it all in the United States. It was a camouflaged way of getting the stuff over the railways."

It was revealed in a discussion between counsel that Canadian railways thought for a long time that it was contrary to law to accept liquor consigned to the U. S. A few months ago they found there was nothing in the treaty to prevent it and so they had lifted their embargo.

Chairman Mercier asked if other distilleries in Canada was using the same method in shipping their liquor. Witness said all the shippers of liquor must be doing it or they could not get the liquor through.

The shipment from St. Pierre-Miquelon billed to Japan was "bought outside of Canada, shipped outside of Canada, and delivered outside of Canada," said Mr. Cooper.

"Everybody knows these things are being done," said witness. "Every distillery does it—except Walker's."

"And they interpose you to do it?" commented Mr. Calder.

"No," retorted witness. "They never would. And I am proud to say I am the only person allowed to sell their goods."

Walker's Scrupulous

Mr. Cooper explained to the committee that Hiram Walker and Sons would not allow their whisky shipped direct to such places as Mexico. Therefore, he had proposed that this whiskey be handled through the Dominion Distilleries. This explained why the whisky was purchased from Walker and shipped all the way to Montreal before being started on the way to the United States. All shipments or liquor made from Lake Ports to Mexico, Havana, and Japan were really for points in the United States, Mr. Cooper said.

"We started like a pea-nut. We didn't put much in. I put in about $10,000 and nobody else put in much. We hoped to grow and we have grown."

This was the explanation given by Mr. Hooper of the beginning of the Dominion Distilleries. He had acquired 100 shares of the company's stock when the organization was formed.

Denatured Alcohol

Reference was made to denatured alcohol. The fact that the books of the George Companies showed alcohol sold at $3 to $10 a gallon, witness thought might be the work of "an idle clerk." The fact that the market for commercial alcohol fluctuated so much might account for freak prices.

Mr. Calder referred to an agreement in the auditors' report by which a man in New Jersey was to get $1,000 if he could show Cooper how to make Scotch whiskey out of raw material.

"There was nothing could prevent the man from thinking he could do it—and we paid the price."

He denied that denatured alcohol had been contemplated by them as potential Scotch wiskey. It was redistilled alcohol he was speaking of.

About the possibility of such alcohol being drunk in the United States witness knew nothing. It might be. Americans were not as discriminating as Canadians in their choice of drinks, he said, amid laughter.

George Harbert of Montreal took the stand. He was "not exactly" in the employ of the Dominion Distillery Products Co., Limited. He had done shipping and carting for them.

He was not a director of the United Steamships Co., he said. Mr. Calder produced returns made under the Companies Act which gave Mr. Harb[illegible] as a director. Witness said he remembered now that his name was put on pending choice of somebody else. He didn't know he was a director.

War Vessel Has Privileges Dry Agents Must Stay Off

BERLIN, May 29 (United Press).—German extra-territoriality was violated when prohibition enforcement agents visited the German cruiser Hamburg at San Pedro, Cal., in their official capacity, Government officials charged to-day.

Commenting on reports from America that bootlegging had been discovered on the Hamburg, officials insisted that the enforcement agents could visit the cruiser as guests, but only unofficially, since the war vessels enjoyed the same privileges of ex-territoriality as an Embassy.

It was understood here that the Hamburg's captain will reprimand the men who sold beer or liquor on board, whereupon the incident will be considered closed.

Bandits Release Two Third Man Still Held

MEXICO CITY, May 29. — (Canadian Press).—Bandits in the Tampico region have released two United States employees of the British El Aguila Oil Company, named Briggs and Greely, who were captured on Thursday and held for ransom. The United States Embassy here, however, is still awaiting word as to the fate of John W. Shanklein, of Canyon, Texas, who is being held by bandits in Vera Cruz. Last reports stated that the bandits threatened to kill Shanklein on Thursday night if a ransom of $20,000 was not paid them. In the absence of any reports to the Embassy to-day, the belief prevailed that Shanklein had not been killed.

'RED' SCHOOL AT THOROLD AFTER CLASSES OF DAY

Communism Taught Ukranian Children—"Teacher" a Winnipeg Product.

50 In ATTENDANCE.

Niagara Diocesan Synod Hears Report of Bolshevist Activties.

HAMILTON, May 29 (Canadian Press).—The Synod of the Diocese of Niagara closed at noon Friday.

In the Sunday schools it was shown there were 6,528 male and 7,614 female pupils, with 1,342 officers and teachers in the diocese. The summer school is to be held at Ridley College, St. Catharines, this year, from July 2 to 9.

That condition in Hamilton are better is reflected in the report on the condition of the church given by Canon Hewitt. While the number of families in the diocese had decreased in every county but Wellington, the number of Easter communicants this year had been much larger than before.

A wider adoption of the system of laymen's asociations was urged by G. C. Coppley.

Startling Report

The report of the work maong the Ukrainians gave some startling facts of Communism. "I found the Ukrainian community at Thorold in the firm grip of Bolshevism and Communism," says Rev. Maxim Chawrink. "Every day in the communistic hall in Thorold, not far from our church, a Communistic school is being conducted after school hours with over fifty children in attendance. For the purpose, a specially trained man was sent from the Communistic centre in Winnipeg where they maintain a Communistic school for training such teachers. The parents do not care where their children go and what they do; they are under the impression that their children are being taught how to read and write the Ukrainian language. Such halls are being maintained throughout Canada under the name Ukrainian Farmer-Labor Temple. The minister signs himself "and happily bearing the cross of a minister's life of misery, Maxim C. Chawrink."

R. W. Brandon was appointed solicitor for the Synod.

"MOTHER GOOSE."

Pageant Given By Mission Band Members at St. Paul's.

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band of St. Paul's Presbyterian church held a very entertaining Mother Goose pageant in the Sunday school rooms last evening, with a good attendance. Miss Sarah Sands took the part of Mother Goose, and was assisted by her famous family in a group of Band members, trained by the president, Miss Daisy Davidson, the vice-president, Mrs. H. Morrison, and the secretary, Miss Elsie Cameron.

A showing of lantern slides, demonstrating mission work in foreign lands and in Canada, followed the pageant, and musical numbers during the evening were given by an opening chorus of ten small girls. Mr. Harry Chenhall, playing the flute, with accompanment by Miss Emma Lou Chenhall, and vocal solos by Miss Daisy Davidson, with piano accompanment by Mrs. W. Allan.

In 1857 Quaker women in Sandy Spring, Md., organized a club and named it the Mutual Improvement Association. It still endures and holds monthly meetings.

LIQUOR MAY BE KEPT IN ROOMS BY COMMONERS

Recent Search in Parliament Buildings Not Connected With O. T. A.

SPEAKER'S REPORT.

Police Investigate Libellous List of Members' Names Circulated.

OTTAWA, May 29 (Canadian Press).—"Regarding the claim of ex-territoriality as applied to Parliament Buildings, it is a very big question which requires careful study and consideration," stated Speaker Lemieux in a report read in the House of Commons last night, respecting the recent removal of liquor from the rooms of certain members. "I may, however," continued the Speaker, "state in a general way that the immunities, rights and privileges of Parliament are of immemorial standing; and, according to Anson, page 153, it has always been admitted by the courts that the House has exclusive right to regulate its own internal concerns."

The statement of the Speaker was as follows:

"With regard to the complaints arising out of the action of the Sergeant-at-Arms in taking means to prevent theft in the members' rooms, the matter was brought before the Board of Internal Economy.

Acted in Good Faith.

"After hearing Colonel Bowie's explanation and considering his memorandum, the Board was of opinion that he acted in good faith, his sole object being to protect the property of members. Since the opening of the session, different objects, and sometimes money, have disappeared from desks in the members' rooms. It is a well-known fact that there are several keys for each room, some of which are for the char service and secretaries, messengers and pages. A patrol has always been carried out for fire protection and other services, such as heating, light, etc. The emergency order given by the Sergeant-at-Arms on May 1st, was not, as has been stated, for the purpose of raiding liquor in the rooms. The law allows anyone to have liquor in his possession, provided it is obtained legally or purchased from an authorized vendor.

"It was because of several complaints that the above order was given. Unfortunately, it was not written, and the officer to whom it was entrusted, instead of carrying it out himself, with proper caution, passed it on to a subordinate who, in turn, gave it to another constable. The men who made the search found, in unlocked desks, several objects besides liquor, which they labelled and took over to the constables' quarters.

Usual Patrol in Future.

"In view of the wrong impression caused by this urgent measure of protection, I have given instruction, after consulting my colleagues of the board of economy that, in future, none but the usual patrol will take place and members will have to accept the responsibility for the safeguarding of their personal effects in their desks and filing cabinets.

"A fictitious and libellous list has been circulated purporting to give the names of the members in whose rooms the effects were found. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police has been requested to enquire as to how it originated.

"Action will be taken as soon as the report is received.

"Undue importance will be given to this incident which, after all, was nothing but a measure of protection unfortunately magnified and aggravated by the circumstance that it seemed connected with the infraction of the Temperance Act."

Friends Make Rapid Dash In Motor Car With Serum To Save Ithaca Man Bitten By a Rattlesnake

ITHACA, N.Y., May 29 (United Press)—Rattlesnake serum brought from New York in 11 hours may save the life of Leonard Spears, Ithaca merchant, who was bitten by a diamond back rattlesnake in the Cornell University laboratory here last night.

Five men, friends of the snake's victim, who has been in agony for hours, made a dash by automobile from Syracuse to Ithaca, fifty five miles in one hour and eight minutes.

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the Bronx Zoo, sent the serum by a special messenger last night, and after an apepal by physicians at the City Hospital where Spears was slowly dying from the poison, the train was met at Syracuse and the serum reached here at 6.15 a.m. in charge of Fred Heyman, a friend of Spears.

At Dryden, fifteen miles north of Ithaca, the speeding car caught fire from the exhaust. The blaze was quickly extinguished and the trip completed at a mile a minute clip.

At Ithaca Dr. John said Spears has an even chance to live.

Hindu Ruler Is Attacked By Infuriated Elephant

LONDON, May 29 (Canadian Press) — The Maharajah of Jodapur, British India, has had a narrow escape from being killed by an infuriated elephant. He was returning from a shooting expedition in the Nilgiri hills at the time, says a despatch to the Daily Express from Allahabad.

The hunting party was passing through the jungle when an elephant suddenly appeared and charged. The Maharajah fired, but the elephant continued to charge and he was soon beneath the animal. Members of the Maharajah's staff rushed to his aid and killed the elephant and rescued the ruler. The Maharajah was badly shaken up and bruised about the chest and arms.

POTATOES DOWN IN PRICE TO-DAY

Sell on Farmers' Market at $3.00—Dairy Produce Plentiful.

MANY BUYERS.

The farmers' market had a large crowd of patrons this morning, but buying was not particularly brisk. Potatoes on the open section were plentiful, with a drop in price from last week's quotations, and a decrease of nearly 50 per cent in the price paid about a month ago. This morning, the table variety was quoted at $3 to $3.25 a bag, with seed potatoesat $2 to $2.50 a bag.

Fresh Lake Ontario whitefish were selling at 20 and 25 cents a pound.

In the basket section, eggs and butter were plentiful, and fowl also were much in evidence. Eggs sold from 27 to 30 cents a dozen, and butter from 35 to 38 cents a pound. Chickens were 28 and 30 cents a pound, hens 25 and 26 cents a pound. Cream was 30 cents a pint.

An eight-pound turkey hen was offered at $3, or about 37 cents a pound. A prospective buyer thought this was quite a price, but the owner asserted smilingly that she would take the bird home and eat it herself.

Big red and yellow tulips in the basket section were 30 cents a dozen. Plants downstairs were 20 cents a box, or 6 boxes for a dollar.

Bus Operators Refuse To Talk On Withdrawal

"We have talked the matter over and have come to the conclusion that we had better not say anything for publication," said Mr. J. G. Jopling of Cooney and Jopling when approached by the Examiner this morning with reference to the withdrawal of the City Bus Service as announced in last night's edition of the paper. The notice in the paper contains all that we prefer to say at present," he added.

KRIM IS SAD UNDER GUARD

Says He Tried Like Germany, To End War By Viciousness.

FEELS SAFE.

PARIS, May 28 (Canadian Press) —Abd-el-Krim, Riffian chief, in a dramatic interview with a correspondent at Camp Giradot, where he is now a prisoner, today told why and how he fought Spain and France. He rejected intimations that some unnamed power had aided him financially, declaring he got the money that helped him carry on so long in the form of ransoms from Spain for the release of Spanish prisoners.

The Matin's correspondent in Morocca succeeded in getting to see Abd-el-Krim. Krim was sitting in a low room, with a dozen other persons. Throughout the conversation he kept his hands crossed and appeared to be sad.

Asked what he meant to do, Krim said: "I am under the safe keeping of France, whose sentiments toward Mussulman populations I know well."

"Why did you wage so cruel a war on us?" asked the correspondent.

Krim replied sorrowfuly, the correspondent says, that like Germany he thought that by carrying on the war as he did, he would shorten it.

Asked why he surrendered to the French rather than to the Spanish, Krim raised his arms and replied "I have chosen. God's will be done."

PREVENTIVE SERVICE ESTIMATES ALLOWED TO STAND IN COMMON TILL COMMITTEE MAKES REPORT

Minister Suggests Passing Them, But Meets With Opposition.

OTHER ITEMS PASSED.

Civil Service Status of Customs Employees Is Brought Up.

OTTAWA, May 29 (Canadian Press).—Before the House of Commons commenced consideration of the Customs and Excise Department estimates last night, Hon. George Boivin, Minister of the Department, announced that it was not the intention of the Department to make any changes in the preventive service until the report of the Customs Committee had been received. The Minister suggested that the votes for the preventive service be allowed to pass on the understanding that the entire question could be re-opened when the committee report came before the House. This suggestion met with some opposition and the preventive service estimates were allowed to stand.

Other Items Passed.

Items totalling $4,337,040 were then passed. This total included items of $2,000,000 for administration of the business profits, war tax and income war tax acts, $1,690,000 required for the remission of excise tax paid on automobiles remaining in the hands of dealers and unsold at the time when such tax was repealed, and $647,040 for the civil administration.

Hon. J. M. Edwards, Conservative, Frontenac-Addington, said that the income tax branch was an example of a department not under the Civil Service Commission which was well administered.

Civil Service Commission.

General A. E. Ross, Conservative, Kingston, asked if the opinion of the employees of the Department had been considered as to whether or not they preferred to be under the Civil Service Commission. The Minister said that some employees had asked to be brought under the Commission in order to secure the advantages of superannuation, but it had been pointed out to them that they enjoyed a slightly higher salary than they would under the jurisdiction of the Commission, although they did not have superannuation. The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader, said that the whole history of the present Government in respect to the Civil Service Act had been one of "stealthy invasion from the first clause to the last, and from the first month of power to the last day."

To Refund Excise Tax.

The vote of $1,690,000 "required for the remission of the Excise tax paid on automobiles remaining in the hands of dealers and unsold at the time when such tax was repealed by an Order-in-Council of December 18, 1920," passed the House of Commons yesterday in Committee of Supply.

Hon. George H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, told the House that the average loss to each automobile dealer had been $833.33 on 7,503 cars. It was in the nature of a compassionate allowance, and the amount was large enough to include interest accumulated. The dealers had a claim in equity and justice, although not in law, and the Minister said he would welcome opinion as to whether or not interest should be paid.

THINK IT OVER.

Canada's mining production reached a high-water mark in 1925 of $228,440,000—a substantial increase.

HODGES MAKES PROPOSALS FOR SETTLING STRIKE

But A. J. Cook Gives Out Interview Reiterating Miners' Stand.

LONGER HOURS.

Hodges Proposes To Have Men Work 7 1-2 Hours—Reconstruct Industry.

LONDON, May 29 (Canadian Press)—A faint ray of hope appeared on the black coal horizon tonight when Frank Hodges, secretary of the Miners' International Federation, made proposals for a settlement which were unofficially regarded in government quarters as affording a possible basis for negotiations. A. J. Cook, secretary of the British miners, who is in a position of more authority in Great Britain than Hodges, gave out an interview at the same time, however, reiterating the stand that neither lower wages nor longer hours would be considered.

Hodges' proposals are for the enactment of the coal commission's recommendations into law by the goverment with a promise of financial aid for reconstruction schemes, continuance of the national wage agreement of 1924 for five years more, increase of working hours from seven to seven and one half without a reduction in pay, and for the payment by the government of the £3,000,000 offered by Premier Baldwin to help the industry and assist the most needy mines.

ENGLISH WOMEN ON ARCTIC TRIP FROM EDMONTON

Authoress and Companion Adventuring By Canoe Through Far North.

TO COLLECT FLORA.

Also Desire, To See Vast Country Beyond the Provinces.

WINNIPEG, May 29 (Canadian Press).—On an adventurous trip which will take them to the Arctic circle, travelling to the north country from Edmonton by rail and canoe, two English women now are en route west.

They are Miss Clara C. Rogers, of Truro, Cornwall, England, and Miss Gwendoline Dorien-Smith, of the Isle of Wight.

The purpose of the trip, according to Miss Rogers, who is an authoress of note, is to "see the vast country" and collect flora, which will be presented to the Kew Garden Museum.

Both have travelled extensively in foreign countries, and have experienced many hardships, including war service as nurses with the British army.

Through Yukon to Alaska

From Edmonton they will proceed by rail to the end of steel, thence to Aklavik, on the Mackenzie delta, and to Fort McPherson, where Indian guides will be engaged for the canoe trip up the Peel River. They will then cross the height of land and then down the Rat River to the Porcupine and drift down through the Yukon, and then on to anchorage or Seward, Alaska.

Miss Rogers and Miss Dorien-Smith expect to be gone two months on their trip, after which they will proceed to Vancouver. They will return to England in September.

THERE WILL BE A MEETING OF LOCAL 191 A. F. OF M., AT 3 P. M., SUNDAY, MAY 30TH, IN THE LABOR HALL. A FULL ATTENDANCE IS REQUESTED. SEC'Y-TREAS. 1d126 1728

THE WEATHER.

May is nearing its close. It has been a peculiar month. Cool nights have predominated. Little rain has fallen. Up to the present the rainfall will not total more than one-half the usual amount. The trees have not as yet taken on their full leafage, but are now making rapid progress towards that goal. Temperature last night 37 degrees; highest yesterday 67 degrees.—W. P.

"BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES"

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WHICH of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves: for a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him? My reading of an Old Book at the break of day brought these words to my attention, and they have lingered with me through the hours of this day. It is now toward evening; and, with the approaching darkness, the question seems to become more personal. Whether this unusual incident had foundation in fact or in fancy makes no difference when we remember that these words first came from the lips of Him Who spake as never man spake. We feel certain that he intended to teach something of more than passing interest; and it might be a very profitable investment of our time if we tarried long enough and thought hard enough in an attempt to gather up some of the lessons He was trying to teach.

GOING TO SCHOOL WITH CHRIST.

One day, in a secluded part of Palestine, Jesus of Nazareth was in prayer to the Father. His disciples were with Him and when He had poured out His soul in prayer, "one of His disciples said unto Him, Lord, teach us to pray." Whether it was His manifest power in prayer, which made them all the more conscious of their own ignorance and weakness in the holy art of intercession, or some other cause, which called forth this request, we cannot be sure. But the request was made; and in reply to it He gave one of the most wonderful discourses on prayer to be found anywhere.

It is both important and interesting to observe that they did not say, 'teach us how to pray,' but just simply, 'teach us to pray.'

NO STILL-BORN CHILDREN.

The most eloquent and effective prayer is just a cry. Again and again you have the proof of it in almost every book in the Bible. And a cry is the most elemental thing in human experience. It is the most welcome sound to the ears of doctor, nurse, or mother when a new life has been born into the world. If a person cannot give expression to a similar sound in the realm of the soul, there is good reason to question the fact of their ever having had any experience of the new birth. There are no still-born children in the family of God.

WHAT IS A FRIEND?

"Which of you shall have a friend?" The Christian's relation to man and to God is set forth in this narrative by the help of one of the finest words in any language—'Friend.' It was with that word that Jesus made His last attempt to save Judas from the terrible doom of a traitor.

There may be those who think they can easily afford to be self-seeking and self-centered, but no one who is true to Christ and His Church can afford to be either. God means the Christian to be a friend to all mankind, sinking his own comforts, putting away his prejudices, and discarding his dislikes, in the infinitely larger interests of the Kingdom.

Many wonderful definitions of a friend have been given, which, if we took time to give, would far more than fill the space we can reasonably expect in any newspaper. Aristotle once said that—'A true friend is one soul in two bodies.' And to Emerson we are indebted for such a gem as this, 'A friend may well be reckoned the masterpiece of nature.' It would be hard, if not impossible, to improve upon these two quotations. But at any rate here is another which need not be ashamed to be found in such company: 'A friend is one who knows all about us and still continues our friend.' If that were taken literally there is only one capable of measuring up to it, and that one is Jesus, the sinner's Friend.

OUT OF THE DARKNESS.

Both of these men were friends in need. One of them was out at midnight, and he was hungry. In the light of the Christian Revelation, how suggestive are these two words, 'midnight,' 'hungry.' When speaking of the advent of Christ, the Scriptures say, "In Him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not." If we were inclined to doubt the interpretation which makes these words apply to man's moral nature in the presence of the Divine Word seeking to express the thought of God to the minds of men, we have only got to remember that it was the chief priests, Scribes and Pharisees who were responsible for the death of Jesus. The revelation had come, but the darkness comprehended it not.

That condition still prevails. We have only got to speak to people—intelligent people in relation to every other question but the question of vital religion, to discover that it is still midnight with them so far as the state of the soul is concerned. The necessity for regeneration they simply cannot see. The Bible, so far as any spiritual meaning is concerned, is a closed book to them.

HUNGRY PEOPLE EVERYWHERE.

Yet, there is one hopeful thing about this condition of the moral nature of man, he is hungry. All the time he hungers for something and he does not very well know what it is he is hungering after. He has proved from his own experience that it is not only written in the Scriptures, but that it is also written into the very texture of his inner being, "Man shall not live by bread alone." That is, there is a life other than the physical. It is the life of the soul, and its hunger is as real as the hunger of the body.

HOW TO SATISFY THEM.

Many are the ways in which men try to satisfy this hunger of the heart. In heathen lands they try to do it by bowing down before idols of wood and stone; but we know that at no time in the world's long history has idolatry been able to satisfy the cravings of the soul. Civilized people try to meet this need by feeding upon the ordinances or so-called sacraments of the Church. But there will be nothing but disappointment till we can bring ourselves to sincerely say:

"Thou O Christ, art all I want,
More than all in Thee I find."

NO SHELTER.

This friend in need is on a journey, and at the hour of midnight without shelter, unless some friend takes pity upon him; his condition is a striking illustration of the sinner's state in the presence of a law which he has broken, and the demands of which he cannot meet. Without shelter from the consequences of his transgression; with the accusations of a guilty conscience, all of which he knows are true, he presents a sorry spectacle. He cannot shelter behind his own righteousness for he has not got any. Full well does he feel the truth of these words, "There is none righteous, no, not one; for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." And that is true of every human being apart from a vital relationship to the Redeemer of men.

THE INTERMEDIATE FRIEND.

This friend is in need also. He says to the one who proved to be a friend indeed, "I have nothing to set before him." As we consider this situation in a spiritual way we have a perfect picture of our own position and condition as Christian workers. What are our gifts and graces in the presence of those who are dead in sin? Apart from the blessing of God they amount to nothing. But we know of One Who is both able and willing to help in every time of need. And if we are to accomplish anything of real value in the experience of our fellows, it will only be when we realize that we have nothing to set before those around us who are hungry, and without shelter in the darkness of a night which for some will never be followed by the break of day. It is this sense of our own weakness and need that casts us over completely upon the power of God.

THE FRIEND INDEED.

There are certain conditions upon which friendship with God and Christ can exist. Christ once said, "Ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Jesus said to Judas, 'Friend,' but it awakened no echo in the heart of Judas. The reason for that lay with Judas and not with Jesus. And if friendship with Jesus is not a fact in our experience the blame lies at our own door; for one thing is clear beyond the shadow of a doubt, it is that He wants to be the friend of all. Moreover the riches of His grace are all placed at the disposal of His friends to use in helping all who, on a journey from the cradle to the grave, are in the darkness of midnight, hungry and without shelter.

FRIENDSHIP AT ITS BEST

Surely no greater honor could be conferred upon us than to be counted one of the friends of Jesus; and such is the honor He offers to confer upon all of us. Just to think that the Son of God is able to say to poor, frail, fickle folks such as we are, "Ye are My friends." It seems too good to be true. To think that we, who have so often played the traitor to Christ, should be included within the circle of His friends sounds like a fairy tale. But there is one thing we must not overlook. He says, "Ye are My friends, if . . ." And that 'if' relates itself, with all that it involves, to us only. But when once this friendship is established, it is indeed like "one soul in two bodies." We enter into the deepest spiritual fellowship with the Master. He takes us into His confidence regarding all that lies nearest His heart. Into the Holy of Holies we are permitted to enter with Him as He engages in the holy art of prayer. And as we consider His pleadings, we can the better understand what the disciples felt when they said, "Lord, teach us to pray."

I'VE found a Friend; O such a Friend!
So kind, and true, and tender!
So wise a Counsellor and Guide,
So mighty a Defender!
From Him Who loves me now so well
What power my soul shall sever?
Shall life or death, shall earth or hell?
No! I am His for ever.
—Allan Fairbairn.

The bald head is the medical battlefield on which the doctor must inevitably meet his Waterloo.

SONGS IN THE NIGHT

THE approaching night may mean much to the tired workman, because of the rest it will bring, but it is often faced with dread by those who languish on beds of sickness and pain. Sleep, that balm for tired bodies and wearied minds, refuses to come with the night; and it is not pleasant to contemplate the long hours of darkness which will drag so slowly by, while the suffering one tosses upon his couch and longs for the break of day. But a kindly Providence has provided compensation for all loss, and He has provided it for this. If we are His by a spiritual birth He has promised us "songs in the night."

Churches and Churchmen

(By I. SEWELL.)

SURELY nothing gratifies a successful man so much as the knowledge that his son will follow in his steps: to have what was has done copied by a new generation is often thought to be the decisive caret of success. Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, marching nervously from wall to wall of his study, was talking to some reporters: his intelligent face reflected more emotion than the topic, casually considered, seemed to be worth. He went on to say "It would be idle to deny that I had devoutly hoped my son (James Waterman Wise) would give his life to the Jewish ministry.....But he has withdrawn from the Jewish Institute..... Seeing that scruples stand in the way, the only decent thing for him to do is what he has done, no matter how much I regret it.....He graduated from Columbia in 1921, when he was 19..... went to Cambridge.....wrote 'Liberalising Liberal Judaism'.....I had reason to believe that he was qualified to render services of no mean order through the rabbinate.....I must admit tin all candor that there seems to be a growing number of college graduates whose religious faiths are shattered.....What is to become of these young people? It almost seems to me as if another and supplementary ministry would have to be established.....My son a rabbi.....I had earnestly hoped..... That is over....."

THESE are days when laymen are taking a very active part in the work of the church, and it is well that it should be so. A very remarkable meeting of laymen has just been held in the Bankers' Club, New York, to launch a campaign for $15,000,000 for the Pension Fund of the Board of Ministerial Relief in the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Will H. Hays, speaking as a layman, paid a fine tribute to the life and work of the minister, in his appeal to his fellow laymen to provide adequate support for him in his retirement. Dr. Erdman, Moderator of the General Assembly, U. S. A., as one of the principal speakers, declared that the plan would appeal to laymen because of its sound financial policy: because it affords a permanent solution of a problem which has long troubled the church, and it will tend to lessen the difficulty of securing candidates for the ministry. A minister would be less than human if he did not sometimes wonder what was going to become of him in his old age, seeing his salary was often so small that it was impossible to lay away anything 'for a rainy day."

AN INTERESTING service was held recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lemond Whitford, Belleville, N. J., when Rev. Robert R. Marquis, of Nenana, Alaska, administered the sacrament of baptism to four children, two of whom had been members of the Sunday school at Nenana, the third the infant son of parents who were married at Nenana, the fourth the four-year-old son of a sister. Mr. Marquis was assisted by Frank W. Pinneo, elder in Park Church, using water from the River Jordan, from the traditional place where Jesus was baptized. This water, it seems, had been taken from the River Jordan by Dr. Pinneo's father in 1859. The chalice, which was made of brass, had been made by a native Christian from the West Indian missions, where Mrs. Pinneo formerly served. This unique service shows that missions encircle the globe. Children from Alaska can be baptized 5,000 miles away by their own missionary with water from the Jordan in a chalice made in India.

IN THE United States there are 32 patent religions definitely organized, according to the latest compilation. These support 123 publications and buy several thousands of books put out by 813 authors. We do not question the sincerity of the devotees of these esoteric cults. What they believe most of them sincerely believe, although many of their exploiters are out and out charlatans. Among the exploiters women seem to predominate. For dabblers in some of these, regular supply houses advertise "zodiac rings," "Arabian Sheik rings," "Grand Imperial Incense," 'prayer incense, collapsible trumpets, aluminum trumpets," and a host of other accessories. It makes thoughtful people wonder what the world is coming to—or perhaps, we ought to say, where it is going!

THE rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, speaking before the Episcopal Church Congress in Richmond, Virginia, said some things which ought to be laid to heart by every friend of what is best in the life of Christians everywhere. Said he "Since the Great War we have had a tidal wave of occultism, Spiritualism—with all its paraphernalia of ouija boards, trumpets, dark cabinets, materializations, automatic writings and spirit photographs—the laying on of hands, deep breathings, vegetarianism, fastings, formula of monotonous sayings of the genre of Coue's with its smug 'Every day in every way I am getting better and better.' These are those rivers and tributaries that feed the encroaching sea of modern occultism. It is the business of the church to take her stand upon the sayings of the Master to the effect that 'an evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign'; that 'the kingdom of God cometh not with observation.'"

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER

A famous painter, who had lived to a good old age, when near his death asked for his brush, and, in the language of his art, endeavoured to give expression to his hope as a follower of Jesus Christ. He painted a landscape, where some enormous mountains threw their peaks into the sky. The level ground and the bases of the mountains were swathed in darkness, but their summits were bathed in the golden rays of the rising sun. Beneath the picture the artist wrote:

"How gloriously bright
At noon will be the light!"

Another artist, when on his deathbed, called for his masterpiece. It was the painting of a shipwreck—with dark clouds and raging seas—the only light was a lurid one. "That cloud is too dark," he said; "I always thought it the right shade before, but now I see it is too dark; I must make it brighter." And with a last touch of his brush he let a gleam of light illumine the darkness.

I have always been fond of dogs, and most dogs have seemed to be fond of me, which is saying quite a lot for the dogs!

And I have no difficulty in understanding what a man means when he says The more of I see of some folks the better I like my dog."

* * *

A little while ago I made friends with a new dog, and he calls himself "The Under Pup." He can both bark and bite and there is no vice about him when he is doing either.

* * *

He is a dog of strong likes and dislikes. And for a dog he is about the wisest I have ever met. He can speak with his eyes, his voice and his tail. And there are times when every bit of him is eloquent in expressing his thoughts regarding certain things.

* * *

There is a certain type of Socialist for whom he seems to have little love. And some of the things he has been trying to tell me about his kind are about the most biting a dog ever uttered.

* * *

He has been trying to get me to believe that Socialism, as taught by its founder, is against everything that human experience has found essential in the development of civilization—every institution that the experience of the ages has determined as elemental in maintaining a society fit for decent men to live in—everything, from a government of law and order to a monogamic family as the basic unit of society, and an altar of worship as essential to the satisfying of the longings of the human soul.

* * *

Lying under the shade of a tree the other day The Under Pup" said to me When any Socialist pops up and tells you that Socialism is not against the state, with every law on its statute books, the family, with every protective restriction thrown around it, the church, with every doctrine it teaches, and means to ultimately wipe them off the map in order to make room for a commonwealth," without laws over men, religion or a family, he is so far as authoritative socialism is concerned, a wind-jamming ignoramus, or a bald-headed prevaricator.

When he had got this off his mind I looked him square in the eyes and said, "You sly old dog, do you really mean what you have just said?" And, with a snap of his teeth, he said, "I sure do!"

* * *

In all this The Under Pup was very dogmatic, and I could not help feeling that even if he were not altogether correct in his description of Socialism he certainly believed that he was telling the truth and nothing but the truth.

THEIR HERITAGE.

By Strickland Gillilan.

THE lovings that we used to get,
The dreams that came before life's fret,
The pleasures once we held so dear
Before the yellow leaf and sere
And other things accounted drear—
The children have them now.

The rosy cheeks we used to wear,
The daily thrills ere came our care,
The coastings down the snow hill
With juvenile, uncanny skill
And now and then a joyous spill—
The children get them now.

The heartaches over little things,
The hurts from playmates' thoughtless flings,
The checkings of each grown-up boss,
Who must scold some one when he's cross,
The spankings—who would count them loss?—
The children get them now.
Thank goodness!
The children have them now.

THE PLACE OF VISION IN HUMAN LIVES

Text: Genesis 28: 10-22.

And Jacob went out from Beersheba, and went toward Haran.

And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set: and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

And he dreamed, and, behold, a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and, behold, the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

And, behold, the Lord stood above it, and said, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed;

And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth; and thou shalt spread abroad to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: and in thee and thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the Lord is in this place, and I knew it not.

And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillow, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

And he called the name of that place Bethel: but the name of that city was called Luz at the first.

And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on.

So that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the Lord be my God:

And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto thee.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 30. The Place of Vision in Human Lives. Genesis 28:10-22.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

Beersheba, a name signifying the Well of Seven or the Well of Oath, was the residence of the ancient patriarchs. It was here that Isaac went after he had gained a footing in the land and had established possession of a well after the Philistines had destroyed two wells previously dug.

From this victory over the Philistines he had gone to Beersheba, and here he had had the vision with the confirmation of his choice as the successor of Abraham and heir of the promises as recorded in the last lesson.

Now Jacob, Isaac's son, was going out from Beersheba toward Haran, the original home of Abraham. He was going to this ancestral home in search of a wife. And if he was going with hope and ambition, he was not leaving behind him altogether a satisfactory record, nor were his future experiences to be by any means free from trouble.

With Heavy Heart.

At the time of this experience he may well have had a heavy heartand an accusing conscience, for he had been guilty of deplorable trickery in wronging his brother Esau, and in securing for himself the birthright.

It was in depression, probably, rather than in exaltation that he felt the need of divine help. And it may well have been out of this experience of self-accusation that he entered into the spiritual experience.

He had reached his journey's end for the night, and darkness overtaking him, he had taken one of the stones and put it under his head for a pillow. He dreamed during the night, and one might well say, "No wonder, who might not have a dreamful sleep with a stone for a pillow."

Jacob however, had a very remarkable dream. It was a dream that has become famous in history and in literature, and that, as Jacob's ladder, has symbolized communication between earth and heaven. It was a dream of revelation and of promise to Isaac, and a dream that placed upon him great responsibility.

When Jacob wakened out of his sleep his dream was still so real that he felt certain that God had communed with him. So he set up the stone that had been under his head for a pillar, poured oil upon the top of it as a symbol of its consecration, and called the place Bethel because, as he said, "This is none other than the House of God, and this is the Gate of Heaven."

Bargain With God.

All this might have been merely an emotional experience, but Jacob made it something more real; he made it a matter of vow and consecration. It is true that his vow was something in the nature of a bargain with God. If God would be with him in the way, and would give him bread to eat and raiment to wear, if God would bring him to his father's house in peace, then this God was to be his God, and he was surely going to give one-tenth of all that came to him in recognition of God's bounty.

Possibly one might have asked Jacob, as it was asked of Job at a later time, "Doth Jacob serve God for naught?" It was a religion that seemed to have more in it of getting than of giving, and Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Here perhaps we have marked all the wide separation between the primitive religion of Jacob and the religion of the New Testament manifest in the life, teaching, and example of Jesus of Nazareth.

But we must not be too critical of these ancient stories. We must not expect the full rightness of Christian fruit in the far off dawning of human history.

We must understand the religion of the past in the light of the past, and when we thus understand we can see that though Jacob, especially at this time, did not seem to have all the largeness and magnanimity of Abraham, or the sincerity of Isaac, he had at least something of that stability upon which something worth while may be built.

His Ambition.

With all his faults Jacob stood in the line of succession. He had at least capacity for vision though his ambition led him into selfish and mean actions. It was associated also with a certain driving power and energy.

He appears at his best at Bethel. We find him many years after coming back to Bethel at a time of great danger when his misdeeds are apt to wreak upon him the vengeance of stored up years, and in this return to Bethel reviving old years, all the best that was in Jacob came to light. It is this best character of the man in whom there was great fault of which we have a glimpse in the story of our lesson.

The man who can see a ladder rising out of life toward higher and better things is never wholly divorced from God or hopeless. Let us pray that whatever our temptations and our dangers, vision may never fail us, and above all that we may see life as a ladder reaching toward heaven.

PROTECTING THE PARKS.

Two fourteen-year-old girls who were caught stealing tulips from one of the beds in Victoria Park were sentenced to three days' detention in the Children's Shelter.

This punishment is sufficiently drastic to serve as a much-needed warning to children and others who have been guilty of similar offences.

There have been many complaints received by the police as to such thefts, and the time for leniency has passed.

Children are not the only offenders.

Some, at least, of the damage done to public flower-beds has been the work of older citizens, and it would be well for those who have been guilty of conduct of this kind in the past to change their ways in view of the sentence accorded these youthful culprits, and the emphatic warning issued by Chief Newhall that public property is being closely watched and offenders will be vigorously prosecuted.

Vandalism must be stopped—and will be—and those citizens who have erred had better be very careful in the future.

Respect for public property is going to be taught even if a number of Police Court cases forms a part of the educational course.

SAFETY FIRST TALKS.

The safety talks that have been given in the local schools by Mr. H. L. Hudson of the Ontario Safety League and Sergeant John Deannard of the local Police Department, should help to impress upon youthful managers the need of being careful on the streets.

Such talks should be supplemented by warnings from time to time by teachers in the schools and regularly from parents in the home.

There were 25,000 people killed by motor cars in the United States last year, and a large percentage of the victims were children run down on the street.

Careless driving was responsible for many of these fatalities, but in many cases the motorist was in no way to blame, because the little victim suddenly darted in front of the car and a collision could not be avoided.

Too much emphasis cannot be given to warnings in regard to the danger of using the city streets as playgrounds, and in this respect parents should not thrust the responsibility upon Safety League and police officials or upon the schools; there should be frequent instruction at home as well.

It must not be forgotten that street conditions are vastly different from those of a decade or two ago, and children cannot be allowed the same liberty in regard to play.

HERE IS MORE PROOF.

"Before these rowdies used it this place was neat in appearance. Half a dozen hogs would not make it any worse than when they left. A mongrel cur with a garbage can could not equal this outfit."

This sentence from an advertisement appearing this week is a striking proof of the Examiner's recent editorial urging Peterboro people to have more regard for the property rights of others.

The gentleman who authorized the insertion of the advertisement owns some property known as Bass Point on Chemong Lake.

Over the holiday week-end the property was invaded by a picnic party, who calmly took possession of the premises and who left it in a filthy condition.

The owner offers $10 reward for information that will lead to the conviction of the guilty parties on a charge of trespass, and for the benefit of the warning that would be set up by the punishment of these offenders there will be many other suffering property-owners who will hope that he succeeds.

There is a timely cartoon that has appeared in a number of newspapers.

It represents a party of motorists making merry in some one else's house, which they have littered with tin cans, egg shells, banana peelings, soiled paper and other unwholesome reminders of picnicking.

Young Hopeful is attacking a flowering plant standing upon the piano, while the lady of the party (one of the familiar fat tourist type) gurgles her encouragement from the car in these words: "Oh, what lovely flowers, Gerald! Do pick an armful to take home."

The cartoon bears the appropriate inscription: "If We Treated Our Homes as We Do Our Woods," and there is added this moral: "Take your indoor manners with you when you go outdoors."

Peterboro people are not any more heinous offenders than the general run of city folk in this regard, but the Examiner would like to think that they are away better than the average.

If they will remember the moral of the cartoon just referred to there will be no more advertisements like the one quoted at the beginning of this article, but the Examiner will cheerfully bear the resultant loss of such revenue as its contribution toward better conditions.

LIMITING VERBOSITY.

A secret session of Parliament has appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Meighen, Forke and Boivin to draft recommendations looking to the limiting of private members' speeches.

It is an objective devoutly to be wished for.

For if the month-long Budget debate which closed this week proved one thing more than another it was the futility of the verbosity which passes for Parliamentary debate.

In England a Budget debate lasting longer than a week would be regarded with national amazement. In Canada Parliament rarely escapes talking a Budget into confusion. In England a member talking longer than an hour on any subject would be regarded as a near curiosity. In Canada, in this past Budget debate, one man talked more than three hours; four men talked more than two hours; eight men talked more than an hour and a half; ten men talked longer than an hour; and only three men of all that talked, talked less than half an hour.

They didn't, of course, talk to Parliament. Their audience, for the most part, were the reporters of Hansard—precisely the audience they wished.

Hansard is a marvellous thing. An M. P. may bellow like thunder: mumble like a man at a banquet suddenly asked to say grace: drop his h's or murder the King's English—no matter. Hansard will turn out a speech creditable to an Asquith. It will be rewritten, revised, punctuated, made grammatical, printed by the King's Printer, and duly presented to the orator. After that, all is easy. Liberal use of the franking privilege; Hansard sent broadcast; the boys back home in "Main Street" amazed at their M. P.'s eloquence; electioneering food for the masses. It is a great game.

And it grows worse with the years. Time was when, under the rules of the House, members couldn't read speeches. Today five out of six men that rise to their feet read what they should say. The consequence is that all sorts of propagandists for all sorts of things brief members with letters and pamphlets and quotations; and unless a member is an excellent reader he promptly empties the House.

Speaker Lemieux must carry much blame for this. In his desire to help new members he has let his heart run away with his head—and with the rules of the House—with the consequence that debate has degenerated into a competition in essay reading. Bad speaking has become worse reading, verbosity more verbose than before.

Nobody wants to limit ample discussion of important public questions. Nobody ought to want to stifle discussion that penetrates things to the truth. But no sense exists in the interminable procession of wearisome speeches that blur so many issues in Parliament and which only bewilder the public. If the average member cannot express himself clearly and completely upon the average question within half an hour, if he cannot get up, speak up, and shut up, within that time, without droning through a lot of memoranda that somebody else has written for him, then better for Parliament and the country that he keep his seat.—Ottawa Journal.

BE BRITISH!

(An Editorial for Young People.)

This is the time of year when special celebrations are held in honor of the Empire, and when the memory of a great and noble Queen is perpetuated throughout the British dominions. In keeping with the spirit of the time, we propose to say a few words this week on the subject of British character—what is means to be born a citizen of the Empire, the privileges thereby conferred and the duties which go with those privileges. Just now the whole world is ringing with the praises of the British people for the wonderful way they conducted themselves during the general strike. We here in Canada are British, and must aim to live worthily of the high reputation. What are the qualities specially admired in connection with the great industrial crisis through which the Mother Country has just passed? Let one of the leading American newspapers answer that question. "Indomitable good nature has been displayed," says the New York Times. "Such a week of acute national crisis and strain as the English people have been passing through cannot fail to show the stuff of which they are made." And to take a Canadian opinion, the Montreal Star has this to say in its description of events during the disturbance: "Strikers and police engage in a friendly football match, with the wife of the chief constable to open the game. Scores of women bring their perambulators and babies to take part in the strikers' parade. Workers obey the behest of their union and then march in a body to the Government headquarters to place their services at the disposal of the authorities for the maintenance of law and order. In the very heart of lower class London a picked team of county players battle with an eleven from far Australia—in a game of cricket."

There we have the spirit which makes Britain great. It is the spirit of unfailing good humor, of loyalty, of fair play. The strike itself was, of course, a terrible mistake—the Labor leaders admit that; but it has served to show that the qualities of the British race remain unimpaired, and as Canadian boys and girls you, too, are expected to display these same qualities. They can all be summed up in the expression, "playing the game." To play the game is to be fair to the other fellow and fair to yourself. To play the game demands unselfishness and calls for common sense. Any one can play the game, for no special brilliance is required; but what is absolutely essential is a sound character. That is the secret—the stability of the Empire rests on the character of its people. We must all do our individual bit towards preserving the integrity of that character. In a word, we must, under all circumstances, remember to be British.—Hamilton Spectator.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE WISE USE.

The want of money makes us miserable, the possession of it, foolish. The wise use of money is a greater problem than the ability to get it. Men frequently say: "If I were rich I would spend my money and have a grand time." The very fact that the man harbors as his first thought the idea of spending is the obstacle that hinders him from having money to spend.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, May 28—With Monday a holiday, cattle receipts for the week were a little on the light side, and prices correspondingly firmer. Owing to a drop in cattle prices in the old country, exporters limited their prchases to the smallest possible number to fill contract space. For this reason the export heavy cattle did not share to the full in the general advance in other classes. Steady to 10c higher was the best that could be done for the heavy steers, except for a few extra selected choice beef steers.

Export buyers shipped about 700 cattle all told, including heavy and light finished steers, heifers and about 20 bulls.

In the domestic butcher class there was a brisk market all through at prices from 15 to 25c higher than last week. Choice handy weight steers sold firm from $7.25 to $7.75, and in one or two special cases up to $8.

Choice butcher cows were again in keen demand, selling up to $6.50 for the best selections.

Choice baby beeves in good demand from $7.50 up to $10.

Bulls steady to firm; export heavies, $5 to $5.50; choice butcher bulls, $5 to $6.

Hogs sold Tuesday and Wednesday at $13.75, f.o.b.; $14.35 fed; $14.75 weighed off cars. Premium on selects $2.81 per head.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 28 (Canadian Press) — Surprising renewal of strength developed in the wheat market today. Speculators who were selling freely in expectation of forcing a fresh break in the May price found difficulty getting their wheat back. Today's deliveries on May contracts totalled only 301,000 bushels and nervousness of traders was increased by unfavorable crop reports from parts of Kansas and Nebraska. Wheat closed strong, 7-8 to 3 3-4c net higher, with corn 1-8c off to 1-8c up; oats unchanged to 1-8c down, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents advance.

Significance was attached to the fact that June delivery of wheat commanded more than 12 cents premium today over July, and it was currently asserted that cash wheat in June would be scarcer than in May.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Man., May 28 (Canadian Press)—Moderate buying of the July future brought a last hour rally to the wheat market here today, and quotations firmed up from early losses.

The close was strong, 1-8c lower to 7-8c higher, with May, the weak future, at $1.52 1-4; July at $1.50 1-4 and October at $1.32 1-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., May 28—(Canadian Press) — A moderate amount of business was again transacted with foreign buyers on the Montreal grain market today, the local demand for coarse grains was dull, but prices showed no change.

Owing to a better demand from local sources, a steadier feeling prevailed in the potato market.

The receipts of butter were 2,635 packages. The trade was without any new feature to note, prices being unchanged with a moderate amount of business passing. The cheese trade was quiet and firm. Receipts were 7,574 boxes.

No Sign Of Compromise In British Coal Strike

LONDON, May 29 (Canadian Press)—There is not the slightest sign of a compromise from any quarter in the coal dispute, and the government is making preparations for a long stoppage in the industry. The miners have been on strike since May 1.

It has been decided by the government to ask Parliament when it reassembles next month to extend operation on the emergency powers act for another month in addition to the month sanctioned when the general strike was called. This will empower the ministers to take whatever steps are needed to conserve and ration coal and other fuel to the best advantage.

IRISH FREE STATE BARRED AMERICAN

Dublin Informed Chas. E. Russell Unfriendly.

DUBLIN, May 29 (Canadian Press).—The Secretary of the Free State Ministry of Justice declared yesterday that the Free State had information that Charles E. Russell, the United States Socialist leader, was "unfriendly to the Free State." The secretary was speaking with reference to the refusal of the authorities to permit Mr. Russell to land at Plymouth Thursday when he arrived there from New York on the steamer President Roosevelt, after he was not allowed to land at Queenstown.

The secretary said he understood Mr. Russell's passport was vised by the British Consul at New York and not by the Free State representative, adding:

"We have information that he was unfriendly to the Free State and we have reasons to suppose that he really was coming here for the sake of propagating anti-Free State views.

"If he can repudiate the accuracy of our information and show to our satisfaction he is not associated with what we call irregularism, and show he is merely an innocent journalist, we will be prepared to reconsider our decision."

LIQUOR SHIPMENTS

"There is a good deal of unconscious directorships and partnerships in the business," commented Mr. Calder. Counsel produced records of the consignment of liquor on the famous "Frank H." to G. Harbert of Yokohama. Witness replied that he had no existence in Yokohama. He "just used that name," because he had to have a consignee and an address.

Vessels Examined

He took three trips aboard the "Jean Mae" and the "Frank H" as supercargo in charge of liquor. He described the voyage of the "Frank H. from St. Pierre destined for Fort William. They were examined at every port between Father Point, Que., to Port Colborne, Ont., discharged their cargo at Buffalo and returned to Canada. The degree of examination they underwent, was dwelt on by the witness, answering counsel, he said that the "Frank H." did not visit the wharf of the Dominion Distillery. He grew angry when counsel reminded him that he was on oath. He had not forgotten that, he said, and he resented comments which reflected on his veracity. The time spent by the boat around Lachine, he explained by saying that it was some sort of holiday and there was delay in getting through. They took the opportunity to take on coal.

Mr. Harbert described other trips when liquor was smuggled to the United States via this route.

Mr. Calder asked where the denatured alcohol shipped by the company was delivered. "In the United States," said witness. He could not say where, but it was exported.

Remark Resented

There was a good deal of discussion over a protest which the witness had made against a remark of Mr. Stevens. This remark was to the effect that the only proof that the liquor was delivered in the United States was the word of the supercargo. He was the supercargo and he resented the reflection which had been cast upon his word.

Mr. Stevens explained that what he meant was that the unsupported word of one individual that liquor had been properly handled semed insufficient to justify a government official in giving clearance to a shipment and authorizing refund of sales tax. He had meant nothing personal.

Mr. Harbert is to be recalled to the stand next week. The committee adjourned until Tuesday.

BANK ROBBER FATALLY WOUNDED FLEEING FROM WINNIPEG HOUSE AFTER GUN BATTLE WITH POLICE

Shot Bank Clerk Dead and Escaped With $2,000 in Cash.

QUICKLY LOCATED.

Rooming House Proprietor and Chief of Detectives Injured in Fight.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 29 (Canadian Press).—After the most desperate gun battle in the annals of the Winnipeg Police Department, John Joe, an Italian, who a few hours previously had held up the Logan Avenue branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, killing Maurice Garvie, a 19-year-old clerk, and escaping with $2,000 in currency, was captured Friday afternoon at a rooming house, a short distance from the scene of the murder.

In attempting to escape from the house, Joe was probably fatally wounded. A hospital report last evening said that his condition was "very grave."

Chief of Detectives George Smith, who was wounded while leading his men in the attack on the house where Joe had taken refuge, was released from hospital yesterday afternoon. First reports said he had been dangerously wounded, but the bandit's bullet hit him on the right shoulder, and glanced off, inflicting only a minor cut. He returned to duty.

Robt. Segal, proprietor of the rooming house, wounded when the police returned the gunman's fire, is in hospital, shot in the chest. His condition is serious. The bandit had been rooming at Segal's house for the past few weeks.

A man found by police loitering in the vicinity of the bank, and who was unable to give a satisfactory explanation of his presence there, was taken into custody, pending investigation. His name has not been divulged.

Ten-Minute Battle.

The gun battle in front of the house lasted about ten minutes.

Two hours after the killing of Garvie, police secured information as to the whereabouts of the wanted man. Under command of Chief Smith, a squad of detectives and constables advanced on the house. Immediately the bandit opened fire from an upstairs window, and shortly after he commenced shooting from a downstairs doorway.

Smith was the first to fall, but under the leadership of Detective Bert Morris, the police squad continued to close in on the house. The bandit was finally driven from his refuge by a fearless advance on the part of Detective Morris, who, in the face of a hail of bullets, pumped out of the front hallway by the penned bandit, strode determinedly through the fire and forced his man through the back way.

Escaped Bullet Hail.

Escaping marvellously the heavy fire poured on him by police, the gunman crouched low and ran across vacant lots, still firing as he ran and discarding one gun when he had emptied it. Just as he was attempting to jump into a parked car, a well-placed shot by Detective James Thompson crumpled him, and he stretched full length on the roadway. An examination showed that he had two wounds, one in the arm and the other in the chest. Chief of Detectives Smith, who is an expert revolver shot, is believed to have shot Joe in the arm in the first attack on the house.

Cold-Blooded Killing.

The killing of Garvie was cold-blooded. Entering the bank at about 10.30 o'clock Friday morning, the gunman shouted for the employees to "Put 'em up," and "Shell out." The youth was shot when he did not at once obey the command. Before he had time to act a bullet crashed into him, sending him to the floor—dead. Death was instantaneous.

After killing Garvie, the bandit forced M. P. Johnson, the teller, to hand over $2,000 and made his exit from the bank. A taxi, which he had arrived in, was waiting outside the bank door, but becoming aware of the robbery, the driver refused to start the car. Firing at the taxi driver, the bandit ran down a back lane, and presumably at once took refuge at his rooming house, which is but half a block from the bank. The driver was not injured.

The money which was obtained in the robbery was found in Joe's pockets after he was captured.

The robbery was staged at a time when a special squad of police were at the railway station taking part in the reception to Baron Byng. The riot call was quickly sent out, however, and these officers turned from the duty of escorting the Governor-General to the stern task of the man hunt.

DRIVING WITH ARM ABOUT GIRL LEGAL

Fine Remitted By Judge in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 29—For a man to drive an automobile with one arm around a girl's waist is no worse than for him to drive with one hand while he is sounding his horn, Chief Justice Gordon Hunter, of the supreme court, said Thursday in quashing the conviction of Jerry Vink, the bakery truck driver, who had been fined $10 and costs for driving to the common danger by Magistrate John Smith of Fort Coquitlam. While admitting that Magistrate Smith might have been justified in believing Vink to have been driving to the common danger, Chief Justice Hunter held that the proceedings by which the driver called at the magistrate's office and paid his fine without being required to plead were irregular.

INSTITUTE MEETS.

BETHANY, May 28.—The Bethany branch of the East Durham Women's Institute has just closed its books for the year ending May 31st, 1926.

In many respects the year's work has been successful. The Institute has had a lawn fence put up around the town hall, which makes a great improvement to the front street of the village. Twelve gasoline lamps which are hung up on dangerous corners on dark nights are another improvement which the Institute has made. Funds for these purposes have been raised chiefly by the sale of ice cream during the summer months, on Saturday evenings in the town hall. The hall also makes a convenient resting place for the women from the country on Saturday evening while in the village doing their shopping. Followings is a statement of funds received and disposed of:

Cash on hand May 31st, 1925, $456.68; sale of ice cream, $74.35; rent of the piano, $35.00; entertainments, $27.20; members' fees, $5.00; donations from interested friends, $7.85; government grant, $3.00; interest on money in bank, $13.77. Total, $622.85.

Expenditure—

Caretaking of the lamps, $114.50; gasoline for lamps, $48.92; repairs for lamps, $56.64; miscellaneous, $24.05; cost of fence, $101.76. Total, $345.87.

Balance on hand of $276.98.

The Institute held a tag day on May 24, which will be credited to next year's receipts.

The members have also commenced the sale of ice cream on Saturday evenings for the summer months.

A travelling library received from the Department of Education, Toronto, has also been in circulation during the past winter months which afforded good, wholesome reading for the community.

The Brilliant-Performing Overland Six

This superb automobile is forging ahead in popularity solely as a result of its outstanding performance record and the superior beauty and luxury it affords at moderate cost.

Comparison will quickly convince you that its extra-powerful engine out-accelerates and out-pulls any car in its class.

That its extra-long wheelbase has given it more inside space, more leg room, more elbow room, more comfort.

That with its two-tone color combination and sweeping lines, it is the smartest looking car in its price class.

That its exceptionally high quality (as indicated by luxurious velour upholstery) is out of all proportion to its surprisingly low price. See the Overland Six Coach. Sedan or Coupe. Get a demonstration. Give us your opinion.

. . Blushing Brides In The Good Old Days . .

(By Virginia Swain.)

Once upon a time brides stepped from their coaches at the church door timidly.

Once upon a time, they blushed and fluttered and drooped their lashes as they went down the aisle.

Jerome

But those days are gone forever! And there is only Jerome — old Jerome of Sherry's—to mourn them. In his 37 years as doorman and butler to the 400 of New York, he has seen the wedding ceremony go down the long trail from high solemnity and sentiment to the casual, almost indifferent mode of ultra-modernism.

Life is a dwindling for Jerome. He has seen the orange blossoms depart, along with crinoline sleeves and the "till death do us part" idea.

"Oh, but the orange blossom wreaths used to be elegant," he laments. "The whole church smelled like a Florida grove. Now—they wear orchids just because they cost a lot. I don't like 'em."

And the gracious old Victorias and the magnificent horses! "Why, brides used to come driving up in their open carriages and it was a sight for the passers-by.

"But now, a big limousine swoops down, and a bride jumps out and runs into the church or hotel—and nobody gets a glimpse of her."

In the old days, when there was a—wedding dinner at Sherry's there were coachmen leading spanking bays up and down the street all evening. But now, grumbles Jerome, even a motor car cannot find a parking place.

The ways of the 1926 girl are hard on Jerome's nerves. Cigarets and flasks—he abominates them.

"Why, a bride will get out of her car and come right into the church with a cigaret in her mouth," he exclaims. "And she laughs and jokes all the time with no reverence—no reverence at all."

And the Tears!

Then there are—or were—the tears. Where are the tears of yesteryear? "Seems like they don't think anything of marriage any more," says Jerome. "They don't break down and cry like they used to. Why, I've seen aristocratic brides faint in the vestry, in the old days, they took it so hard."

"Taking it hard" seems to be desirable in Jerome's opinion. "If they took it serious, they wouldn't be getting divorced so quick," he maintains.

The informal clothes of 1926 distress him too. Twenty years ago, he says, no man would have been admitted at a formal wedding without a top hat. Frock coats were the vogue, where now the cut-away rules.

When Jerome was new at the wedding business, high noon was the fashionable hour for the ceremony. Then, after a "light collation," and an hour or two of dancing, everybody went home, peaceable and respectable.

But now—well New York smart set weddings are lengthy and lively affairs, sometimes lasting until morning.

Wines In Plenty.

The "light collation" of old consisted of such formidable dishes as terrapin, aspic de foie gras, chaufroid de Homard and petites masottes en caisses. Twenty or more such items made up a single menu at a really smart wedding.

There were, of course, wines and liqueurs in plenty, and a great punch bowl of frappe cafe, which is no longer seen at weddings. But with twenty or thirty wines to choose from, no guest would so insult the bride as to get drunk.

When the granddaughter of President Grant married Prince Cantacuzene 27 years ago, Jerome took the cake from New York to Newport by boat and cut it for her guests.

When her daughter married Bruce Smith in Washington last October, it was Jerome who again escorted the cake as Sherry's ambassador. The bride's mother introduced him to the guests and told the story of her own wedding.

Next to the June wedding, the "deep winter" wedding was the most popular in Jerome's youth. When the elite of New York lived in Washington Square, the Christmas wedding meant a din of sleigh bells through the narrow streets and brides rosy in furs. Since society moved to the "sneering sixties," not a sleigh bell has been heard.

You can't have a deep winter wedding without snow. And the old snows have gone the way of the orange blossoms.

The ideal honeymoon of Jerome's era was a trip to Niagara Falls. The traveling dress was gray alpaca or shot silk, with a plumed gray bonnet lined with rose. Brides were easy enough to spot in those days.

Charivari Is Changed

The charivari, with rice and shoes and serpentines singled out the party to the public. Jerome admits today's charivari is a gentler affair, with rose petals and confetti for missiles.

He recalls weddings in the nineties when guests roped off the stairs to impede the escape of the bride and groom, and the farewell became a roughhouse.

But even this old custom Jerome seems faintly to regret. For it belonged to the days when divorce was a misfortune, and champagne was Giesler, and brides left a trail of faint violet scent behind them as they paced down the aisle—instead of a wreath of cigaret smoke!

Modern Wedding Feast Plans Elaborated By Society's Major Domo

The correct table appointments for an up-to-date wedding, showing way of folding the napkin, the arrangement of silver, and the decorations; at left, a three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with valley lilies.

(By Virginia Swain.)

The bride and groom may live on love, but wedding guests have to be fed.

Nothing will do for the wedding feast but the choicest delicacies. To provide them, the modern caterer is ready to rifle the larder of the gods themselves, if necessary, and bring down nectar and ambrosia and dew drops and hummingbirds' tongues.

J. O. Voit, manager of Louis Sherry, Inc., has a word to say about weddings, from the caterer's standpoint. Voit ought to know, after 25 years of looking after weddings, first in such famous hotels as the Stephanie at Baden-Baden, Shepheard's at Cairo and the Hotel Meurice of Paris, and now at Sherry's historic restaurant.

Rules For Weddings

His rules for June brides are

Choose the hour for the wedding a long time in advance for it determines the character of the entire function. The most popular wedding in New York is the four o'clock ceremony, followed by a buffet-reception and dancing. For this wedding afternoon clothes are worn by guests.

The five o'clock wedding may be followed by a seated dinner for close friends, and a reception with dancing later, for a larger group of guests. For this type of function evening dress is correct.

The morning or high noon wedding is less fashionable. It is followed by a breakfast—in reality a luncheon — between twelve and one o'clock.

Select the place for the wedding, bearing in mind the number of guests and the type of entertainment desired. The church wedding is always favored, for its atmosphere of solemnity. But many catering houses and hotels are prepared to furnish the setting for a dignified and pleasing ceremony.

No bride should plan a home wedding without surveying the space and facilities first. The fireplace in the living-room or a bay window will do for the improvised altar or bower.

Ceremony at Home

The garden wedding is coming into great favor. Any spot among flower beds or shrubbery, secluded from the street, will serve as a chapel. Trellises of vines can be used for a background. An aisle across the lawn is roped off with ribbons.

Provision must be made for ceremony and reception indoors, in case of rain. Some caterers use canopies and tents to throw over lawn or tennis court.

A garden wedding of later afternoon should be followed by a buffet supper on the lawn or verandah.

The ideal to be sought in a wedding feast is utmost daintiness of service with the least possible confusion.

At a seated dinner, the bridal party has a table to itself, with the wedding cake on a smaller table nearby, and other tables for the guests.

Bride Cuts Cake

The bride cuts the cake herself, usually with much ceremony. At military weddings, the groom cuts it with his sword.

The traditional ring, thimble, horseshoe and coin to be baked in the cake, may now be bought in gilt miniature. The cake itself is a heavy fruited confection, iced and flower-trimed, and often three-tiered.

If a caterer is to have charge, give him instructions in plenty of time. If the home cook is to prepare the refreshments, see that she has enough help to carry the affair off smoothly. And keep everybody else out of the kitchen on the wedding day.

Flowers and Music Create Magic

A bridal bower of lillies and green vines that may be set up in any living room. Ribbon posts forming aisle are portable. Inset, a bride's bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchilds, with ribbon shower.

(By Virginia Swain.)

Smilax and lilies of the valley and crooning violins! Half the magic of the bridal ceremony, is in the flowers and the music.

Adolph Behr

Many a bride remembers her wedding day best by the fragrance of the altar flowers or the strains of an old song.

Never before has the bride enjoyed so much freedom of choice in the floral and musical setting. She need not march to the Lohengrin chorus unless she likes Lohengrin. And if she does not care for bride's roses, she may substitute any flower in the catalog.

Word on the latest flower styles comes from Adolf Behr, New York smart set florist. He is daily turning out novel combinations for brides who care more for originality than convention.

All White is Gone

"The all-white bouquet of tradition is passe," he declares. "Nowadays the bridal bouquet usually echoes the color note of church decorations or bridesmaids' dresses. Thus, a shower of lilies of the valley and orchids will be used when the bride wears a train lined with orchid chiffon, or when the attendants are in orchid.

"The new flesh-colored satin wedding gowns call for cream or butterfly roses, accented by sprays of larkspur. A Colonial bouquet of tiny white flowers and blue forget-me-nots, with a frill of silver lace, is a delightful accompaniment for a demure, quakerish wedding dress.

"At a recent smart wedding, the bride's grandmother, in gray satin and old lace, with a Colonial bouquet in colors, made a charming picture.

Prayer-Book Shower

"An alternative for the shower bouquet is the prayer-book shower, consisting of narrow white ribbons knotted with lilies of the valley. Decorative white moire or velvet bindings make the prayer book part of the picturesque costume.

"Bridesmaids carry either a sheaf or bouquet of colored flowers to match or harmonize with their dresses. Daisies and lady slippers, in combination with roses are popular.

"The flower girl has a little white basket of rose petals and the ring bearer carries the ring in a Jack-in-the pulpit lily.

"The bride's mother wears a corsage of roses. Boutonnieres for the men are as follows: groom, lilies of the valley; best man and bride's father, gardenia; ushers, white carnation.

"For the rainbow or pastel wedding, a bridal bower of green vines and white lilies makes a good foil. If the bridal costumes are rather colorless, the decorations may be bright in tone.

"Seasonable flowers are always best—roses and daisies for June, and golden-rod and asters for October."

Music Must Harmonize

Melody and perfume must harmonize with the wedding as a whole. Sprightly tunes and vivid flowers for the modern type of wedding, and old ballads and prim bouquets for the demure.

Nathaniel Cook, leader of an orchestra patronized by brides of the "400", makes some suggestions as to choice of music.

Recent substitutions for the Lohengrin processional have been the trio from "Pomp and Circumstance," Grieg's "Norwegian Bridal Procession," and "Swedish Wedding March."

The old custom of having faint violin music during the service has been revived with charming effect. Favored selections for this are: "Barcarolle" from "Tales from Hoffman," the "Meditation" from "Thais," "Un Peu d'-Amour," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Land of the Sky Blue Waters."

When quaintness is sought in the wedding appointments, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," or "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" may be used.

If there are solos or organ numbers, the choice is unlimited, save by the bride's taste.

For the recessional, instead of Mendelssohn, many brides are choosing a march from "Folkinger," "Tannhauser," "Aida," or "Carmen."

A bride may toss her bouquet to her maids, keeping only one rose for memory's sake, or she may save them all, a Victorian pot-pourri.

But the scent of the roses and the rhythm of the march will still be with her wedding ring is worn thin.

First Weddings Fix Fashion for June's Brides-To-Be

The coming month of marriages was fittingly ushered in, and the spotlight focused on the importance of the June bride by the recent fashionable marriage of Blanche Strebeigh and Julian Sloan.

Young Mrs. Sloan is the daughter of Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, a woman whose reputation for clothes and distinguished entertainment is well established.

It was expected that the marriage of her daughter would be important sartorially as well as socially, and it was.

Instead of the usual procession of maids, Mrs. Sloan had only one attendant, her twin sister Barbara. Both were in white. The bride neglected none of the traditional trappings of her role. A rope of perfectly matched pearls was wound several times about her throat, and she wore two veils, one of tulle and the other of priceless old rose point.

The gown itself was a robe de style of white satin with a full bouffant skirt in which a panel of lace was introduced in the front, outlined on each side by pleated satin.

Her sleeves departed from the traditional long sheathe and were mere cap of lace, edged with pleating. Personally, I believe the perfect bridal gown has long sleeves, but that's only my own opinion.

Barbara Strebeigh was lovely in white taffeta with a wide border of net on which taffeta motifs had been appliqued, and a large green hat with pond lilies and a touch of green velvet ribbon. She carried an unusual bouquet of white iris and yellow daisies and maidenhair fern. I can't recommend this green and white combination too strongly.

I never saw Mrs. Bonaparte look more distinguished, and I must tell you about her hat. It was a large black felt affair with two sprays of Paradise feathers posed at the back, with a pin of brilliants between. It has been quite some time since this type of hat has been seen here.

Her dress was charmingly simple—a grayish blue chiffon affair, with a wide floating scarf, and a clever molded effect at the waistline, and two full circular flounces at the hem.

The large hat was in evidence everywhere, though I noticed some smal ballibuntal shapes with creased crowns, and the brims generally drooped and the crowns were much higher than those of last season.

I saw one perfectly enormous black hat of horsehair braid with a regular curtain of lace falling from either side, and a black rose on the upper brim.

This belting ribbon that has been so popular for small hats this spring is used to make the crowns of very large models, the brim being of some transparent material or horsehair braid.

Mrs. Bernard Baruch remained faithful to the small model and wore a satin beret affair combined with black milan braid and an Arab's head ornament in front.

Except for the prevalence of the large hat, there were no strikingly new departures in gowns at the wedding. The chiffon frock made in semi-tailored and simple, easy lines and the kasha or fine woolen coat were seen in the greatest numbers.

Mrs. Reeve Hoover.

Another bride of the week who had a brilliant wedding was Marian Gordon Tully, daughter of the former state senator, William John Tully. She married Reeve Hoover of Washington.

She was also a vision of white satin and rose point, lilies of the valley and orchids.

Her bridal dress of white satin was cut on the moyen age line and had long lace sleeves. Her veil was held in place by a fitted cap of lace, and was low enough over her brows to be exceedingly becoming. I thought it a more effective arrangement than that of Mrs. Sloan. Somehow, short hair and bridal veils present a problem. A boyish bob which represents such defiance to traditional femininity, and a wedding veil, which is the very essence of blushing maidenhood, are antagonistic indeed.

The church wedding is a much less austere spectacle than it used to be. Less weeping and much more laughter are the modern idea.

But it remains the one function where there are definite standards of correct dress. And at a society wedding in New York, you can always see suchan array of gowns and jewels as are rarely seen at any other function.

Bridal Gown! It Must Be Perfect!

(By Henri Bendel, Noted Fashion Designer.)

For the fashionable modern wedding the costuming and staging must be as thoroughly worked out as for a modern play.

The bride must be a vision of loveliness—satin clad, misty and veiled. She must satisfy the eye and reflect our traditional image of a blushing, beautiful maid.

She may miss her cues, mumble her lines, and otherwise show her inexpertness in the important role that is give her, but she must see that the lines of her frock are perfect and that she has not missed one sartorial lead.

In addition to the faultless picture she herself makes, she must surround herself with attendants, lovely and exquisitely frocked, who supply color and feminine interest without detraction.

Here is indeed a problem for her costumer.

I am showing today what I consider a perfect outfit for the bride, her maid of honor, and her matrons.

The bridal gown is from Lanvin, and shows her genius for creating a feeling as well as a gown. With its long skirt and long sleeves, it will surprise the eye accustomed to the abbreviated skirts of the hour, yet it is absolutely picturesque and appropriate.

It is trimmed with pearls and crystals which outline a very lovely design of faintest shell-pink, giving the ensemble a flush like that of the early dawn, and relieving the hardness of pure white satin.

The sleeves are full at the wrists, and the skirt is uneven, lifting at the sides and hanging in graceful scallops in the front and in the back. The tulle veil is bound with silver thread and made in three graceful points. A head band or orange blossoms keeps the veil in place, and the bride is carrying a bouquet of white madonna lilies.

Her costume has dignity, picturesqueness, and yet maintains a youthfulness and a suggestion of casualness that most charming.

For the matron of honor, Chanel has designed the frock of cream lace with tiers of lace ruffles and a scarf caught at the shoulder with a great tulle and chiffon poppy of every conceivable shade of blue. With this she wears a large leghorn hat bound and trimmed with velvet ribbon in orchid tones.

Here comes the bride—in a Lanvin gown of satin encrusted with pearls and crystals, and her matron of honor in a lace creation.

Lanvin is the creator, also, of a very lovely bridesmaid's frock in shell-pink tulle worn over a deeper pink satin slip. Godets of tulle flounce the skirt and give the lightness and ethereal quality such a gown should have. The hat is of fine horsehair braid in ecru shade trimmed with velvet ribbon of gold and rose.

I believe the perfect bridal costume carries out the idea of something old as well as something new, and no costume is complete without some rare old lace or embroidery that has graced some other bride, and has been handed down from mother to daughter.

For the bridesmaid's frock pink tulle is selected, and a picture hat of ecru braid accompanies it.

THE SQUARE PLAN HOUSE

(By J. T. Findlay, Architect.)

The nearer a house can be built in the form of a square, the less it will cost—the reason being that the walls enclosing a square are of the least length necessary to enclose a given area.

The logical position for the hall and staircase in such a plan is the centre of the house, so that all the rooms may be entered immediately from this hall.

In the accompanying house plan you have a nearly square which has many of these advantages. On the ground floor, you notice, the main front entrance door is approachable from the kitchen, without crossing the living-room, excepting at one end, thus leaving the occupants of that room undisturbed by the kitchen service.

On the first floor each bedroom is entered directly from the hall, which is merely an enlarged landing. All the rooms are of fair size, and have the very necessary cupboard annexed. A very commendable plan you must admit, and enabling the house to be erected at a minimum cost, say $5,000.

It should be stated that the cellar is excavated under the entire house, ample room being provided for heating, laundry and storage. Regarding the size of the lot, it should have a frontage of at least forty-five feet, to admit of a side drive to the garage.

Built on concrete basement walls, this house would look well finished in stucco, "pebble dash" or hand trowelled plastering on common brick or hollow tile. In either case the outer walls should be well rendered and strapped before lathing, to ensure a dry, warm house for winter use. Insulating the roof and first floor ceiling would be an additional precaution in this respect.

Casement sash in small lights have added quite a charm to this otherwise simple home, and the entrance door and trellis porch give the necessary character to this important feature.

The roof should be shingled with colored asbestos shingles—say a warm buff. The exterior walls of the house, if in brick, should be of a deep red with white joint. Paint the woodwork sage green or putty gray. Hardwood floors are laid throughout the interior—a very necessary item of expenditure, and undoubtedly the most sanitary. Doors and trim in the living-room and the dining-room are of hardwood, otherwise the finish throughout is pine for painting. Note the fireplace at the end of the living-room, beside which is placed the glass door leading on to the sun porch. This house can be easily heated with warm air. Good plumbing and drainage is included in the estimate of cost.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address: Mr. J. T. Findlay, 430 Talbot Street, St. Thomas, Ont. Copyright, 1946, MacLean Building Reports Limited.

NEW HOMES MADE OF STEEL.

In England modest houses all of steel are meeting the needs of workmen of small means. And now, in recent months, steel barns and steel bungalows have been making their appearance in increasing numbers in the United States, according to Popular Science Monthly. In Tarrytown, N. Y., for example, there has just been completed a novel dwelling in which the entire frame work is formed of "metal lumber" riveted in the shop, transported to the site, and there bolted together. The builders declare that any person who knows how to use a monkey wrench, plumb line and carpenter's square can easily erect the frame for the house by following the plans.

HIGH AND LOW POWERED MEN

Some people are born with more man-power than others, just as some automobiles are made with more horsepower than others, according to Dr. Max Seham of the University of Minnesota. He declares, says Popular Science Monthly, that you should not expect a half-man-power man to do as much work as a whole-man-power individual. The nervous system of the former is not equal to the strain and may break under it.

An ostrich yields about 3 pounds of feathers yearly.

Concrete Gives Notable Value per Paving Dollar

Concrete, the same time-defying material that goes into massive dams, viaducts and breakwaters, makes permanent highways. Constant heavy traffic leaves it unharmed. The elements have little effect on it.

Upkeep is practically eliminated with concrete, a fact that emphasizes its per dollar value when compared with less durable materials.

Good roads—permanent roads of concrete—stimulate trade and prosperity. They attract industries; invite tourist traffic. Loads are hauled at less cost. Driving is made safer. There is less wear and tear on tires and vehicles; lower gasoline consumption.

And, best of all, the public in its dual capacity as taxpayer and motorist, gets the full benefit of all these advantages.

PART OF CEMETERY AT ZION NOW BECOMING AN EYESORE

Move is Started To Repair Tombstones on Pioneer Graves.

RECALL OLD DAYS.

Grave of Founder of St. Mark's Church Now Neglected.

Situated on the Keene road, about seven miles from the city of Peterborough, there is a piece of hallowed ground, part of which is rapidly becoming an eyesore, due to the ravages of time, and possibly because some of the pioneers buried there have left no one behind them to pay tribute to their memory by keeping their graves in good order.

The cemetery is situated immediately between the school and St. Mark's Anglican church, and, when viewed from the road looks much similar to most country cemeteries, but it is on entering its sacred precincts that the visitor sees evidences of the havoc that has been wrought by time. Most of the graves are being looked after and some of them have handsome tombstones erected to the memory of those who have gone, but here and there are graves that have been neglected, and which in justice to those who are buried therein should be put in a state of repair that would give them a more respectable and honorable appearance.

Here and there in the cemetery old fashioned tombstones bring memories of the past, and of what the people in those days must have suffered in order that this country should occupy the position it does in the world to-day.

Some of the stones, in addition to the usual particulars, bear inscriptions such as "A Native of Yorkshire, England," signifying that underneath them lie pioneers that died far from their native heath.

The oldest grave in the cemetery is that of Mary Scollie, wife of Robert Scollie, Otonabee, who died on November 2, 1862.

Over in one corner is the second oldest grave and erected over it what was at one time an imposing monument, consisting of a pillar with an iron chain stretching all the way around the enclosure. To-day the pillar presents a sorry spectacle, canted as it is to one side, and bearing the marks of time. It bears the inscription, "Thomas Fawsett, a native of Yorkshire, England, who died May 3, 1863, aged 66 years. To his energy and perseverance the Episcopalians are indebted for the erection of the adjoining St. Mark's church, A. D., 1862." His wife is also buried beside him, the inscription on the stone reading "Mary Ann, wife of Thomas Fawsett, died May 19, 1883, aged 84 years."

At one side of the cemetery close to the fence there is a small stone covered by small trees to such an extent that looking from the front it would be almost impossible to see it On pushing the branches to one side, one with some difficulty could read the inscription "Tryphena E., daughter of Edward and Susan, died March 22, 1871, aged 3 years and 5 months.

Located about the exact centre of the cemetery, there is a stone broken in three pieces, each piece lying with the inscription buried in the earth. On turning them over, and piecing them together, one could read the inscription. "James Lawson, died April 4, 1884, aged 70. A native of County Derry, Ireland. He is apparently the only Irishman buried there as none of the other stones show a birthplace as being other than England.

Several more of the older graves bear canted stones which present a grotesque appearance, appearing to be very much out of place in the hallowed place.

The members of the church are anxious that the cemetery should be put in good condition, and a committee has been formed for this purpose. Any other persons who are interested in the improvement of this cemetery can obtain any information they require from the secretary-treasurer, R. R. Dixon, R. R. No. 9, Peterboro, who will gladly welcome any enquiries regarding it.

C.G.I.T. IN CHARGE OF Y.P.S. MEETING

Millbrook Group Gives Programme Dealing With League of Nations.

MILLBROOK, May 29.—The Wide Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training took charge of the programme at the Young People's Society meeting this week, the vice-president, Hazel McMahon, being in the chair. Final examinations for a number of the girls who are in High School having begun this week, meant that some members were unable to attend on account of study necessary for the next day's work.

The National Girls' Work Board has chosen "The League of Nations" as the special topic for all C.G.I.T. groups this month and this was taken up at the meeting. Margaret Howard gave a sketch of how the League came into existence, her paper including information about the Assembly which meets at Geneva each year in September, all the great newspapers having reporters present, while visitors flock to the city and try to secure seats, foreign ministers and premiers from all countries being present. "The Assembly is the highest authority, giving final rejection or ratification to all matters sent up for its consideration. Its executive is the council, consisting of ten members, and dealing with emergencies as they arise between meetings of the Assembly." "The Cost of League Membership" was given by Hazel McMahon; "League Censorship of Films," by Miss Lottie Luxon; "Passport Regulations," by Pearl Davis, and "The Inside Story of the Wide Activities embraced by the League," by Wilma Fallis. "The League of Nations is the biggest national machine ever invented by nations for the sake of humanity, and no country can afford to stay out," was the statement of Dame Rachel Crowdy, head of the Social Service Division of the Secretariat which has a separate building at Geneva, and consists of 400 people of about 46 nationalities, "responsible for greasing and winding of the vast machine," as Dame Crowdy said.

"The International Bureau of Labor now has a new building at Geneva and is ranked equal in importance with the Secretariat, because there is no single thing that so menaces the peace of the world as strife between capital and labor. Hence commissions are investigating house and conditions of labor, adequate living wages, women and children in industry, and unemployment conditions in many countries, in an effort to establish social justice, the base upon which universal peace can alone be built up.

A study of the Book of Genesis, with readings of selected passages, and great truths to be impressed, was taken up for the Scripture lesson. The missionary department, under Mrs. G. W. Sayles, will have charge of next week's meeting.

OLD DOURO DAYS ARE RECALLED BY MRS. CONDON

Were at One Time 16 Saloons Between Warsaw and Peterborough.

IN 14 MILES.

Early Celebrations and Activities Are Remembered By Aged Lady.

DOURO, May 29.—Mrs. David Condon, now a resident of Lakefield, was born in Douro, on the farm now occupied by Michael Leahy. She is a daughter of the late James Hogan.

Mrs. Condon is active in body and bright in mind and has a remarkable memory. She can read without glasses. She can tell very interestingly of early days in the township. She remembers people talking of the time when the old frame church was built. The three workmen were Louis Baptiste Veremere, Louis Merau and Joseph Lapelle. The latter was killed the first day he worked on the timber. This church was opened in 1846.

In those days people came in homemade sleighs to the church to be married. She remembers many little incidents that happened at weddings when she was a child. At the wedding of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McCue, David Condon sang a song the refrain of which was:

Now I am blessed with a virtuous wife
She is one of my own choosing,
I'll stay at home, make her my own
And go no more a-boozing.

At one time Sawyer's creek was dammed back and an outbreak of ague followed. Mrs. Condon's father went to smash the dam. He was threatened with a Queen Anne rifle in the hands of a guard but he went ahead and forced the water. This creek empties into Buckley's Lake.

She states that Malachi Crowe had the first house in East Douro.

Following is a list of the taverns between Peterborough and Warsaw, some fourteen miles. Nearest Warsaw was Tom McCauley's; next, Tom Flynn's; next Davy Quinn's; then John Whibbs' (where the vacant house owned by Mr. Jeremiah Dwyer stands); next was Tobin's (near McCliggott's corner); next was Mick Mahoney's; next as John Ryan's near where the cheese factory now stands; next was Tim Leahy's, where James Walsh now resides. The first township council meetings were held in this tavern. Then at the place called "the five corners", there were Daly's and Coughlin's on opposite sides of the road, next was Kellys and next the Balsam tavern near Mortimore's. Next in succession were Mrs. Conroy, Pat Walsh, Pat Brennan, and Joe Wilson. Sixteen taverns in less than as many miles! Thirsty folk who curse the O.T.A. and other dry legislation will long for those long-past days. No doubt they would call them the days of real sport. And needless to say those were not the only dispensaries of wet cheer in the township. Few will be found who would not say that people have not made great strides forward since those days!

In those early days women carried berries to town, took trade for them, then traded the juice in the bottom of the pail for a penny bun from "Bill" the baker." This baker's name was William Arnott and his place of business was between Brock and Hunter on the east side of George street.

A wedding feast she remembers was boiled potatoes, turnips, tea made of peppermint and basswood leaves, maple sugar and a bowl of milk.

At the time of the Mackenzie rebellion, James Hogan was captain of the local contingent, John Crowley blew the bugle, John Torpey was drummed and Dennis Sullivan played the flute.

Some of the dances of the old times were: Eight-hand reels, drops of brandy, round fours and six nations. Musicians were Thomas Whibbs on the bag-pipes, "Ned" Rerdan on the flute and failing any other Tom Sullivan played the mouth-organ.

In those days there were ten and twelve children to a family.

Mrs. Condon remembers seeing a mast-timber hauled by eight teams of horses some of the teamsters being: Peter Dalton, Dennis McCarthy, John Maloney, Joseph Morrow, Garret McMurray and Michael McManus.

To bring her mother and eight children from Ireland her father sent £7 10s 9d. They left Ireland on Easter Monday and landed on June first. They saw wrens and robins at Limerick before embarking and considered them lucky signs. The family came over on the Lady Elgin.

Mrs. Condon's mother was Emma Kennedy and at one time she walked from Port Hope carrying fourteen pounds each of wheat and potatoes for seed.

There were no baskets in those days and the women put a cloth on their heads, then a tub of butter and walked to Peterboro to market the butter.

Mrs. Condon's father has picked huckleberries where the corner of George and Hunter street is now.

She says at one time a man named Mullins made a poke for a goose and cut the head off the goose to get the poke on.

Lord Russell's wife was an aunt of Mrs. Condon. Lord Russell was a son of the Duke of Bedford.

SPRING SEEDING WELL ADVANCED

Weather Has Proved Favorable Around Bonar Law.

FARM NOTES.

BONAR LAW, May 19—Seeding is nearly finished in this district. Owing to the dry weather the farmers have not had many lost days. A good rain would be very beneficial notwithstanding crops are looking fine. Hay is growing very rapidly; so is the grain also.

Some potatoes have been planted but not the main crop. There is a great scarcity of potatoes at present.

The price of eggs in this district has taken an upward start, Mr. Earnest Eastwood was paying 28 cents a dozen at the door for firsts, which greatly relieves the farmer's wife of taking them to the stores where she usually accepts trade.

Most of the cattle are turned out on the grass and the flow of milk is coming up. Maple Leaf cheese factory made 27 cheese on Monday. This factory is worthy of personal mention being a cement structure with steel roof and well lighted. It is also kept in the most sanitary way possible by the cheese maker, E. K. West.

WEDDING BELLS.

FALLIS—ARMSTRONG

MILLBROOK, May 29—A pretty May-time wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Armstrong, Fourth Line, Cavan, on Wednesday, at 4 p.m., when their eldest daughter, Beryl Lillian, became the bride of Aldred W. Fallis, also of Cavan, Rev. F. H. Howard, S.T.L., performing the ceermony.

The wedding took place on the lawn, the warm sunshine, the soft shades of the greensward and the opening leaves, with the bright colors of the ladies' dresses, making an attractive and colorful scene.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dainty wedding-gown of ivory silk crepe, with pearl trimming, white stockings and shoes, the latter kid-trimmed with rhinestone buckles. She carried an arm bouquet of pink Ophelia roses with feathery asparagus fern.

The brides' cousin, Miss Mildred Brock, of Toronto, was her attendant, wearing a becoming dress of straw-colored georgette, with silk lace overskirt, and shoes and stockings to match; her bouquet was also of Ophelia roses the shade being slightly deeper than those carried by the bride. Mr. Earl Fallis, of Toronto, was groosman.

The wedding march was played by Miss Olive Brock, of Toronto, a cousin of the bride.

The house was tastefully decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, streamers of these colors, with white bridal bells in varying sizes, large pots of ferns, and bouquets of white trilliums, making a most attractive interior.

The guests numbered about sixty-five, and included the immediate relatives of both families. A reception was held immediately following the ceremony, after which the wedding-dinner was served. The bridal table was centred with the handsome three-story wedding-cake, and according to the time-honored ustom, the bride inserted the knife before the cake was cut and served to the guests.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Fallis left by motor on their wedding tour to Toronto and points west. For travelling the bride wore a dress of crab-apple crepe with sand trimming, sand shoes, stockings, and hat, and Prince of Wales navy coat, neck-piece of grey fox fur. Showers of confetti followed the happy couple as they drove away. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Fallis will reside on the Fallis Line.

The groom's gifts to the bridesmaid and the pianist were strands of well-matched pearls, and the young couple were themselves the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents including cut glass, fine china, silverware, daintily-embroidered linens, pictures, etc., showing the esteem in which they are held by a wide circle of relatives and friends.

Cousins and friends of the bride assisted Mrs. Armstrong in looking after the many guests, and serving them during the wedding-dinner and among these were Misses L. Stutt, Agnes Brown, Edna Francey, Marjorie and Phrona Bristow, Thelma Armstrong, Ruth Thorndyke, Jessie Armstrong and Mildred Wood.

HEARING THE MUSCLES CREAK

Most people think that clenching and opening the hand is entirely noiseless. As a matter of fact, says Popular Science Monthly, every muscular action is noisy. Every time you move, or breathe, or talk, you creak.

This fact was proved in a recent demonstration of a new electrical stethoscope perfected by the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York City. Three hundred persons heard the scratching and rumbling of the muscles as they slid over one another in clenching and opening the hand.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

To guard his adopted daughter, AUDREY, from the growing wildness of her life, HARRY MORTON, for the first time, tells her the story of her mother, who, resenting authority, ran away with a man not her husband, and was left to die alone in a desert shack.

Morton, wealthy, unmarried, middle-aged and attractive to women, is loved by Audrey and by NONA, a Toronto stage girl. He has thrown Audrey into the company of JOHN PARRISH, his secretary, to divert her attention from him. In order that she may know how stage girls manage to attract him, Audrey has joined Nona in rehearsing for a cabaret revue in Toronto, where Morton maintains an apartment. Back in their own home in Peterborough, after a quarrel with Nona, Audrey suddenly decides to invite the whole cast to be her house guests.

As the last chapter ends, the chorus girls and men, and Nona, are trooping up the front walk.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"This is the nuttiest thing I ever heard of," declared Nona, as she came in the door.

She was brushed aside by the chorus girls, who, dropping their handbags, leaped upon Morton and Audrey indiscriminately, and kissed them.

The dancing men remained in the background, hats in hand, and holding on to their suitcases.

Morton, laughing, shook himself from the embracing arms of the girls.

"Nona, you and these boys are going down to the hotel," he said. "You girls go on upstairs after Audrey, and she'll show you where you're to sleep."

With squeals, and much crowding, the girls trooped up the steps.

"What is the idea, anyway?" Nona asked, as Morton led her into the drawing-room and pulled out a chair. The young men followed after, leaving their baggage in the hall, and sat around the room, hats on knees, until the maid servant relieved them of the headgear.

"It's just an idea of Audrey's," Morton said. "You remember when I asked you here to Peterborough before?" Nona nodded. "Well, it got all the gossips in town chattering, and some of them came around to sympathize with Audrey for having such a guardian. So she says she doesn't want to have anything to do with them any more. She was lonesome, and invited all of you."

"But the last time I saw her, she told me to get out of your apartment!" Nona said.

Morton smiled. "She told me that was just a spat!" he explained. "She said that girls on the stage can fight, and get over it the next day—that they only fight about men."

Nona agreed. "I think that's so."

She pulled open her light tan coat, and showed Morton a big platinum and diamond pin. "I got it back," she said, "and took the rest of the money and bought some more clothes."

She arose to display her dress. "Like it?"

He inspected the garment, took note of the low suede shoes with their jeweled buckles, and of the new hat that covered Nona's black hair.

"Very lovely, as usual," he appgoved. "Let's go over to the hotel, all of us," he said. "I told Audrey you would have to stay there, instead of here at the house—you're registered in this town as a lady friend of mine." He laughed, and Nona joined him.

"I get you," she said.

Morton had sent the maid servant to order his car, and it now drew up in front of the house. With Nona and the young men, he went out, and they all crowded into the vehicle. One of the boys stood on the running board.

Thus closely packed, they rode down street, and Morton escorted them to the hotel desk. Bell boys took charge of the young men, and they disappeared. Morton himself went with Nona to her rooms.

"Don't those boys ever say anything?" he asked, as they entered her sitting-room.

"They gabble among themselves all the time," Nona said, "but they don't talk to outsiders, much."

"What do they talk about?"

Nona tossed her hat and coat on a chair. Smiling she sat on the lounge, and motioned Morton to sit beside her.

"They talk just like the chorus girls do," she said. "They talk about their clothes, and what kind of socks they wear, and how much they pay for their belt buckles, and about how nice they look when they wear orange rouge on the stage instead of pink rouge, and what sort of cream they use on their hair to make it shiny. They're too funny for words!"

"But how am I going to entertain them?" Morton wanted to know.

"You don't have to," she said, promptly. "Just see that they have a place to sleep, and plenty to eat, and they'll entertain themselves. But I don't think you can get them to talk to you, or to Audrey. You don't belong in their world, and they're afraid of you."

She arranged a cushion behind his back, and when he had settled himself against it, she moved closer to him. "Harry, you didn't kiss me," she reminded him.

He corrected the omission.

She took her handkerchief, and wiped from his mouth the red marks that her own lips had made.

"That wasn't much of a kiss," she criticized. "Aren't you glad to see me?"

"I'll tell you, Nona," he said, taking her hand. "I've lived under such an emotional strain the last two months or so, that I'll swear I have no emotion left in me at all. I've just been drained dry."

"You mean by Audrey?"

He nodded. "But you've staged one or two explosions for me too," he reminded her. "Not only that, a woman in town came into my office the other day, and told me her husband was going to sue for divorce because of me."

He caught the intentness with which she listened.

"Oh, nothing serious," he assured her. "Her husband came up, and apologized—said it was she that proposed the divorce."

"Poor man," she sympathized. "Just women, women, women!"

She brushed the hair back from his forehead. "Does Audrey still want to marry you?"

He considered the question before he answered. "I think that idea is fading," he told her. "As a matter of fact, it is likely that Audrey will settle into something like a normal condition of mind. But I wanted to ask you not to stir up anything more, in dealing with her."

"Oh, I won't!" Nona said. "Audrey's a wilder woman than I am, when she gets started! I thought she was going to pull my hair, the last time we talked together."

Morton chuckled. "So did I," he concurred. "But that's over with. Anyhow, you gained your point—you remember she invited Parrish to go out to dinner with her?"

Morton chuckled. "So did I," he concurred. "But that's over with. Anyhow, you gained your point—you remember she invited Parrish to go out to dinner with her?"

He got up, and held her coat for her. She adjusted her hat, before the mirror, and then slipped her arms into the sleeves of the tan silk garment.

"Let's drive around town a bit," he proposed. "You telephone the boys to go over to my house as soon as they are ready. I've arranged with the taxi man at the hotel for them to ride wherever they want to, and charge the bill to my account."

"But none of us have had any breakfast!" Nona said. "We came in unexpected, on the midnight train, you know, and waited a few hours before we went to your house."

He let out a cry of self-condemnation. "What a shame. Tell them to hurry over to the house, and get breakfast there. Audrey will be getting food ready for the girls, anyway."

He turned to the telephone, and calling Audrey, told her that the young men would be over shortly.

"She says the girls are hungry as wolves," he said, as he hung up the receiver.

They went down stairs to breakfast in the hotel dining-room. Then they entered Morton's car, which had remained parked beyond the time allowed by traffic rules, and together, drove into the country. The fields were green with newly growing crops.

"Isn't it lovely?" sighed Nona. "Whenever I get out here in the open, I feel as if I were a little girl again, and innocent and happy."

"Aren't you happy?" he asked. Her arm was under his, and she gave his elbow a slight squeeze.

"Is anybody happy?" she countered.

They were silent a little while, as the car entered a tiny tract of woodland. They could smell the fragrance of the green trees, and a vividly colored bird swooped directly before the radiator, swerved, and evaded the rushing motor car by a feather's breadth.

The girl turned her eyes from side to side, at the quiet green of the forest, until they were in open country again.

"I always feel as if I were running, breathlessly, after happiness, with my hand outstretched—and never quite grasping it," she said.

He linked his fingers with hers, and with his other hand pointed to a farmer working in the field.

"There's the only real happiness there is," said he.

She gave an exaggerated shiver. "But I could never live on a farm!" she protested.

"I don't mean that," he said. "That farmer is achieving something in the world, and doing it for the ones he loves. See the children playing around that house?"

They were drawing near the small, unpainted farm-house. Two youngsters were running and shouting in the front yard.

"To make something grow, where nothing was growing before; to bring food and clothing and the pleasant things of life to those he loves—that's happiness. There isn't any other kind."

Morton's tone was very sober.

"But what can I do?" cried Nona. "What is there that I can make grow, and who is there that I love—that loves me!"

She looked up into his eyes. "Harry, I could be happy with you, if I thought you loved me. I'm happier now, just being with you, here in this machine, than I could be with anybody else in the world. But you're never going to love me, are you?"

He was silent. She twisted her fingers around his, and held his hands more tightly.

"But I won't bother you about loving me—I'm afraid you'll go away and leave me! But I can love you, can't I? You don't care if I do that?"

He smiled a little, and patted her hand. She sank back in the machine into the soft cushions, with her shoulder pressed more closely against his.

"Nona," he said, "you can become a very great and famous dancer. Do you want to go ahead with that?"

She nodded. "I do," she said. "I'll go on with this little revue of Audrey's, until she's through with it. But then I'll be ready to start in a big production. Do you remember that manager, who gave a job to the little thin girl—the one whose dancing partner tried to get money from Audrey?"

She looked up for his nod of assent. "Well, I told him that you and Audrey had said you would back me in a show. And he said I didn't need any backing!" There was a pleased eagerness in her voice. "He said I was good enough to be featured in his big show this fall! He said he was going to do it anyway, and that was why he was so angry when I left the show to dance with Audrey."

She looked anxiously into his eyes. "Are you pleased for me, Harry?"

"Indeed I am," he said heartily. "And I hope you will become the most famous dancer in the world. You really ARE good, Nona, my dear!"

Her face fell a little. "But will that separate me from you?"

He shook his head and smiled. "I will be one of the most regular patrons of that production," he told her. "I do want you to succeed, Nona, and to be happy!"

They were silent again, as the car swept through a little village, and turning on a side road, started back toward Peterborough. This drive ran through a rougher portion of the countryside, and in one place, where the road was broken, the speed of the car subsided to a crawl. They turned on the first byway, a road that was not surfaced, but was a little smoother than the highway they just had left. The return trip into the city took nearly an hour longer than they had taken outward bound. It was noon when they drew up to the gate in front of Morton's home.

They looked up at the dwelling, as they stopped, but none of the house party was in sight.

Morton alighted, and turned to help Nona from the car. As he did so he heard the front door open.

Turning, he saw Parrish running from the house, his hat in his hand, and an expression of acute disturbance on his face.

"What's the matter?" Morton asked, as the young man came to a stop beside him.

Parrish was struggling for utterance, his face suffused and angry.

"Those girls!" he exclaimed, hoarsely.

The planer was run over the boundary last week. Some of the large stones are in the ditch, but the road is still quite rough.

Cars had to be drawn out of the hole on Sullivan's hill on Saturday. By Sunday the wind had dried the roads quite well.

Wm. Dunford has a nice new wire fence around his place. He is also building an addition to his work shop.

A handsome wire fence is now in front of the United Church and the parsonage.

Marion Payne assisted in the play.

Pastor Penkerton preached in the Baptist Church on Sunday morning.

Rev. H. B. Herrington gave a very interesting and instructive sermon on "Why the seventh day of the week is observed instead of the first as the Christian Sabbath."

Mr. Currie will take Mr. Herrington's work next Sunday.

Rev. W. F. O'Conor-Fenton conducted his first service in the Anglican Church on Sunday evening. The pretty little church was quite well filled. Next Sunday the service will be at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. The ladies will hold their Guild meeting on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. MacMillan (nee Miss Dora Payne) will sing at the Women's Institute entertainment on June 3.

A goodly number, including 28 men, attended the lecture on "Armenia and Her People," given by Rev. Ira W. Pierce at Cottesloe on Thursday evening last.

POWER FROM THE SEA?

The world's industrial power of the future possibly may be drawn from the heat of warm sea water, says Popular Science Monthly. Already German scientists believe they have found a way to use this latent energy. The warm sea water will, they assert, evaporate carbon dioxide or ammonia, and the pressure thus obtained can be used in steam turbines to produce tremendous electric power.

INDIGESTION BANISHED.

Through the Timely Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion is a tonic to build up the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach shows it is too weak to perform the work nature intended it to do. New strength is given weak stomachs by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because these pills enrich and purify the blood. This is the natural process of giving strength and tone to the stomach and accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follow the use of these pills. Proof of this is given by Mr. Wm. H. Kelly, 216 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., who says:—"I cannot recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. I had been bothered with indigestion in a chronic form for almost ten years. Everything I would eat would turn sour. I felt as though there was a big ball in my stomach all the time. I felt tired and weak and would often turn dizzy. I doctored and tried many medicines, spending many, many dollars, but to no avail. One day I heard a lady praising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. I am more than glad I did, for soon I found relief, and after taking the pills for a couple of months the trouble disappeared, and now I can eat all kinds of food, and have again my old-time health and strength."

If you will send your name and address to The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., a little book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be mailed to you prepaid. This book contains many useful health hints.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SPEEDIRON

(PAT'D and REG'D. 1925)

—the Element that has been acclaimed throughout the Empire

FROM Great Britain, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand—from everywhere in our own Canada—McClary's are receiving congratulations on the speed and efficiency of their new wonder element—Speediron.

This mass of flattering testimony reveals two big facts. First, that the cooking speed of McClary's Speediron is greater than that of any other protected element. Second, that its dependability and economy of operation have brought electric cooking to practical perfection.

You have only to see the Speediron demonstrated to realize how vastly superior it is to all others. Grease, water, pots, knives or forks cannot injure it. The wires are protected by a cast-iron cooking surface. And when the coils burn out you can have them replaced easily, conveniently, and at trivial expense simply by lifting the element out and having new coils put in. The element proper will last as long as the range itself.

Saves Time and Money

Speediron operates on contact heat. This eliminates waste. Intense, concentrated heat goes right into the cooking utensil—not out at the sides, as with open elements—which means, better, faster cooking and lower hydro bills.

McClary's Electric Ranges are the only ranges equipped with the Speediron Element. When you see the Speediron you won't be satisfied until you have a McClary's Electric Range in your kitchen. See your electric range dealer about it today.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE
By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, MAY 30, 31.

Sunday's horoscope holds augury for pleasant and flourishing conditions generally but enjoins caution in the signing of all writings, of a personal as well as business nature.

Those whose birthday it is may have an active year with affairs generally prospering, but they should be careful in the matter of affixing the signature to any kind of writings and make contracts carefully. A child born on this day should be active, industrious and of a pleasant and friendly nature.

Monday's astrological chart has indications of a lively and adventurous day with all business matters under propitious sway. There may be change or travel of benefit, although personal affiliations may be under a cloud.

Those whose birthday it is face a lively and prosperous year in business, with fresh opportunities and some important change, but cherish home relations. A child born on this day may be clever, versatile and inventive and should succeed.

Mrs. Ada Jones of Dallas owns and operates a line of passenger buses and employs her four daughters as drivers.

The Woman's Day
Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

MOODS AND ROUGE.

Perfumes to match moods have been ballyhooed for some time, much to the disgust of the majority of women, whose nearest approach to mood-matching perfumes is the clinging odor of fresh baked bread to match the baking mood, or vinegar-in-the-hair to match the pickling mood. Now come the experts to say that only a low, common piece of femininity uses one shade of powder and rouge for all occasions. Different hues blended to match different moods and emotions are decreed. Apple fritters!

MORE MATCHING STUFF!

And that above isn't the half of it, dearie. Any truly chic woman with verve and flair and subtlety must wear complexions to match wall colors in ball room or dining salon. Thus, the tryly smart hostess, in issuing invitations to a dance, will inform that it is to be in the blue ballroom or cream or jade, so that her finer sensibilities will not be jarred by an influx of complexions meant for only red or yellow rooms.

AND EVEN AT HOME!

And even in the bosom of her own home, the true helpmeet will be careful never to appear at the breakfast table in complexion that does not completely harmonize with the orange dishes and the cretonnes of the breakfast room.

SWEAR FOR US!

Such balderdash is unto me the proverbial red rag. Of course it's said in the name of commerce—of course we know the beauty mongers hope to reap in golden shekels while the woman pays and pays and pays for "emotion-matching face powder"—but even so, crass commercialism wouldn't even dare try to get away with such tommy-rot if there wasn't a market for it, and if some women with nothing but olive stones for brains didn't go pitter-patter to the nearest beauty shop for "mood-matching rouge."

HAIR AND NERVES.

Bobbed hair is making neurotics of American women, according to another hairdresser out of a job in this era of shorn scalps. The lady explains that women are constantly fussing with their short locks until a great national habit of hair-arranging is so firmly fixed that women are unconscious that their fingers are straying through their hair. Then she lets loose more propaganda versus short hair and favoring the return of the long by saying "women got this terrible nervous habit in the attempt to improve the untidy, unkempt, straggly short hair." Rubbish! Long hair was and is more untidy than short hair as cabbages are bigger than banana seeds!

NOVEL BRIDAL SHOWER.

A novel manner of presenting shower gifts is to dress up a sewing room dummy in garish dress and bonnet and hang the various packages upon her, around her neck, about her waist, her ankles, her arms. Especially effective if it is a kitchen shower, and saucepans and skillets can dingle-dangel from the lady's belt.

HOMES.

Is your home in the majority class? Interesting figures say that 60 per cent of American homes have telephones and autos; 79 per cent, electricity; 74 per cent, gas; 70 per cent, electric irons; 39 per cent, gas heaters; 47 per cent, vacuum cleaners, and 23 per cent, washing machines. Some change in today's home and that of yesterday's woman!

"HAPPY EVER AFTER!"

And so the romance of Ellin Mackay, rich girl, and Irving Berlin, rich boy risen from the Ghetto, continues to write on just like the old fairy tales. Irate Papa Mackay, 'tis said, will probably be appeased by the arrival of grandchild in the summer, and they all will live happy ever after!

A WINDY day at the Longchamps races sets more than the leaves aflutter. Panels and draperies and flying tie-ends are whipped into banners of parti-colored Georgette and printed silk voile that rival the brilliant flowers ringed around the beautiful old dress in the pesage. One gets the impression that fashion is in a state of perpetual motion. A very charming frock worn recently at the French races was in the new shade of water-green Georgette called vert d'eau. The full sleeves and loose panels were shirred. It had the new V neck and was worn with a smart little hat of green corded silk. Gloves, stockings and kid slippers were parchment-colored.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

HER OWN WAY
A GIRL of TODAY

"DON'T POACH, JUDY"

"What do you mean that you are sure that I am going to find him so?" asked Miss Cleaver irritably. "Whatever it is, I deny it. The man is too much like my father."

This remark seemed to restore Miss Cleaver's good humor for she went back to the lace counter smiling.

For some reason I felt that the whole place was filled with eyes; eyes that had curiosity in them; eyes that had jealousy—eyes that were envious; and eyes that were just cat's eyes, narrowed to little points of light, and all these were turned toward me.

I tried to ignore them. After a little I couldn't bear it any longer. I turned to the girl next to me at my counter in whose eyes I had found a gleam of understanding and asked:

"Say, what is the matter with me? Have I got a spot on my face? Has my nose suddenly gone crooked? Why is everybody so curious about me?"

"Do you mean to say that you don't know, Miss Dean?"

"Nary a thing in the world."

"Don't you know that man with the pompous air and with a bay window in front of him is the power around here?"

"Do you mean Mr. Robinson?"

"Yes. Robinson is the manager of Morton's Department Store."

"So is your old man."

"Honest," Miss Dean, "he is the manager. He is the whole cheese."

"Then why is he interesting himself in poor little me?"

"That's what we all want to know. Miss Cleaver most of all."

"Tell her to go ahead and find out and then come and tell me. To tell the truth I am a little bit interested in that myself."

"She will never tell you anything about yourself and Robinson, even if she finds it out. But just the same I warn you you had better not poach."

"Poach! What do you mean, poach?"

"I mean you had better shy away from Robinson. Poor Miss Cleaver, you see, is not as young as she once was. She has always been the most jealous person in the world."

ADVENTURES of the TWINS
by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE TWINS ARRIVE IN DROWSY LAND.

Nick and Nancy needed no extra light to dress by. The moon shining in through the window made everything as bright as day.

They hurried into their clothes and put on the magic shoes that were to take them to Drowsy Land, as the Fairy Queen said.

Indeed the Fairy Queen herself was sitting nearby on a moonbeam nodding at them in her friendliest way, and talking all the while.

When the Twins had put on the magic shoes they turned toward the window. "We're all ready," they said. "Shall we start right away?"

But nobody answered. The Fairy Queen had disappeared completely. The moonbeam was changed, too! Indeed you could call it a moonbeam no longer. It was a tall bright ladder leaning right up against the moon, each bar a rung of shining gold. It came right down through the window and rested on the floor at their feet, the ladder did, as much as to say, "Climb me."

"Hello there!" said Nick. "This must be the way to Drowsy Land, Nancy. Come on! I'll go first."

So up went Nick, hand over hand, and up went Nancy right after him.

At first the ladder looked a mile high, but magic shoes are great climbers, and it seemed to the Twins that they had scarcely taken more than ten steps when suddenly they were right at the moon.

And there stood a queer little moon man watching them silently, as they stepped off the ladder and began to look around.

"Which one?" said he in a queer silent voice that sounded, when he spoke, as though you had cotton in your ears.

"Which what?" said Nick.

"Which land?" said the queer little moon man. "We have several. There is Dream Land, and the Land of Nod and Drowsy Land. Drowsy Land is in between the other two."

"That's the place we want to go to, said Nancy quickly.

The little moon man took a huge key out of his pocket and said, "Follow me." He didn't waste words, I tell you.

So the Twins followed and soon the little moon elf stopped before a high blue gate wide enough to allow one person to pass through at a time.

"We're here," he said, putting the key into the lock and turning it. Then he gave the tall gate a push and stepped inside. The Twins passed in, and without a word their queer guide shut the gate behind them. They could hear the key turn in the lock.

Now instead of Drowsy Land being bright and shining as one would suppose, it being on the moon and everything, it wasn't so at all! It was sort of twilight. And I'll tell you why. All around were trees, great tall ones like towers. Under their feet was a thick carpet of pine-needles. No matter how hard you walked, you didn't make a sound. It was almost as though you had cotton tied to your shoes.

In every tree was a door and on every door was a door-plate with a name on it.

"Isn't this a funny place!" said Nick to Nancy. But his voice sounded a million miles away.

Suddenly a door in one of the tall tree houses opened, and out came—you'll never guess what. An eye! It had arms and legs and a three-cornered hat.

"My goodness!" said Nancy. "What's your name?"

"I'm one of the Forty Winks," said the Eye.

A Fashion Model's Diary
By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A GREEN CREPE JABOT FROCK.

"I want the coolest afternoon frock you have in the house."

This decided order came from a young actress, an old client of Madame's who came into the shop today, which happened to be the warmest day we've had.

Madame smiled and the client continued:

"I can tell from the feel of the weather that very soon I'm going to need the coolest looking frock in the world, if I'm to feel cool at all, so please come forth and help me."

"I can see you work on my principle, that a cool frock is the greatest help in feeling and looking your best when the weather is sweltering," Madame said.

She is always insisting that to look cool is half the battle, so I knew the client had enlisted her enthusiasm immediately.

I was despatched to don "Mint," the name of the newest green frock we have, and I felt sure it would meet with the client's approval.

I have modeled frocks for her before, and I know pretty well what her taste is.

The cool looking green dress slipped on over my head. There was a gorgeous white georgette jabot down the front, and a coquettish green scarf attached to the neck at the back, which tied in a bow at one side.

The fitter adjusted the narrow belt for me, tying it at the hip to balance the neck bow, and out I sauntered.

"Like a breath of cool air!" the young client said as soon as she saw me.

I turned about so she could see the straight back, and one turn was enough. She halted me with:

"I must have it. My beau simply loves green, and I know he'll like me in that dress."

Madame asked when she could come for a fitting, and the client wanted to come immediately, but Madame explained that we were ever so busy making cool frocks, and that as the jabot of this one was entirely bound by hand, she would have to ask for a week.

"Very well," responded the gay young client. "But no longer than a week. I must make a killing because I have a dangerous rival."

The Home Kitchen

THE ECONOMIC VALUE OF PLATE DINNERS.

In serving plate dinners, it is wise to select the right combinations of food. The balanced ration must not be overlooked. For the vegetable plate, it is wise to consider the kinds that are nourishing. The green leaf vegetables rank next to milk, butter and egg yolks as sources of vitamine A. The thinner and greener the leaf, the richer it is in the vitamine A. content. Spinach stands at the head of the list. So a plate containing well-cooked spinach, a portion of string beans, some fried tomato, creamed onions, mashed potato and baked squash will give vitamines A., B. and C., in appreciable quantity.

A fish plate is popular if well planned. Take, for instance, a portion of fried clams or oysters, broiled shad, baked potato, escalloped cucumber and tomato, string beans and deviled eggs here you have all that is needed to balance the ration. The fish adds protein and fats, and has other valuable contents. A pound of shad has a food value of 745 calories.

The chicken plate may be built up with the same care in selection of foods. A portion of chicken cooked a la Maryland, creamed potatoes, escalloped onions, peas and sweet sour beets has much to recommend it in right selection. Fuel value per pound of the chicken is four hundred and ninety-two calories.

Another good plate has two slices of roast leg of lamb with mint sauce. Potato roasted with the meat, baked onions, creamed cauliflower, asparagus, radishes and spring onions. Follow this with a lettuce salad and a rhubarb pie.

A spaghetti place has a generous portion of spaghetti cooked and served with Italian sauce, and cheese, stuffed baked tomato, escalloped shrimp, baked squash and peas. Follow this with heart of lettuce salad with Russian dressing.

A cold plate may be planned with the cold sliced breast of chicken, macedoine vegetable salad with white mayonnaise, currant jelly and asparagus vinaigrette. Follow this with a cream cheese salad.

An egg plate may be arranged with a generous portion of richly creamed eggs, broiled mushrooms, baked asparagus, baked potato, fresh radishes and spring onions. Cucumber salad, sour cream dressing, with toasted crackers may follow this plate.

Another egg plate also interesting for hot day dinner is of scrambled eggs to which a portion of minced ham has been added and baked squash, escalloped potatoes, fried apple and corn on the cob.

MOUTH IRRITANTS.

Information is fairly widespread regarding that great class of tissue growths known as tumors or neoplasms. Of these, carcinoma or cancer is the most widely known and certainly the most common form to-day.

It is difficult to state definitely just what is meant by the word "tumor," but it can be said only that it is a tissue overgrowth which is independent of the laws governing the remainder of the body and which is due to causes unknown.

Tumors of the oral cavity present, in general, the same characteristics as those arising elsewhere. They are of two classes, benign or non-malignant, and malignant.

The cause of tumor being obscure, it appears at any rate to be actuated by chronic irritation.

Possibly the most frequent type of malignant tumor in the oral cavity is cancer of the tongue or mouth.

The tissues of the oral cavity are frequently subjected to minor injuries and are daily exposed in some mouths, to irritations such as a jagged tooth, rough deposits, or ill-fitting restorations. Any one of these may act as an irritant to initiate an inflammatory process which, persisting, might result in a sore or lesion, perhaps not dangerous in itself, but from which may spring a tumor of either the benign or malignant type.

Now, it should be remembered that a non-malignant growth may become malignant, the change to malignancy possibly being so insidious and stealthy as to be non-apparent. This may be hastened by further irritation and because of the bateria persisting in the oral cavity, but there is a greater tendency towards malignancy where mouth hygiene has been neglected.

Remember, that while sores of the tongue and mouth tissues should be early investigated, constituting as they do, a menace to the health, or even to the life of the individual, yet, there is a danger of tampering with such lesions and their treatment should be undertaken only by those competent to do so.

COME ON IN!

You all have heard that wee white lie that everybody's told. It has to do with water that is very, very cold. Along the bank of any stream where bathing folk run loose, the first one in shouts, "Gee, it's fine." He's fibbin' like the deuce.

A bathing party gathers and they rush down to the sand. The girls are kinda backward, so the fellas take their hand. "Come on," they shout out loudly, "Let's be hoppin' in, pell mell. Aw, golly, whatcha 'fraid of, girls? the water's really swell."

And then some fella dips a toe, quite bravely, in the lake. Most anyone would surely know 'twas cold ta see him shake. Goose pimples show quite plainly, and quivers at the knee, and yet he'll tell the rest of them, "it's warm as it can be."

No wonder people hesitate before they go kerplunk. They know, when someone says it's warm, it's just a lot of bunk. The first real shock is what's so hard, and makes a person stall. But, after you've been in a while, it isn't bad, at all.

CORNS
Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn soft, corn or corn between the toes, and foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

This sufferer literally covered with skin disease—15 years of suffering—then his whole body cleared off in 45 days—a new skin grown—no pain, no itching, no irritation.
This story seems incredible as do hundreds of other cases relieved by the powerful liquid for the treatment of skin diseases.
The first $1.00 bottle relieves you or your money back. Try D. D. D. soap, too.

PATCHING A BROKEN CEMENT WALK

In repairing a break in a cement sidewalk, carefully remove any broken fragments of concrete, and with warm water and a stiff brush scrub the broken surface until every vestige of loose material has been removed. Let the water soak well into the old concrete, so that it will not dry out too soon. If the surface is not rough and jagged, roughen it with a cold chisel and hammer.

Mix your cement mortar in the proportions of one part cement, two parts sand and three parts gravel or other aggregate, or, for a small job, merely mix one part of cement with three parts sand. Build up the broken place until the top and sides are in line with the old walk. This done, sprinkle a little pure cement on the wet surface and trowel down.—Popular Science Monthly.

Used Them For Swollen Feet and Legs

Nova Scotia Man Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. J. Flinn Also Had Rheumatism But Was Relieved After a Short Course of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Halifax, N.S., May 28 (Special)

That dropsy and rheumatism are caused by weak kidneys and that the right way to treat them is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, is again shown by the experience of Mr. J. Flinn who resides at 1 Seed Street. He states: "I suffered with swollen feet and legs also rheumatism. Dodd's Kidney Pills relieved me of these troubles. I took about three boxes and have felt no pain since, neither do my limbs swell any more. I feel fine. I would not be without Dodd's Kidney Pills and advise anyone suffering from the same complaint to use them."

Mr. Flinn's ailments were caused by weak kidneys failing to do their work of straining the impurities out of the blood. With pure blood there is good health all over the body.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have restored sound health to thousands of troubled women and men. Give them a trial at once. (Advt.

BLUE EYES AND BLONDE HAIR POOR FOR THE MOVIES

Blue eyes do not register strongly before the motion picture camera, declares D. W. Griffith, famous producer, in Popular Science Monthly. They look pale or white, appearing like holes in a curtain. There is hope, however, for the person whose eyes are blue tinged with another color. Green or grey or yellow tints in them save them for motion pictures. Lillian Gish has blue eyes, but with the blue is mingled another color.

It is much the same with hair. A true blonde looks faded unless extreme care is taken to light her hair with particular colors. A touch of red, even if ordinarily invisible to the eye, makes it dark enough to photograph favorably.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID FINDS A QUEER THING.

David saw the queer-looking creature clinging to the weed above the waterline. He waded out and was just about to knock it off with a stick when a soft voice startled him.

"Don't be afraid, it won't hurt you. There's nobody home."

David turned around and seeing no one behind him, began to feel a wee bit shaky. He raised the stick once more, but discovering the rip across the creature's back, he dropped the stick.

"Well, that looks queer," he mused. "Someone has killed that poor fellow, whoever it is. It's an empty shell as true as I'm alive."

"I'll say it's an empty shell," laughed the voice. "And I can prove it because I used to live in that very same shell myself."

"Who in the world is doing all that chattering?" asked David, looking around. "Come on out and talk so I can see you. I won't harm you."

Just then something moved on the leaf nearest the empty shell. David glanced over, and there, sitting as quietly as you please, was another creature almost like the first one.

"Well, what's the idea?" laughed David. "Did you really just move out of this shell? Who are you, anyway?"

"Of course I just moved out of that shell," replied the other. "And I'm a real-for-sure Dragon-fly now, so Mrs. Hoppy Toad tells me."

"But what's the idea of moving out of that skin?" asked David. He had never heard of anything so funny. "You look just like you did before, only—"

Here Mrs. Dragon-fly quivered, and with every breath she drew, her wings began to fill, and right there before David's very eyes they unfolded into four beautiful gauzy wings.

"You Have Lovely Wings."

"You have lovely wings," David finished. "You didn't have any wings before, did you?"

"No, I had no wings when I lived in that shell," replied Mrs. Dragonfly. "You see my Mother dropped the egg from which I was hatched out in the water. When I hatched out I had to live in a shell that was suitable for a water life. But I soon grew tired of the world under water and longed to fly over the pond. This morning I crawled up this weed to see what the outside world looked like, and when the sun dried out my shell covering, it grew so tight, the thing split. Then out I crawled, a real-for-sure Dragonfly."

"And will you make any more changes before the season is over?" asked David.

"I haven't time for changes now," laughed Mrs. Dragon-fly. "You see we are not a long-lived insect. I guess you could measure my life by weeks. When the bugs and insects that I live upon begin to die, I will fly back to this pond. After dropping my eggs into the weeds under the water, I'll go into my last sleep. It's not a very long life, but it's a happy and a busy one, while it lasts." Then spreading her lovely gauzy wings, Mrs. Dragon-fly sailed away into the sunlight.

David watched her float out of sight, then he ran on with his play.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

A. F. Allen, editor of the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal, says —

THAT the successful advertiser is he who knows the time, the place and the thing to advertise. Timeliness is an important element in the successful appeal of advertising. The advertiser must know and study his public: he must know what the people want even better than they themselves know what they want. He must know the absorbing power of his community. The successful advertiser advertises intelligently, mixing brains with his advertising appeal.

THAT an indispensable requirement of modern advertising is that it shall deliver the goods. In other words that it shall be truthful, honest, dependable.

THAT the advertising of a community is a certain indication of the character of that community. A good, live town will have good, live newspapers, and the business men of a live town will reveal their presence and their purpose by their advertisements in the newspapers. The advertising pages of the newspapers, wherein the energetic merchants address themselves to the buying public, have a community value that is not always given the recognition to which they are entitled.

THAT we have now both a science and an art of advertising. The phenomenal growth of both the vogue and the agencies of advertising has raised the business of producing, buying and selling advertising to the dignity of a profession. This profession is calling to its service the keenest, the boldest, the most highly intelligent and the most highly trained minds in the world. It offers to keen witted and ambitious men unexampled opportunity for achievement. I know of no field of human effort that is more inviting just now.

Advertising is the winged word which carries knowledge to the farthest corners of the earth. It makes all things common to everybody. Through it all the products of the earth, all the products of the earth's industries, are ours to command, are brought within our reach. Advertising constitutes one of the most potential agencies that man has developed. It gives employment directly to its thousands, and it makes possible indirectly the employment of tens and hundreds of thousands.

Hatching Eggs at $7.00 per hundred for May, and $5.50 after June 1st.

Last year we offered a similar inducement for farmers to stock up with a profitable poultry flock, bred for egg production, and although we were unable to fill all our orders. So place your order early to ensure choice of dates.

At the close of our hatching season we will have for sale 1000 choice breeding hens which must be sold to make room for our pullets. These will clear at $1.00 to $1.50 each, according to quality. With each pen of ten or more hens we will include an unrelated male bird.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

If we had the power to create the habits of boys and girls, and to control the habits of the grown-ups, we could change the history of the world.

The other day my good friend, Dr. Frank Crane, said:

"The water of a river digs the channel and then the channel contains and restricts the water.

"A man makes his habits, and then the habits control and restrict the man."

The water made the channel by following the line of least resistance and, as Dr. Crane says, the man makes his habits the same way.

We are essentially creatures of habit. We go to bed, get up, eat our meals, go to work, slave or play, just as habit drives us. Sunday is a hard day for some of us, becuase it interferes with the regular routine. But what we do on Sunday, too, is wholly a matter of habit.

The word "habit" has come to have a questionable sound. We speak of bad drugs as "habit-forming." Uncontrolled appetites are attributed to habits.

Of course, there are good habits, too. But whether we are good or bad, we are controlled by our habits.

What we call the "social life" is responsible for a lot of our habits. It teaches us to stay up late. It cultivates a love for rich food. It creates a desire for unseasonable clothing.

Custom compels us to eat what we do not want and to eat when we are not hungry. We cannot resist the social habit.

Modern business is housed in ill ventilated structures and, after a while, we become indifferent to the quality of the air we breathe. The demands of the office foster the "quick lunch" evil.

The combination of late hours and overwork results in fatigue. In consequence, we ride home instead of walking in the open.

The hard working farmer and his harder working wife cannot get away for a day, because habit keeps them at the grind. The teacher feels guilty if she runs away from her papers for an evening's recreation.

Health depends so much on habit that I wish we might study the problem, determine what are good and what are bad habits, and then begin a campaign of education of the children. There is hope that through the home, the school, the church and the community activities, we may create good habits and a love for the manner of life good habits demand.

Health is vital to happiness and prosperity. It depends largely on the habits of the individual. The formation of habits is subject to regulation in early life. Is it not worth while to give heed to a subject of so great importance?

Children who refuse to take cod-liver oil can now be deceived by the scientist. Cows are fed on cod-liver oil, which passes into the butter and not only incorporates the valuable solumble vitamin A, but other anti-rachitic elements derived from the cow. Experiments with cod-liver oil butter and rickety children show successful results, and further experiments are being made in an attempt to produce a butter rich in every necessary form of vitamin useful to growing children.

93RD BATTALION MEMBERS WILL HOLD RE-UNION

To-morrow is Tenth Anniversary of Departure From Peterboro.

WILL MEET MONDAY.

Members Will Live Old Days Over Again as They Gather Once More.

The re-union called by the 93rd Battalion for Monday night comes almost on the tenth anniversary of the departure of the battalion from Peterboro in its first step to the front. Ten years ago to-morrow, on May 30, 1916, the Peterboro County unit left for Barrieficld Camp, where it trained until July 12th, leaving on that date for overseas.

The 93rd Battalion will always be remembered by Peterborough people inasmuch as its training here brought the city more closely in touch with the war. Other Peterborough quotas were recruited in a few days, sent to a training centre and the city saw them no more. The 93rd, however, was organized here and Peterborough watched it grow, platoon by platoon, company by company, until it was practically at full strength. Local citizens followed its development with keenest interest. They saw its band develop ed from an organization of only a few pieces into one of the best bands in the overseas forces. They saw the organization of the Machine Gun Corps, the Signallers and other units that made up the battalion; they viewed the route marches of the 93rd, and for nearly a year were closely in touch with all its activies. Like other county battalions, the Peterborough battalion was not fated to go to the front as a unit, but in the battalions to which they were drafted, its officers and men acquitted themselves nobly. The 195,000 regimental number appearing so frequently in the casualty lists and the fateful yellow messages that were left at so many homes testified to the price paid by the 93rd in helping to bring victory to the Empire's cause.

Monday night's re-union, coming on such an anniversary, should bring together the vast majority of the battalion members who were spared to come home. It will be a joyous occasion in which the old days will be lived over again and other memories recalled.

POLITICAL OLIVE BRANCH REJECTED

Victoria Progressives Oppose Liberal Overtures.

LINDSAY, May 28.—It would appear that the olive branch which the Liberals of South Victoria held out to the Progressives has proven to be a red rag in so far as fusion of the two elements is concerned.

A parley of representatives of the two parties was held in Lindsay recently, when an agreement was practically reached on a candidate to contest the riding who would be acceptable to both. The choice, it is understood, was Mr. F. G. Perrin, of Oakwood, who is associated with the large seed firm of Hogg and Lytle. It is semi-officially announced that Mr. Perrin has declined to enter politics.

In the mean time protests have gone out from Progressives in different parts of the riding against the action of one wing of the party entering an alliance with the Liberals before the question was considered at a convention. "No truck or trade with the Liberals," appears to be the slogan of those who would like to see the ex-Progressive member, Mr. F. G. Sandy, carry the standard in the coming Provincial election.

FEDERAL RURAL CREDIT BILL IS READ IN HOUSE

Long Term Loans For Farmers By Board of Four.

$5,000,000 CAPITAL.

Provincial Government Required To Subscribe To Capital Stock.

OTTAWA, May 29 (Canadian Press).—The Government's Rural Credits bill was given first reading in the House of Commons Friday without opposition.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, made slight amendments to the resolution which preceded the bill. The resolution calls for a farm loan board of four members, i.e., the minister of finance and three others to be appointed by the Governor-in-Council, one to be known as the farm land commissioner. The board is empowered to issue farm loan bonds to make long term loans to farmers. The Dominion Government is to provide the initial capital for the board to an amount not exceeding $5,000,000, and subscribe an amount of 5 per cent of the capital stock as loans are made by the board.

The government of each province in which loans are made is required to subscribe to the capital stock of the board as loans are made in such province an amount equal to five per cent of the said loans and each borrower an amount of five per cent of his loan payable at the time the loan is made.

The loans will be made on the security of first mortgage on farm lands. The interest rate will be such a rate in excess of the interest payable on the farm loan bonds as is sufficient to provide for the expenses of operation and for necessary reserves and losses. The farm loan bonds will be legal investments and may be purchased by the Minister of Finance, provided that the amount of such bonds does not exceed $15,000,000.

The amount of any payment by the Government of Canada on account of capital of the board or as payment for farm loan bonds purchased will be paid out of the consolidated revenue fund.

TEMPERANCE FOLK SUSPECT FACTORY

Lindsay To Manufacture Denatured Alcohol.

LINDSAY, May 29.—This town promises to have something more to make it famous than its celebrated "Scugog sludge" of the chlorinated brand. Announcement was made Friday that the company made up of Lindsay and Toronto parties would commence operations on the new alcohol plant in the old Flavelle flour mill, which has been standing idle for some years.

The plant, it is said, will employ some thirty or forty hands, and will manufacture denatured alcohol. There is a lingering suspicion in the minds of certain temperance people that the industry will eventually develop into a distillery should the province throw the O.T.A. overboard and adopt a policy of government control.

ORLAND NEWS

ORLAND, May 29. — Willet Simpson threshed out a field of barley this last week for Ira King. The machine was set in the field and the grain was drawn to it from the shock. This is a record-breaker so far as is known for this part of Ontario.

The infant daughter of Burton Town was buried at McPhail's Cemetery on Saturday last beside her mother, who predeceased her by two weeks. Great sympathy is felt for Mr. Town in his great bereavement.

Walter Reycraft is improving his residence by giving it a couple of coats of paint.

Rev. J. Woodland has returned to his pastoral duties after attending Pentacostal services in Eastern Ontario.

Horace Way has bought a new car. Walter Reycraft has also brought home a new car.

A considerable number of autos and trucks are being driven hereabouts without markers, or with markers that do not belong to them, as well as many by children.

James Herrington has been very ill for over a week, and Samuel Hazelwood has been doing his chores for him until such times as he recovers.

The highway from Walter Carr's corner to Codrington looks more like a cultivated field from fence to fence than like a roadway.

James Wright and wife arrived at the home of her parents last week from Rochester where they have been living for the last two years.

Henry, McQuoid has purchased a new car. He is again employed in the quarries at Havelock, where he has worked for several years.

Mrs. William Wilson has removed from the farm owned by her late husband to the house owned by the late F. B. Dusenbury in the village of Codrington.

The general opinion of the public is that the appearance of the highway from Carr's Corner to Wooler was far from being improved by the Provincial grader's work. It resembles a canal more than a road.

Roscoe Morrow has purchased a new car.

The sudden passing of Alex. McGregor, staff reporter of the Examiner, was a great surprise, as the late Mr. McGregor made a call in this place but a week previous to his death and seemed to be in his usual health. Mr. McGregor was a painstaking teacher to his sub-correspondents and an ardent worker for his beloved Examiner. Without doubt, he will be much missed by his staff of co-workers, and the Examiner will find it hard to fill his place, while his many friends will miss his cheery greeting on the street in Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Clarke of Colborne spent Sunday at the home of John L. Loomis, a brother of Mrs. Clarke.

Cheese sold for 18 1-2 cents, being an advance on last week's price. Potatoes are down nearly a dollar on the bag. Eggs are running at 26 cents for firsts. Butter is bringing 38 and 40 cents for dairy and creamery. Gas and coal-oil have been advanced here last week. Bananas are offered at 5c a lb. wholesale.

Willet Simpson has started to cut his usual customs logs into lumber at Wooler. He reports a larger amount of logs than last year, and will be busy up till the time of grain threshing.

Anglers are vieing to see who can make the finest catch. One young chap secured a speckled beauty on Saturday measuring 13 inches in length. The streams hereabouts produce a large amount of sport, as they were heavily stocked several years ago by Government speckled trout fry.

The world averages 16,000,000 thunderstorms a year.

DESIGNS AN ALL-METAL DIRIGIBLE

A new type of dirigible, to be built of duralumin and capable of carrying 200 passengers and a crew of forty, has been designed by Claude H. Freese of Los Angeles. Instead of the ordinary gas bag, says Popular Science Monthly, it will consist of fifteen separate drums forming a cigar-shaped envelope. It will have nine propellers and will be able to land on water.

A button on the stern bar starts and stops the motor, while the operator acts as the rudder.

Just think, Men—His 1926 Premium is down to $2.55

BACK in 1881 at the age of 25, a young manufacturer's agent took out a $1,000 policy in the Mutual Life of Canada, in the ordinary life, profit-participating plan.

For the first three years his premium was $18.40. Mutual profits than began to show and in 1886 his premium was reduced to $15.72. Steadily, year by year, his profits grew and his premiums diminished in proportion.

This year his premium has almost disappeared. He paid $2.55 for his protection for 1926. He has been protected all this time to the full amount of $1,000, and is so protected today.

There are thousands of policyholders and the beneficiaries of policyholders who have had similar experiences to this one of the "Vanishing Premium" illustrated here. Let us send a copy of the Mutual Book

CONSERVATIVES OF PORT HOPE HONOR MEMBER FOR DURHAM AT COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET

Many Leading Members of the Party Gather—Ministers Present.

A PRESENTATION.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen Are Given Silver Service By Supporters.

MILLBROOK, May 29.—A complimentary banquet was tendered F. W. Bowen, M.P. by the Port Hope Liberal-Conservative Association on Friday evening, about three hundred guests sitting down to the attractively-laid tables at 7.30 p.m.

The affair was held in the Armouries, the interior of the building being transformed with the elaborate arrangement of flags which formed the decorative scheme. Music was furnished by the Winfield orchestra.

Pictures of "Our Leaders," Honorable G. Howard Ferguson and Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, adorned the outside cover of the programme, while the inner pages of the folder had large cuts of "Our Guests," "Durham's Native Son, and Durham's Native Daughter," Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bowen.

The serious illness of Mayor T. B. Chalk prevented his being present, P. L. Brown, secretary of the local Conservative Association, taking his place as chairman. Seated at the right of the chairman were the guests of the evening, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bowen, and to his left with the Honorable Robert Rogers, who represented the premier, Hon. Arthur Meighen, and Honorable Colonel Price, Provincial Treasurer.

"Never before has there been such a galaxy of orators and distinguished M.P.'s in Port Hope as are gathered about this head table tonight," said Mr. Brown in his opening remarks. He explained that Mrs. Hughes Charles, president of the Women's Conservative Association, was unavoidably absent through illness, and read a number of letters from guests who had been invited but were detained from attending the function; among these were Honorable Arthur Meighen, who hoped "that the gathering would be a happy and successful one in every way"; Dave Spence, M.P., Toronto, Mr. Webb, J. Harris, M.P., East York; Dr. Herbert Bruce, T. A. Stinson, M.P., of Lindsay.

Reluctant to accept the position of chairman, Mr. Brown said the executive felt, on account of his long and close association "with our esteemed member," he was the one best fitted to preside over the gathering in the regrettable absence of Mayor Chalk.

Continuing the speaker referred to Mr. Bowen's success in two strenuous campaigns, one against W. T. R. Preston, when he won with a good majority; and more recently when he defeated the Honorable Vincent Massey—verily a case of a David against a Goliath; "but Mr. Bowen kept on in his own quiet way, paying no attention to the fanfare of trumpets, and the clash of cymbals as Mackenzie King launched his barrage of Liberal speakers, and the conflict became notable from one end of Canada to the other."

"A vote for Bowen is to vote for a back-bencher," was a statement more than once made during the last campaign; "Ladies and gentlemen, that is not true; during a recent visit to the capital, I found Mr. Bowen the first member at the left of the Speaker—decidedly a front-bencher in the House. He stands four- square for the interests of Conservatism."

After the toast to the King, proposed by the chairman, Senator Mulholland presented the "Army and Navy," "the history of which inspires pride in all British citizens"; Colonel H. A. Ward replied, placing emphasis upon the part the Canadian army had played in the Great War. Both speakers referred in complimentary terms to Mr. Bowen's parliamentary record.

A solo, "It's Morning," with encore, by Mrs. Van Alstine, preceded the toast, "The Conservative Government of Ontario," proposed by A. J. Fallis, M.P.P.

"I am pleased to be one among this gathering to do honor to our Federal member, F. W. Bowen, who won a most notable victory when all eyes were on Durham while the last election was on."

Mr. Fallis said the government at Queen's Park means the administering of the business of the Province in the best interests of the country and the people, and emphasized two things as essential to success—the proper development of the natural resources for the people, and a proper system of financing; in connection with the former he instanced a recent timber sale which carries with it the obligation to erect a building in Algoma costing $1,000,000 and employing 1,000 men; and a notable bargain made by the Hydro Commission with a Quebec company which will secure 260,000 horse power for Ontario at a reasonable cost, no capital expenditure being involved except to build the line for transmission. As for the second point, he believed that the budget brought down by Colonel Price reflected credit on himself and on the government.

Colonel Price replied to the toast stating he always felt at home in a Conservative gathering, and that the Conservative party always stands for Canada within the Empire. He believed that Mrs. Bowen had earned her share of credit in the great victory her husband had won in the last election. "Battles in Durham County have been historic; you have attracted gladiators from the opposing side, even W. T. R. Preston, and holding your own with Mr. Preston is some job; I have no doubt you had lots of fun with him in that campaign."

The speaker said he had not been in the county since the campaign last fall, "and I am glad you got those pictures of Massey off the telegraph poles; Massey would never make a finance minister judging by the way he spent money in his efforts to get into Parliament," he said.

"Politicians sometimes make mistakes and that's the reason we have a change of government; we should have one at Ottawa right now." Colonel Price went on to mention the changes in the educational policy suggested by Premier Ferguson, "making it possible for your sons and daughters to take their first year of University work at the Collegiate Institute, giving another year at home in a critical time; the amalgamation of some of the rural schools was another suggestion. This recasting of the whole educational policy of the province is for the people to discuss and decide upon.

"We may not all agree on the O. T.A. but we must admit that the administration of the Attorney-General's department has been of the very highest order," was the speaker's contention as he pointed out that, since coming into power, the government has tried to make progress and give good administration, instancing the Hydro extension, the education policy; improvements in the land and forests department, and also in the department of public health, "while our public institutions have been put on a basis where you and I can be proud of them."

The success of the government in floating its last loan at a saving of one-half of one per cent on $25,000,000, and its decision to borrow on short term loans in the present good condition of the money market, were the final points in the provincial treasurer's address.

"The Federal Party" was proposed by J. N. McNichol, president of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association, who spoke of the great leaders of the past, and emphasized three things the party stands for: That Canada is, and shall remain, an integral part of the British Empire; its firm determination to maintain responsible government, and its equally firm stand on a policy of adequate protection. He blamed irresponsibility at Ottawa for many of the ills in the country to-day and felt that if by speeches and agitation the King government could be forced to appeal to the country, with no uncertain sound "the people will drive them to the wall when we get a crack at them again."

Hon. Robert Rogers replied to the toast and said he felt that the high ideals set by the women in politics augurs well for the better government of our country. He was glad to join with others in doing honor to Mr. Bowen who well deserved such courtesy, "having in 1921 hung the scalp of W. T. R. Preston at his belt, and in 1925 had added that fo Hon. Vincent Massey."

"I have never faltered in my loyalty to the Conservative party and to the Conservative Government, which has made Canada what it is to-day. Party government is merely the form through which the people segregate to make plans to best advance the interests of the country, and of the people.

"The King government has not to its credit one constructive measure—how different with the party to which we belong. A better understanding and spirit of unity is needed between all classes to-day, and national unity and national development are the great fundamentals of Canada's requirements at the present time.

"Let us build sanely and grandly; the Conservative party to-day is in a better position to undertake that great task than it has been for many years because it is united from one part of Canada to the other, and we have the best of leaders in Right Honorable Arthur Meighen. Separated we were inevitably broken up, but united as we are to-day there is no force can prevent us from rebuilding this Dominion and bringing it back to stability and confidence.

"The value of the National Policy, bequeathed as a rich inheritance by Sir John Macdonald, is not being maintained or preserved by the King Government today; no longer have we stability in our national policy but the King administration is ever ready to barter and trade in order to hold its position in power. With the Progressives, the Independents, and the Labor party, we see this bargaining going on from day to day.

"Who can be satisfied with the King government standing idly by and watching our natural products being poured into the United States, while hundreds of our finest young men and women follow the products to earn a living and share in the prosperity of that country? We cannot hope to meet success while labor products from European countries are being poured in here to the detriment of our own products and our own workmen. We need to stick to, and uphold, the Conservative policy of keeping Canadian capital and Canadian man power working in Canada and not in the United States."

In his concluding remarks Mr. Rogers insisted that the criticism which made the Conservative party responsible for the retarding of business in the House was most unfair; and he particularly blamed the misrepresentations in this respect in the Toronto Globe, adding the hope that the change in its editorial department would mean more reasonable and honorable treatment than had been accorded.

The presentation of a solid silver service, Queen Anne design, to Mr. and Mrs. Bowen took place at this point, Mr. Brown, on behalf of the Port Hope Conservative Association, handing to them the gift while all sang, 'For they are jolly good fellows." Mrs. Bowen replied first, expressing sincere thanks for the unexpected and kindly remembrance. Durham's popular member was given an ovation when he arose, the singing of "See Him Smiling," with repeated applause, making it impossible for him to speak at all for a time. His appreciation was feelingly expressed, and his tribute of loyalty to "My chief, Right Honorable Arthur Meighen," and to his party, was also spoken with decided emphasis. He urged maintaining the organization in all ridings as the price of success.

W. F. McMahon, ex-President of the local association proposed the toast to "Our Visitors," among those replying being: Mark Senn, M. P., for Haldimand county; M. E. Maybee, M.P. for Northumberland; Dr. Klieser, M.P. for Ontario County; E. A. Peck, M.P., of Peterborough; W. E. Tummon, M.P., South Hastings, Dr. Embury, M.P., Hastings-Peterborough, and Dr. Moran, M.P., Essex County.

D. H. Chisholm, K.C., and Colonel Boggs, K.C., ably presented "Visiting Kindred Associations," and President Reg. Hayden gave "The Ladies," with Mrs. Eva Moran, Toronto, responding.

W. J. Nesbitt proposed the vote of thanks to the artists, the singing of "Aul Lang Syne" brought a notable gathering to a close. Adjournment was made by a large section of the guests to the Town Hall, where cards and dancing provided further entertainment for those who wished.

PREDICTS WORLD FOOD SHORTAGE

The world is facing a food shortage. In the next century it may be acute unless new sources and more efficient methods of production are found soon. Such, says Popular Science Monthly, is the warning of Dr. Samuel C. Prescott, head of the Biology Department, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Our consumption of meat is so great that even in our time it may be necessary to seek new sources in the arctic regions or in tropical countries where agriculture is not profitable. After another hundred years, human food may consist chiefly of bananas, soy beans, fish and corn.

OPENING GAME TO LOCK WORKS

Woollens Receive Trimming in First Game of Mercantile League Schedule.

SCORE WAS 9-2.

The Mercantile League schedule was officially opened last night when the Lock Works and the Canadian Woollens clashed at the Oval. The game started out to be real close but in the third the Lock makers broke away and scored five runs to put the game on ice, the final score being 9-2.

The teams played practically air tight ball, although there were very few infield chances, most of the work being done by the batteries. Wildness on the part of Armstrong, the Woollen's heaver, cost him the game, putting men on the sacks to score on timely hits. On one occasion he forced in a run, giving three walks, with a single in between. His rival was also wild, but tightened up with men on the sacks, and didn't yield as many hits.

With the willow, Yeamen of the to the plate he banged out two doubles and a single. Bud Weese who batted ahead of him in the lineup, was walked twice and scored the two runs for his side, coming in on Yeamen's hits. Irvin Bailey showed that he could play baseball as well as softball, with two hits, one a double and one a home run. He also slammed a hard line drive that was ticketed for a round trip but Harvey Smith hauled it down after a run. Black and Ralph, with two hits a piece, were the other heavy hitters.

A little slow base running was given by both teams, one instance resulting in a double play, when Yeamen was caught off second on a fly to Moore. Both teams played well in the field, making a number of snappy plays.

READING WINS ONE.

SYRACUSE, May 29 (Canadian Press).—Toronto's heads-up baseball behind the strong pitching of Lefty Faulkner, gained the Leafs a 3 to 2 win over the Stars in the second game of the series here yesterday. Faulkner allowed only six hits, struck out seven and didn't issue a base on balls. Duster Mails was ejected from the game in the fifth inning because, according to his own statement, he replied in kind to a slurring remark by Umpire Gaston. Mails protested over a decision at the plate which allowed Capes to score with the deciding run. Umpire Gaston then directed the alleged slur to Mails by way of Manager Shotton and Mails rushed for the umpire but was held back by Shotton. Score:

EXAMINER GAME IS WON BY ATHLETICS

Roy Taylor's Yankees Suffer Second Defeat of the Week.

In the second game of the Examiner Softball League, played at the Oval last night, George Johnston's Athletics handed Roy Taylor's Yankees their second defeat of the week, the Athletics winning a well-played game, 14-8. It was a nip and tuck argument until the eighth inning when the winners chased four runs over the plate and clinched the verdict. Home runs by George Johnston and Bill Collins sent in the quartette of counters. Harry Clark for the losers also homered during the contest, giving him a record of four circuit clouts in two games this week. A catch by Harry Lacheur of a hot line drive from McCauley's bat was one of the fielding features while for the winners George Johnston covered left field like the noonday sun. The Yankees introduced a southpaw pitcher in Humpage, whose left-handed offerings gave some of the winners considerable trouble. Scates did the heaving for the winners and had lots of smoke.

The teams and score by innings:

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

As you know, Mac, Mister Johnston's athletes didn't win in Kingston last Sat. As a matter of fact, they ain't win a game down there in a couple years, so they wasn't no surprise when the result was broadcasted, except with them what figgered that a change in ball grounds might mean a change in luck. The jinx ain't banished yet, however.

The new Kingston grounds is all right, except they is no right—that is, they is plenty of ground in left and centre field, but back of first base the bleachers is so close that a fat old gentleman playing his 1st game of softball would blush if he couldn't hit 1 that far once in a while. A pop fly in the right direction is ahome run, and 1 of these days when Joe Daley's men is playing a close game and some visitor drops a soft 1 into the right field stand with the bases loaded and away goes the old ball game, Mister Daley will mighty soon change the ground rules.

Them Ponies, with a short right field and the way the scorer treats them, oughta have no trouble in getting a fat batting average. Every time a Kingston player singles and takes an extra base on a throw to head off somebody else he gets a 2-base hit. As for sacrifice hits, the scoring is a crime. Last Sat. when the Petes was playing in Kingston, Mister Batstone come up with men on 2nd and 3rd and nobody out, and he tried to hit the ball out of the lot, smashing a hot 1 through the box, which Mister Johnston fielded back of 2nd for an out. A run scored and Mister Batstone was presented with a sacrifice hit. Somebody oughta to tell the bird responsible that a sacrifice, except in the case of an outfield fly on which a baserunner advances, has to be intentional.

THEY WAS ALL ASLEEP.

Incidentally, Mister Batstone, Mister Daley and the whole Kingston crew was sound asleep on 1 occasion, and the 1st named lost a good hat and some other prizes hung up for the 1st home run. The ground rule provided for a homer on a ball into the centre field bleachers. Mister Batstone in the 5th planted 1 which bounced over the fence into the stands, and our Mister Wolfe went through the gate, recovered the ball, and held Mister Batstone at 2nd. It was a home run under the rules, but they wasn't a peep from the umpires or the Kingston gang, and naturally the Petes didn't raise the point, with the result that the red-top only got a double. In the 9th his fellow-townsman, Mister Bobs Britton, lobbed a soft 1 into the bleachers and got the prize hat and other premiums for the 1st four-ply swat of the season.

The Ponies has win their 1st 2 starts, and are out in front. A lotta folks say they will stay there for the season, and mebbe they will, but its a little early to count the Petes and Belleville out. Them Bellevillians was always a lot of fighting fools, and with Mister Jack Oulette back on the job they ain't going to be no ice cream and cake for any man's team. As for the Petes, they got a lotta strength, a nice pitching staff and some up and coming kids which will improve as the season goes on. The big puzzle is how to build up the infield, and they is more than 1 customer which questions the wisdom of shifting Mister Rose to the shortfield. As a second sacker they ain't a snappier infielder in the loop than Mister Rose, but he ain't at home at shortstop, and many fans think he oughta be played at the keystone sack where he can strut his right stuff.

GOOD THROWERS.

The pitching is going to be all right. Mister Jeff Hardill threw a swell brand of stuff in the Kingston game. The score don't show it, but the big kid should have got by with but 1 stingy run scored again him. As for Mister Lennox and Mister Heckman, they showed in the holiday games that they are right. A lotta folks think the Moose didn't bring down their full senior line-up Mon. That is the bunk. They had their regulars all here, and the Petes outclassed them so bad that they is natural wonder as to what kind a senior league the visitors operate in Toronto. The fans gotta remember that the Central Ontario League is a fast outfit, and that the class of ball seen here is as good as the amateurs play anywhere.

They oughta to be a lotta of swell baseball seen around here before the fate of the pennant is decided.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, these chatty remarks will haifta be chopped off here as I've run outa dope.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

SWEETSER GOLF FINALIST TO-DAY

Meets A. F. Simpson of Scotland For British Amateur Crown.

JONES' DEFEAT.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 29 (Canadian Press).—A. F. Simpson, of Scotland, and Jess Sweetser, of New York, meet to-day in the finals of the British amateur golf championship.

A youthful Scottish novice, A. Jamieson, Jr., accounted yesterday for Bobby Jones, the United States champion, who Thursday played such brilliant golf to defeat the British titleholder, Robert Harris. Jones passed from the tournament in the morning round to the tune of four and three. In the afternoon Jamieson came up against that sterling Highlander, Simpson, in the purely British semi-final, and succumbed, 2 and 1. Jamieson appeared a likely youth but insufficiently seasoned to stand the strain of long championship play.

Sweetser, former Yale University star, won in the morning, two up, from Robert Scott, Jr., and played sound golf in the afternoon against his Irish opponent, W. G. Brownlow, to win a thrilling 21-hole struggle.

Sweetser accomplished this by steadiness on the extra holes after faltering somewhat at the close of the regulation period.

Sweetser's Hard Day.

Sweetser had a hard day, his match with Scott was not an easy one, particularly as he turned two down and was forced to win the battle on the last nine. He was aided somewhat by the Glasgow man's nervousness after missing a putt at the ninth that lost him the hole.

There likewise was a costly slip by Scott at the sixteenth when he was penalized for touching his own ball accidentally.

In the afternoon semi-final Sweetser's longer driving and steady putting cut considerable of a figure, but Brownlow proved a hard customer to shake off. There were British rounds of applause as the Irishman's fine putts on the seventeenth and eighteenth squared the match and forced it to extra holes.

Tense Excitement.

Then the excitement became most intense, with the gallery of 5,000 on the qui vive every minute, racing from green to green as the extra holes were reeled off with neither man giving ground. Sweetser did not cave in; neither did Brownlow. But a slight mistake in direction on an approach by the Irishman and his failure to run up sufficiently on his next try gave Sweetser an opening of which he took immediate advantage to finish the match on the twenty-first green.

Brownlow and Sweetser presented contrasts in dress and golfing styles. The American was a perfect picture of what is considered the well-dressed linksman, including the plus-fours and colorful plaid stockings, while the son of an Irish peer opposing him appeared to have left his desk for the match. He wore gloves, an old gray coat, striped long trousers and well polished black shoes and a small cap on the back of his head.

Brownlow was so casual about his game that he seemed almost careless. As the gallery broke from each green to rush to the next the Irishman strolled along to his ball as if wondering what all the excitement was about.

WIN FOR KEENE IN FINAL FRAME

M. McCarthy Drives in Tieing and Winning Runs in E.P.B.L. Opener.

SCORE WAS 6 TO 5.

"Mike" McCarthy's clean double with two on and one gone, gave Keene a last innings victory over Curve Lake, in the East Peterborough Baseball League at Exhibition Park last evening. It was lively and interesting baseball all along the route, the Indians being first to score in the third innings, when long hits by McCue and Beaver, coupled with a wild peg by the Keene second sacker, allowed H. Taylor, who had got on through a force out, to cross the plate. Keene evened it up in the fourth. With two gone M. McCarthy singled and A. Fletcher's double scored the run.

Two were gone in the sixth when Keene started a rally, scoring three tallies, Curve Lake slipping in two errors with Keene's three singles. Nothing daunted, the Indians came right back in the seventh, McCue and H. Taylor getting singles and Beaver a double to score two runs. Two errors by Keene and Jacobs' long fly brought another pair of runs and the lead for Curve Lake.

In their final half with one gone, Keene won the game on infield errors and McCarthy's hard drive to left which scored the tieing and winning runs.

Max Robertson pitched well for Keene, fanning eight, passing one, and restricting Curve Lake to six hits, three of which were bunched in the seventh. Merritt Taylor also did fine work for Curve Lake, getting nine strikeouts and going through the game without issuing a pass. He weakened in the sixth and seventh, when his support also falter ed. Both catchers handled difficult foul flies and I. Fletcher made a couple of nice catches in left field.

Score by innings:

Curve Lake	0010004—5	6	5
Keene	0001031—6	6	4

Batteries — M. Taylor and J. Jacob; M. Robertson and C. Robertson.

Umpires—Rishea and Rogers.

CARPENTIER IN COURT.

Sparring Partner Claims Money Unpaid.

NEW YORK, May 29 (Canadian Press)—Georges Carpentier, French "orchid man" of the boxing ring, went to court Friday in an effort to remove restraining hands from $16,000 due him from his fight with Eddie Huffman at Madison Square Garden.

The restraining hands belong to Anthony Camperiango, known professionally as "Italian Joe Gans," who obtained an attachment against the money for pay alleged due him for acting as Carpentier's sparring partner during his preparation for the clash with Jack Dempsey in Boyle's Thirty Acres in 1921.

LACOSTE CAPTURED GAME WITH KINSEY

French and U. S. Tennis Players Share Victories.

PARIS, May 29. Canadian Press.—France and the United States scored one victory apiece in the first day's play of the inter-nation team tennis match on the hard courts of the racing club, arranged as a sort of revenge affair for the triumphant indoor invasion of the United States last winter by Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra.

As has been predicted, Lacoste captured his match from Howard O. Kinsey of San Francisco but not without difficulty. The scores were 9-7, 7-5. Miss Elizabeth Ryan of the United States defeated Mlle Deve, 6-1, 7-5.

In the third match Paul Feret achieved something of a feat in taking the first set from Vincent Richards, 6-3, and then running up 4 games against the American's six in the second.

Rain which fell steadily throughout the afternoon, drenching players and spectators, finally brought postponement of the deciding frame until today, after each player had won a game.

Diamond Disputes Decided

By WILLIAM EVANS

Batted ball is fair when it passes outside the ground, but later is blown foul. What is it?

* * *

A ball that passes outside the ground is fair or foul according to where it disappears from the umpire's view.

In other words, the umpire must continue to follow the flight of the ball even after it passes out of the park.

The status of such a drive is then determined by where the ball is when the umpire last sees it.

In the above query the ball was foul.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

Dufferin All-Stars Will Hold Workout on Monday.

The "Duffs," the All Star East City Midget Team, will hold a general practice and tryout on Monday, May 31st, at Dufferin Park (in place of a better) All that remain of last year's Bantam team are requested to turn out at 6.30 o'clock. There is room for many more tryouts, and all those on hand will be given a fair trial. The All Stars are expected to live up to their name this year, having several good recruits on their roster. A big array of right handed and port-isde pitchers is expected to turn out.

Few baseball players are able to show such a consistent batting record as that of Horace Ford, the former National Leaguer who is now plaing with Minneapolis. Ford batted .279 in 1921, .272 in 1922, .271 in 1923, .272 in 1924 and .273 in 1925.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

MILTON SILLS CAST AS "WOMAN HATER"

Famous Star Appears as Italian Count in 'The Unguarded Hour."

Milton Sills appears as an Italian duke in "The Unguarded Hour," a First National picture which comes to the Capitol Theatre next Monday, with Sills in the starring role and Doris Kenyon as the featured feminine player.

Instead of fighting giant ruffians and battling in the prize ring, lumber camps and primeval forests, as in "The Knockout," Sills will be seen in this picture playing the role of the cultured Duke Andrea, a young man whose chief delight in life seems to be hating women and working long hours in his laboratory, where he is engaged in solving scientific problems that deal with ether waves and radio.

Sills in Action

However, Sills breaks into action in one of the biggest scenes in the picture and with his bare fists disarms the villain and forces him over a balcony rail, where he falls to his death on the stones below. In another exciting scene Sills puts aside his studies and plunges into the briny deep and swims a hundred yards or so to the rescue of Miss Kenyon and brings her back with the ease of a beach life saver.

In "Unguarded Hour" Miss Kenyon has one of the best roles of her screen career. She plays the part of a dashing young American girl who goes to Italy and there turns the head and heart of the woman hating Duke. Miss Kenyon provides one of the greatest thrills of the picture when she crashes to earth in an airplane in the scene where she and her maid arrive by airplane at the Duke's talian home. Miss Kenyon, who is usually seen in roles that are either highly dramatic or depict a girl whose only attributes are being sweet and charming, bursts into real comedy in this picture. She is again a new Doris Kenyon, and Manager Fletcher declares Miss Kenyon is a real comedienne.

Strong Support Cast

An unusual cast supports Sills and Miss Kenyon. Among these are Jed Prouty, who has long been one of the best known musical comedy comedians; Claude King, who came to America from England to play the part of Rudolph Solomon in Ethel Barrymore's stage presentation of "Declasse"; Dolores Cassinelli, concert singer and stage star; Vivia Ogden, who gained her first screen fame in "Way Down East"; Cornelius Keefe, who has one of the prominent roles in the present Broadway stage success, "The Poor Nut"; Lorna Duveen, leading woman for Milton Sills in his last starring picture; "The Knockout," and Charles Beyer who played a prominent role in the last Ben Lyon-Mary Astor picture, "The Pace That Thrills." Lambert Hillyer, who directed Bill Hart in twenty-fice of his biggest successes, directed "The Unguarded Hour" under the supervision of Earl Hudson.

AT THE REGENT

A WHALING EPIC.

"In the 'Sea Beast,' an adaptation of the novel 'Moby Dick.' I hope to make live again before the eyes of America and the world, one of the most adventurous, colorful and characteristically American of industries, that of whaling, now defunct, and living only in all its glory and glamor in the traditions of New Bedford, and of such novels as 'Moby Dick.'"

In these words John Barrymore summed up the attitude of the entire Warner Bros. West Coast studio force engaged in the making of "The Sea Beast,' which comes to the Regent Theatre on Monday for a four days' run.

"There was a wealth of romance in the whaling industry of New England back in 1840. On the blunt bowed, drop drafted whaling vessels were bred the hardy Yankee sailors who brought the maritime triumphs of war and peace to America. Now, of course, those brave times are nothing but a memory in such towns as New Bedford, once brimming over with the bustling activities of the bluff New England sea people proud of the task of supplying light to the entire civilized world.

"It is the mighty spirit of teh New England whalers that we have attempted to capture for the silver sheet in the production of 'The Sea Beast.'"

Why Firestone Tires Are Better

Tires of the Firestone standard of quality must be manufactured from the best grades of raw materials.

The same high purpose that characterizes the organization at Hamilton, Ontario—the same thoroughness and loyalty to the Firestone ideal of service—are found in the far places of the world where Firestone must go to obtain the best quality and value that the raw material markets afford.

A buying organization with ten separate offices in the rubber growing centers of the British and Dutch Colonies enable Firestone to obtain the highest grade of rubber and insures an adequate supply by purchasing at the source of production.

Only the best grades of cotton from Egypt and the United States are able to pass the registered Firestone buying standards—recognized as the most exacting in the trade. Here again Firestone has provided protection of quality by the ownership and operation of his own cotton mills.

Firestone leadership assures to dealers a tire backed by ample resources, special facilities for obtaining raw materials and the Firestone pledge of

IN POLICE COURT

Nemesis followed hard on the heels of Ernest Stoneburg, who committed a theft of a purse containing $3.60, from the home of Mrs. W. R. Patch, George street, was apprehended an hour later, and was sentenced this morning by Magistrate O. A. Langley, in the police court, to ten days in jail, after he had pleaded guilty. Accused in admitting the offence, pleaded for leniency. He said he had a wife and family who were in great need, while he was unable to find work. When the opportunity to take the purse came to him he yielded to the temptation. He knew he should not have done it.

Police Chief S. Newhall stated that the accused was a peddler, going from house to house. After Mrs. Patch had answered his knock at the door she went upstairs to attend to a sick child. Soon afterwards she had missed her purse, which she had laid near the door. She phoned the police giving a description of the man. Stoneburg on being stopped and interrogated by the detective stated that he had found the purse on Homewood avenue. He also had the money, which however he had taken out of the purse.

The Chief said that petty thieving had become very prevalent of late in Peterboro Fifty or sixty such cases had been reported within the past two months. He did not suggest that accused was responsible for all these thefts. Many of them however were committed by door to door peddlers. Their practice was to knock at the door, and finding no one within they proceeded to take what they could.

After the magistrate had given sentence accused asked "Could you do no better?" but His Worship refused to reconsider his decision.

SONG RECITAL.

There was a good attendance in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, for the song recital given by Mrs. Mabel Foote, mezzo soprano, and Miss Bertha Hill, contralto, pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, assisted by Mr. Harry Northrope, pianist, pupil of Mr. Otto Gliddon. Miss Mary Agnes Logan played accompaniments for the vocal numbers.

The vocalists afforded excellent examples of the careful training imparted to her pupils by Mrs. Park. Mrs. Foote has a light, dainty mezzo soprano voice, with an exceptionally good effect in her pianissimo work. Miss Hill's deep-toned, rich contralto is very pleasing and she gives much careful attention to phrasing.

The playing of Mr. Northrope was exceptionally good. Several difficult numbers were played entirely by memory, with a confident, easy execution, a bright, ringing tone and a loud, firm touch that bespoke much training and a high degree of musicianship in the youthful performer.

The programme, which was pleasingly varied, was as follows: Vocal numbers by Mrs. Foote: "Be not Extreme, O Lord" (Elgar), "Songs my Mother Taught Me" (Dvorak), "Morning Hymn" (Henchel), "Twilight" (Elgar), "Elsa's Dream," from "Lohengrin" (Wagner), "The Dreary Steppe" (Gretchaninoff), "A Birthday" (Woodman), "The Crying of Water" (Campbell-Tipton) and "Then Weep! Thou Grief-worn Eyes" (Massenet). Sung by Miss Bertha Hill: "Inflammatus" (Stabat Mater) (Dvorak), "Sapphic Ode" (Brahms), "In May" (Schumann), "My Abode" (Schubert), "Che Faro" (Orpheus) (Gluck), sung in Italian, "Silent Noon" (Vaughan-Williams), "Before the Dawn" (Lang), "Salaam" (Lang), and "Love's Philosophy" (Quilter). The two ladies also sang a duett in the "Barcarolle" from "The Tales of Hoffman" (Offenbach). Both received hearty applause at the conclusion of their numbers, and were presented with several beautiful bouquets of flowers. Miss Logan also received a pretty bouquet.

Mr Northrope's pianoforte numbers were Chopin's "Nocturne in F Minor" and "Polonaise in A Major," Bach's "Prelude and Fugue," and Liszt's "Cantique d'Amour," with an encore to this group in a Chopin Prelude.

PLAY PRESENTED BY DRAMATIC CLUB

Ennismore People Put on Play at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum.

There was a good attendance in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening, for the presentation of a three-act play, "Will o' the Wisp," by the Dramatic Club of St. Martin's church, Ennismore, under direction of Rev. J. McAuley. The club was assisted by the orchestra of St. Martin's parish, with members in Mr. and Mrs. Michael Twomey, Messrs. Earl Hickson and Herb Killen, the orchestra being augmented by players from the city parishes. Between acts, Miss Margaret McGuire gave several vocal solos.

"Will o' the Wisp" is a comedy drama in three acts, and was splendidly enacted by the group of clever players from Ennismore, every member of the cast taking his or her part in excellent fashion, and receiving plenty of applause from the audience. It depicts the romance of Sheila Desmond, a pretty Irish lady, daughter of the impoverished Magistrate Desmond, whose two suitors, Neil Dacy and Terence O'Malley, son of the wealthy Squire O'Malley, are competing for her favor. The home of the Desmonds in Ireland forms the background for the play, and here is Sarah, the faithful housekeeper with the Irish tongue, and Danny, her grandson, to add comedy touches to the action of the play. Terence is the villain of the piece. He manages to attach suspicion as to the shooting of his father, on Neil Dacy, and the latter is taken away by the constable, but Sheila, who later turns out to be the highwayman, the "Will o' the Wisp," remains true to her lover, and all ends very satisfactorily, after Shamus O'Brien, a poor tenant of the hard landlord, Squire O'Malley, tells what he knows about the shooting affair.

The cast is as follows: Miss Mary Harrington as Sheila Desmond; Mr. Joseph McGuire as Neil Dacy; Mr. John Young as Squire O'Malley; Mr. John Harrington as Terence O'Malley, the Squire's nephew; Miss Elizabeth Sullivan as Sarah, the housekeeper; Mr. D. J. Pierce as Anthony Desmond, the magistrate; Joe Kennedy as Danny, Sarah's grandson; Mr. Thomas Harrington as Shamus O'Brien; Mr. Michael Crough as the constable, and the Misses Berenice Scollard, Margaret Mulvihill and Margaret McGuire as a committee of the Ladies' Aid, who come seeking donations for charitable work.

BARON BYNG BIDS FAREWELL TO PEOPLE OF CANADA'S WEST ON LAST TOUR OF DOMINION

Badge of Manitoba Gold Presented To Governor General.

HUGE CROWDS.

Vice Regal Party Royally Entertained—Visibly Affected.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, May 31.—Canadian Press. — Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor General of Canada, left with Lady Byng for Eastern Canada on Saturday, after an extensive tour of Western Canada.

During the tour the Governor-General said farewell to the people of Western Canada and he was received everywhere with demonstrations of affection and regret at his coming departure.

He was the guest at three farewell functions here on Saturday. The Manitoba Command of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League tendered the Vice-Regal party a luncheon at noon. At the same hour the Women's Canadian Club entertained Lady Byng. Later both Baron Byng and Lady Byng attended a reception by the women's organizations affiliated with the various local veteran organizations.

A troop from the Lord Strathcona Horse escorted the visitors to the station where a gathering which included the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, the Premier and high civic officials waited for a final word of farewell.

Gold Badge.

As the guest of the newly formed Manitoba Command of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service league Baron Byng was presented a gold badge of the organization. The medallion was struck out of Manitoba gold from the Rice Lake district.

Brigadier-General H. M. Dyer, moved a vote of thanks to the Governor-General for his services to the Dominion and expressed regret on be half of the people in Western Canada at the loss suffered by the country in his departure.

His Excellency in reply referred in touching terms to the cordial reception and loyal expressions manifest throughout their western tour. Canada, he said, forever would be close to his heart.

Shortly before the party entrained Baron and Lady Byng held an informal reception at the city hall, where a number of former servicemen, war widows and auxiliary workers, were presented.

Crowds lined the streets along which their excellencies drove towards the station. The party was accorded a genuine western farewell. Baron Byng was unmistakably affected by the demonstration.

BANK ROBBERS SECURE NO LOOT

Set Building on Fire While Trying To Crack Safe.

TELLER BEATEN.

YORKTON, Sask., May 31.—(Canadian Press.) — Three men made a daring attempt on Saturday night to rob the branch of the Bank of Toronto, located at Preeceville, near here. The men were reported to have dragged the teller, Miss Enna Lindolun, from her home near the bank, and after beating her, forced her to go to the bank with them and open the door of the safe. She could not open the inner door which was controlled by a time lock. The men are said to have then made an attempt to blow the safe open, during which they set fire to the bank building. Becoming frightened they fled without any loot. The fire is reported to have destroyed most of the bank records. Miss Lindolun's condition was given as serious.

Talking About Bandits; Hear This Hotelkeeper!

A person hears a lot these days about grasping hotel men and many complaints regarding overcharging and lack of service, but it remained for a Stoney Lake resort to provide an unique example of the hotel man's side of the story.

On Saturday last at a resort not far from Peterborough a car pulled into the hotel's private grounds and discharged its passengers, who were city people out for the day. The occupants of the car wandered about the grounds, partaking of the pleasures that they afforded and when supper time came one of the ladies in the party ambled up to the verandah of the hotel, appropriated a table and a couple of chairs, which she carried some distance, and finally located them under some shade trees. She needed another chair, apparently, for back she came, and as there were none vacant she asked a gentleman, a guest of the hotel, if she could have his, and being a gentleman he gave her the chair.

And this is what happened! They spread a table cloth, brought out their supper from the car and started to eat it in a nonchalant manner. After they had finished, they stayed around for a while and eventually re-entered their car and started for home, without spending a nickel at the hotel.

On being questioned, the hotel keeper stated that it was a very common occurrence and was only one of the evils that he had to contend with during the season.

TICKET OF LEAVE TO PETER SMITH

Former Provincial Treasurer To Be Released From Kingston.

ORDER SENT.

OTTAWA, May 31 (Canadian Pres).—Release on ticket of leave has been granted to Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, now confined in Portsmouth Penitentiary. The telegram which provides for the release of Smith forthwith was sent last night by the Under-Secretary of State. The case has been under review by the Cabinet. Smith was convicted and sentenced on October 24, 1924, to three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston, on charges of conspiring to defraud the Province of Ontario in connection with the purchase of bonds when he was Provincial Treasurer.

FINE NOT MENTIONED.

OTTAWA, May 31. Canadian Press. — The order in council under which Peter Smith was released on ticket of leave, does not, it is stated, make any mention of the fine—the order merely provides for release on ticket-of-leave.

Goes Back Home.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 31 (Canadian Press).—Peter Smith, former Treasurer of Ontario, undergoing a three-year sentence in Portsmouth Penitentiary, was released at one o'clock this afternoon after serving about half his term, and left immediately for his home in Stratford. He obtained his liberty on ticket of leave, authorized by the Federal authorities. At the Penitentiary to meet Mr. Smith were James Groves from Stratford and other friends, and the party departed for Stratford by motor car immediately.

Peter Smith was convicted and sentenced on October 24, 1924, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Province of Ontario in connection with a purchase of bonds while he was Provincial Treasurer.

Until he entered the Drury Government in 1919, Peter Smith had been a farmer near Stratford most of his life. He is 49 years of age.

Peter Smith came through the big iron gates of the Penitentiary exactly at one o'clock, and was greeted by fourteen newspaper men from Toronto and other points. There were also several camera men. "Make a good pictur, boys," said Smith, surveying the party with a smile. Approaching the big sedan that was waiting to take him to his home, Smith posed with hat in hand for his picture to be taken.

To those who are acquainted with the appearance of released men, Mr. Smith's rosy countenance was a considerable surprise. There was nothing of prison palor about him. He looked healthy and still possessed his ample waistline.

A few minutes later Warden Ponsford stepped up and, extending his hand to Smith, said: "Well, goodbye, old man, and God bless you." "Thank you, Mr. Warden," replied Smith in a low voice, and he warmly grasped the Warden's hand. He then entered the car and the Stratford party started for the west, with the other car containing the newspaper men bringing up the rear.

Military Course Condemned By Bay Of Quinte Conference Defended By Other Ministers

Cadet Training Encourages Belief in Violence To Settle Disputes.

STRONG DISAPPROVAL.

"Preparedness is a Damnable Thing" Says War-Time Chaplain.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 31 (Canadian Press)—The Bay of Quinte Conference on Saturday afternoon accepted the report of the Social Service committee which deprecated military training in the schools, endorsed the O.T.A. as the best temperance legislation yet enacted in Canada and declared against gambling of any kind in any form. All the clauses of the report were adopted without opposition except the one in regard to military training. This clause was in part as follows:

"That this committee deprecates the establishing of a military course in our educational system in the form of cadet training and the encouragement given the same through the Strathcona fund."

Fear was expressed that a mental attitude was being created within the young which was harmful and which could only tend to encourage belief in violence as the final means of settling all international differences. The clause also deprecated the establishment of officers' training corps within the colleges and called upon the church to express strong disapproval of same. A vigorous discussion followed the reading of the clause which when it went to a vote was opposed by a considerable number. The defenders of military training argued that it made for discipline, efficiency and physical well-being while its opponents contended that it placed emphasis on martial rather than moral force. Rev. Captain Latimer, who won his captaincy in the trenches in the great war, declared that preparedness was a damnable thing as it was really a preparing for war.

Deplores Gambling

In regard to gambling the committee deplored recent legislation permitting gambling at all fall fairs under the supervision of the fairs board. It declared its opposition to gambling upon the turf and the use of the press in giving information to be used by the gambling fraternity. It held parliament responsible for this condition of affairs because of the persistent refusal to declare race track gambling an offence under the criminal code. It deprecated the action of the Senate in using its veto powers in blocking legislation in this direction and called upon the people to exercise their sovereign powers to terminate this state of things.

Inventor Of Camouflage Is Visiting in Canada

QUEBEC, May 31.—The inventor of the art of camouflaging, which was extensively used during the late war, N. Wilkinson, of London, is at present in Canada and is now on his way to Montreal, from which point he will tour Canada.

Nearly 100,000 war widows in Great Britain have forfeited their pensions by marrying again.

Sorry Day For Canada Should Anti-Cadet Propaganda Win.

UNDERMINES EMPIRE.

Sickly Sentimentality Menaces Status of Dominion —Sheer Folly.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 31.—(Canadian Press.) — Propaganda that would curtail school cadet and military training, a policy that strikes at the root of the Empire, was boldly and incisively attacked on Sunday here by Major the Ven. Archdeacon G. R. Beamis, B.V., Chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry and Rector of St. Thomas' church, in his address to the troops of the Belleville garrison at their annual parade to divine service. Recent speeches in Parliament and on platforms with respect to Cadet and Military training were denounced as dangerous. He instanced three great fortresses, Sardis in Croesus time, Edinburgh Castle, when Bruce captured it, and Quebec which Wolfe overcame by scaling the heights leading to the plains of Abraham, all so called "impregnable" and unguarded at their strongest points. Yet it was by boldly attacking at these points that all three were taken.

The Archdeacon reviewed statements frequently heard that Canada was strong, had a friendly neighbor to the south and had no fear of attack, and therefore militia training has been curtailed already to the point were units are mere skeletons.

"The Militia of Canada justified it, existence in the great war," he declared. Militia officers and men covered themselves with glory on battlefields overseas, but we should have taken no such glorious and prominent part in the war if we had not had the militia as the machinery with which to build our glorious Canadian corps. It will be a sorry day for Canada should propaganda against Cadet and Militia training prevail. It is propaganda to undermine our empire status. Shall we sell our importance in the British Empire for a mess of potage; a sickly sentimentality against militarism for fear of training men in discipline in the King's uniform?

Making the Prairies To Bloom

The top picture shows the lecture car of the Canadian Forestry Association, which is now touring the western provinces, demonstrating forestry work through motion pictures and other publicity methods. Below it is a scene on the farm of Andrew Anderson near Alsask, Alberta, demonstrating the effects of practical forestry work on the once barren prairies. At the left are some ten rows of deciduous trees; then several rows of young spruce, and on the right several apple trees. The bottom picture shows the residence of Hon. W. R. Motherwell, dominion minister of agriculture, at Abernethey, Sask., one of the most noteworthy examples of forestry accomplishment on the prairies.

Milk Drinkers Are Cows In Human Form, Says Doctor

LONDON, May 31 Canadian Press).—Milk drinkers are only cows in human form, Dr. Stavros Damoglu, Greek vegetarian physician and resident of London, told the International Vegetarian Union at Central Hall in Westminster on Saturday. He placed both milk and eggs on his list of banned articles of food. 'I would say without fear of contradiction that anyone who indulges in large quantities of cows' milk develops the brains and mentality of a cow and is only a cow in human form," said the vegetarian apostle.

"Is there any greater centre of infection and disease than eggs."

FIVE YOUNG MEN ARE ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

Impressive Ceremony at St. Peter's Cathedral on on Sunday.

CELEBRATE MASS.

First Masses Said at Home Churches By Young Priests.

One of the most impressive ceremonies of the Roman Catholic Church, took place at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, when five young men were ordained to the priesthood of the Church by His Lordship, Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D. D., Bishop of Peterborough. The ordinations took place at the High Mass at half past ten o'clock, which was celebrated by the Bishop, assisted by Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore, and Rev. K. Corkery, of Cobourg. The young men ordained were Rev. Vincent Corkery, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Corkery, Gilmour street, from the Cathedral parish; Rev. C. McCarney, son of Mrs. C. McCarney, Perry street, and the late W. J. McCarney; and Rev. H. Black, son of Mrs. M. Black, Princess street, and the late Henry Black, both of the parish of the Sacred Heart. Rev. L. Cleary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cleary of Hastings; and Rev. Kent Killen, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Killen of Ennismore. Rev. Mr. Killen was ordained for the Calgary diocese.

The Cathedral was packed to capacity for yesterday's ceremonies, with many relatives and visitors from out of town, members of other churches of the city, and parishioners from other sections. The high altar and small altars were beautifully decorated with colored lights, tall-lighted candles and quantities of pink roses and tulips. The music of the mass was rendered by the Cathedral choir and the Children's choir. Priests in the sanctuary were Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Rev. J. F[illegible], who acted as joint Masters of Ceremonies; Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. P. McGuire, Rev. Father Garvey, Lakefield. Rev. Austin O'Brien of Toronto; Rev. Father Forestell, rector of St. Basil's Church, Toronto, Rev. Michael O'Brien of Huntsville; Rev. Gerard Maher, Rev. P. Costello and Rev. J. Moloney. Small Charles Kay, in cream suit, acted as the Bishop's train bearer.

The ceremony of ordination was lengthy and invested with all the mystic, spiritual significance with which the Catholic Church surrounds its sacred services. At its conclusion the Bishop addressed the young priests, calling upon them as ambassadors of the Almighty to go forward with the greatest zeal of which they were capable in the work of saving souls.

His Lordship spoke of the wonderful powers conferred upon the priest in the sacrament of Holy Orders, when the Bishop became the instrument of Christ in investing the priest with the subline power of offering up the holy sacrifice of the Mass, with the power of Baptism and of forgiving sins, and made him just one more link in the endless chain of Christ's service which commenced with St. Peter himself and has come on down in an unbroken line through the centuries of time.

Rev. Father Cleary and Rev. Father Killen celebrated their first masses at their home parishes of Hastings and Ennismore this morning. Rev. V. Corkery said High mass at the Cathedral at nine o'clock, attended by his brother, Rev K. Corkery, and his cousin, Rev. M. O'Brien of Huntsville. A very inspiring sermon on the life and work of the Apostle Paul was given by Rev. P. Kelly of Victoria Road. At the Sacred Heart Church masses at seven and eight o'clock were offered up for the first time by Rev. Father Black and Rev. Father McCarney, when Rev. J. J. O'Brien spoke in congratulatory terms of the excellent records of these two sons of the parish.

PILSUKSKI WON'T ACCEPT OFFICE AS PRESIDENT

Elected By Large Majority, His Refusal is a Surprise.

POST RESTRICTED.

President Not Protected, He Says—Recommend Two Professors.

WARSAW, May 31 (Canadian Press).—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, who overthrew the Witos Government by force, a little more than two weeks ago, created another sensation today by refusing the presidency of Poland.

The Senate and Diet, convened as a national assembly for the purpose, chose him on the first ballot, giving him 292 ballots against 193 for Count Bninski, Governor of Posen, the nominee of the Right parties and the only other candidate. There were 61 absentions. Pilsudski, who was chief of state in 1912, declared he could not accept the post under the restrictions placed upon it by the present constitution. The president, he pointed out, lacked protection against Parliament because under the constittuion he could not dissolve it even in a case of urgent necessity.

M. Rataj, after reading the letter of refusal to the assembly, called a new election for tomorrow morning. In refusing, Pilsudski recommended the election of either Prof. Marjanz Dziechowski, of Vinla University, or Prof. Ignatz Moscicki, of Lemberg University.

A message received by United States Consul Harry M. Walsh of Neuvo Laredo, from Consul Yost at Torreon, said two of the bandits were killed and their leader Galindo wounded.

Six stolen horses were recovered.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Unidentified Corpse Washed Up on Island Near Windsor.

KILLED BY KNIFE.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 31 (Canadian Press).—The unidentified body of a slain woman was washed ashore on the Canadian side of Grosse Isle yesterday. The only clue to her identity were an inscription "Bonnie" on a bracelet and "F.W.A. to G.T." on a ring. The woman had been killed by a knife thrust in the neck at a point about an inch below the chin. Bruises on the arms and the fact that half the victim's front teeth are missing are taken by police as indicating that a terrific struggle preceded death.

ENGINEERS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

Peterborough Branch Engineers' Institute Inspects Young's Point Dam.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT.

The members of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada held their annual outing to Young's Point and South Beach on Saturday afternoon. On arrival at Young's Point the members were conducted over the new dam which is in the course of erection and which it is expected will be open for navigation in a few days.

At the conclusion of their tour of inspection the party proceeded to South Beach. After the "drive the nail" competition, two soft ball teams got into action and, although the result was somewhat lop-sided, the final score being 29-4 in favor of Ross Dobbin's huskies, the clanging of the dinner bell saved what had the appearance of being an utter rout.

The feature of the game was A. L. Killally's two home runs. He had his eye on the sloping bank that leads to the lake and every time he went to bat he pasted the pill right in that direction, taking what the opposition thought was a mean advantage of age and inexperience. However, be as it may, Mr. Killally was the star of the game, in fact he was too good. Once, when posed on third, gazing upon the home plate as if he was used to being there and on being asked why he did not run he rejoined—"Why hurry, there's lots of time." When the pitcher opposing Killally's team forgot himself once or twice and threw a low one to either George Coutts or Paul Manning, the resulting drives would have driven a cricketer green with envy. Clegg as umpire did his best with might and main but there was a strong rumour pervading the camp that Ross Dobbin had had a talk with him before the game, with the result that Killally's colts seemed to get all that was coming to them, and seeing that Ross was pitching for Killally's team, and they won there was considerable grounds for the rumour. After the gang had devoured Mr. Brook's South Beach chickens and smoked his choicest cigars some of them began to holler for the tug of war, but Mr. Brooks had done his part of the job too well—there was no tug of war—various reasons being given for their inability to participate, the main one being too much dinner. Next year the intention is to have the tug of war first and the ball game last.

A. L. Killally starred in a new role at the dinner table, turning himself into a waiter and the manner in which he carried water and trays indicated that somewhere in the dim and distant past he must have had considerable experience.

It was a tired and happy bunch that pulled out for Peterborough, but all voted this year's outing as being one of the best they had had yet.

SUNSHINE PLAY IS BIG SUCCESS

Roseneath Woman's Institute Staged Three Act Comedy—Good Music.

ROSENEATH, May 31.—The Woman's Institute is to be congratulated upon the splendid play, entitled "Sunshine," which was given in the Opera House on May 24. The play took place on the Sanitarium grounds. The stage was banked in flowers and evergreens. At the left side and rear of stage were trees to represent the shrubbery. At the right side of the stage was the portico, which served as an entrance to the Sanitarium. Over this portico were vines, and looked as inviting to the eye as a summer home does on a hot day. The play was a three-act comedy and contained enough mirth to keep the audience smiling for a long while.

The play was introduced by a recitation given by Miss Bessie Turner. This was a warning to the audience to lay aside their cares, relax, and get the spirit of the Sunshine play.

The cast was as follows Sunshine—the leading lady, Miss Berenece Brown, the leading nurse of the Sanitarium, has been concealing herself from a cruel step-father. While in the Sanitarium she scatters sunshine and succeeds in helping Buddy, the baseball player, to make a home run. Buddy, who makes a home run in more ways than one—Mr. Howard Lapp. He was the leading male character and conducted his part with ease. His speeches were very humorous and kept the audience in laughter. Mrs. Whipple, who mourns the loss of her parrot—Mrs. Lily Turner. Mrs. Whipple is represented as a total wreck from nerves. Between worrying over the red-headed nurse and the loss of her parrot and her nerves, she was one of the busiest inmates. Each of her speeches was accompanied by a flood of tears and brought roars of laughter from the audience. Butternip, a hypochondriac, who loves strong tonics—Mr. Orra Robins. Butternip, who appeared always in a wheel-chair, has a strong liking for tonics and anxiously inquired about the percentage.

Miss Gregory, Butternip's nurse—Mrs. R. Crego. Miss Gregory was kept very busy with her patient, Butternip. Mrs. McCann, who boasted of her operations—Miss Bertha Clarke. Mrs. McCann has been an inmate of Sunshine Sanitarium for ten seasons. Her worst worries were, lest the others should forget, that she had had nine operations. Mandelia McCann, the pet of the Sanitarium—Miss B essie Turner Mandelia was very clever and didn't miss anything: her mischievous pranks caused much amusement. Major Kellicott, a sham stockbroker, the villain of the play—Mr. James Eddington. The major tries to interest Mr. Anthony in investing three hundred thousand dollars in Santa-Fe stock. His fraud is exposed. Mr. Anthony, he's engaged—Mr. W. Major. Miss Sylvia Dean, she's engaged—Miss Mildred Lapp, both of whom played their parts well.

Vocal music was rendered by R. E. Parkes and W. G. Davey, with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe as accompanist.

Between acts the Alderville orchestra supplied music.

The proceeds amounted to $83.65.

"BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES"

NEED FOR NATIONAL UNITY EMPHASIZED BY SPEAKER IN SPEECH TO WOMEN'S CLUB

Professor Keirstead, of New Brunswick, Describes Difficulties in the Way.

SUGGESTS REMEDY.

No Room For Bigotry and Intolerance if Canada is to Fulfil Her Destiny.

A rather slender audience, assembled in the hall of the Public Library, under the auspices of the local women's Canadian Club on Saturday evening, heard an inspiring address on "Canadian National Ideals," from Professor W. C. Keirstead of the University of New Brunswick, who is speaking to Canadian Clubs under the aegis of the Association of Canadian Clubs, of which he is a representative. Miss A. N. Lancaster, vice-President of the club occupied the chair.

In his opening remarks, Professor Keirstead expressed his gratitude for the kindly welcome he had received from Peterborough, which he described as a beautiful city. It was a fine thing, he said, to see women taking an active interest in the progress of their country. Women (he hoped they would not misunderstand him) often had more leisure than men, in which to think over the problems and difficulties confronting the nation.

Ideals Defined.

He was there to talk of Ideals. What was an ideal? They would note that the word was idea with an "l" affixed. An ideal, then, was a kind of idea. It was something, a picture or an image with a meaning arising out of previous experience. There was something good in that past experience which the idea reproduced.

As an example of the reproduction of an experience, he quoted the tale related in Charles Lamb's Dissertation on Roast Pig. The origin of roast pig, so ran the tale, arose from the burning of a house in China. Some pigs perished in the fire. Tempted by the appetizing odour from the burned animals, one of the Chinamen tasted a portion. Others followed his example and all liked the roasted pigs so well that they in turn set fire to their houses in order to have the new delicacy. After a while, they discovered that they did not need to reproduce the whole experience to have roast pig. They found out that the heat was the necessary thing in roasting the animals. An ideal was a big idea, something great and good out of experience.

Had they reflected on their national ideals? he asked. In a sense some of the Canadian ideals lacked something of the clarity of those of the nations to the South. The ideals of the United States were born out of war. It was astonishing how quickly people could be got to unite in fighting against others. He felt that Canada had need of clarifying and outlining, in a reflective way, her own national ideals.

Fathers of Confederation.

In going back to the early days of Confederation, they found the ideal was one of creating a united people out of the Canadian Provinces: the development of a new nation: and the abolition of racial sectionalism. Sir Charles Tupper, in his speech in 1860, at St. John pointed out Canada then was composed of 5 different provinces with 5 different tariffs, hostile to each other, 5 postal systems, 5 parliaments, with no common judicial system, no system of defence, with poor roads, no means of communication, no traffic, no common aims and no understanding of each other. Jealousy and sectionalism were rampant, no national consciousness was manifested, the provinces had no weight with the Mother Country, and commanded no respect in the States. Sir Charles Tupper declared that a result of Confederation would be the growth of a national consciousness, and he foresaw a time when Canada would extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Four Attempts.

Ontario's Professor Wrong had said that Confederation was the fourth attempt to solve the problem created by the antagonism between Upper and Lower Canada. Like an ill matched husband and wife they were bound together, but could not agree. The first attempt to bring them more together had been the Quebec Act, which had been an attempt to placate the French. The second was the Constitution. The third attempt ended in a deadlock, and the fourth was the Confederation, which gave to the Federal Government control over that which tended to unite the provinces: and left to the Provincial governments that which tended to separate. To the Federal government was committed the charge over trade, coinage, banking, shipping and the larger problems. The Intercolonial Railway was then built to unite the Maritime provinces with Upper and Lower Canada. Later, the C.P.R. was built to bring in a little colony in British Columbia. Sir John A. MacDonald saw the need of having communication with the other provinces, lest the United States should step in and take the West, confining Canada to the provinces that originally formed the Confederation. The St. Lawrence was deepened and extended to let the shipping carry Canadain trade to Europe. As he saw it, the National Policy arose from the desire of the nation to be independent of the States. For generations this policy succeeded. As a result of it, today, Canada had her own railways, her own great banking system, great newspapers and institutions and great cities forming a market for Canadian goods. Under it was built up an organization shaped according to the needs of the nation.

Three Difficulties.

Many of the difficulties which militated against national unity in the times of the fathers of Confederation had now disappeared. Three difficulties still remained, diversities of race, of creed, and of economic interests. The first was a great problem in the early days. Even today there was not a great problem into which racial considerations did not enter. There was no nation that had not a race problem. All, however, were learning that racial prejudice must go if the highest civilization was to be achieved. He wanted to talk to them frankly. The problem had to be solved. Our men and those from South Africa should go to the Imperial conferences and the League of Nations with sympathy arising from the solution of their racial problems. Many were raising an alarm about the increase in the French population of Canada. No Anglo-Saxon need worry about that. They had to note that there was no French emigration and every census showed a less percentage of French to the total population. The two races were closely allied. They came from a common stock. They were complementary to each other and one was not superior to the other. There was no biological objection to the intermingling of the two races which indeed would lead to a richness in variety from the union of French and English strains. There was no serious difficulty in bringing these races together where each might work its contribution towards national growth.

With regard to the religious difficulty he pleaded for a larger toleration. As knowledge extended bigotry and intolerance would vanish. Intolerance and ignorance were closely related. Time was in favor of knowledge and toleration, as with its passage science and education would increase. In true religion there was a large place for sympathy, toleration and mutual understanding. He felt the truth of Laurier's words when he said, "I shall show a better way in which faith is better than doubt and love better than hate." Let them turn their backs on the fanatic and the bigot, and have a spirit of fellowship with a willingness to differ and yet maintain that fellowship.

He outlined the diversity in the economic interests of the several sections of the Dominion. Some writers, he said, maintained that the unity of Canada was a fiction. He dealt at some length with the grievances of the Maritime provinces and quoted the extreme position taken up by those who drew unflattering comparisons between the respective advantages of dealing with the rest of Canada and with the New England States. The freight difficulties, he thought, could only be solved by a railroad commission composed of experts able to judge the complicated issues. Let the facts be presented to this commission, let the members adjudicate and let all loyally abide by their decision. He thought consideration should be given to the use of St. John and Halifax as ports for outgoing trade even if this meant something in the nature of granting a bonus to these cities. This was just a species of protection such as the manufacturers got. Attention should be paid to the argument that this was similar to fostering a promising infant industry which might well have the attention of all Canada and be enabled to make its contribution to all Canada. He quoted figures which compared the increase in population of the Maritime provinces and the adjoining New England States, showing that the latter were also suffering from the urge towards the West and the great cities.

After dealing with the peculiar problems of the West and of Ontario he emphasied the necessity of getting down to fact finding in the attempt to solve the difficulties.

Finally, he maintained that there was no real unity on the basis of material things. It was in the things of higher intrinsic value that men found the truest and most abiding basis of unity. Only by dwelling on the things of highest value to the soul could Canada find her soul.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 31 (Canadian Press).—An elaborate plan of bank burglars to wreck the vault of the Marshal State Bank was prevented yesterday by a lucky incident The burglars were patient and industrious. They tunnelled from a garage 75 feet in the rear of the bank ten feet under the surface, bracing up their shaft with timbers. The work must have taken weeks. They carried the tunnel through the thick stone basement of the bank. They broke through the floor on Saturday night, gathered $5,000 in small bills and left the money in the garage. Two bank employees entered the bank yesterday saw the big hole in the floor, and summoned the police. In the basement acetylene torches and a vault breaking outfit were found. The $5,000 was picked up in the garage. Frank Batkowski, owner of the garage, showed that he had rented it to men nomed Kowalski several weeks ago.

You will have success, also, in planning and working out big enterprises. You must try not to be sensitive to imagined slights and to guard against jealousy of your friends and companions. You would make a good civil engineer, electrician or architect, as well as being successful in any business or managerial capacity. You will always resent personal criticism, even when meant for your own good. Try to seek the companionship of pleasant people and places, as your nature demands sunshine at all times. Study always whatever tends to strengthen your will, and try to distinguish the true from the false, both in people and things. Learn to respect the opinions of others, and try to control a tendency to strong dislikes, looking instead for the good in others. Marry a girl born in November, March or January. February and September are your good months, Monday your lucky day. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are grey and scarlet.

Lizzie.—You have a feminine, peace-loving nature, charming and affectionate, but without a great deal of initiative. You will suffer much at times through indecision of character and lack of fidelity to a chosen purpose. This element of change and uncertainty does not make for real happiness in any life, but may be controlled. You are very ardent at heart, although frequently considered as cold by those who do not know you well. You are strong in your likes and dislikes and thrive best when surrounded by people you care for. You fear being left alone at night. You are generous and kind-hearted, but inclined to be jealous of your friends and companions. You are very sensitive to slights and should always seek pleasant people and things, as your nature demands sunshine. You are fond of travelling, and will probably take some long journeys in later life. You are apt also to hoard money, and must guard against a miserly tendency. You have strong healing powers within yourself, but must not allow any disease ever to gain a hold on you, as, with you, medicine is very slow to act. You are quite changeable and sometimes are cruel and vindictive. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are gold and white.

Shamrock.—You are conservative in your nature, and unfavorable to new enterprises, with a tendency, too, toward the occult and mystic things of life. You will do best as you go through the world by associating yourself always with others in any work or enterprise. You will not succeed by trying to stand alone. Never attempt, either, to control the affairs of others. You love pleasure and have a great aversion to rules and regulations. You may be quite successful in life if you resolve while still young to control a quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency to sarcasm. The bad habit of putting things off will also do much to mar your life, if you do not try to control it. You may have a great influence for good over others, if you care to exert it, and to conquer your own faults. Try not to be so sensitive and always have some hobby that will occupy your leisure hours. Remember that love comes to those who give out love, and do not criticize others unjustly. Self control will play a big part in your success in life. Marry a man born in June, July, December or January. January and July are your good months, Tuesday your good day. You were born on Friday. Your colors are steel, purple, brick. You would make a good nurse. Your health is fairly good, but you must always be careful of your diet. Remember, while discontented with conditions about you, that work and smiles are great keynotes to success of any sort. You will do well in music, if you resolve to practise hard.

Poorfish.—You have the sort of nature that has considerable charm, but no great depth. You are fickle and changeable and this quality will do much to mar your happiness, because your destiny in life is one of service. You would make a good nurse, but you must constantly watch against this wayward trait. You have a good deal of will power, also skill with your hands, considerable tact and good taste in the choice of language. You are apt to have great influence over others, which you usually exert for good. You are fond of the good things of life and like good things to eat and fine wearing apparel. You have the very bad habit of putting things off and are inclined to love praise and flattery too much. You should learn that every duty well done brings its own reward. You must constantly try, too, to overcome the habit of scolding and nagging. You are a hard worker when interested, but are inclined to be indolent. You have a quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency toward sarcasm. You were born on Saturday. Marry a man born in June, July, December or January. January and July are your lucky months, Tuesday your good day. Your color is pink.

Mollie.—The most dominant trait in your reading is a quality of waywardness and changefulness. Most people appear to have this quality. There are very few who are governed by stable conditions, and this must be the cause of much of the unhappiness of the majority of people. But your reading indicates an extra amount of this fickleness, and I do not think you will have a happy life, unless, while still young, you take a good look at yourself and try to control this trait, particularly. You were born with a considerable amount of attraction, but without much depth, and this fickle quality is quite noticeable in your birth reading. However, your way of happiness in life lies along the road of bringing happiness and joy to the lives of others, so you will have to control many contrary elements in your make-up, along with them a strong tendency toward jealousy, a quick temper and a tantalizing tongue, and much indecision of character. You will mar many good chances by your capricious instincts. And there is one other thing I will warn you of: you crave only for that affection which eludes you a most disagreeable and unhappy characteristic in anyone. You were born on Saturday. Your color is pink. The day you ask about, a Friday, is one for safely undertaking new enterprises and for mild speculation.

Wild Rose.—Although you were endowed at birth with a strong, active, creative nature, somewhat self-centred and inclined to disregard the rights of others, still you have an element of change and uncertainty in your make-up that does not always mean real happiness. This element of fickle waywardness appears in so many of the readings that it must be a predominant trait in most people's temperaments, and probably accounts for much of the unhappiness in the world. You have a good deal of will power and skill with your hands, also considerable tact and taste in the choice of language. You are fond of the good things of life and are inclined to like praise and flattery too much. You have the bad habit of putting things off, and also a tendency toward scolding and nagging. You should control a quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency toward sarcasm. You like pleasure very much and have a great aversion to rules and regulations. You should marry a man born in June, July, December or January. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are the many variations of flame, from rose and yellow to gas blue. The day you ask about, a Saturday, is one for work of any sort and co-operation with your fellows and the instructions of your superiors.

Billy.—You should haev a special aptitude for the fine arts and your nature inclines to good cheer and pleasure. You will do best in most enterprises by allying yourself carefully with others. You will not attain overmuch by trying to stand alone, nor by attempting at any time to control the affairs of your companions. You have a frank, energetic nature, and a dislike of waiting for results. You do not understand that you are quite individual, and that your ways of doing things often confuse others who are not quick enough to keep pace with you. Try to understand yourself better and cultivate the faculty of not seeing those little things which annoy in the daily round. You are very strong in your likes and dislikes, and are honest and conscientious, almost to a fault. You will do best when following out your own ideas, rather than in listening to the advice of others, and try not to depend too much on appreciation and gratitude, which will often fail you. You were born on Sunday. Your color is black.

Muff.—You have a great deal of ability, both of head and hands, and are fearless and kind, when not irritated. This kindness of heart often leads you to assume the burdens of others and you are inclined to pay too much attention to showy people and things, instead of looking for real worth. You have an element of confidence and repose in your make-up that should make for happiness in married life. You are a very loyal friend, as long as you are permitted to have your own way, but make a very bitter and relentless enemy. You will never be as happy and successful as you are intended to be until your spiritual nature is fully developed. Naturally, you are inclined to live too much in the physical enjoyment of life, and you are also inclined to be capricious, which does not make for happiness. You belong to the lucky type that has only to try to do things in order to accomplish them. You should be careful in the selection of your food and never touch strong drink. You do not like housework. You were born on Monday. Your colors are orange and gray.

Sally.—You have a good deal of personal attraction and charm in your nature, but also a considerable element of change and uncertainty that gives you much trouble at times. You should try to control this, as your way of success and happiness in life lies along the path of bringing joy and laughter to the lives of others, and reaping it for yourself second-hand, as it were. You are generous, ambitious and talented, and not easily bowed down by defeat. You are careless about money matters, and also about the returning of borrowed articles, although you do not like criticism of this latter trait. You are very neat and dislike hard, dirty work of any sort. You are easily confused in busy thoroughfares and are apt to suffer from stomach trouble, brought on by worry, anger and impatience, faults which you should try to control at all times. You were born on Sunday. Your color is pink.

F. A. R.—You have a nature that is peace-loving and kind, lacking just a little in efficiency. Your way of success lies along the line of help to others, giving them understanding and sympathy, and you will achieve much in this way, once you resolve to see your true self and assert your true self. You are proud and upright with a great sensitiveness in your makeup. You should always seek the society of pleasant people and places, and look for sunshine, which your nature demands. You are fond of saving money and may become miserly in later life. You have a tendency to be jealous of your friends and companions and thrive best when surrounded by those you like. You would make a good manager in any capacity, also a successful civil engineer, electrician or architect. Always take great care of your health. February and September are your good months. Monday your lucky day. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are gold and white.

SICK CONVICT MAKES ESCAPE

Walks Out of Kingston Hospital—Has Heart Trouble.

KINGSTON, May 31 (Canadian Press)—Convict Lawrence Hurtubise, of Portsmouth Penitentiary, who has been receiving treatment in the Hotel Dieu for heart trouble, walked out of that institution last night at six o'clock and has not been seen since. Hurtubise was sentenced at Toronto in August last to seven years for housebreaking and theft. Three doctors pronounced him in such a bad shape that he had only a short time to live.

Miss Margaret Partridge, a member of the British Women's Engineering Society, has just installed a complete electrical plant for supplying a town in Devonshire with current. She not only originated the scheme, which is a co-operative one, but herself designed the power station and supervised its erection.

AN ACT OF JUSTICE.

The decision of the Federal Government, which has been endorsed by the House of Commons, to remit to automobile dealers the excise tax paid on automobiles remaining in their hands at the time when this tax was repealed by order-in-Council in December, 1920, will be generally approved as a simple act of justice.

Peterboro dealers, in common with their fellow-dealers in all parts of the country, were heavy losers when this tax was suddenly repealed.

On the cars they held in stock at that time they had, of course, paid the excise tax.

The repeal of the levy meant that the tax could not be passed on to the ultimate purchaser, and the dealers had to write off the tax as a loss, which on the average amounted to $833.33 per dealer.

Altogether the dealers of the country had on hand at the time 7,503 cars, so that the total loss of the automotive men was heavy.

Legally perhaps they had no claim for a refund of this amount, but they most certainly had a claim in equity, and it will be regarded by the public as a just action to remit the tax and to include the accumulated interest.

The automotive dealers have conducted a long campaign, assisted by the newspapers, to have this matter re-adjusted, and they are to be congratulated upon the successful outcome of their efforts.

MILITIA TRAINING.

The request of the militia officers of Canada for an increase in the appropriation for non-permanent militia training is one with which those who have any knowledge of the situation will sympathize.

As a matter of fact, officers of militia regiments who are striving to hold the skeleton of their units together on the meagre money voted for this purpose are facing an almost hopeless task.

So impossible is it to get results from the present appropriation for militia training that there is danger of many units becoming defunct.

There are in Canada thousands of former overseas officers ready to serve in the militia and to give the benefit of their experience to their country in the training of volunteers.

Yet the benefit of this experience is being largely wasted because of the parsimonious policy adopted in connection with militia training, a policy that has cut the organizations down almost to the vanishing point, and that does not supply enough money even to allow this greatly shrunken organization to function.

The militia has been reduced to a mere framework.

At least, it should be made possible to put that frame-work in such a condition that it could be built upon in the event of an emergency.

Not even that much can be accomplished unless there is a larger appropriation voted for the purpose.

The comic opera side of the situation is that it is considered necessary to pay a Cabinet salary to a Minister of National Defense, while at the same time the military forces of the country are being starved out of existence, and there will be soon no organization over which the Minister can preside.

A NEW ROAD PROBLEM.

For the past decade Ontario has been feverishly building highways in answer to the demand from a constantly increasing motor traffic for better roads.

Many miles of permanent highway have been laid, but much remains to be done, and already the question arises as to whether or not a mistake has been made in making the highways already constructed too narrow.

The new factor in the situation is the advent of the motor bus.

In the expanding use of the highways there is no more striking phase than the great increase in the number of motor buses acting as common carriers.

Ten years ago they were practically unknown; today it is estimated that there are in operation in Canada close to one thousand buses, and the number is steadily increasing.

They add to the traffic congestion on the highways, and with increasing numbers of merchandise trucks as well, represents a new problem to road builders.

In view of the change in the past ten years, can any one say with any degree of certainty that the present highways will be adequate to handle the traffic of 1936?

If the roads are to be turned into right-of-ways for motor busses of the Pullman car type and huge freight trucks growing ever more numerous, the time is not far off, it seems to the Examiner, when the highways will have to be widened as a safety measure.

This aspect should be considered now, for it seems impossible to escape the conclusion that it would be more economical to carry out the widening process as new roads are built rather than to have add a strip later on when the need arises.

THE 93RD RE-UNION.

The fact that the former members of the 93rd Peterboro County Battalion are to hold a re-union tonight will bring back vividly to the memory of Peterboro citizens the days that seem but yesterday, but yet are over ten years back, when the khaki-uniformed officers and men of that battalion were seen everywhere on the city's streets.

This unit and the 247th Battalion which followed it were the only military forces to train in Peterboro during the war, and because of that fact and because, too, their membership was made up almost altogether of citizens of the city and district, there was a close relationship between these battalions and the community generally.

The spectacular features of the 93rd Battalion's stay in Peterboro, the march-outs, recruiting rallies and other incidents of that nature, are not any more clearly remembered than is the splendid behaviour of the members of the battalion on all occasions during their training here.

Somewhat unusual privileges is the way of late passes and other concessions that might have been dangerous if given to some units were repaid by the members of the Peterboro County battalion in steady and soldier-like deportment and in the liking and respect for the officers of the unit, with the result that a most excellent esprit-de-corps existed at all times.

To Lieut.-Colonel T. J. Johnston, the officer commanding the battalion, tonight will be a happy occasion indeed in bringing around him once more many of those who were in his charge back in 1915 and 1916.

LOUD-HEEL SHOES.

Arthur Greene of the Scientific Equipment Department of the National Electric Light Association, told his audience in Atlantic City the other night that, measured by the audiom . ., the heels of women's shoes are a good deal noisier than the heels of men's shoes. By the same expert measurement he found that one wave beating upon the shore makes more of a hubbub than all the crowds promenading the boardwalk.

Thus it would seem that noises have at last met their Waterloo, so to speak, at the hands of investigative science. The audiometer no doubt will tell how much noise a fly makes as he walks across a pane of glass or reduce a thunderstorm to units of detonation. It is all very wonderful, but meanwhile no great progress is being made in the suppression or abatement of the noises that make of most cities a growing bedlam of distraction.

A critic with the disposition to carp might challenge the aforesaid investigative science on that score. Why this trivial research into the comparative squeaks and clops of the various kinds of shoe heels while the deafening gride and roar of city streets go on from worse to worse? If smoke can be abolished—although that goal is not pursued with any great enthusiasm—why cannot the inventors get rid of the noise nuisance? Is it, after all, necessary that the complicated machinery of the city should run to noise the way it does? A reasonably noiseless city would be the greatest invention of the age.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PREMIERS TO POOL IDEAS.

The interprovincial conference to be held at Ottawa on June 7 will have for consideration at least three subjects any one of which would justify the holding of the meeting. They are the matters of "blue sky" legislation, double taxation, and standardizing of taxation as between Provinces.

If the latter two can be ironed out so as to eliminate vexation and confusion for the taxpayer, taxes may be relieved of some of their unpopularity. When two or more Provinces levy the same tax on a property, as in the case of inheritance taxes, for instance, a feeling prevails that injustice is done. When the various Provinces have different forms of taxation, it appears as though all of them are groping in the dark, an impression which some measure of standardization might remove. If, after getting Provincial taxation on a fair basis, an understanding could be had with the municipalities for the removal of double taxation and for standardization, and for the simplification of collection machinery, the taxpayer would be still more appreciative.

Several of the Provinces have sought ways and means of protecting unwary investors through legislation. Western Provinces are said to have met with satisfactory results by delegating authority to a court official to scrutinize securities offered for sale. Ontario has on two occasions passed "blue sky" laws, once under the Drury Government and once under the present Government, but neither has been made operative through proclamation. If millions of dollars are lost annually in Ontario alone by reason of sales of worthless securities, as Justice Fisher states, it is high time something was done to drive the illegitimate salesman off the market.

It is to be hoped that the pooling of experiences and of ideas by the Provincial Premiers on this subject will bring constructive results. If the Provinces themselves cannot find the remedy, they should seek assistance of the Federal authorities. It may even be considered advisable to ask Federal co-operation in the establishment of a court to which persons suspected of handling fraudulent securities might, upon complaint, be summoned for a hearing without publicity and without prejudice to their business, unless it were found necessary to refer the case to another jurisdiction for prosecution. Indeed, such a court might be made to serve as a check on commercial frauds of all kinds by assuming functions somewhat similar to those given the Federal Frauds Court of the United States.

The conference will be watched with interest, not only because of the subjects to be considered, but because Provincial co-operation is a sign of healthy, national good-will.—The Globe.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

STATE-OWNERSHIP—A MENACE

Sir,—With your kind permission I have endeavoured to show what putting the people in the hands of a few (called a government) really means. It means that the fierce rivalry which now rages for control of the treasury will greatly increase, carrying with it, under state-ownership, full control of the people. I have shown how clearly the Methodist Church of Canada has adopted boldly and frankly a "social and political program;" how the intervention of religion in politics means the control of the people by the government and the control of both, by the army marching under the "leadership" of a Church of Canada, and all those who connect up with it. But I have not yet referred to the banks. A beginning of state-ownership in that direction was made with the provincial bank, established by Mr. Drury. In time, as desposits increased, the people would have to look to the provincial bank for its loans, accommodations, etc. Other banks would have to go out of business. Now I leave to others the unfolding of the picture of a people morally, financially and commercially in the hands of an absolute power or clique called a government at Toronto, and I will just refer to the political side of it. The customs investigation at Ottawa shows that people are but people and often pretty poor shift at that, whether Grit, Tory or Progressive, Independents, or women. The Civil Service Commission, that absurd attempt to divest those who have supreme power of all responsibility, the only check on them we have, has shown how dangerous it is for the people to lose control and give it over to others. But to hand ourselves over to any political party which would then draw to itself in hope of plunder, all the blackguards of the country who would bask in their rottenness and preying in the smiles of their governmental employers, would be the maddest thing we have done yet. The first to suffer would be our women, who have shown how absolute, fanatical and ignorant of liberty they can be when they try. Upon them would first fall the axe of the social and political program of cliques and bands of cliques, and they would learn what experience has apparently failed to teach them—that the iron rule of others strikes the weakest first and hardest—and that with the general degeneration of the "individual" from lack of growth as "individual" he would have to turn to something else than business and that would be the plunder and worse of the weaker sex. The state and all that is in it may be likened to a box which, when turned upside down and the top is made the bottom and the bottom the top, completely changes the condition of both. When the people give up control of themselves they ought to know what to expect.

The tendency throughout the world is towards "dictatorships." We are full of the spirit of it in Ontario, but it will prove a dangerous experiment. Weak and docile people are very pleasant and can be easily made to do our bidding, and being no better than ourselves, escape our envy, but in the end the cheapest proves the dearest.

—J. H. Burnham.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

"COURTESY FIRST"

The Desire of Pleasing is at Least Half the Art of Doing It

Courtesy, kindness, consideration, are all gifts that make the day-by-day work of the world easier. Courtesy "suffereth long and is kind."

Kindness suggests that the 'green' hand be taught how to work properly and in safety. Courtesy suggests that other people's wishes and right should be respected.

Consideration and courtesy demand that you protect your fellow-workers by refusing to take a chance that may bring injury to them.

If you, without intention, bump against another on the street or in the shop, a brief "I'm sorry" is better than "Fool" or an angry glare. Courtesty costs little and pays big dividends.

As a remembered slogan, "Courtesy First" will prevent both traffic accidents and industrial accidents.

"Courtesy First."

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 31. Canadian Press. — It was the unexpected that happened in the wheat market Saturday. Instead of wheat prices skyrocketing as generally had been looked for, and speculators who were short of wheat being unmercifully squeezed, month end settlement of accounts was effected with a minimum of excitement and with market quotations but little out of the ordinary. Holders of contracts calling for immediate delivery of wheat displayed rare forebearance and satisfied all bidders without turning prices either radically up or down, despite the fact that the stock of wheat on hand here is far less than usual at this time of year.

The closing quotations on wheat were fairly steady at the same as Friday's finish to 3¼c lower, with corn 1-8 to 1¼c down, oats unchanged to 3-8c off and provisions varying from 17c decline to an equal advance.

Energetic measures taken by the business conduct committee of the Board of Trade membership, together with the efficient working of new Clearing House arrangements of the board, appeared to be largely responsible for the fact that spectacular last day swings in prices were avoided in the wheat pit. A temporary difference of 6 7-8c in the value of old style May contracts was the sharpest fluctuation witnessed and this change affected but a relatively small amount of business. New style May contracts in which the bulk of unsettled dealings were outstanding were kept within a price range today of 4½c whereas a variance of 31 cents had been deemed not improbable.

EXCHANGE RATES.

MONTREAL, May 31. — Sterling Exchange rates were quoted here on Saturday as follows:

Sterling cables, $4.85 3-4.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Que., May 31. — Canadian Press. — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market on Saturday was quiet, there being practically no demand; the domestic trade in car lots of spot grain was also quiet but the tone was steady.

The undertone to the spring and winter wheat flour markets was easier but prices showed no change. The volume of business in both cases was small.

A fair trade was transacted in millfeed and the tone of the market was firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but prices were steady.

Prices for all grades of potatoes were well maintained under a quiet demand.

The egg market was fairly active and the feeling was firm. The receipts were 3111 cases. The turnover on the butter market was fair, and prices were unchanged. The recipts were 1956 packages.

The feature of the cheese trade of late has been the demand from United States sources and it is estimated that they have bought several thousand boxes. Prices were firm. The receipts were 9014 boxes.

MUST HANDLE ALL BRANCHES

Questions of Military, Naval and Air Armaments Go Together.

EXPERTS MEET.

GENEVA, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—Naval, land, and air disarmaments must be handled collectively, not separately. That was the decision of the military, naval, and air experts in their first encounter over this vital question, upon which may be said to hang the fate of the Geneva disarmament deliberations.

The British, United States, and Japanese representatives are believed to be in favor of treating naval limitations as a distinct question without, however, separating it completely from Geneva's centralized effort to achieve reductions in all forms of armaments.

NO CONVENTION UNTIL ELECTION

Action of Ontario Liberal Election Confirms Sinclair in Leadership.

PROHIBITION PARTY.

TORONTO, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—The executive of the Ontario Liberal party, gathered to the number about 200 vetoed, after a long discussion, the proposal to hold a party convention. The decision was reached by a vote of almost two to one and is generally regarded, says a report, as definitely confirming Mr. Sinclair in the leadership until after the next provincial election. It also implies that the Liberal Party in Ontario will go officially into the next campaign as the party of prohibition.

The resolution for a convention was submitted by the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association and was argued largely by Albert Pinard, M.P.P. for East Ottawa.

STEAMERS ARE OPERATING ON REGULAR RUNS

Delay For Lack of Coal Disrupted Schedules Last Week.

NEARLY NORMAL.

Fuel is Being Transported To Docks at Liverpool, Says Report.

MONTREAL, May 31 (Canadian Press).—Despite the rationing of coal and a consequent curtailment of transportation facilities in the British Isles, the trans-Atlantic steamship lines are operating on schedule, according to shipping officials here. The conditions which delayed ocean travel a week or two ago have now been overcome. A cabled message from Liverpool to the local offices of the White Star Line here states that the situation is returning to normal. "Coal requirements are now in hand and an abundant supply, sufficient to meet all needs, is being transported to the docks at Liverpool," the report says.

NOISY RADICALS URGE A STRIKE

But Canadian National Telegraphs Will Carry On Work.

SAYS LEADER.

MONTREAL, May 31 (Canadian Press).—Stories of strike threats against the Canadian National Telegraphs, coming from Toronto, should not be taken seriously, declared General Chairman C. McMahon of Canadian National Telegraphs System, Division No. 43, Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, here today.

"The organization called 'Electrical Communication Workers of Canada' is but a camouflage behind which seven men of Radical tendencies are endeavoring to gain recruits for the One Big Union movement," he asserted.

"Three of the seven are American citizens, and their appeal to Canadian patriotism sounds ridiculous to those who have known their international Socialistic tendencies for more than ten years.

"The Canadian National Telegraph employees have an agreement with the company, which was signed by myself a year ago as representative, and they have no intention of violating that agreement by going on an illegal strike at the behest of a few noisy Radicals.

"This is the second time within six weeks that these people have secured free publicity by threatening a strike in Toronto.

"There will absolutely be no strike," Mr. McMahon concluded.

THREE KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF FIREWORKS

Manufacturing Plant Wrecked at Allantown on Sunday Afternoon.

ONE UNKNOWN.

Memorial Day Exercises in Cemeteries Are Interrupted By Disaster.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 31 (Canadian Press).—Three men were killed and one injured yesterday by an explosion that wrecked the plant of the Pennsylvania Fireworks Company, near this city.

The plant went up with a rumbling, thunder-like roar that was heard over a radius of many miles just as many Memorial Day exercises were being held in cemeteries hereabouts. Those killed were Nicholas Tumini and John Tumini, proprietors of the works, and an unidentified man.

The frame structure was blown to bits and windows for an area of a mile were shattered.

FALSE ALARM TRIES NERVES AFTER KILLING

Worker Steps on Button That Brings Twenty Police on Run.

BANDIT HELD.

Davis Killed Bank Clerk During Hold-up—Wide Investigation.

WINNIPEG, May 31 (Canadian Press).—A hold-up alarm, sounded from the offices of the Winnipeg Electric Railway, situated in the centre of Winnipeg business district, brought a score of detectives and constables to the building on Saturday afternoon. It was, however, a false alarm.

An employee of the company inadvertently stepped on a button connecting the offices with the Burglary Protective System, and the alarm was sounded at the police headquarters.

Under the command of Chief of Detectives George Smith, who was wounded in Friday's battle with the bank murderer and robber, the police cars, speeding through the busy streets, attracted great crowds to the building.

Early last fall a pay car of the Winnipeg Electric Company was robbed of more than $80,000, and the robbers were never apprehended.

Seek Bandit's Record

The police are continuing their investigation of the crime record of Harry Davis, the bandit, who on Saturday killed a bank clerk during the Royal Bank hold-up. Believing that Davis, who has served robbery sentences in Stony Mountain Penitentiary may have been connected with other hold-ups in the city, the police summoned officials of the Manitoba Liquor Commission to headquarters for a conference. The commission was robbed of $15,000 last year. Convicts from Stony Mountain Penitentiary also were brought to the city, and will be questioned concerning the history of Davis.

BANDIT RECOVERING FROM GUN WOUNDS

Man Has Long Penitentiary Record—Was Shot Six Times.

WINNIPEG, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—William Davis, alias Walford Bone, the desperado who on Friday shot and killed a royal bank employee in the robbery of Logan Avenue branch and later staged a sensational gun battle with police, is recovering from his wounds. A report from the General hospital said "Davis is progressing favorably and is now on the road to recovery."

Reports from the hospital show that Davis, who has a penitentiary record in the United States, Ontario, and Manitoba, was shot six times by police bullets.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 31.—(Canadian Press).—John Anderson of Brantford identified the bodies of the young man and woman killed when an automobile in which they were riding was struck at a level crossing by the C.N.R. express as those of his son William Anderson, Detroit, and his son's fiancee, Miss Helen Willing of the same city. Tidal Wave Sweeps Away Villages 50 Miles From Sea.

SURVIVORS' PLIGHT.

LONDON, May 31. — (United Press.)—The Ragoon correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph cabled that official reports estimated 1200 dead in a cyclone in Burma.

A huge tidal wave accompanied the hurricane which swept the Arakan Coast on the 22nd, ascended the Noaf river and inundated the entire adjacent country the dispatch said.

Villages were swept away beyond Maungdawa, 50 miles from the sea. All cattle in the affected areas were killed, according to the dispatches and nearly all telegraph lines between Burma and Ndia were cut, cables were seriously interrupted.

There is great suffering in the region about Dutsiadaung and Maungdawa where the survivors are wretched and helpless.

NORTH BAY, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—Fire from causes unknown started in a shed at the rear of the King George Hotel at eleven o'clock last night and spread to the adjoining building occupied by the Despatch, causing considerable damage to the rear of the office, in which was stored a large printing stock.

SASKATOON, Sask., May 31.—(Canadian Press). — James Brown, 24, who arrived from Scotland in the Kelvington, Sask, district two weeks ago, is dead of injuries received in trying to stop a runaway team. Wheat Seeding Completed Earlier Than Last Year

WINNIPEG, May 31.—(Canadian Press).— First general crop report of the Manitoba Free Press for the season of 1926 shows conditions generally favorable with wheat seeding completed from week to ten days earlier than in 1925, relatively little damage from any source. Supply of moisture better than was anticipated and increases in wheat acreages in both Saskatchewan and Alberta.

FROST DAMAGE.

Gardeners at Grafton Suffer Slightly—Prices Stationary.

GRAFTON, May 31.—Gardeners report some damage from the heavy frost the first of the week, but as most of the tomato plants are still in the hothouses, growers did not experience severe losses in this locality. In other adjacent places gardeners did not escape quite so well. Happily the fruit buds were not far enough advanced to suffer. Prices of garden produce are practically stationary, also butter and eggs.

She Was Troubled With Chronic Constipation

Once your bowels become constipated you are in for a lot of trouble, as constipation is one of the most prolific sources of disease that the human race is addicted to, therefore a free motion of the bowels every day should be the aim of everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Mrs. O. W. Lawrence, Cloverdale East, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with chronic constipation, and became so bad I was almost afraid to eat anything.

One day I saw your advertisement of Milburn's

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

so I got three vials, and after taking them I have never been troubled since with constipation."

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

AUDREY MORTON, who has been rehearsing for a cabaret revue in Toronto, where her wealthy guardian, HARRY MORTON, has an apartment, is back in Peterborough, after an emotional explosion. She decides to send for the members of the cast to be her guests.

They come, led by NONA, Toronto stage girl, who is in love with Morton. Audrey, too, loves Morton.

JOHN PARRISH, Morton's secretary, comes out the door, angrily, as Nona and Morton return from a drive. Parrish is in love with Audrey.

(Morton, middle-aged, immensely attractive to women, has recently told his adopted daughter that her mother, when Audrey was an infant, had eloped from her husband, and died, deserted, in a desert shack in Arizona.)

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Without further explanation, Parrish strode away.

Interested, Morton and Nona went into the house. The lower floor was deserted, except for the little housemaid.

"The young ladies are upstairs," she said, primly.

"Come on, we'll look for them," said Morton.

With Nona following after, he started up the steps. The door of Audrey's dressing room, at the head of the flight, opened. The blond, bobbed head of one of the choristers peeped out. She opened the door wider as she saw Morton.

"He's gone!" she cried.

There came a burst of noisy laughter, and she came out into the hall.

Morton stopped.

Nona, beside him, let out a little gasp.

The girl was clad in a suit of Morton's clothes, the trousers turned far up to accommodate the young woman's short, plump limbs, and the sleeves were caught up around the elbows with bits of ribbon.

The other girls swarmed out on the landing. Audrey was one of them.

Each, except one, wore a man's coat and trousers and shirt and collar, drawn from Morton's wardrobe. One was in a stage dancing costume.

"We told him you were upstairs, and when he came we caught him and made him dance!" shrieked the girl in the loose bathing suit.

"Who—Parrish?" Morton asked.

"Who else?" said the blond girl who had peeped out the door. "Did we do wrong?"

She let out another peal of laughter, in which Morton and Nona joined.

"You girls go and take my clothes off," he directed, still laughing.

Audrey descended the stairs, a step or two. Morton and Nona still were midway, leaning against the rail.

"Let us keep them on," she urged. "We're having such fun!"

He cast a glance upward, to where the girls were skylarking, pulling one another about, and dancing, in an exaggeration of the "Charleston."

The blond girl ran down the steps, and threw her arms about Morton. "Don't crab the party!" she begged.

He shook himself loose. "Quit it," he protested.

The girl ran up the steps, and blew a kiss to him as she reached the upper hall.

"What did you do with the boys?" he asked Audrey.

"Gave them some breakfast, and turned them loose," she said. Dimpling, she added: "They didn't say a word the whole time they were here!"

She was wearing his golf jacket and sweater, with the balloon-like knickerbockers doubled about her waist and fastened with a safety pin. Morton and Nona walked down the stairs, Audrey following

"The girls are more fun!" she said. "They're only seventeen or eighteen, you know. The oldest of them is twenty. And they've almost taken the roof off!"

Nona was looking at Morton, mischievously. "Let's join in!" she proposed.

He raised his eyebrows. "Oh, you're always so correct," she went on. "It won't hurt you. You put on one of the girl's dresses."

"Hanged if I do!" he exclaimed, heartily.

At this moment there was renewed disturbance up stairs, and the girls, shrieking, tumbled down the steps. They fell upon Morton, where he stood in the hallway, and seized him in strong young arms.

"Hold him—hold him!" they cried, as he tried to break away.

Throwing themselves on the floor, two of them took him by the legs, and four more held to his arms. Seeing himself overpowered, he was quiet.

The girl in the dancing costume bore a lipstick, and with this, hastily, she laid a coat of brilliant crimson on the end of his nose. She took an eyebrow pencil, passed to her by another girl, and drew a fantastic line along his eyebrows, extending them upward to his temples. Then she drew, sketchily, the black semblance of a mustache on his upper lip.

"Look! Look!" she cried delightedly.

Audrey and Nona, standing to one side, refused his mute plea for help, and laughed at him as the decoration of his face proceeded.

When at last they let him loose, he strode to the mirror.

"Good Lord!" was his only comment.

"He looks like a gambler—a gambler in a show!" cried Audrey, gasping for breath. "Oh daddy, you're so funny

He shrugged his shoulders. Fishing in his pocket, he drew forth a cigaret case, and taking one of the little white rolls, lit it.

"All right—what do I do now?" he inquired.

"Come on," shrieked the little blond. "We're going out in the street!"

"We are NOT!" he countered, firmly. "That's where I draw the line."

She had him by the coat sleeve, but picking her up, his hands beneath her arms, he sat her down in a chair.

"We can't go out," Audrey said. "But we can have just as much fun in here. Come on, Nona—you dress up."

The older girl hesitated, looking at Morton.

"Not now," she said. "I'm a little tired."

The girls, turning their minds to further enterprises, trooped into the kitchen, where presently sounded the clatter of chinaware. Audrey followed them, and Nona dropped into a chair.

"I'd like to dress up, but—"

"But what?" said Morton.

"I don't want to look funny before you," she confessed.

He motioned toward his face.

"But how about me? I'm ridiculous enough."

"No," she told him. "Somehow, you don't look funny. Just—just bad!"

He got up and looked again in the mirror.

"Sort of dissipated, and evil-minded, eh?" he commented, returning to his seat.

"A little like Satan," she told him.

An increasing clatter sounded from the kitchen, through the dining room and butler's pantry that intervened. Morton went to investigate. When he returned, he was driving the entire crowd before him.

"They were mixing cocktails," he explained, "and the cook says she'll quit if they come in there again. The kitchen looks as if a cyclone had struck it. You girls stay out of there."

He departed again. When he returned, it was with an air of satisfaction.

"I've locked the wine cellar, and put away the gin and bacardi and all the rest of the stuff, and I'll not open up again while those girls are here. Where did they go?"

"Upstairs again," Nona said. "They've decided to rehearse a while, before luncheon."

Morton groaned. "And I suppose they'll go out on the lawn in those one-inch costumes of theirs! I'm going down town."

"You can't," Nona reminded him. "Look at your face."

He inspected himself again in the mirror, and with a sigh, excused himself.

"My rooms are filled up with girls," he said. "I'm going to try to get this stuff off."

He turned into a small lavatory that opened from the hall way. After a long silence, he put his head through the door.

"Nona," he called, "will you ask Audrey to get me some cold cream?"

Withdrawing, he waited the round white box that Nona brought to him. She stood outside the door.

"What's the matter, Harry," she called.

"This stuff won't come off my nose," he growled, from within. "Look!"

He emerged, and turned to the light so she could get a better view. She covered her mouth with her handkerchief.

The black was gone from his lip and eyebrows, but his nose still bore the rich carmine that the chorus girl had applied.

"Look at it!" he repeated ruefully. "I can't go down town this way, I've got to stay a prisoner here, with these wild Indians."

Nona, suffocating for an instant behind her handkerchief, now tilted back her head and cried out with laughter. He joined her, though not so heartily.

"Poor Harry!" she sobbed, rocking with merriment.

He walked into the drawing room, and sat down. Nona followed, still rosy with delight, but with her voice under control now.

"It will come off in a day or two," she told him. "I know. It's waterproof lipstick. But don't rub your nose any more. It will swell up."

He touched the offended member lightly, and dropped his hand.

"Well, I don't mind much," he said. "This is really Parrish's misfortune. He'll have to come out here every day now, until my nose gets back its normal color. And I tremble to think what those girls will do to him. He is such a serious young man!"

He went to the telephone, and calling his office, gave brief directions for Parrish to come that afternoon.

Luncheon was accomplished, amid difficulties. The girls had not yet donned their dancing clothes, delayed by frolics through the bedchambers, and they gravely appeared still clad in Morton's gear. They laughed at his predicament, when he told them about his nose. Audrey did not laugh, but wore a worried pucker on her brow when she looked at him. He reassured her.

"I don't mind it, much," he said.

The girls threw head, and chattered, and ate ravenously. Luncheon over, they retired to put on their rompers.

"We'll work an hour, and then play some more," Audrey told Morton.

When Parrish appeared he refused to enter the hall until he was assured the girls were upstairs. He followed Morton into his study, and carefully locked the door.

"Their conduct is outrageous," he told Morton, "and I wonder you stand for it."

He produced a packet of letters, and handed them to his employer.

Morton glanced over them, one by one, dictating his replies.

There was a babble of feminine voices outside, and Parrish looked up apprehensively. He was reassured by a glance at the locked door. The concert grand piano in the music room, at the rear of the hallway, thundered to the stroke of a practiced hand.

"That's Nona playing," said Morton, absently, as he glanced at the next letter in the heap before him.

His brows drew together.

"Confound it," he exclaimed, Parrish waited, as the older man continued his reading.

When he was done, Morton stepped to the door, and opened it.

"Audrey!" he called.

The girl, flushed and panting, appeared.

"Audrey," he said. "I've got to leave for Arizona tonight."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

Luther T. Long, publisher of the Huntington (West Virginia) Advertiser, says:

"THAT when the Lord said, "Let there be light," He spoke to the business world as well as to all others.

Light is life. Advertising is light—the light that points the way to success. It both leads and attracts. It draws customers as the electric light draws the moth.

But it must be an honest light—a beneficent light, or it will kill off or drive off the moth it attracts.

Advertising lights the road to prosperity. Whether you follow depends upon YOU.

Advertising is the sun around which the whole business world revolves upon its various axis.

The light of that sun is the life of the business plant, as it is the life of all plants.

Honest merchandise and honest service are the seed of a healthy plant, but no seed, no matter how hardy, will flower without sunlight.

No matter how fertile the soil—how virile the seed—there can be no growth without sunlight.

No business can grow in the dark. Even the yeggmen are learning that.

O.T.A., protested against a system of government control which was being urged by some members of the legislature and which was an open and deplorable failure in other provinces. The committee expressed its belief that the temperance question would be the most important in the next provincial elections and urged upon the electors the great importance of selecting and supporting only such candidates as were pledged and dependable prohibitionists. "We believe," said the report, "in the sincerity of the Attorney-General in his efforts to enforce thel O.T.A. but would urge upon the government as a whole the strongest enforcement of the act believing that if it were properly enforced bootlegging and its attendant evils would be practically eliminated."

Eliminate Home Brew

The committee urged that the Dominion Government be memorialized to eliminate the granting of permits for the making of "home brew" as this was one of the greatest factors in providing bootleggers with supplies. It advised that the department o fsocial service he requested to take the matter up with the govrnment at the earliest possible moment.

The committee would have the municipalities exercise proper supervision over wayside and unsupervised dance halls and urged that the prolonged hospital treatment of modation for the segregation and proolnged hospital treatment of drug addicts.

Not Wasted Money

MONTREAL, May 31 (Canadian Press).—"I know there are needs on every side of us, but for the country's sake, for our own sake, and for humanity's safe, it is not a waste of money to support a peace time militia; it would be sheer folly to starve it, because of the servic it renders to us, to the nation, and to mankind at large."

So pronounced the Very Rev. Arthur Carlisle, Dean of Montreal, preaching at yesterday's m.litary service in Christ Church Cathedral. "Peace-time soldiering" formed the theme of the sermon.

Major-General J. H. MacBrien, Chief of Staff, was present, accompanied by many officers, including Brig.-Gen. C. J. Armstrong, Brig.-Gen. J. B. White, and Brig.-Gen. F. S. Meighen.

"There are many thousands in Canada who have doubts about the merits of peace-time soldiering," remarked Dean Carlisle. "When the war clouds gather and the storm breaks, they say things are different. But when the sun of peace is shining and everything is calm and bright, they ask: 'Why spend all the time and the energy and the money, all of which are badly needed in so many other directions, in maintaining a military force in a country like ours? Why this waste?'

"Without discussing the question of the possibility of another war, or without considering the never-settled question as to whether or not the presence of a military force fosters a war spirit, I simply want, as a strong believer in military training, to say I have answers to give to people who make that kind of complaint and criticism against a peace time militia. A peace time army is more than worth while.

An Open History

It helped to remind people who were short of memory of what they owe to the soldiers and sailors of other days. There were thousands of people in Canada who never read Canadian history and who never looked thoughtfully and intelligently upon a Canadian monument. They were so self-centred with their own progress that they scarcely gave a thought for anything else. Only a few things could awaken them to a sense of appreciation of what other men had suffered and endured for them. The sight of a battalion on the march was one. The sound of a military band was another. The call of a military bugle was a third.

A military force in peace times did much to keep alive a spirit of patriotism and loyalty, without which no nation could be truly great, said Dean Carlisle. The race for wealth was so persistent, the struggle for prominence so strong and ceaseless, that there was danger of everything else being thrown over for personal prosperity's sake.

Foster Patriotism

"Our youth and childhood are growing up with the idea in their minds that it is a case of every man for himself and that other men and other communities have no place in their minds and lives," he observed. "It will be a sad day indeed, not merely for our nation but mankind in general, if that spirit becomes any more common than it is today. I think it is our human duty to do all we can to check it, to make every possible effort to foster a spirit of patriotic devotion and heroic loyalty. Therefore, make much of our nation's history; make much of our beloved flag, and make much of our peace time militia, for all these things contribute to keep the spirit of loyalty and patriotism forever alive."

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, McDermid & Jury and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

Tomato (Beefsteak and Earlianna) are 1c each where bought out of large boxes. By the box of 12 plants, tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower and asters are 20 cents.

AT COBOURG

COBOURG, May 31—New potatoes are selling in the stores here at 3 pounds for 25c and their appearance has had a tendency to weaken the high price of the old ones, which have consequently dropped in price from $3.50 and $4.00 to $2.50 and $3.00 a bag. Now that farmers know what will be required for seed and personal use many find they have a few bags of potatoes to spare and are bringing them in. Three weeks ago there would have been quickly bought up at $3.50 a bag, but today sales were very slow at a lower figure. Not many householders purchased a bag but a peck or two at 55c to 60c. Spy apples of good size are being sold in the stores at 30c a peck; rhubarb is down to 10c a bunch and asparagus sells from 10c to 15c a bunch. A general price of 25c for plants for flower and vegetable gardens was asked today on the market, with a few selling for less. Butter sells at a general price of 35c a pound, and eggs at 25c for firsts and 28c for extras.

AT MARMORA

MARMORA, May 31—Prices prevailing in local stores on Saturday were:

Beef—Sirloin, 30 cents a pound; round, 25 cents a pound; roast, 15 and 18 cents a pound; stew, 13 cents a pound; lamb, 35 cents a pound; veal, 28 cents a pound; pork, 28 and 30 cents a pound; sausage, 25 cents a pound; eggs, 25 cents a dozen; butter, 35 and 40 cents a pound; potatoes, $3.50 a bag; cabbage, 10 cents a pound; apples 40 cents a peck; cucumbers, 10, 15 and 20 cents each; rhubarb, 5 cents a bundle; Pineapples, 20 and 23 cents each; oranges, 40, 50 and 60 cents a dozen.

All the grocery stores are displaying a fine variety of young cabbage, tomato plants, asters or geraniums. All of these are being retailed at 25 cents a box and with the nice gardening weather there is every prospect of a heavy demand.

Founder Of Montreal Honored By Parisians

TROYES, France, May 31.—(Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's). — A deputation of 100 Canadians studying at Paris University attended the unveiling near here yesterday of a plaque commemorating the birth of Seigneur de Maisonneuve, founder of Montreal. Philippe Roy, Canadian Commissioner-General in Paris, presided at the ceremony and a message from Mayor Mederic Martin, of Montreal, was read.

In the vast universe in which the earth is a mere atom there are perhaps 60,000,000,000,000,000,000 people. At least that is what the figures of Professor Frederick H Seares of the Mt. Wilson Observatory indicate. For he has counted thirty billion suns each of which has at least one attending world. Allowing two billion people—the estimated population of the earth—for each of the worlds, he arrives at the staggering total above.

Professor Seares recently completed counting the stars in the heavens. This seemingly impossible task, says Popular Science Monthly, he accomplished by mathematical calculations, although he could not see, even with the most powerful telescope, 97 per cent of them.

HOTEL WORKER HANGS HIMSELF

John Woodley, Employed at Hall's Bridge, Commits Suicide on Sunday.

REASON UNKNOWN.

Suicide by hanging ended the life of John Woodley, aged 78, for many years an employee of the hotel at Hall's Bridge, in Harvey. No reason for his act could be given by his employer, J. Eastwood, who said that the deceased man had apparently been in good health on Saturday night, and had no worries of any kind. At 5.10 on Sunday morning the deceased got up, and when other members of the hotel staff came downstairs he was found dead.

Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield, the coroner, viewed the remains and decided that an inquest was unnecessary, and interment took place this morning at 11.30.

Mr. Woodley was a native of England, but had been in this country for many years, having been at the hotel for 33 years. One sister lived in British Columbia, but nothing had been heard from her for several years.

The surest proof of being endowed with noble qualities is to be free from envy.

Detroit Man Resisted Robbery at Home.

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—(Canadian Press).—William Newton was shot and killed Thursday night by one of two bandits who forced their way into his home and shot him down when he resisted their demands for money. The bandits escaped with two hundred dollars which Newton had received from a real estate deal a few hours earlier. Newton's eighty-year-old mother witnessed the shooting. Police who chased the robbers fired several shots which they believe took effect, but the men escaped.

Four persons were killed and four were wounded when 16 bandits made a dash for liberty from the city prison.

Six escaped.

STRENGTH

INCALCULABLE! The Strength it took to build the Pyramids. The Strength of materials, the strength of tools, the strength of slaves. Think of the strength of the braided, rawhide cables, that stood the pulling strain of hundreds of sweating, gasping human beings, dragging, inch by inch, the colossal blocks of stone to build the Pharoah's Tomb. STRENGTH—whose immortal monument is the Pyramids; STRENGTH—the virtue we admire in its every form, is as valuable a quality to-day as it was in Egypt seventeen hundred years before Christ.

STRENGTH appeals to the admiration of the world. Strength made Hercules famous. Samson without his strength would have lived and died unknown. Strength is absolutely necessary in things that have to endure wear and tear, especially such immeasurable strain as is put upon the Tire of an automobile. STRENGTH in tread, sidewalls, beads and cords is a quality sought by all tire makers and is attained to such a degree by this Company as to add lustre to the name and fame of "Gutta Percha" Tires. STRENGTH is a quality that cannot be seen, but the buyer's faith in the strength of "Gutta Percha" Tires is justified by the makers' reputation.

FURTHER than Egypt goes the fame of "Gutta Percha" Tires. Their claim to foreign preference is their STRENGTH to endure pioneer conditions of road-ways in primitive lands, and to endure the extremes of climate, too. "Gutta Percha" Tires are well known and their good qualities have made them favorites as far from home as South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the West Indies and Great Britain, China and Japan. The saying "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," does not apply to "Gutta Percha" Tires, for their STRENGTH, has made them as popular in Canada, their home market, as they are in any other part of the world.

THE SMOCK

In the last few days it has swept everything before it as one of the most sensible utility garments that has been developed for women for a long time. The demand for it is becoming greater every day, for office, for factory, for home. They are just about the handiest garment a woman can have, easily slipped on or off, yet attractive in appearance, they are in a class by themselves.

Tuesday we make a special display of Billie Burke Smocks. Being a wash garment, it is essential that it be made from material that will stand washing and the colors must be fast. These Billie Burke smocks measure right up to these requirements and there are four separate and distinct styles to choose from.

The first is a fine broadcloth in peach, helio, blue, other plain colors, trimmed with chintz collar and cuffs.

The second is a Scotch zephir in neat pattern. The colors are gold, blue, peach and helio.

Another is made from a good quality percale in the new bubble prints. This is something unique, yet attractive.

Another style comes in a good quality sport suiting in two shades of blue.

BOARD OF TRADE PROPOSAL FOR SEASONAL LABOR

Difficulty of Getting Extra Farm Help Might Be Eliminated.

BRING SETTLERS.

Would Solve Problem Also of Utilizing Poor Areas.

A Western Board of Trade recently passed a resolution pointing out that Canada faces two major agricultural and colonization problems, which are particularly acute in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Northern Ontario, British Columbia and the Prairie Provinces, namely:

(1) The settlement of our submarginal lands (including bush country, the drier lands, rough and inferior areas), which apparently constitute well over 50 per cent. of all present unoccupied lands in Canada, east and west, much of which is located within easy distance of transportation, but has been discarded by land seekers in the past or frequently abandoned by settlers unable to adopt a standard of living in keeping with the economic results such lands are capable of yielding.

(2) The difficulty of obtaining a sufficient volume of seasonal agricultural labor for harvest, haying, root culture, fruit picking, etc., which has necessitated rushing to Western Canada a vast volume of unskilled and inferior labor each autumn, leading to a heavy unemployment relief burden upon the towns and cities of the West each winter.

A Constructive Proposal.

Those who are familiar with Canada's resources and development will unhesitatingly agree with these eminently sane conclusions, which contain in a nutshell the real problems facing us all. Equally sound are the remedies proposed. The Federal government is urged:

(a) To cause an immediate examination to be made of sub-marginal districts throughout Canada with a view to segregating those that are manifestly and permanently unfit for any sort of settlement, as well as those that are at present unavailable owing to lack of transportation facilities.

(b) That a systematic plan be worked out, in co-operation with the railways and the land owners generally, to settle the remainder with assisted East-European peasantry, accustomed to a standard of living which will enable them to establish homes on small farms within such sub-marginal districts, with the expectation of working for other farmers during part of each year; such colonists to be settled only in small groups forming convenient labor centres.

(c) That, concurrent with such a policy, every effort be made to bring to Canada the grestest possible number of agricultural settlers from Great Britain, the United States and the Northern countries of Europe.

A Farm-Labourer Policy.

There will be general agreement that this resolution is a valuable contribution towards heading the government of Canada in the direction of a real, national development policy having for its object the colonization of our largest body of unoccupied lands and, incidentally, solving the acute labour problem of the Canadian farmer in the only manner in which it ever can be satisfactorily solved. And we might as well clearly understand that until this labour problem is solved we cannot make any worth while progress in diversifying our farming operations. In Great Britain and Europe farm labour is resident on the land or in villages, occupying cottages and bits of gardens owned by the landlords. This system cannot be introduced n Western Canada at least and would be difficult in the East. Recognizing that agricultural labour is distinctly in a class by itself and should be, as it were, attached to the land, and also that the demand for such labour is highly seasonal, the obvious course is to settle it on small farms where the labourer and his family can be profitably employed when not working out.

The Farmer's Wife.

The question of occasional domestic labour also enters into the matter. The overworked housewife faces periods of extra strain during the agricultural year. It is useless to look to urban centres as a source of occasional help. Domestic servants will not go into country districts away from the conveniences and amusements of the towns. And they do not have to. Competition for their services is too keen in urban communities. To obtain such labour upon our farms for short periods during the year is, therefore, practically impossible. The plan under discussion would also solve this very serious problem. The wives and daughters of this class of settlers would welcome the opportunity to earn a substantial sum during haying, harvesting, threshing and fruit picking seasons.

The Farmer and Government Agencies.

Those who think in terms of unionized labour will shy at any attempt to make available casual farm labour at a somewhat more consistent rate of pay than now prevails during the busy seasons. The truth is that the farmer is now "held up" owing to the fact that he is obliged to obtain his help largely through government employment agencies, where certain rates are demanded through cohesive action on the part of unemployed, who gather there daily and have ample time and opportunity to agree amongst themselves to uniform minimum demands. The fact is clearly recognized, that the Canadian farmer is not safe in placing himself in the hands of these public employment agencies, however anxious the managers of them may be to observe strict neutrality.

The Unionized Farm.

No one deplores the farmers' inability to pay union wages and adopt union hours more thoroughly than the farmer does himself. But to apply such an ideal program would involve butter at a dollar a pound retail and other farm produce in proportion, and no class of consumer has hitherto exhibited any alarming desire to voluntarily place his household budget on any such costly basis. The farmer, being manager, capitalist and labourer all rolled into one, is directly and instantly confronted with fundamental, economic facts. One of them is that there must be a proper relation between the cash wages paid for an hour's labour and its productive return. He cannot "pass on" any added cost to the consumer. There is absolutely no room for compromise. If he cannot hire labour at a feasible rate of pay, he must either hand over to his hired man all, or part, of what he personally produces in "the sweat of his brow," which is largely the situation at present, or he must curtail his operations or "go broke." A colonization policy that would even partly solve this problem would instill new life into Canadian agriculture.

"Proper Food and Exercise," by ARTHUR A. McGOVERN Former physical director, Cornell Medical College.

Correct posture aid to good health

A STRAIGHT BACK CHAIR IS A GOOD HABIT

GIVEN a fairly good physical constitution and the determination to follow a strict program of proper exercises, there are few people who cannot correct their posture in a short time. Most trouble of this sort comes from not giving the muscles sufficient exercise to keep them toned up, and is further aggravated by relaxed muscles.

A person in poor physical condition will tire easily and in order to rest will sink into an easy chair and cuddle up in an unnatural position. Instead of complete rest, such a position really means continuing to exhaust one's self by putting an intense strain on one's muscles.

Unfortunately, all people are not as up to date as they would like to be in the matter of physique. Hollow chest, round shoulders, scoliosis, curvatures and faulty postures are bound to occur among those who have lived a fairly inactive life without any regular system of physical training.

The habit that most people acquire when sitting is to let one shoulder or side fall lower than the other. This causes the chest to sag also. The man who sags on the left side while sitting is apt to keep his left hand to his face or chin for support, which results in a position that crowds the liver, stomach and intestines. Another common habit is that of putting the feet on a rest of some sort, eventually causing round shoulders. The only way I know of for a person to correct bad sitting posture is to deliberately watch himself over a considerable period of time. Remember that you are most likely to slouch and sag in an easy chair, and at the same time you take shorter breaths because you are breathing merely with the lungs. The man who works at a desk should always use a straight back chair; for writing he should move forward from the hips with his back straight, keeping his chin and chest in a straight line.

The first tendency of a person who is not in good physical condition is to use his hand and elbow to support him when working at a desk; this means a distortion of the correct sitting posture. There are many comfortable, easy chairs with straight backs. Make a habit of using one of these, if you can, when reading or resting at home. Lean back if you want to and relax the abdominal muscles, but avoid letting the head sag forward over the chest at any time; as long as you keep the chest and the chin in a straight line, your posture is not likely to displace the stomach and intestines.

I have an illustrated chart of 12 exercises which I will gladly furnish free upon request of any of my readers who will send a self-addressed stamped envelope to McGovern's Gymnasium, 5 West 66th Street, New York City. These exercises are too lengthy to put into this small article.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Babies have a lot of rough places to cross before they get to be big children. But they are precious things no matter how weak and feeble they are. The parents gladly give hours and hours of their time to nurse the youngsters back to health.

Parental love is a wonderful gift to humanity. I saw a beautiful example of this a few days ago. On a train between New York and Washington I saw a mother guiding and half lifting her little daughter, who appeared to have had infantile paralysis.

A little later, when the child had grown tired, the father took her in his arms, wrapping a garment around the twisted body, holding the child while she slept. It was heart touching to see his kind and loving glances as the father watched over his little one.

Infantile paralysis is a terrible affliction. Abruptly and without the slightest warning it may fairly jump at the child. Vomiting, fever, headache and extreme prostration hide the paralysis which is discovered when the acute symptoms subside.

There are several types of the disease. One form is the brain type, another is the spinal type. What we usually describe as "poliomyelitis," or infantile paralysis, is usually the spinal form. More than three-quarters of the cases are met in the first two or three years of life. Of course, it can come at any age and, as a matter of fact, grown people do not escape it.

Undoubtedly, it is a disease which may be transmitted from one person to another. On this account it sometimes becomes epidemic. When it does every parent in the community is on edge with fright.

The worst epidemic of this disease known to medical history occurred in New York in 1916. There were nine or ten thousand cases as I recall it, more than four thousand of these were seen in a single month.

Of course, the paralysis is the dreaded effect. The acute symptoms disappear soon, but the damaged muscles are slow to recover, if they ever do.

Almost always the lower extremities are involved. One or both legs are attacked. Or else one arm and one leg may be found to be out of order. In a few cases the whole body is included in the destructive process.

At first the paralysis is quite complete and movement is impossible. In a few weeks the trouble begins to grow better and within a few months the improvement is as much as it will be. After that whatever paralysis is left is likely to be permanent.

The affected muscles wither and the involved part grows smaller. In consequence walking is interfered with, and it is difficult to move about.

It is important to have the discharges from the nose and throat destroyed. The afflicted person is dangerous so long as these secretions may be passed on to others. Of course, it is not definitely proven that the discharges carry the infection, but that is our present belief as regards most of the so-called "catching diseases."

Massage, electricity, baths, sprays and other stimulating applications are helpful in removing the effects of infantile paralysis.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

TUESDAY, JUNE 1.

An interesting day is forecast from the prevailing astral activities. There may be strange developments or flourishing conditions brought about through intrigue or other subtle manipulation. This carries some danger of duplicity or betrayal. The health should be well considered and new projects carefully entertained. Employment is under excellent sway, encouraging endeavors for promotion or preferment. Be discreet in social and personal matters.

Those whose birthday it is are assured an interesting and lively year, in which intrigue or diplomacy may play a part. But beware duplicity and cunning, guard the health, and push for advancement in all affairs. A child born on this day may have many excellent endowments for success and fulfilled ambitions but it should be given early training to safeguard its physical health. It should make signal success in diplomatic circles or where finesse is required.

OTTAWA, May 31 (Canadian Press).—The Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, will leave for Winnipeg next Saturday or Sunday. He will speak at the Manitoba Conservative Convention in Winnipeg, on Tuesday, June 8.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY DISCOVERS A LITTLE LOG CABIN.

"Well, of all things!" Dotty exclaimed softly, as she almost stepped on the little pile of sticks, each laid on top of the other like a little log cabin. "now who in the world has been doing that. I'd like to know!"

"So would I," laughed a merry voice, and Dotty turned around to look down into the smiling face of a merry little elfin. "Hello there, Dotty. Did you make a find?"

"Sure enough Happy Giggles," whispered Dotty. "Don't make a sound. I want to see who lives in this dear little log cabin. Look, they have plastered the sticks together with moss and mud. Isn't it just too cunning for words? Don't you know to whom it belongs, Happy Giggles?"

"Of course I do," replied the merry elfin, rapping on the side of the little cabin. "Come on out, neighbor, and meet a friend of mine," he called.

There was a soft rustling sound in the log cabin, then over the top edge came a merry little spider.

"Well, well, hello there, Happy Giggles," she laughed. "Who's your friend? Won't you come in?"

"This is Mrs. Turret-building Spider.

"What's That on Your Back?"

Dotty," said the elfin, bowing politely. "Well, what's that you have on your back?"

"Surely you are not moving, Mrs. Turret-building Spider," spoke up Dotty. "That's always the way. Just as soon as I get acquainted with a little meadow fellow, off they move. I hope you're not going away?"

"I'll say I'm not moving," chuckled Mrs. Turret-building Spider. "Not until I raise my family, anyway. It takes too long to build a cabin to move very often. I'm mighty glad to know you, Dotty."

"Thank you, Mrs. Spider," said Dotty. "So you have a family? Is that the family washing you have on your back?"

"This white thing?" asked Mrs. Turret-building Spider. Then she laughed when Dotty nodded her head. "Goodness, no, my dear; that is my bag of eggs. Some spiders lay them on the ground or bury them, but I carry my eggs with me all the time."

"Yes," laughed Happy Giggles, "and if I remember right, after they hatch, Mrs. Turret-building Spider carries the youngsters around on her back until they are old enough to look out for themselves."

"It's the best way," said Mrs. Spider. "Why, sometimes there are so many of them they have to cling to my legs. But come on in and see my lovely little home. I made every bit of it myself, and I'm very proud of it."

She led Happy Giggles and Dotty into her little log cabin, which was built up about two inches above her burrow. The inside of the walls were just as smooth as could be, and over them Mrs. Turret-building Spider had woven a silk lining. There was not a thing untidy about the place. Everything was spick and span.

"No wonder you are proud of your house," said Dotty when they came out again. "I don't blame you. It's a lovely little log cabin and I'm coming to call on you again some day. Now I must go home and help Mama." and bidding the elfin and Mrs. Turret-building Spider goodby, Dotty ran home to help her Mama.

JUNIOR RED CROSS A CANADIAN'S IDEAL

Mary Phillips, of Montreal, Honored at Conference.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 29. — (Canadian Press.) — Miss Mary Phillips of Montreal was Friday introduced to the full session of the Pan-American Red Cross conference as the originator of the junior Red Cross and the founder of the first Red Cross auxiliary. Miss Phillips was given a most enthusiastic greeting and was invited to take her place on the platform by the side of the chairman of the conference. It was one of the most striking tributes paid to anyone in the course of the sessions of the conference thus far.

Dr. James W. Robertson, chairman of the Canadian delegation, was a guest at luncheon of the British ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, and was presented to the crown Prince of Sweden. Col. G. G. Nasmith, presented an address to the conference on "The Junior Red Cross in Health Education," which was well received.

The Canadian delegation is meeting daily to consider various questions to present to the conference.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

GOSSIP.

"I still can't understand why Miss Cleaver being the most jealous person in the world has anything to do with me," I remarked pettishly.

The girl stood still and looked at me.

"I wonder if you are as innocent as one would think you, or are you a regular vamp. Don't you see that Miss Cleaver has been in the store twenty-five years and gossip has it that Robinson is tired of her and ready to call it a day."

"Oh, Miss Horton, you don't mean—"

"Yes, that is just exactly what I do mean."

"Everyone in the store has been curious for the last two months to know who was going to be Cleaver's successor. And after this little episode this morning everybody is saying that you are picked."

"Well, they need not hang that on me. I wouldn't take him from Miss Cleaver or anyone else if he were the last man on earth."

"But don't you understand, Miss Dean," said the girl. "He is the general manager of the whole works and he can make you or break you in a minute."

"He can do nothing of the kind, I'll tell the world. If he or any other man that thinks that I will barter myself for a little twenty-five-dollar-a-week job has another think coming."

Just then a pretty girl came in and wanted to buy a whole dozen handkerchiefs for her brother and I had to put away all this "sex stuff" for a course of "success in salesmanship."

I was greatly taken with the girl, and when she left she said that she would always ask for me when she wanted more handkerchiefs. I almost blew her a kiss when she turned away. There was something about her that appealed to me very much.

After she had gone the floor man came and said that my time for going to lunch would be ten minutes past twelve and that I must punch the time clock promptly when I returned at ten minutes past one.

The moment I went out I telephoned Mamie, and at her request met her at a little lunch room where we often met for out eats at noon. Mamie was very pale but her eyes were very bright and she seemed very happy.

"Judy, I am sure Buddy loves me, just as much and in the same way that I love him."

United States Honors Memory of Civil War Dead.

NEW YORK, May 31. — Canadian Press. — The people of the United States to-day paid homage to their civil war dead. Arlington National cemetery, Washington, was the centre of the country's memorial day tribute at flower-strewn graves, with President Coolidge as chief spokesman for the living and many other officials and members of Congress playing similar roles at local ceremonies in various parts of the country. The markets were closed throughout the country.

WHAT.. MORE.. COULD.. ONE VACATION HOLD?

If you made a list of all the things you consider would constitute an ideal vacation and then made a list of all the things you can get at Kawartha Lakes, you would find that the two lists would balance each other exactly.

Scenic beauty, health, recreation and inspiration are all here, and you enjoy them amid cedar, sparkling lakes teeming with hard-fighting fish and cool verdant forests, pungent with pure balsam and spicy cedar. There are hotels in plenty at Kawartha Lakes and every requisite for a full calendar of sports. It is just the place for a wonderful holiday.

Patterns of Progress

An American home—its bathtub, breakfast foods, furnace—set down in the heart of Europe would be unmistakably an American home. An American man—the cut of his coat, the tie of his tie, the comb of his hair—walking the streets of Europe is in all his obvious tastes an American.

Advertisements stamp American homes and owners of homes with a kind of national pattern. They create desire for the same kind of things; make particular people know and want the most advanced of things. Homes—what to put in homes. People—how to dress, nourish, entertain the people. Offices—how to equip and operate offices. They set America right about radios and talcums—tell businessmen, housewives, government officials how to brush their teeth!

We cut the pattern of our personal lives and surroundings from advertisements. We keep modern only with their intimate help. We go forward with them, as we would stand still without them. We form our tastes and discriminate values by using their truths. Advertisements offer us patterns of progress that mean quick steps to the fore.

Keep pace with progress by reading the advertisements every day

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A YOUTHFUL BOUFFANT DANCE FROCK.

We have been awfully busy at the shop lately. All our smartest clients are getting ready to go away for the Summer, and this means collecting frocks enough to last them till they can get back to town and back to Madame in the Fall.

Hordes of young things who are enjoying their first Summer out in society have been rushing in and out intent upon looking their best at the Summer resort dances. For, as one of them aptly put it

"Competition is thick."

She went on to assure me that in her set there were far more attractive girls than men, and she assured me that the only thing to do was to outdistance the competition.

"That's why I've got to have a lot of stunning frocks," she announced with decision.

Just then Madame came hurrying in with an armful of soft white taffeta.

"Oh, dear, Madame, mother insisted I have a white frock, but I'm so afraid it don't look sophisticated enough," the young thing wailed.

"Just you wait," assured Madame. "It is white, to be sure, but I have put a soft fold of black net about the hem, which I promise you will make it thoroughly distinctive, and quite different from every other frock in the room."

The dress was fitted. It had a lovely bodice, moulded to the slim form of the wearer, and it was caught up at each hip in a sort of pannier effect.

About the bottom was a deep fold of fine black net, which gave a dashing finish that an all-white frock of the kind would have lacked.

"Now, stand still while I place the gardenias in the most becoming way," Madame instructed the young girl, who was beginning to hop around and admire herself in the long mirror.

This Full-Skirted White Taffeta Frock Is Trimmed With Black Net.

Accordingly, she pinned one lovely gardenia at the shoulder, two more at the waistline on the opposite side, and two others on the skirt.

"Mother was right," said the young thing, as she gave a last admiring glance before removing the dress to have the gardenias sewed in place.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE FORTY WINKS GREET THE TWINS.

"I'm one of the Forty Winks," said the Eye as it looked solemnly at the Twins from under its three-cornered hat. "Didn't you ever hear of the Forty Winks of Drowsy Land?"

"The name seems familiar," said Nick politely. "Where are the others?"

"They're coming," said the Eye. "This place is called Shut-Eye Town. We sleep most of the time with our hats down over our faces like this." And the Eye's queer three-cornered hat slid down until he was covered entirely—all but his arms and legs. Then it flew up again where it had been before. "But when there is the slightest noise we wake up," he went on. "I heard Snoozlesnugglesnore, the gatekeeper, open the blue gate to let you in. So I came to see what was up. Here are my brothers now. I thought they would waken when they heard us talking."

The other thirty-nine Winks now came out of the same tall tree that the first Wink had come from and stood staring in a silent row. They were of different colors, all the Winks were. Some were blue, some were brown, some black, some gray, some hazel, and some even green.

"We're the policemen of Drowsy Land," said the first Wink. "We have to ask everybody who comes exactly what he is here for, if he's had the measles, whether he prefers wheat-cakes to buns, and what the earth folk think of the weather. Commence!"

The Twins couldn't help laughing, which had a peculiar effect. The hats of the forty Winks slid down and then instantly slip up again. No doubt they were showing their surprise.

"I'll tell you what we're here for," said Nick. "We are hunting for Inco, our china elephant door-stop. He had roses all over him and no tail. Flops, the clown was on him. They both ran off! The Fairy Queen told us they had come to Drowsy Land. Did they?"

"Answer the other questions first," said the first Wink. "One question never answered another. How about the measles?"

"We've both had them both ways," answered Nancy.

"Wheat-cakes or buns—which?" said the Wink.

"Wheat-cakes!" shouted the Twins with one voice.

"Weather! That's important. Do the earth folk like it?"

"Well," said Nick, "I guess it's all right when it doesn't rain."

At this all the hats on the Forty Winks flew up and down like triphammers, and the Twins looked so amazed that the first Wink said, "That's the way Winks clap their hands. You have passed your examination one hundred per cent each. You see we like to hear that earth folk like clear weather. When it's rainy or cloudy; there is no moon. Then where, oh where, are we? For Drowsy Land is on the moon."

At this all the hats on the Forty two pink tickets out of his pocket, handing one to each of the Twins. "These are the passes to any place in Drowsy Land you may wish to go," said he. "We hope you may find your lost friends. And now, I shall do you a last favor. Your eyes shall be opened. Shut-Eye Town is not a place of trees. Behold!"

And to the children's amazement the trees slid aside like stage scenery and disappeared in the distance, leaving the queerest looking streets and houses they had ever beheld. And people! You should have seen the people, my dears! I can't wait to tell you what they looked like!

The Woman's Day

LONG SKIRTS.

It seems rather needless for the Swedish court to rule recently that skirts must fall to within six inches of the floor when worn by any woman appearing at court, since style is accomplishing the very same thing. Most of the skirts seen on Social Register brides and bridesmaids of the spring are as long as those worn by crinolined maids in old-fashioned gardens when the eve was cool.

CLUB NOTE!

If your club has four dollars and four dollars only to spend, do so at once. Invest it in a new home called "Art Throughout the Ages," by Helen Gardner, and go in for a year's program of art which means something. The world's treasure trove of pottery, rugs, tapestries, frescos, sculptures, oils and bronzes is opened to you with gorgeous pictures to boot!

PRODIGY EPIDEMIC.

Once upon a time a child called Daisy Ashford wrote a book which minted some trillion-million dollars for its supposed juvenile author, and straightway all the mother's darlings in the country began writing books, much to the dismay of drowning publishers. Things calmed down for a while, then little bob-headed Nathalia Crane wrote her poems about the janitor's boy, much to that youngling's dismay, and Explorer Beebe took his publisher's son, David Putnam on the Sargasso Sea trip, after which David wrote "David Goes Voyaging," and now the epidemic is on again! Here's wagering that parents are the prompters of these child classics. Just as few children "take their pen in hand" as practice scales of own accord!

IT AND HE WERE "FULL."

They tell this story about Charles Lamb, author. A woman asked the coachman of a coach in which Lamb was riding, "are you full inside?" Whereupon Lamb stuck his head from the carriage window and said, "I am quite full inside; that last piece of pudding at Mr. Gillman's did the business for me."

WHAT KIND PUDDING?

It must have been ginger pudding. Try it yourself and see if you blame Charlie. One and one-half cups cooked rice, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup minced nut meats, 1-4 cup preserved ginger finely chopped 1-2 cup marshmallows cut fine, 2 cups whipped cream. Mix rice, sugar, salt and vanilla. Add to ginger, nuts and marshmallows, fold in whipped cream, chill.

BLACK AND WHITE.

A puzzle of childhood days went, "what is black and white but red all over?" the answer, of course, being "a book." Fashion asks this year, "what is black and white and seen everywhere?", and the answer is "hats and suits and coats and dresses." This is the strongest black-and-white year for many a moon. Ensemble costumes of black coats lined with white crepe de chine, white dresses trimmed with black, are especially good.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

CHRONIC ALVEOLAR ABSCESS.

One of the marked characteristics of the acute alveolar abscess is that with its termination, the chronic form follows immediately, and persists.

With the chronic form established, there is probably little or no pain, and the tooth, though slightly lame, can now be used with comparative comfort.

So it comes that you fancy the tooth restored again to health, until you notice a small swelling from which there may be a slight discharge, high up on the gum overlying the tooth root.

Then the tooth wasn't quite right after all?

This particular type of chronic abscess, in which pus still continues to be discharged on the surface of the tissues, is known as a chronic abscess with a sinus. The pus may be discharged intermittently in minute quantities, or again it may flow in large amounts.

It frequently happens that the sinus will close up and the gum tissue will heal over, only to have the pus burrow its way to the surface again, either through the old, or a new channel, and be discharged.

But it may be that the pus does not find its way to the surface of the tissues, but is absorbed directly into the body fluids from the area of infection.

You have then a 'blind abscess,' and one that is much more dangerous than the sinus type, since, with the ready passage of the bacteria and of the poisonous products of decomposition into the body fluids, they are carried to distant organs and other tissues where they may set up infective processes much more virulent than that at the end of the tooth root.

Thus, with the chronic alveolar abscess there is established a (so-called) seat of infection which at once becomes an ever present and grave menace until, through medicinal or surgical interference (frequently necessitating the removal of the tooth), the tissues are again restored to health.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

HOUSEHOLD HYGIENE.

The hygiene conventions now going on in Germany stir interest in the subject in America. The subjects cover all human needs. Without awaiting the hearing of final results, we can start things in our own homes now. Where and how you sleep, how and where you eat, and how you clean house are good starting points.

Have you comfortable beds, light but warm bedding, clean mattresses and fresh pillows? See to it that these things are attended to at once and for all beds in the house. The windows at night should be fully screened, wire in Summer and muslin in Winter.

Now as to eating. All foods should be taken care of in a sanitary manner, kept dry and cool or iced as the case may be: refrigerators be kept absolutely clean, the food cared for as soon as it arrives in the home. Foods must be properly and cleanly served, with clean linen, carefully washed china and pottery, well-cleansed kitchen utensils, and no food saved over for economy's sake that is not in perfect condition.

Sunlight, air and cleanliness are necessities for a healthy home. In selecting a spot on which to build, see that drainage of the ground is perfect, high enough or sewerage to work perfectly, no standing water about and that foliage is not close enough to the house to create dampness. In selecting an apartment, make sure that a good draught can be obtained right through the rooms, that plumbing is good, walls painted instead of being papered if possible, and as little ventilation from inner courts as can be managed. These few suggestions will help in avoiding evils if followed and prepare the way for adoption of greater hygienic methods discovered at the big convention.

LACK OF KICK LOSES OPENER ON HOME GROUNDS FOR PETES IN CONTEST WITH BELLEVILLE

Twelve Petes Left on Bases Tell Tale of Runs Lost By Inability To Swat Visitors' Offerings, Though Luck Favors Invaders In Some Hits.

SCORE IS 8 TO 3.

Lefty Lennox Holds Belleville Crew For Four Innings With Only One Safety— Disaster Comes in Fifth With Hagerm an and Gibson.

(By F. D. C.)

The Petes didn't exactly cover themselves with glory in their first home Central Ontario League game of the season at the Stevenson Park on Saturday afternoon, when Belleville took most of the joy out of the opening by beating Manager Johnston's men 8 to 3. The fault with the home talent was the same as many people found in Mr. Ferguson's 4.4 beer last year—lack of kick. The fact that twelve Petes were left on bases as compared with only three of the invaders, tells its own story.

The Johnstonites couldn't produce sufficient driving power to convert their scoring opportunities into runs while the visitors showed their old time ability to cash in on their chances to register. Outside of Weir, the Belleville wrecking crew failed to hit, but the tail end of the batting order made up for the rest. Gibson, the rookie third baseman, and Goyer and Oulette, who divided the pitching burden, punching out six of the visitors' ten hits. They were a bit lucky in some of them. Gibson, up to sacrifice, popping a soft fly back of second for a single and Goyer with two strikes on him reaching for a waste ball, high and wide, and cracking it for two bases, but it's an old baseball proverb that the winning team makes its own breaks.

Lefty Lennox was Manager Johnston's pitching selection, and for four inning he had the Belleville crew hog-tied, a scratch hit by Wicky Ross being their only safety. Disaster came in the fifth, when Hagerman led off with a single and Gibson's bunt safety put two on and nobody out. The break came when Hagerman started to steal third and Ross threw high over the bag with Helson slow in covering. That let in a run and paved the way for a couple more; in fact, if Herbie Wolfe had not interjected a sensational double play the visitors would have taken a further lead. Lennox passed from the picture in the next frame, when he passed W. Mills, made a useless attempt to force him at second on H. Mills' bunt, and then was touched up for a single by Blakely. Jeff Hardill went in and struck out the side, although a crossfire which he tossed wide of the plate let another run in. Hardill's arm was lame, and Heckman pitched the last two innings. Belleville showed their offensive strength by scoring off all three Peterboro twirlers.

Gilly Goyer started the game for Belleville, and blanked the Petes until the sixth, although he was inclined to be wild, had only fair speed and a curve that did not amount to anything. When the homesters finally broke through his service in the sixth, Manager Gerow took no more chances and sent Jack Oulette in to finish the game, which same the Fenelon Falls boy did in workmanlike style.

In addition to Oulette, Belleville showed a new third base man in "Hoot" Gibson, formerly of Cobourg, who turned in a good card at the difficult corner while Palmer, the junior player last year, was in right field. The visitors played snappy ball and deserved their victory.

The outstanding fielding feature was Wolfe's two-play killing. With Goyer on third in Belleville's fifth and one out, Ross drove a long fly to right centre, which Wolfe grabbed and then threw the ball in on a line to Ross, doubling Goyer at the plate as he tried to score. It was a beautiful toss. Ray Rose played great ball at short and his fast play on Goyer's grounder in the third to force Palmer at second was a gem.

The game opened with the usual ceremonies. His Worship Mayor Holloway acted as pitcher; W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. was the batter, and E. A. Peck, M.P., donned the pad and mask and went behind the plate. The Mayor's first delivery was a wild pitch, but he levelled away on the second, shooting one down the alley which Mr. Bradburn fouled, and the game was on.

Play By Innings

In the first, Weir rolled to Helson. Ross beat out a tap to Lennox, but was caught cold off first by the Petes' southpaw. Peeney Mills raised an easy fly to Ash.

For the Petes, Wolfe flied to Ross. Rose singled down the right field foul line, Ross forced him at second, Blakely to Weir, and Hall was called out on strikes.

Harry Mills opened Belleville's second by drawing a pass, but Blakely forced him on a roller to Holyman, Hagerman struck out, and Ross tossed out Gibson on a tap in front of the plate.

Ash gave the Petes a good start by doubling over Hagerman's head but threw it away by trying to go to third, when Helson grounded to Gibson, the Petes' right fielder being an easy out Harrison was passed. Lennox hit to Gibson, forcing Helson at third, and Holyman flied to Ross.

In the third, Palmer walked, but was forced at second on a beautiful play by Rose on Goyer's sharp grounder. Weir flied to Ash, and Ross struck out.

For the Petes, Wolfe walked; Rose flied to Ross, Bob Ross grounded to H. Mills, as Wolfe was stealing second. Hall fouled to the same player.

Rose engineered three plays in succession that retired the invaders in the fourth. He tossed out W. Mills, made a nice catch of H. Mills' high fly and then a fast play to throw out Blakely.

Ash, first up for the Petes, was safe on Blakely's wide throw and was sacrificed to second by Helson. Harrison, however, fanned, and Lennox hoisted one to Hagerman.

Belleville broke the game wide open in the fifth. Hagerman stung one to centre for a single and Gibson trying to bunt, popped one back to second for a safe hit. When Hagerman started to steal third Helsen was slow in covering and Ross threw high to third. Hagerman scoring. A wild pitch put Gibson on third. Palmer hit to Rose, who made a nice stop, but threw low. Gibson held third on the play. Palmer stole second. Goyer singled to right, scoring Gibson and taking second on the throw in. Weir punched a single through Rose, scoring Palmer. Ross drove a long fly to Wolfe in right centre and Goyer was doubled at the plate on Wolfe's beautiful throw home.

The Petes had a great chance to get some of them back in their half, but the punch was lacking. Holyman flied to Palmer, but Wolfe singled sharply to left centre and stole second. Rose singled to right, sending Wolfe to third and then stole second. Ross popped to Gibson. Hall walked, filling the bases, but Ash's good bid for a hit was turned into a force out at second, Blakely to Weir.

The sixth saw the exit of Lennox. He opened by walking W. Mills and when H. Mills bunted, Lennox threw to second too late to get the Belleville cadger. Blakely stabbed a single to right, scoring W. Mills. Hardill relieved Lennox with two on and nobody out, and speedily struck out Hagerman and Gibson. With Palmer up, a wild pitch on a crossfire, let Harry Mills score after which Hardill fanned the batter, giving the relief pitcher three strike outs in the frame.

The Petes got all their runs in their half. Helson singled to right to start with, and after Harrison had flied to Hagerman, Hardill hit to Weir and everybody was safe when Blakely dropped the throw at second. Heckman batted for Holyman and walked, filling the bases, Goyer couldnt get the ball over for Wolfe either, and passed him, sending Helson in with the frist run. Rose was called out on strikes, but Ross singled to left centre, scoring Hardill, and Heckman; and taking second on the throw in. Hall flied to Hagerman.

In the seventh, Goyer hit a waste ball to left field for two bases, and went to third on Weir's single to right. Ross forced Weir at second, Rose to Heckman, Goyer scoring on the play. Ross died stealing and W. Mills fanned.

Oulette was on the rubber for Belleville in the Petes' half. Ash rolled to Gibson. Helson singled over second, Harrison bounded to Oulette, and Hardill fanned.

Heckman went to the pitching mound in the eighth, Hardill's arm being sore. Harry Mills flied to Wolfe, Blakely and Hagerman fanned.

The Petes were as easy. Heckman flied to Ross. Wolfe tapped to Oulette and Rose fanned.

In the ninth Gibson singled over second. Palmer rolled to Helson, whose throw to second was too late to get Gibson, and Oulette singled to right, filling the bases. Weir's sacrifice fly to Ash scored Gibson and on Ash's bad threw home Palmer also registered. Ross struck out and W. Mills rolled to Oulette.

For the Petes Ross rolled to Oulette, Jack Hall, batting for brother Jimmy, was safe on Blakely's fumble, but was forced at second by Ash, and Helson flied to Palmer to wind up the matinee.

TORONTO BEATS YALE VARSITY IN LACROSSE

Well Earned Victory Against Hard Working Opponents.

SCORE 8 TO 6.

Three Periods of Twenty Minutes Each Mark New Departure.

NEW YORK, May 31 (Canadian Press).—University of Toronto defeated Yale University 8 to 6 in an international inter-collegiate lacrosse match played here at Baker Field on Saturday afternoon. The Canadian victory was well earned, the Toronto collegians showing the more finished brand of lacrosse. Yale worked hard throughout, but their efforts could not combat the tricky stick-handling, fast breaking and the snappy short passing game of the visiting twelve.

It was the Canadian team's first game of the season, and this, coupled with the lack of one available substitute, tended to slow them up towards the end of the contest. It was then that Yale showed most strength, and in the last session, the United States squad ran in three goals.

Three periods of twenty minutes each were played, an innovation for both teams. In Canada the regulation time is four sessions of twenty minutes apiece, while the United States colleges play two periods of thirty minutes each.

Canadian Offensive.

The game opened with the Canadians at once going on the offensive, but they were a bit shaky and this, coupled with some stellar work by Reid, the Yale goalie, kept the Toronto squad out of the summary for several minutes. Finally, a lightning-fast combined effort, Wallace to Graham, allowed the latter to slip the ball into the net and give the visitors the jump. Yale came right back and tied the count six minutes later, Greene doing the scoring. Before the end of the first period, Toronto again assumed the lead, from which they were never ousted. Douglas scooping a bounding ball into the net to give the U. of T. a 2 to 1 advantage.

The middle session was all Toronto, the Canadians running in six goals to Yale's 2. Harold Wallace led the Toronto attack in the period, netting three goals. Smart, Graham and Douglas obtained the other Toronto goals, while Withington and Stevens counted for Yale.

The Canadians showed signs of letting up in the last period, evidently feeling the effects of the gruelling, owing to the lack of spares. It was then that Yale forced the play. In ten minutes they had run in three goals, and had cut the visitors' lead to two. Toronto then bucked up and once again carried play to the other end. However, they were not able to add to their count, Reid again proving a stumbling block to their efforts.
